I had the misfortune to have suffered [illegible] years ago from [illegible] ing no less than three strokes. I could get nothing to do me any good until I was induced to try Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I took nine boxes, and although not by any means well, I think I am in a fair way to recovery. I can now walk with the aid of a stick and feel myself getting better every day. M. F. Mann, Martin, N.Y.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills permanently cured me of backache. I suffered for years, and took two boxes. That is a year ago. I have not had a symptom since. James R. Jackson, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

I do not believe there is a medicine to compare with Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills. They cured me of indigestion and catarrh of the stomach, after nine years' suffering. A. S. Macdonald, G.T.R. shops, Montreal.

Vaccine Was No Good.

Provincial Health Officer Bryce had a blue report on the smallpox situation to give out this morning. "I am afraid we are in for it," was the way he expressed his apprehensions. "It seems to be coming at us from all directions." In connection with his advice for general vaccination, he states that it will not be safe to trust to the vaccine which was on the market last spring. In many cases it did not "take," and a lot of it was poor stuff.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1896, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of this treatment, in a plain, sealed wrapper.

A. R. M. Club Social

The second social of the A.R.M. Bible club of the Y.M.C.A. was held on Thursday evening. The programme, which proved to be very interesting and amusing partook of a national character. Three sides composed of, English, Irish and Scotch each presented numbers setting forth the merits of their respective merits of the nation to which they belonged. The Englishmen, led by Mr. Trollope presented the most numbers. All did credit to their sides, their speeches bristling with witty points and good humor. The guests, to the number of forty-one all wore colors representing the nation to which they belonged. All who attended were pleased with the entertainment.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—How about our municipal elections? Is it not time that steps were being taken to bring out suitable men for the Council?

The people have the matter in their own hands, and it remains for them to say who shall govern them next year.

I am sure the present apathy is due largely to business cares, which prevent good men from engaging in municipal work I hope the Times will stir them up.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor. I am, etc.,

PROHIBITION AND THE POLITICIANS

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The only candidate in the field, so far, for the next local election is the Hon. J. R. Stratton, and although he has spoken columns of stuff, wise and otherwise, upon matters both pertinent and irrelevant to the well-being of the people in general, which have been enlarged and re-touched by his mentor and alter ego—Wm. Yokome—yet we do not find one utterance from the honorable gentleman upon the burning question of the day, i.e., prohibition.

Would Mr. Stratton speak out like a little man and tell us where he stands upon this important issue, or is it his purpose to play fast and loose with the question after the manner of his leader in the House. And where are our prohibition friends, that they do not demand a declaration from him on the subject? Is it possible that they are swallowing their prohibition professions for the purpose of helping a fellow-politician in distress?

GAS AND TROUBLE.

Comes From White Bread.

While it is true that we build up the body from food, it is also true that different kinds of food have different effects on the body and produce different results.

For instance, it is absolutely impossible to live on white bread alone, for it contains almost nothing but starch, and an excess of white bread produces gas and trouble in the intestines, while at the same time, the other elements required by the body for building up brain and nerve centres, as well as muscular tissue, have been left out of the white bread, and we see from experience the one trying to live on white bread alone gradually fails in mental and nervous power as well as loss in muscle.

Such a diet could not be kept up long without fatal results. A lady in Jacksonville, Fla., was crippled by an accident two years ago. Being without the power of exercise, an old stomach trouble that was hers for years became worse, and it was a serious question regarding food that she could digest.

A physician put her on Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food with some remarkable results. She says now that, not only is she able to do a big day's work, because of the strength of her brain and nerves, but that she has finally thrown away her crutches because the muscles of her limbs have gradually grown stronger since she began the use of Grape-Nuts, and now she is practically well and can go about without trouble, notwithstanding the fact that it was said she would never be able to walk again. So much for eating the right kind of food instead of remaining an invalid and a cripple because of the lack of knowledge of the kind of food to use to bring one back to health. XMAS BEEF

The Pick of the Province .

Magnificent lot of Christmas Cattle for

KENNEDY'S MEAT MARKET

A carload of the very choicest Steers and Heifers, personally picked yesterday from the best feeders in the Province for the Peterborough market, including the well-known firms of Tweedie Bros. and Alex. Jeffrey, West Whitby, and Alex. McKenzie, East Whitby. No finer beef will be offered in Canada for the Christmas trade than here. For instance—one steer, 11 months old, tips the scales at nearly 1400 pounds! There's beef for you.

Part of this lot of cattle will be exhibited on the market, on foot, to-day, at 11 a.m., in order to give farmers, as well as the public of Peterborough, an opportunity of seeing choice butcher's cattle, and afford an opportunity, as well, of placing orders for any cut desired. A large number of customers, relying on our judgment, have already placed orders for Christmas beef.

CLEARING SALE—Remember the clearing sale of Meats in stock will be continued Saturday, 14th all day, at prices ruling on Saturday last. At these prices it pays the housekeeper to buy now.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF WAR SHOULD COME

Between Germany and the United States

The London Review Discusses that Possibility

Suggests That England Should Encourage the Kaiser's Desire to get a Foothold in South America

Looks for War as a Result of German Settlement in London, Dec. 16.—That rabid hater of all things American, the Saturday Review, prints a savage article in support of Germany's rumored ambitions in South America. It quotes Gaston de Segur, who recently visited Emperor William on the royal yacht Hohenzollern. According to M. de Segur, the greater part of his host's conversation was directed to pointing out the folly of European nations engaging in internecine quarrels when a far greater danger is growing up in the far west. The Saturday Review then goes on to say:

"In the light of these disclosures the recent assurance of Baron von Holleben, the German Ambassador at Washington, that the pursuit of coaling stations on the South American continent by Germany is a figment of the imagination may be received with respectful astonishment or admiration of such consummate diplomacy. Now that President Roosevelt has thrown down the gage in his reference to the military powers of the old world, which means hands off, Germany, the immense growth of the German population in Brazil implies that inevitably some day there will be German interference in that country, and the same remark applies with less force to Chile.

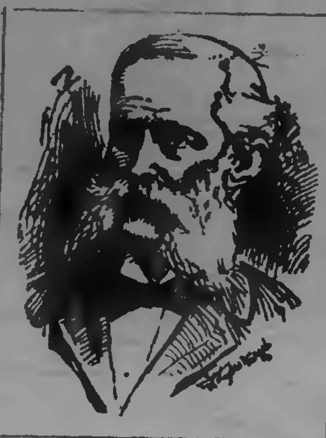
"Such interference in any form will involve a conflict with the United States. This is what Emperor William, with a statesman's foresight sees, but if England were alienated Germany could not hope at such a distance to carry on a war successfully with a naval Power almost her equal. Even an ally it would be no easy task, unless that ally were England, with her naval bases across the Atlantic. With England hostile, it would be an impossibility.

"We are not advocating an alliance with Germany against the United States; we advocate still less one with the United States against Germany. But in the event of a conflict we might with advantage to ourselves, hold the balance. Under the existing ministry we should undoubtedly pull chestnuts out of the fire for the Americans, but this ministry is not immortal, and a Tory government of a different calibre is conceivable.

"The permanent alienation of England from Germany would be injurious to Germany and more so to England. With friendly Germany posted in South America and loyal Canada in North America, we could hold the United States in some kind of check. With Germany eliminated from the political chess board of the New World we should with the present policy of admitting the unbridled pretensions of the United States everywhere one day find ourselves elbowed out forever from both North and South America."

Oddly enough the Spectator prints simultaneously with the above a carefully reasoned article on the British foreign policy, the conclusion of which is:

"It is impossible for us to expect friendliness from Germany. She is our rival; she wants to win from us. Therefore, let us recognize the facts and banish the notion of working with Germany against Russia or indeed any other Power. A German alliance is the least stable ground on which we can lay the foundation of our foreign policy."



DEATH OF MR. L. SHERLOCK

On of Peterboroughs Oldest Citizens Passes Away on Friday

The death occurred on Friday last at No. 294 Stewart street of Mr. Lucius Sherlock, after an illness of several months.

The deceased was a native of Ireland where he was born eighty-two years ago. He was educated in Dublin and when a young man entered the British service. He was appointed to the commissariat department and spent some time in the Mediterranean and the West Indies. Leaving the service he came to Canada and spent some time at Quebec, Kingston and Cobourg, where he was engaged in the offices of the Cobourg and Peterborough Railway Company.

During the American war he served as a Lieutenant in one of the New York regiments during which time he saw much active and hard campaigning. About forty years ago he came to Peterborough and held different positions of trust and responsibility. For many years he took an active part in business matters.

Deceased was a member of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church and a Conservative in politics.

The late Mr. Sherlock was twice married—his second wife having predeceased him some years ago. Three sons and three daughters are left to mourn his death.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from his late residence No. 294 Stewart street and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

THE CONSERVATIVES MOVE

A Convention to be Held Here Early in January

The Conservative machine has got to work, and has announced a meeting to be held early next month, at which Messrs. J. P. Whitney, and J. J. Foy are expected to be present. The object of the meeting is presumably to secure a candidate to contest West Peterborough at the approaching election to the Legislative Assembly. That this will be a difficult matter, is a foregone conclusion, for the experience of those who have undertaken the task of "redeeming" the riding, is not a pleasing one. The Times is of opinion that none but a fool would try it.

FATAL BLOOD POISONING

A Slight Scratch Causes the Death of a Young Lady

Orillia, Dec. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Allems, of Dunlop street, have the heartfelt sympathy of the townspeople in the sudden taking off of their daughter, Edith Adela, who died from the effects of what is supposed to have been blood poisoning. The young lady had not been of the most robust health for some time, but her condition was not such as to cause alarm. She attended school until the holidays, when her strength appeared to collapse. In some way the young girl had received a tiny scratch on her toe, and inflammation set in. A physician was called but notwithstanding the most skillful treatment the inflammation rapidly spread to the ankle and rapidly developed into blood poisoning. After suffering intensely for some days, Miss Allems succumbed to the disease. Edith Allems was a girl unusually popular with all her school mates, being of a bright and lovable disposition, and throughout her trying illness, although suffering intensely, never once complained, but bore her trials with a fortitude beyond her years.

HOW AN AD. WORKS

This Great Family Journal's Narrow Escape from Evil

A few days ago the genial proprietor of the Snowden House needed more female help, and inserted a little ad in this great family journal. Result: Two days later we received the following note from the Snowden House:

"Take out our ad. at once. Places filled. There has been so many answers to the advertisement from girls, that our unmarried male help has been constantly employed. If the ad. appears again will claim heavy damages."

It is the same old story. Mr. R. J. Kidd lost a valuable dog some time ago, and advertised in this g.f.j. for its recovery. Next day he was presented with seven dogs, including his own, several of which were brought in from the surrounding villages.

While this is not proposed to go into evidence to prove that even dogs read this g.f.j., it is intended to show that if you want to reach the people you MUST use these columns. Everybody reads the Times.

THE LATE MRS. HELM

An Old and Esteemed Citizen of Peterborough Passes Away

Mrs. Helm, relict of the late Wm. Helm, died at the residence of her niece, Brock avenue, Toronto, on Saturday morning. The deceased lady, whose maiden name was Miss Sophia J. Monell, had gone to Toronto shortly after the demise of her late husband, which took place only a few months ago. She was in advanced years, and since the death of Mr. Helm her health has been gradually declining. She had been a resident of Peterborough for many years, and was widely known. Her daughter, Mrs. Thos. Bradburn, was in Toronto at the time of her death. The funeral will take place from the C.P.R. station on the arrival of 11.23 train this morning.

Annual Meeting of St. Paul's W.F.M.

Owing to lack of space the Times could not print a report of the annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Mission Society of St. Paul's church on Saturday, which was held in the church parlors on Friday afternoon. The feature of the meeting was the excellent address of Mrs. Wilkie, who has labored for 22 years in India.

The chair was occupied by Miss Dickson, the president of the Society, and after the devotional exercise Mrs. A. E. Lech, presented the secretary's report which was in every way a satisfactory one.

The reports of the Frazer Mission Band and the Faithful Workers Mission Band in connection with St. Paul's were also presented, which showed the excellent work being done by these societies.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Miss Dickson.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. Dennistoun.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. McPherson.
Secretary—Mrs. Albert Lech.
Literary-Sec.—Mrs. Jas. Patterson.
Treasurer—Miss Kingan.
Librarian—Miss Bertha Brown.
Executive Committee—Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. Fife, Miss Roger, Mrs. Carmichael, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Eastwood and Mrs. James A. Hall.

After the meeting the members of the Frazer Mission Band assisted in serving refreshments of coffee and cake.

SENTENCES FOR THE CAPE REBELS

A Member of Cape Legislature Fined for Abetting Burghers

BURGHERS WOULD GIVE UP

But Delarey Says it is Useless—Trooper Took, of Ontario, Dead—General War News

Oudshoorn, Dec. 13.—A military court has convicted another Shoeman of the Cape Legislature of contributory treason, in neglecting to bring in his horses, whereby they fell into the enemy's hands, and also of failing to report the presence of the enemy on his farm. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, and fined £500. Others guilty of rebellious offences were also sentenced.

BURGHERS WANT TO SURRENDER.

Pretoria, Dec. 14.—According to credited information, the burghers under Gen. Delarey held a meeting at which they requested their commander to offer to surrender on condition that the British would undertake to rebuild their homes. Gen. Delarey told the men that it was useless to offer to surrender, except unconditionally.

PROSPECTORS' LICENSES.

Johannesburg, Dec. 13.—At a meeting of the Gold Commission to-day, Surveyors Tucker and Loveday urged the reduction of the present prospecting licenses. In answer to a question by the chairman he said there should be no hindrance of prospecting on crown or private lands, but reasonable safeguards should be established to protect the owners of the land.

CANADIAN DEAD.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—A cablegram from Cape Town states that Trooper William Took of St. Helen's, Ont., died from enteric fever at Thaba Nchu on the 10th of December. His father, William Took, will be notified by the department.

BOER OFFICERS TAKEN.

Harrismith, Dec. 13.—General Dartnell's capture of Captain Pretorious and Field-Cornet Lyon, is regarded as very important. Eighty or ninety Boers, 300 cattle, and 150 horses have also been taken.

PURSUED THE BOERS.

London, Dec. 13.—Major Pack-Beresford, with a detachment of South African Constabulary, pursued a Boer commando for several miles northwards, and finally came up with and attacked a convoy escorted by 200 men under Badenhorst, at Paardeburg. The fighting was slight.

Lord Roseberry Closely Watched

London, Dec. 14.—The most talked-of man in England to-day is Lord Rosebery. The Saturday Review says sarcastically:

"The whole word seems to be in a state of suspended animation in expectation of Lord Rosebery's speech on Monday. Chesterfield is filling up with special correspondents, who send long despatches describing the ferment and local excitement. In fact, quiet little Chesterfield is being to resemble Rennes on the eve of the Dryfus trial. Thousands of applications for seats had to be refused. The intense interest throughout the country could scarcely be awakened by any other figure in England's recent political history.

A Pointer for Peterborough County Council

At the November session of the Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham the following resolution was adopted: Moved by Councillor Ferguson, seconded by Councillor Miller, that a grant of $10 each be made to the editor of the Cobourg Sentinel Star and the editor of the Port Hope Times for their attendance at this Council, and reporting the proceedings of the same for the past year.

DEWEY DEFENDS ADMIRAL SCHLEY

While Many Others Condemn Him For His Conduct

NO FURTHER PROCEEDINGS

Difference of Opinion Among the Officers Who Conducted the Investigation Into Santiago Battle.

Washington, Dec. 14.—There is a difference of opinion in the Schley court of inquiry. The report of the investigation issued last night is divided into two documents, one by Admiral Dewey, who absolves Schley, and another by Admirals Benham and Ramsay, who condemn the inculpated admiral. The two latter officers find that Admiral Schley should have proceeded with the utmost despatch to Cienfegos, and maintained a close blockade; that he should have endeavored to have obtained information of the Spanish squadron there; that he should have proceeded to Santiago with despatch; that he should not have made the retrograde movement; that he should have obeyed the department's orders; that he should have endeavored to capture the Spanish vessels in Santiago; that he did not do his utmost to destroy the Colon; that he caused the squadron to lose distance in the loop of the Brooklyn; that he thereby caused the Texas to back; that he did injustice to Hodgson; that his conduct in the campaign was characterized by vacillation, dilatoriness and lack of enterprise; that his official reports on the coal supply were misleading and inaccurate; that his conduct during the battle was self-possessed, and that he encouraged in his own person his subordinates, officers, and men.

Admiral Dewey in his report says that the passage to Cienfuegos was made with all despatch; that in view of his coal supply, the blockade of Cienfuegos was effective; that he allowed the Adula to enter Cienfuegos to get information that his passage to Santiago was with as much despatch as possible; that the blockade of Santiago was effective, and, finally, that he was the senior officer off Santiago, in absolute command, and entitled to the credit due for his glorious victory which resulted in the total destruction of the Spanish ships. In view of the length of time which has elapsed since the occurrence of the events of the Santiago campaign, the court recommends no further proceedings be held in the premises.

Jew Baiters are for the Boers

London, Dec. 14.—A pro-Boer meeting was held in Vienna on Thursday night, says the correspondent of the Times. The meeting was organized and led by anti-Semites, including Vice-Burgomaster Numayer. It was held because of the failure of the attempt to provoke a pro-Boer debate in the Reichsrath. Mr. Chamberlain was denounced in abusive language, and the Hungarian Premier was severely criticized.

RUSSIAN BLOW AT GERMANY.

London, Dec. 14.—A movement has been seen on foot in Odessa, says the correspondent of the Times in that city, to encourage the development of Russian trade with France, Great Britain, Belgium, and Switzerland, and to vigorously boycott German manufacturers should the proposed German agrarian tariff become law.

Canada Offers to Increase the Contingent

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—The Government through Lord Minto have, it is stated this morning, definitely offered the War Office to increase the number of mounted men going out to South Africa from six hundred to nine hundred men. No answer has yet been received but a cable is hourly expected.

THE SNOW BY-LAW

How the Model "Town" of Canada Runs Its Streets

A citizen received the following letter from the Superintendent of Works, Westmount, which speaks for itself. Westmount is regarded as one of the best managed municipalities in Canada, and one whose example might be safely followed. The letter is as follows:

Sir;—Your card re clearing of sidewalks to Sec-Treas. Mr. Minto was referred to me. We have no printed regulations on the matter, but I will give you what I can in regard to the work. We have to clear about 25 miles of sidewalk, and this is divided into 5 sections. The work is done with the Corporation horses and men. When we have a fall of snow six inches or greater we send our plow out on each section; this gets over the ground once in every 2 1-2 hours, and gives good walking for three feet in width. After going around once it is necessary to send them again to make the walks wider. Some times it is necessary to use the team plow, and when the banks get high we send gangs of men out to trim up and put things in good shape before another storm. These men are hired by the hour and only as required. A great deal of our work is done in the early morning, from 4 to 9 o'clock. When the snow fall has been less than six inches we have what we call scrapers. These are drawn by horses, and are much lighter than plows, and do splendid work. These are sent out instead of the plows. As the work is done before the citizens are out in the morning, we have fairly level walking. But should there be a fall of wet snow during the day when the people are going about, a ridge is formed along the centre of the walk which is very slippery, and is called here 'hogs bank." We have a machine something after the style of a cultivator that cuts this down and makes the walking quite safe. There is another very dangerous state of sidewalk—this is after a sudden thaw or rain freezes up quickly and is glare ice. For this we turn out a machine which sprinkles sand or fine ashes along the walk just on the places necessary. Our sidewalks are cleaned in winter out of our ordinary or maintenance fund without extra charge to the rate payers, and you would be surprised how cheaply it can be done under a system, and good management. The one thing that will keep your sidewalks in good order in winter is attention, and I would say attend to them early. All the implements in use here for the work are of my own design and make. I will be pleased at any time to give any further information that I can, or you may require.

Yours Truly,
G. A. ROBERTSON,
Supt. of Works.

HARNESSED HIMSELF TO SLEIGH

MacLaren's Horse Became Disabled in a Piercing Storm

SAVED FAMILY FROM PERISHING

Husband Stripped off His Great Coat and Wrapped It Around Wife and Boy—Babe in Bottom of Sleigh

Goshen, N.Y., Dec. 14.—No one ever will realize the mental torture—stinging more than all his bodily pain—endured by Elgin MacLaren recently. Far away from home, in a driving snow-storm, with his wife and two children beside him, he found himself lost in the wilderness, his horse's leg broken, miles away from shelter.

There was but one hope. Cutting loose the disabled animal, MacLaren took his place between the shafts. With reeling brain and stumbling feet he dragged his loved ones mile after mile, stopping only to force life-saving stimulants between their chattering teeth. Thanks to his dogged perserverance, all are alive to-day, but so frostbitten that for years they will remember that feaful ride against an icy death.

Perhaps MacLaren should have known better than to have risked his own life and that of his dear ones, for it was snowing hard and a piercing cold wind was driving it in blinding gusts when he started to drive from Southfields to Haverstraw. Huddled in the sleigh, together with his wife were their boy, Tom, six years old, and Agnes, an infant.

IN TEETH OF WIND.

The going was hard, for it was straight in the teeth of the wind. With every step the horse was becoming helpless. Then, as dusk was falling, it came to a fork in the road. All the familiar landmarks were obliterated by the snow. As an evil fate would have it, MacLaren turned into the branch which took him further and further at every yard from his destination. Then came nightfall, with its wind and snow increased in fury and the thermometer dropped several degrees.

Happily MacLaren didn't know of his error, nor did his wife. He was urging his horse to renewed efforts when the animal fell. As it refused to arise MacLaren jumped out and to his dismay found the horse's leg was broken. In his fearful plight he did not know what to do; to remain where he was meant certain death for him and his; to leave them was that they should be separated in death.

Hoping, however, to find shelter, he staggered along the road for a quarter of a mile. It was an unbroken expanse of white. He could see no house, no sign that anyone was alive within miles. Finding his way back to the sleigh, he found the lad crying from the blood-freezing cold. His brave wife was shivering as one with the ague; from herself and the boy she had taken the buffalo robe and his blanket, and in them she had wrapped the baby, which, snug in the bottom of the sleigh, suffered least of all.

It was then MacLaren's characteristic Scotch coolheadedness rose to the emergency. Stripping himself of his greatcoat, he wound it about wife and boy. Then he cut the harness which bound the helpless horse, which he had determined to leave to its fate that precious human beings might be saved.

Taking his place between the shafts of the sleigh, MacLaren so placed the harness that all his weight might be exerted to move the vehicle, while at the same time his hands were so free that he might plunge them into the pockets of his undercoat. With a cheery shout, intended to encourage the brave little woman behind, he threw himself forward and, to his great joy, the sleigh moved.

WIFE UNCONSCIOUS.

So elated was he that he shouted in joy and dashed ahead at his full speed. He was brought to a halt by a cry from his wife, and slipping the harness from his shoulders he ran back to find wife and boy on the verge of unconsciousness. He had a bottle of whiskey in his pocket; some of the stimulant he forced both wife and son to take, and then he took up the part of horse again, and the sleigh went forward for another hundred yards.

He didn't know it then, and now he says he must have been delirious, but in his wild dash for safety he passed several houses where he might have found succor.

He was met near Bradley Mines four miles from his starting point, by Charles Carson, who took the almost frozen party to the home of Mr. Cooper, farmer, where they were resuscitated.

All of the party were more or less frost-bitten, especially the little boy. Mrs. MacLaren's ears, unprotected except for her hair, were badly frozen. Her husband's hands and feet were in the same condition. He may lose a finger or two, and his nose, ears and chin were frost-bitten.

GALWAY

On Thursday of last week the dwelling house of Mrs. Peter Clark, in Galway was destroyed by fire. The fire broke out shortly before noon, and although the day was very calm, the flames were soon fanned into fury, and in less than an hour, what was once a comfortable home, had gone up in smoke. As the house contained no chimney, it is supposed that the fire originated through some defect in the stovepipe, and gained a strong hold before it was discovered by any of the inmates. The neighbors arrived only in time to save a few articles of furniture.

What makes the circumstance very deplorable is the fact that Mrs. Clark was recently bereft of her husband, and left with two small children to provide for. Unfortunately there is no insurance to cover any of the loss.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Dec. 12.—Despatches indicate that the important capture of the Bethel commando by General Bruce Hamilton was the result of the effectiveness of Lord Kitchener's blockhouse system. Over the restricted country, confined by the blockhouse lines, the British columns are now moving.

London, Dec. 12.—There is no doubt that the process of wearing down the Boer forces is a slow one, and seems likely to involve practically the removal of the whole Dutch male population of the Transvaal and Orange River State, and providing for the maintenance of the whole of the women and children of the conquered countries. Yet, with a steady certainty, this is being done.

Every man in any part of the world, and every paper, in no matter what language published, continuing to give words of encouragement to the Boers, or to subscribe or induce others to subscribe to any of the so-called Boer funds, does no friendly action to the Boers.

When hostilities are over there is not the slightest doubt the Boers will have greater real freedom and more privileges than they had under the medieval oligarchy that formerly prevailed. But the day of the Boer rule in that country is over, if every man, woman and child of the present Dutch population has to be removed to other parts of the world before peace, is restored.

How literally the Boer population is being removed may be judged from the official returns of prisoners, and wounded and killed since the first of January. The possibility is that the number of wounded and killed may be greater than that given, as it is quite probable that in some instances the Boers got their wounded and dead away with them. The prisoners, it will be noted, are the more numerous of the recorded Boer casualties, showing that perhaps the unwillingness of the individual to submit is not so great as re-

GEN BRUCE HAMILTON HAS SCORED AGAIN

Wins Congratulations of Government for His Brilliant Exploits

A DISCOURAGING BLOW FOR THE BOERS

Another Long Night March and More Heavy Loss Inflicted Upon the Enemy.

London, Dec. 14.—Reporting to the War Office from Pretoria, under date of yesterday, Lord Kitchener says:

"Bruce Hamilton, after a long night march, surprised Piet Viljoen's laager at dawn December 13, at Witkraens, 25 miles northwest of Ermelo, killed 16 Boers, and captured 74 armed prisoners. Many others were wounded, and were left at farms. He also captured one of Denson's guns, the other having been destroyed. Two field-cornets are among the prisoners. The re-captured gun is in good order, and was used against the retreating enemy."

Right Hon. W. St. John Brodrick, Secretary of State for War, wired the Government's congratulations upon Gen. Bruce Hamilton's brilliant achievements.

presented, if he were not terrorised by his leaders.

Since November 18th, the British columns out in pursuit of the guerrillas report 22 Boers killed, 18 wounded, 230 prisoners, and 5 voluntary surrenders. The property the columns have taken since the same date was 223 rifles, 14,100 rounds of small-arm ammunition, 98 waggons, 500 horses, and 4,000 cattle.

It is interesting to note the weekly rate at which the attrition of the Boer forces has been going on during this year. The total losses to the enemy in killed, wounded, captured and surrendered from January to June was according to the summaries of the news agencies, 5,672, including totals of 2,640 in May and 1,636 in June. Since that date the weekly returns furnished by Lord Kitchener have been as follow (we also give the monthly totals and that tot he end of November):

Reported on July...	270
Reported on July 16...	412
Reported on July 22...	304
Reported on July 29...	262
Reported on August 5...	346
Reported on August 13...	[illegible]
Reported on August 19...	427
Reported on August 26	[illegible]
Reported on Sept. 3	361

Reported on Nov. 4...	367
Reported on Nov. 11...	317
Reported on Nov. 18...	[illegible]
Reported on Nov 25...	277

It will be observed that we hear a great deal more about an occasional skirmish in which the enemy gained a momentary success than we do of the steady and persistent rounding up of prisoners, which is the surest indication of the approaching end of hostilities. Mr. Kruger insists, from his safe and comfortable quarters in Europe, that the Boers shall continue fighting as long as there are any grown men left. Therefore, the British are hastening the conclusion by removing all the grown men as fast as possible.

CAN DANCE A TWO-STEP

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Nineteenth Century.

To the Editor of the Times.

Sir,—In my youth I was fond of dancing, and took in every dance for miles around. That is years ago. I fell a ready victim to rheumatism 12 years ago, and have been a sufferer ever since. DON'T FORGET THE CHILDREN.

Christmas time may be said to be with us, and hosts are diligently scanning the merchants' stocks in search of presents with which to gladden the hearts of friends. Happy the men and women whose purses are so full that there needs be no thought of cost in gratifying their generous impulses in this direction. Surely openings are not few.

But the glad Christmas season should not be made sordid by a mere inventory system of estimating our friends' gifts. While those who have abundance may well give thereof freely and feel joy in so doing, those not so well situated as to wealth may still show their goodwill in ways none the less unmistakable. The trifling gifts—often the work of some dear friend's own hands and costing little—may tell as well of a kindly heart and generous spirit as the costliest gem or bric-a-brac. Let us remember that it is not the gift but the spirit of the giver that we should value.

And don't forget the little ones. The elder people, who have rubbed against the rough edges of life, can afford to fall back on philosophy; the children still dwell in a world of fancy. Let us while we may add pleasure to their young lives and lend reality to their dreams. It costs so little to make a child happy, and the memories of childhood are so tenacious!

In sending out baskets of Christmas cheer to their beneficiaries, might it not be well for our benevolent societies to consider the pleasure of the little tots? There are many of them in families where those good organizations are the only Santa Claus. Why not make part of the basket a doll or a toy? The societies' inquiries would show where such were likely to fall into children's hands, the cost would be very little, and the pleasure it would give would be shared by the whole family.

And in Christmas giving let each respect himself. He should not give beyond his means; and he should pay as he goes. The man whose grocer's or butcher's bill is unpaid ought not to be a lavish Christmas spender. Justice should come before generosity; no man should attempt to build up a reputation as a princely giver at the expense of his creditors.

Montreal Witness; Lord Kitchener reports that he has gathered in nearly half a thousand more Boers this week, yet it would seem that their numbers are not appreciably decreased. Were it not for the surrenders of British, the Boers, even though they continued to recruit men, must soon run short of ammunition. It would be extremely interesting should Lord Kitchener tell us what percentage of the rifles captured were Lee-Metfords. We would then have a fair idea to what extent they rely on buried Mauser cartridges and to what extent they have to supply themselves from the bandoliers of the British. It is commonly assumed that the large majority of the Boers still in the field have captured their rifles, and that they are consequently entirely dependent on captured ammunition. If such is the case no good purpose is served in hiding it.

No Occasion For Mirth.

General A. S. Burt, who recently returned from Manila, in an interview said:

"My observations and opinions of conditions in the Philippines differ somewhat from those held by a great many people. General Otis labored a long time and with splendid success, and after much fighting came home and announced that the war was practically over, and his tour of duty was pronounced very successful. General MacArthur took up the job and found that for one year there was as much fighting to be done as there was before General Otis left. When he left he pronounced the war to be practically over, and his tour was declared to be very successful. These generals are entitled to their country's gratitude for their successful work; but, as far as the war being over is concerned, that is another question. As a matter of fact, the Island of Samar, one of the largest in the archipelago, is still unsubdued, and General Hughes is still fighting there. Many observing officers have committed themselves to the opinion, and I am one of them, that the troubles in the Philippines will not cease during our time."

If this is true, the people of the United States have no occasion to laugh at John Bull's plodding slowness in straightening out the South African tangle.

Every woman ought to be afraid of a cough. It is nature's danger signal. Who does not know of some sweet woman-voice silenced forever by disease which began with a slight cough.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will ensure a permanent cure of the most obstinate and lingering coughs. Even when the lungs are involved and there are hemorrhages and emaciation, "Golden Medical Discovery" is generally effective in restoring the diseased organs to sound health and strength. There is no alcohol in the "Discovery" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

"I am feeling quite well," writes Miss Dorcas A. Lewis, of No. 1129 24th Street, Washington, D. C., "and I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I had been quite a sufferer for a long time, and after reading Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser thought I would try his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I had not been sleeping well for a long time. Took one teaspoonful of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and slept nearly all night without coughing, so I continued taking it. I had been a great sufferer for more than ten years. I tried lots of different medicines and different doctors, but did not feel much better. I coughed until I commenced spitting blood, but now I feel much stronger and am entirely well."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

CHAINED FOR TEN YEARS
HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
EVERY BOTTLE BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER
Rabbi of the Cong. Bnai Israel.
NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:

Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

AVON SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE Co.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows at 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,

O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE Co.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

CAN DANCE A TWO-STEP

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Nineteenth Century.

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—In my youth I was fond of dancing, and took in every dance for miles around. That is years ago. I fell a ready victim to rheumatism 12 years ago, and have been a sufferer ever since. Nothing seemed to give me relief, until I secured a box of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. My recovery since I began taking these pills has been miraculous, and for the first time in 12 years, I was able to participate in a social dance, and am now almost entirely well. I hope others may profit by my experience. E. J. Hall, G.T.R., Lindsay

Sir,—Please use my name in any way you like to show the wonderful results that Dr. Clarkes' Little Red Pills have wrought in my case. I was a sufferer for 22 years from dyspepsia, and could get no relief. Six boxes of the pills made me a well man. I might also mention that a friend, who was a lifelong sufferer from rheumatism, is also bearing testimony to these marvellous pills, having been entirely cured. A. N. Brown, Odessa, N. Y.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 50 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $10 for any case that these pills do not help.

Professor O'Brien

CANADA'S GREATEST PHRENOLOGIST and the only recognized SCIENTIFIC PALMIST (by law) has removed to 263 Hunter st. Terrace, near railway crossing. See name in window. As Professor O'Brien is a very busy man, he will not be able to leave Peterboro for a few days yet. The more people he examines the more he has to examine, which fact alone speaks for his ability and the esteem and popularity he has gained during his short stay in Peterboro. It will be well for skeptics of either science to investigate before condemning either Phrenology or Scientific Palmistry. The latter should not be confounded with the common fortune-telling. Professor O'Brien has proved in open court before Crown witnesses at the Toronto General Sessions, March 14th, 1901, that Palmistry as demonstrated by him is a pure science and has no connection with the so-called fortune-telling. Anyone wishing to be enlightened on the science should call on Professor O'Brien, who will be pleased to explain his scientific methods.

Over 150 persons have consulted him during his short stay in Peterboro.

Keep to the Point.

It was once remarked by Professor Huxley, after falling into an indiscretion which annoyed him, that when a man says what he has no need to say he is sure to blunder. The truth of the observation will hardly be questioned unless by the very few, if there are any such, who never say more than there is necessity for saying. Most of us acknowledge, if we review our own experience in the matter, that we have frequently erred by saying what needed not to be said. But why is it that people so persistently commit this mistake? In the ordinary small talk of the household, or of society, it matters little whether it is committed or not. But when serious matters are in question, whether in conversation, in set speech, or in correspondence, a case is frequently spoiled by irrelevance or redundance. To say what you mean to say is comparatively easy; to leave off when you have said it is difficult, and for many people impossible. In Huxley's case the fault, which he probably did not often commit, was due neither to want of clear thinking, nor to want of facility in the use of words. One or the other or both of these causes will explain the inability to "keep to the point" which is usually apparent in the speech and writing of uneducated persons. But often, also, the speaker or writer forgets that extraneous considerations, interesting enough to himself, are of no interest to those whom he wishes to convince.

Anthony Hope and His Mother.

An American author who has recently returned from London, where he came much in contact with Mr. Anthony Hope Hawkins, tells this anecdote illustrating one of the most charming personal traits of the famous novelist.

Mr. Hawkins has private apartments in Buckingham street, next door to the house in which William Black lived for many years. This place is about a mile from the parish house occupied by the author's father, who is a rector of the Established Church. The constant coming and going of parishioners at the old home made it impossible for the novelist to enjoy the privacy and immunity from interruption necessary to the prosecution of his literary labors, and compelled him to find a working-place away from his parents' house.

He had just entered into the full enjoyment of this arrangement when he discovered that his absence from the family roof was a source of keen anxiety to his mother, who could not bring herself to relinquish her motherly solicitude for the comfort of her son. She was in constant fear that he was not properly cared for, and spent many wakeful hours at night worrying over him.

Immediately on learning of her anxiety the son asked permission to spend his nights in his old room under the family roof, using his apartments in Buckingham street simply as a place in which to do his work. Every night, and often at great inconvenience, he returns to the parish house, solely to insure the peace of mind of his mother, who is now well advanced in years.

Affection of a Beaver.

A beaver dying of a broken heart! That sounds incredible enough, to be sure, yet one famous beaver, owned by W. J. Broderip, the naturalist, actually pined away in homesickness for his absent keeper. Binney, as this tender-hearted little fellow was called, was a great pet in the household. Mr. Broderip tells us in his "Leaves from the Note Book of a Naturalist," and he had not been long in his London home when he set about building a dam for himself in the city house as cheerfully as if he had been in his native haunts.

Plenty of dainty titbits from the kitchen found their way to Binney through the hands of the housekeeper, who took great interest in him, and speedily won his affection. He showed his devotion to her in many pretty and amusing ways. At last, on the removal of his master from town he was taken to the Tower of London, and put in commodious quarters, under the care of a kind attendant. Everything was done to make Binney happy, but he lost all appetite and took no interest in his surroundings. Sweetmeats were brought, but he would not touch them, and only grew daily thinner and weaker. At last the attendant, in despair, took Binney back to the housekeeper with whom he had lived since the earliest days of his captivity. At sight of her the little creature gave a cry of delight, and dragged himself to her side. But it was too late to restore his former health and spirits. He died within a few days, much to the grief of all his friends.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The Incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of 500,000 shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is of 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.00 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hermosa White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page 212).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 1875, and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from 200 to 800 feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $12,000,000, and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $1.75 to $4.50 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. 2000 acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reserve that the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale 50,000 shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a 500 barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of, Colorado Springs, Colo.

SOME POSITIVE PROOFS

What is Being Told of Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills—No Cure No Pay.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills cured me of kidney trouble of many years' standing, and after I had tried every other known remedy. Joseph Begley, Caledonia Co., Burlington, N.Y.

I was afflicted with rheumatism so badly at times that I could not walk. Nothing I took did me much good, until I tried Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. Three boxes cured me entirely.

I had the misfortune to have suffered some years ago from paralysis, having no less than three strokes. I could not get anything to do me any good until I was induced to try Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I took nine boxes, and although not by any means well, I think I am in a fair way to recovery. I can now walk with the aid of a stick and feel myself getting better every day. M. F. Mann, Merlin, N.Y.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills permanently cured me of backache. I suffered for years, and took two boxes. That is a year ago. I have not had a symptom since. James R. Jackson, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

I do not believe there is a medicine to compare with Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills. They cured me of indigestion and catarrh of the stomach, after nine years' suffering. A. S. Macdonald, G.T.R. shops, Montreal.

Vaccine Was No Good.

Provincial Health Officer Bryce had a blue report on the smallpox situation to give out this morning. "I am afraid we are in for it," was the way he expressed his apprehensions. "It seems to be coming at us from all directions." In connection with his advice for general vaccination, he states that it will not be safe to trust to the vaccine which was on the market last spring. In many cases it did not "take," and a lot of it was poor stuff.

—The heavy rain on Saturday will be greatly appreciated by the farmers. Many wells in the country were dry and many farmers were obliged to take their cattle long distances for water.

—The by-law to provide for the purchase of the Water Works appeared in Saturday's Times. Every ratepayer should read it. It will appear again on Saturday next.

—Have your Xmas photos taken at Whiten's as soon as possible, if you want them finished before the Holidays. Studio corner George and Hunter streets, west side.

—Kingston Council has adopted a by-law authorizing the use of voting machines at the coming municipal elections. It would be a good idea to try them here. There might be a little interest taken in the elections for once anyway.

Read the advertisements with extra care from now till the holiday season is over. To buy from those who advertise in this paper is a safe policy, because our advertisers are dealers of high character and conspicuous enterprise. Fairyland

The local stores are now looking their prettiest, which befits the holiday season.

As the one presenting the greatest variety, in its own legitimate lines, China Hall stands pre-eminently first.

For twenty years this store has invited the public to view its Christmas display, and has received a generous share of patronage. The assortment of 1901 is more comprehensive than any of its forerunners, the stock including graceful ornaments, handsome dinner-sets, with their accompanying glasses, dainty china tea-sets, lamps, flower-pots, celery trays, salad bowls, pudding dishes, bread and butter plates, fancy cups and saucers in endless variety. In fact each article in this vast stock is suitable for a present, and a gift of china never offends, but always pleases its recipient.

China Hall in its present festive attire resembles a fairyland through which all are invited to wander, as the store will be kept open every evening until after Christmas.

SMITH TOWNSHIP COUNCIL

Mr. E. M. Elliott Likely to Succeed His Brother as Councillor

The township of Smith has always been fortunate in having a good council to manage its affairs. The gentlemen who occupied the position last year will probably be re-elected, with the exception of Mr. Geo. E. Elliot, who has left the municipality and removed to town. Mr. E. M. Elliott has been invited to stand, and will no doubt be a member of next year's council.

Mr. Harry Garbutt, the popular Reeve, will be unopposed, and it is altogether likely that the whole council will be elected by acclamation.

Magnificent Lot of Christmas Cattle for

KENNEDY'S MEAT MARKET

A carload of the very choicest Steers and Heifers, personally picked yesterday from the best feeders in the Province for the Peterborough market, including the well-known firms of Tweedie Bros. and Alex. Jeffrey, West Whitby, and Alex. McKenzie, East Whitby. No finer beef will be offered in Canada for the Christmas trade than here. For instance—one steer, 18 months old, tips the scales at nearly 1400 pounds! There's beef for you.

Part of this lot of cattle will be exhibited on the market, on foot, to-day, at 11 a.m., in order to give farmers, as well as the public of Peterborough, an opportunity of seeing choice butcher's cattle, and afford an opportunity, as well, of placing orders for any cut desired. A large number of customers, relying on our judgment, have already placed orders for Christmas beef.

CLEARING SALE—Remember the clearing sale of Meats in stock will be continued Saturday, 14th all day, at prices ruling on Saturday last. At these prices it pays the housekeeper to buy now.

THE TIMES LETTER-BOX

Letters from the People on Interesting and Timely Topics.

A BREEDERS' DIRECTORY

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In the farming and ranching country of Western Canada there are many large studs, herds and flocks, some of them containing as many as 10,000 to 12,000 head, the property of one man or firm. There are also many studs, herds and flocks of from 50 to 1,000 head.

In order to improve and maintain the quality of their stock it seems necessary for the owners to buy annually pure-bred breeding males, and sometimes a few females. Heretofore a number of these have been bought yearly from Canadian breeders and also from Americans; many others have been purchased in Great Britain. Not nearly as many pure-bred males are purchased annually as should be because ranchers have found it difficult to obtain what they want at a price at which they consider it would pay them to buy. Many, therefore, are now using range-bred grade males.

In Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces also, more pure-bred sires should be used than are at present.

In order to enable the ranchers and other buyers to more readily obtain what they want, and to bring buyer and seller directly together the Dominion Department of Agriculture decided to issue a directory of the Canadian breeders of pure-bred stock in each province, arranged alphabetically, giving suitable data concerning each stud, herd, and flock. Circulars were sent out to all the breeders in Canada whose names could be obtained and those who failed to reply received a second circular. Finally, that no one who desired to have his name and data concerning his stock published in the directory might be overlooked, it was announced in the leading agricultural and weekly journals that a directory was being prepared, and that breeders were invited to send full information regarding the breeds of stock kept by them. This information was compiled in the form of a bulletin which contains the names and addresses of all Canadian breeders of pure-bred stock as far as these could be obtained, and a directory of the stock for sale as furnished by each. A copy of this bulletin may be had on application to

THE WATERWORKS PURCHASE

(Editor Morning Times)

Sir,—The advice of the driver to his donkey is perhaps as suitable as any with regard to the proposed waterworks purchase, "Go slow" The chief objection to any hurrying through of a purchase is that it is doubtful if the water at present supplied to the town for consumption is the best that we can get. To the writer it seems evident that water from Chemong, with such a large source of supply as that reservoir would be, is far better than that supplied, at low or high water from the Otonabee River. It would also be a comparatively easy thing to bring water into the town from Chemong, and then we should have for all time a full supply of pure water, and without the risk, also of a repetition of the difficulty experienced at the Harvey street fire, when anchor ice practically shut off the supply. As during low water, so during the high water of May and June, the water furnished for consumption is not desirable. It is not necessary to appeal to any analysis of it. The water drinker is the best judge of its palatability. It is we may assume, practically admitted that the quality of the water supplied is not of the best—at any rate at all seasons of the year. A great undisturbed, unpolluted pool or series of pools, such as the lakes are, would settle the question of a source of supply.

As part of this scheme the pipe-plant etc., of the Water Company would do very well, but the pump-house, pumps, water-wheels, &c., should be no part of the purchase. For these reasons, so far as seen at present, and apart from the financial aspect of the question, are decidedly against the purchase now proposed.

It may be that the by-law under which the Company works requires one thing or the other—a purchase of the whole plant or a further lease of life to the company. If this be so, and we are committed to it, perhaps it would be hard to find a way out of the difficulty. At any rate there is no great hurry about it, and perhaps in the near future circumstances may arise which will induce the Company to compromise in such a way as to leave the town free to prosecute the Chemong Lake scheme without having to shoulder the present plant and site as well. Why not, for example, lease the present dam and its water-power to the Company? It is a valuable asset, apart from the supplying of water altogether. In such a case the difficulty is solved. At any rate, to go to the polls on a mere straight business proposition of purchase or no purchase, is, to our minds, unwise and unfair to the town. That the proposition will be voted down is pretty certain. In that event we are precluded from other negotiations till a certain time shall elapse. Let the whole scheme of water-supply be re-considered, and let a public meeting be called to consider it. What is the Board of Trade doing in the matter?

Yours, &c.,
COMMON SENSE.

NEW YORK HOTELS TURN AWAY A QUEEN

The Illustrious Ex. Ruler of the Sanwich Islands in New York

Clerks Took Her Royal Secretary For a Negro and Turned Her Away.

Saved by a Former Subject and Now Enjoys Her Visit.

New York, Dec. 17.—Half a dozen hotels in this town, one of which, at least, specially advertises a royal suite have turned away a Queen without knowing it. The clerks mistook her and her retinue for the third or fourth road company of Black Patti Troubadours and closed the registers.

This affront occurred on Friday and Liliuokalani was the Queen. She thinks that she was turned away from the Netherland, the Savoy, the Plaza, the Waldorf and several other hotels because she was not known. She tried to be a Queen incognito after her arrival here on Friday from San Francisco and she might have been incognito yet if she had not been recognized by a former loyal subject who is now a bellboy in a Broadway hotel.

The Queen was accompanied by Joshua Rea, the Royal Secretary, John Aimoku and Myra Heleluhe.

Rea tried to do business with the hotel clerks while the rest of the party remained in the shadow of the hotel lobby. Almost any hotel clerk who hadn't travelled extensively might, on a busy afternoon, mistake Rea for a negro, in spite of his straight hair. That mistake was made all along Fifth avenue and Broadway. Rea didn't say that he represented the Queen.

As the royal party was leaving the last hotel on Broadway a bellboy spied the Queen. He bowed so low toward her that he butted the head waiter, who was passing behind him. It would have been better for him if he had transposed the butt and the bow for the head waiter was once a Count. He was about to have the bell boy fired when the boy explained matters. The boy also did a good turn for his former sovereign.

He had heard Rea tell the driver to go next to the Hotel Roland. He called a friend of his employed at the Roland and warned him that the Queen was coming. The friend told the clerk and then made it possible for the Queen to get to bed after Rea, the secretary, had passed a rigid examination.

He asked the clerk at the Roland for the two best rooms in the house, one for "two ladies," the other for himself and a friend.

"We are very strict at this hotel about whom we take in," said the clerk. "Have you any baggage?"

"Sir," exclaimed Rea, throwing down seventeen trunk and bag checks, "I am tired of these insults. I am the Queen's Secretary. The Queen is here."

"What's she the Queen of?"

"She is the Queen Liliuokolani."

That satisfied the clerk. He let the Queen and Myra have room 310 and sent John and Joshua to 307. They are going to spend the winter in this city and Washington.

The Queen, accompanied by her companions, went shopping in the department stores yesterday morning. They bought some beads and bright remnants for the folks at home and some department store oil paintings for their own apartments.

The Queen was terribly put to it in the first store she visited. She got off the elevator at the art, delicatessen and fresh fish floor and asked to look at some paintings.

"Yes, ma'm; old, new or medium masters?" asked the clerk, throwing out a sample of each. The Queen motioned to the medium, which was a marine. Joshua admired it, too, and said that the water looked natural enough to dive in for sea beans. The Queen was pleased by the Secretary's criticism and ordered the picture, but the clerk spoiled the sale.

"It's a dollar down, lady," he said, "and a dollar a month for seventeen months. Our collector will call on every first Monday. Please step this way to the pedigree desk."

The Queen was speechless. Waving the royal coin-filled reticule in the clerk's face she swept through the meat and fish department to the elevator, followed by her retinue. Myra stopped a minute to look at some pigs' knuckles and lost the elevator. She caught the next car and the nettled Queen upbraided her roundly.

The party had better luck after that and selected seven oils and the beads and remnants before lunch. In the afternoon they went for a drive in the Park and enjoyed a half-hour in the monkey house.

MAN FOR GALWAY COL. LYNCH, M.P.

Who Was Elected to Westminster Because He Fought the British

CAN HE SIT IN PARLIAMENT?

It All Depends Upon the Definition of What Constitutes a Traitor—Some Interesting Precedents.

London, Dec. 17The re-assembling of Imperial Parliament on January 16, 1902, will be waited for with considerable interest by those curious to see what will happen to "Colonel" Arthur Lynch, the ex-Boer officer, recently elected to represent Galway in the House of Commons.

Having been born a British subject (it isn't quite certain whether he was born in Ireland or in Australia) "Colonel" Lynch is perfectly eligible to sit in Parliament, and providing that no legal proceedings are instituted against him by the law officers of the Crown on charges of treason in bearing arms against the Government, and in "giving aid to the King's enemies," there is no constitutional obstacle in the way of his taking his seat in the House of Commons as the representative for Galway. Of course, he would be obliged to take the oath of allegiance to King Edward before participating either in the debates or in the votes. It is just possible, however, that the House of Commons may by a vote of its own arbitrarily decline to allow Colonel Lynch to take the oath of allegiance, and to thus disqualify himself for participation in legislative proceeding. This course was adopted by the House with regard to Charles Bradlaugh, the atheist. And it was not until he had been returned for the fifth time for Northampton, in five successive elections, that he was at last permitted to take his seat.

Even were Colonel Lynch to have duly qualified himself by taking the oath of allegiance, he could still at any moment be arrested and held for treason.

Advice to Mothers

If your little boy or girl comes home with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the throat and chest with Polson's Nerviline. Don't be afraid to use Nerviline freely—a whole bottle full wouldn't burn or blister the tenderest skin. Rub in until all taken up by the pores, and just before the child goes to sleep give him a glass of hot water into which 20 drops of Nerviline has previously been stirred. This is a sure, pleasant and speedy cure. Large bottles 25 cents.

Horrible Boer Atrocities

Montreal, Dec. 17—In view of the efforts now being made to work up sympathy for the Boers in the United States, the widespread publication of carefully concoted stories from Boer Agents, and the impudent speeches by politicians it was interesting to learn from a Montreal man on the spot something of the kind of men the Boers are. Lieut. St. George, in a letter to his father, Mr. Percival St. George, describes what he saw with his own eyes.

We now have evidence that the Boers rob the bodies of the dead, strip the wounded and leave them naked on the field to perish. We can now realize the full truth of the fact that the war is over; that the military organization of the enemy is no longer in the field, but the country is being subjected to the annoyance of roving bands of thieves and desperadoes, incapable of appreciating the amenities which even in war time prevail among civilized people. It conveys to us some idea of the conditions which render harsh measures necessary, and shows the difficulty of restoring order in the country.

Whatever sympathy people might have had for the Boers at one stage of the game, no lover of freedom or upholder of law and order can entertain other than destation for those who stole the clothing from the wounded of Col. Benson's column and left them naked on the veldt to suffer the rigours of a freezing South African night.

PEACE PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHTER

Johannesburg Developing an Industrial Prosperity Again

BADENHORST IS CAPTURED

Other Small British Successes—Liberals Will Urge Appointment of a Commissioner.

Johannesburg, Dec. 16.—The situation here is daily growing brighter, and everything points to the advent of peace in the near future. About ten thousand refugees are making arrangements to return to this city and the first sitting of the Supreme Court will be held next March.

LIBERAL PROPOSALS.

London, Dec. 16.—In caucus the Liberal leaders have decided to urge the sending of a special commissioner to South Africa to attempt to arrange peace with the Boers. They contend that the Boers will never discuss peace proposals with Lord Kitchener. It will be tantamount to expression of lack of confidence in Lord Milner, and for that reason the Government is not likely to do what the Opposition wants. Ministers cling to the idea that Lord Milner is the one indispensable man in South Africa.

BOTHA WOUNDED.

London, Dec. 16.—A belated despatch from Zululand says that Gen. Louis Botha was wounded in the Lunenburg fight, and that he escaped by hiding in the bush. Eighty prisoners were captured in the same fight.

FRENCH RECRUITS.

London, Dec. 16.—A young Frenchman, who was enthusiastically anxious to enlist in one of the drafts for a South African cavalry regiment, told the recruiting officers that forty men of the French Cavalry School in Paris were ready to enlist in the British service. Of course the offer was not accepted.

London, Dec. 16.—Commandant Badenhorst, with fourteen men, has been captured at Sterkjorhein by Col. Colenbrander and Lieut.-Col. Dawkins. Lord Kitchener apparently attaches great importance to this capture.

MISS STONE'S IMPRISONMENT

No Case Where a Woman Has Been Held so Long

AMERICANS ARE CRITICIZED.

Method Usually Followed by European Countries Has Been Departed from With bad Results.

Sofia, Dec. 17.—On January 3 next four months will have elapsed since Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, and Madame Tsilka, her companion, were kidnapped by brigands in the neighborhood of Banoko, in Macedonia. They have, therefore, been over one hundred days in confinement, and it cannot be said that there is much prospect of their immediate release. Although there are cases on record where brigands have held men for an even longer period there is no precedent where women have so long been held captive. Many competent persons, diplomatists and politicians are inclined to criticise the American officials for the manner in which they have treated the incident from the beginning. Instead of following the well worn course taken by all European Governments in such eventualities, a policy was inaugurated in Turkey which so far has proved a failure. When a European subject is kidnapped in Turkey, his embassy at once informs the Porte that it will be held responsible for his life and ransom, orders that all military movements shall be stopped, and in most cases advances money for the payment of the ransom, the Turkish treasury rarely being in a position to meet such a call. The brigands always treat with a "straw man," and as soon as an agreement is arrived at, the money is taken to a spot agreed upon where the prisoners are also brought and the amount of the ransom handed over. Mr. Dickinson, the diplomatic agent of the United States at Sofia, has returned to Constantinople to give the brigands time to reflect upon the possibility of the United States officials refusing to pay any ransom if the band does not within a certain date accept the amount available. Mr. Dickinson will consult with Spencer Eddy, the United States Charge d'Affaires, on the advisability of presenting the brigands with an ultimatum to the effect. Then the matter stands, and it is evident that there is little prospect of an earlier solution of teh problem.

Struck Down Nun

One of the most daring crimes in the police annals occurred in Halifax at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning, when pte. M. Sullivan, of the R.C.R. entered the Home of the Good Shepherd, a Roman Catholic institution and made his way to the room of Sister St. Paul. The sister was asleep, but hearing footsteps she started up, and Sullivan, seeing he was discovered, struck the nun a terrible blow with a stick which he had in his hand, cutting her head severely and rendering her unconscious.

Sullivan then retreated, but a few few hours afterward was arrested. He could give no reason for committing the crime, and said he was drunk. He is an ex-regular soldier, and enlisted at Hamilton, Ont.

TOWN COUNCIL MEET IN STATUTORY SESSION

A Public Meeting Will Be Probably Held Monday Night—The Beet Sugar Movement—Another S.A. Volunteer Granted $25

The Town Council met in statutory session last night, when there were present Mayor T. H. G. Denne and Aldermen Edgcumbe, Shortly, Roger, Rush, Clinkscale, Batten, Corkery and Best.

The minutes of the two preceding meetings were read and confirmed.

BEET ROOT SUGAR.

Messrs. Adam Hall, Ackerman and Collins asked Council to appoint delegates to accompany representatives of the Townships and County Councils to Michigan to thoroughly inquire into the Beet Root sugar industry in that state.

Aldermen Rush and Roger thought this industry promised to be a big thing for the town and county, and urged the appointment of delegates.

Alderman that was not quite sure that the [illegible] had shown sufficient earnestness in the matter for this Council to incur the expense of sending delegates to Michigan. From all reports the expressions at the late joint meeting had not been very encouraging.

Mr. Adam Hall replied that the neighboring townships supported the movement, and urged that steps be taken at once towards the establishment of the industry in the County.

Mayor Denne said that the County Warden, Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald, had been misunderstood at the joint meeting of the Town and County Councils, and had subsequently explained that while he could not favor the County Council passing any by-law bearing on the Beet Sugar industry, he would earnestly support any action taken by the Township Council of Smith.

Ald. Roger moved, seconded by Ald. Shortly,—That the matter be referred to the Manufacturers' Committee with power to act.—Carried.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Otonabee Power Co., asking the right to construct a pole line on the following streets: Cross Hunter at bridge on brackets bolted on top of bridge, then along Otonabee River to Simcoe street, along Simcoe street to Water street, down Water street to King street to G.T.R. grounds, tapping the three grain elevators, south on George street from King to Rink street, then west on Rink street to Aylmer street, then south on Aylmer street to Perry street, west on Perry street to Canadian Cordage property. Or as an alternative to this last route, go south from King street on Aylmer on west side, where the Bell Telephone Co. have a lot of empty poles holding street to Cordage buildings. Also from Aylmer street east on Townsend street to Geo. Matthews Co. property. For Wm. Hamilton Co. foundry, go along Quaker Oats street to Murray street, then along south side of Murray street to Reid street. There are no poles on southern side of Murray street. This matter was referred to the Board of Works to report.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn, asking remission of part of his taxes for 1901 on his property situated on part of lot 7, north of London and west of George street, owing to the fact that the buildings formerly situated thereon had been destroyed by fire.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

From the Retail Merchants Association, asking that Tuesday, Dec. 24th be named a Market Day.—Posters were ordered to be printed advertising above date as Market Day.

From Mrs. Bane, asking for remission of taxes for this year.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

From Hatton & Bradburn, re the case of R. A. Morrow against the Town for damages on account of the exceedingly low level of the pavement at the corner of George and Brock streets. From Agnes J. Roberts, and Agnes J. Dickson, president and secretary respectively of the Y.W.C.A., asking for remission of taxes on their building for the last half year.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

A large number of prominent ratepayers petitioned to have repealed forthwith a certain by-law compelling residents within the fire limits to keep their pavements clean of snow and ice. The petitioners declared the by-law to be an injustice and suggested that in any event the cleaning should be at the general expense, and borne by the Town.—Referred to the Board of Works.

Joseph [illegible], asking for remission of his taxes on personal property, he having almost entirely sold out his stock by the 1st of January, 1901.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

CORDAGE CO.'S SIDING.

From A. Stevenson, Secretary of the Commissioners of the Peterborough Town Trust as follows:

S. R. Armstrong, Esq:

Dear Sir,—In reply to your favor of the 5th instant, in which you state you are instructed to ask the Commissioners of the Town Trust to explain their action in conveying to a private company the land adjoining the Company's works, reported by the Town Solicitor to be a part of Bethune street, and contrary to that opinion, and whether not the Commissioners obtained any other legal advice on the subject, I beg to say I am desired to reply that the Commissioners were of the opinion at the time of the making of the conveyance referred to, that the property described in the conveyance was their property, and not a highway, and that this was done before any legal opinion was given to the Town on the subject by the Town Solicitor. I may point out that the Commissioners did not in any manner or form guarantee any title to the Cordage Company, to whom you refer, nor incur any responsibility; nor did they do any act that was binding upon the Town, provided the land in question is part of Bethune street as advised by your Solicitor. Ald. Roger remarked that neither the Commissioners nor any other body should be allowed to dispose of the portion of a public street as private property, and he thought both the Cordage Co. and the Commissioners felt that they were in a wrong position. He suggested referring the communication to the Board of Works. Ald. Shortly replied that as everybody concerned were apparently satisfied, even to Mr. McIntyre, and the tracks were already laid and cars standing thereon, the matter should be merely received.

The matter was finally referred to the Legal Committee.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 17, 1901

CHRISTMAS TIME.

The happy season of Christmas is again upon us. We are reminded of this fact by many an incident peculiar to this season of the year. Christmas time has a charm all its own. Oh, happy, happy Christmas, what joyful recollections are borne in upon us at this merry Christmas tide! Thoughts of our earlier years of the days of boyhood long numbered with the past arise before our visions full of sweet fragrance of a charm beyond words. It brings to our minds friends long parted, some by distance only, others but to meet again where there shall be no further parting. What an influence it has on our minds, too, this Christmas season. We hardly know why, yet there is about us a spirit of forgiveness, a desire to be at peace with all mankind, something of that spirit that hovered over the humble cot of Bethlehem when the angel announced the glad tidings of "good will to men." And the little children bless them, what would they do but for Christmas? What would the world be only for Santa Claus? Of all the great institutions the world has ever known, the greatest of them all is Santa Claus. There is no one individual of whom I know that causes such a mixture of anxiety, apprehension, suspense, expense, disappointment, happiness as that weird little old midnight visitor with his sled and his reindeer. Ah! what would not the most of us give for a few hours of these delightful moments when tucked softly away we passed into the happy land of dreams while awaiting the coming of dear old Santa.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now is the period when the shops are filled with holiday buyers. The hard-worked-clerks, and especially the girls, have many weary hours to stand many miles to walk every day in attending to the wants of the holiday customers. They are paid for it! So they are, but a little consideration now and then would make it so much easier for them. Do not give the clerks unnecessary work. Let them not find the festive season one only of gloom and hard work.

One of the railroads in the United States boasts the possession of an interesting collection of autographs. In offices of the Northern Pacific are the signatures of the Duke of Connaught, the Prince of Wales Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Fife, the Marquis of Lorne and many other dukes and duchesses and other blue-blooded personages. They are short of the signature of His Majesty King Edward VII., however, Lord Strathcona is alleged to have been the one who induced the royal personages and others to subscribe.

The town of Emporia, Kansas, had a good many suicides and the Mayor decided to put a stop to the practice by forbidding the papers recording such events. As a proof of the efficacy of his remedy he points proudly to the fact that there has not been a suicide since. A professor in the Kansas University has discovered a new element in human beings, which he has named the "accessory thromosome." He has probably given it this name so that those who have found the ordinary cheap thromosome may understand that there is not the "real thing." The new kind, or accessory variety, is said to have the quality of determining some important points about humanity. As people have to be cut open however, to get at this element, many will continue to go through life without having their thromosome examined.

The Germans turn for a moment from the favorite occupation of reviling Britain to say a "nasty" word or so to the United States anent President Roosevelt's speech and the Monroe Doctrine. The Tage Zeitung, of Berlin, for instance, says: "If Germany found it necessary to occupy a Venezuelan port, she would not ask Uncle Sam's permission to do so." The Monroe Doctrine was of British invention, and involved an alliance between Great Britain and the United States to enforce it. It has been used of late years only to twist the tail of a certain gentle quadruped with. How strange it would seem to have it really revived one of these days for its original object and with the dual power behind it.

Strong Again.

The woman who knows the full value of health is the woman who has lost it and regained it; the woman who from being weak and sickly is once again made a strong woman. Half a million weak and sickly women have been made strong and well by the aid of Dr. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription." It cures the ills which weaken women. It regulates the periods, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It nourishes the nerves and so cures nervousness. It promotes a healthy appetite and induces refreshing sleep.

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 528 East College Street, Jacksonville, Ills. "Words cannot express what I suffered. I sought relief among the medical profession and found none. Friends urged me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I commenced taking this medicine I weighed ninety-five pounds. Now I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds—more than I ever weighed before. I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pain, and such distress every month, but now I never have a pain—do all my own work and am a strong and healthy woman."

Use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets with "Favorite Prescription" if the bowels are inactive or irregular.

RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

AVON SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows at 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,

O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

CAN DANCE A TWO-STEP

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Nineteenth Century.

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—In my youth I was fond of dancing, and took in every dance for miles around. That is years ago. I fell a ready victim to rheumatism 12 years ago, and have been a sufferer ever since. Nothing seemed to give me relief, until I secured a box of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. My recovery since I began taking these pills has been miraculous, and for the first time in 12 years, I was able to participate in a social dance, and am now almost entirely well. I hope others may profit by my experience. E. J. Hall, G.T.R., Lindsay

Sir,—Please use my name in any way you like to show the wonderful results that Dr. Clarkes' Little Red Pills have wrought in my case. I was a sufferer for 22 years from dyspepsia, and could get no relief. Six boxes of the pills made me a well man. I might also mention that a friend, who was a lifelong sufferer from rheumatism, is also bearing testimony to these marvellous pills, having been entirely cured. A. N. Brown, Odessa, N. Y.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 50 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $10 for any case that these pills do not help.

Professor O'Brien

CANADA'S GREATEST PHRENOLOGIST and the only recognized SCIENTIFIC PALMIST (by law) has removed to 263 Hunter st. Terrace, near railway crossing. See name in window. As Professor O'Brien is a very busy man, he will not be able to leave Peterboro for a few days yet. The more people he examines the more he has to examine, which fact alone speaks for his ability and the esteem and popularity he has gained during his short stay in Peterboro. It will be well for skeptics of either science to investigate before condemning either Phrenology or Scientific Palmistry. The latter should not be confounded with the common fortune-telling. Professor O'Brien has proved in open court before Crown witnesses at the Toronto General Sessions, March 14th, 1901, that Palmistry as demonstrated by him is a pure science and has no connection with the so-called fortune-telling. Anyone wishing to be enlightened on the science should call on Professor O'Brien, who will be pleased to explain his scientific methods.

Partridges' Eggs.

New Orleans "Times-Democrat."

"But few persons are aware of the fact," said a well-known physician yesterday, "but it is true, nevertheless, that the egg of the partridge is one of the most nutritious things in the world. They are not used for eating purposes except in very rare cases, and then it generally happens in remote rural districts. I have known negro families in the State of Louisiana during the laying season to live on the eggs of partridges. And they would flourish handsomely and grow fat on account of the rich properties of the eggs. These eggs, of course, never find their way into the market, because they are never taken from their nest except by such persons as I have mentioned, and they rob the nests, I suppose, because their principal food supply comes from this source. Quail meat comes pretty high in the market at all times, and the average man will find it more profitable to spare the eggs and wait for the birds when the hunting season rolls around. These men would pass a hundred nests in one day without disturbing an egg. The sport of hunting the birds is an additional incentive. The average negro does not care so much about this aspect of the case. He figures that the white man, having the best gun and the best dog, will beat him to the bird. So he goes after the eggs. One partridge will lay anywhere from a dozen to twenty eggs, and a nest is a good find. I know of many families in rural sections who feast on these eggs in the laying season. I have tried the egg myself as an experiment. I found it peculiarly rich. It has a good flavor, is very palatable, and, in fact, is altogether a very fine thing to eat. Really I believe that the egg has more nutrition in it than the fully developed bird, but, of course, as one of the men fond of the game in the field, I would like to discourage the robbery of the nests."

Yankee Advertising in Germany.

"One coming into New York or any other American city must perforce be impressed with the virtues of somebody's soap or pain-killer, painted in letters that seem to fill the landscape, and in London the trams and 'buses are one mass of travelling advertisements," remarks Ray Stannard Baker in the "Outlook." "This disfigurement is unknown in Germany, and yet the Germans have their own effective methods of proclaiming the excellence of their wares. Like everything else, advertising is limited by law; the cities provide certain large wooden columns at street intersections upon which placards may be pasted, and the streets are not disfigured by dead walls bearing patent medicine advertisements. Then, again, look at the gimcrack toy which your boy is playing with, and you will find upon it the words, 'Made in Germany,' and, if you travel in Germany, you will find that you are very persistently plied with circulars and pamphlets by post and otherwise. Last summer Barnum & Bailey's circus visited Germany for the first time, and brought with it American methods of advertising. I am not exaggerating when I say that they paralyzed the Germans—both paralyzed and scandalized them. They didn't think it possible for any business enterprise to make so much noise; it was positively undignified. For the circus managers bought up store windows and store fronts by the hundreds, and their enormous colored prints, such as had never before been seen in Germany, told the wonders of the show to gaping multitudes. They disapproved of all this, but they went to the show."

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen'l Mgr., Los Angeles, California.
Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.
F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of 300,000 shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is of 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.00 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hermosa White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast, (X-Report Page 253).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 1875, and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from 300 to 725 feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $12,000,000, and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $1.75 to $4.50 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. 2000 acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reserve that the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale 50,000 shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a 500 barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

SOME POSITIVE PROOFS

What is Being Told of Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills—No Cure No Pay.

Dr. Clark's Little Red Pills cured me of kidney trouble of many years' standing, and after I had tried every other known remedy. Joseph Bagley, Caledonia, Rochester, N.Y.

I was afflicted with rheumatism so badly at times that I could not walk. Nothing I took did me much good, until I tried Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. Three boxes cured me entirely.

I had the misfortune to have suffered eight years ago from paralysis, having no less than three strokes. I could not get anything to do me any good until I was induced to try Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I took nine boxes, and although not by any means well, I think I am in a fair way to recovery. I can now walk with the aid of a stick and feel myself getting better every day. M. P. Mann, Merlin, N.Y.

Dr. Clark's Little Red Pills permanently cured me of backache. I suffered for years, and took two boxes. That is a year ago. I have not had a symptom since. James R. Jackson, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

I do not believe there is a medicine to compare with Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills. They cured me of indigestion and catarrh of the stomach, after nine years' suffering. A. S. Macdonald, G.T.R. shops, Montreal.

Vaccine Was No Good.

Provincial Health Officer Bryce had a blue report on the smallpox situation to give out this morning. "I am afraid we are in for it," was the way he expressed his apprehensions. "It seems to be coming at us from all directions." In connection with his advice for general vaccination, he states that it will not be safe to trust to the vaccine which was on the market last spring. In many cases it did not "take," and a lot of it was poor stuff.

At the Opera Last Night

The first of the Star series of concerts was presented by the Macdonald Male Quartette in the opera house last night, and proved to be a great success. The audience, while not as large in numbers as it some times is, was one of the most appreciative that have attended this year. Every number was heartily applauded and encored.

Fairyland

The local stores are now looking their prettiest, which befits the holiday season.

As the one presenting the greatest variety, in its own legitimate lines, China Hall stands pre-eminently first.

For twenty years this store has invited the public to view its Christmas display, and has received a generous share of patronage. The assortment of 1901 is more comprehensive than any of its forerunners, the stock including graceful ornaments, handsome dinner-sets, with their accompanying glasses, dainty china tea-sets, lamps, flower-pots, celery trays, salad bowls, pudding dishes, bread and butter plates, fancy cups and saucers in endless variety. In fact each article in this vast stock is suitable for a present, and a gift of china never offends, but always pleases its recipient.

China Hall in its present festive attire resembles a fairyland through which all are invited to wander, as the store will be kept open every evening until after Christmas.

A Clever Lecturer

The Waterloo Advertiser of Dec. 6th, has the following report of a lecture delivered by Miss Dover, B.A., M.Sc., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Dover, Ashburnham. "A fair sized and appreciative audience listened to the capital lecture given by Miss Mary Dover, B.A., M.Sc., in the Town Hall last Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Library Association. Dr. Phelan occupied the chair, and on the platform were Mr. C. A. Nutting, K.C., Mrs. Gardner Stevens and Miss M. O. Vandry, B.A. Miss Dover delivered an eloquent and interesting lecture on the history of geology, going back to the beginning of the science, and tracing its development and discoveries stage by stage down to the present day. Miss Dover treated her subject in non-technical terms, making it clear and comprehensive to a popular audience. At the close Rev. G. S. Reynolds moved a vote of thanks, paying a deserved tribute to the clever lecturer."

To a Valuable Hint.

In to-day's Times readers will find many hints about Christmas goods. The dealers who offer their wares in the Times advertising columns are the most reliable houses in the town, and good values and fair dealing many confidently be expected at their hands. Patronise the men who invite your custom through your family paper. Christmas buyers should study the Times.

The Late Bernard Doris

The death occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital on Saturday night of Bernard Doris, an aged man, who for some years has been a resident of Peterborough. The deceased has been in bad health for some time and was severely afflicted with rheumatism, which was the cause of death. He has been confined in the hospital for the past six weeks.

He leaves a widow and a family of seven sons and four daughters to mourn his loss. The funeral took place from the family residence yesterday morning and proceeded to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment.

GRANTED AN INJUNCTION

In Connection With the Sale of Goods Made in Town of a Hastings Firm

On Saturday last Mr. Justice McMahon at Toronto granted an injunction to restrain the sale of goods and book debts of O'Leary and Dennis—general merchants of Hastings, who made an assignment some time ago.

Several Toronto firms have claims against the estate and they claim that better prices could have been obtained. The goods were sold for 57 cents on the dollar and the book debts for $75.00. The liabilities of the firm amounted to about $2,500.

CENTRAL ONTARIO POWER CO.

Mr. Culverwell Says Construction is a Matter of About Two Months

Mr. Alex. Culverwell, managing director of the Central Ontario Power Co., visited the head office of the company here, yesterday.

Mr. Culverwell told The Times yesterday that he was in communication with two large manufacturers in regard to locating their works in Peterborough. He says that the only apology he can make to Peterborough, Cobourg and Port Hope, are that strong influences have opposed the company's operations, they realizing that electric power from Burleigh Falls can be furnished to manufacturers at much less cost than by others in the field, but wishes to say that the company's interests have so far advanced that the opposition cannot further hinder the rapid progress in the construction of the plant. The dam which is already built and the natural raceway which exists will aid materially in the construction of the power buildings to such an extent that about two months' work will complete the necessary buildings.

It is estimated that about ten thousand horse power can be generated at the Falls, so the public can realize the great benefit of cheap power in this district.

THE WAR HAS STRENGTHENED BRITISH POWER THROUGH THE WORLD

Captain Mahan's Magnificent Tribute to the Power of the British Empire

The Influence of the Colonies will Now be Felt in the Word's Affairs

Splendid Achievement in the Conquering of the South African Republics

No Country on Earth Could Have Done Better Than Britain Has Done

London, Dec. 18.—One of the most remarkable tributes to the power of the British Empire, as exemplified in the South African war (despite the repulses and accidents of war, which have given rise to so much comment among the enemies of Great Britain) is that contained in an article in the National Review for December by Captain A. T. Mahan, the well-known expert of the United States navy, entitled: "The Influence of the South African War upon the prestige of the British Empire."

Captain Mahan first deals with the attitude of public opinion in foreign countries towards England at the time of the outbreak of hostilities, which he compares to that of public opinion on the European Continent at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war:

Prejudice is a two-edged sword and cuts both ways. So it has been in South Africa. The evident military difficulties gave host to sentiment the basis on which to build prophecies of disaster; but having served that purpose, when it comes to comment and inference, the difficulties no longer find place for consideration.

What those difficulties were and are Captain Mahan sums up in the following passages:

1. The remoteness of the British base of operations from the scene of fighting, contrasted with the nearness of the Boers; in other words, the length of the British lines of communication. 2. The nature and extent of the country over which operations had to be conducted. 3. The character of the hostile people; including therein the advantage which familiarity with a region and its conditions, especially when sparsely settled, undeveloped, and consequently imperfectly known, always gives to inhabitants over invaders. All three particulars, indeed, fall under the general head of communications which on the strategic side at least, dominate war. The nature and extent of the country affect materially the maintenance of communications, their security, and their rapidity. So also the native and acquired characteristics of the enemy act and react upon communications. If of extremely simple wants, capable of rapid movement, familiar with the country surrounded by sympathizers, their own communications are relatively invulnerable, and to the same degree they are facilitated in attacking those of the invader. Roles are, in a measure, reversed; the offence is constantly on the defence for his communications, the defence on the offensive against them. These factors, onerously adverse to Great Britain, were and are permanent. To them must be added a present consideration which existed from the beginning, but which it was then perhaps impossible to anticipate—namely, the difficulty under which the British Government would be placed in dealing with partially organized forces maintaining insurrection rather than war, with no organic social system behind them, and from that very lack, without vital centres or social articulations at which to strike, capable of indefinite subdivision and consequent elusiveness, due to the very low type of social and political cohesion which has from their beginnings been characteristic of the Boer peoples. When highly organized and complex, national vitality may be paralysed without killing men; but where organization is defective the same end cannot be quickly reached without a slaughter of individuals from which modern humanity rightfully revolts. Here is the difficulty confronting the Empire since

THE END OF THE WAR PROPER

In the present embarrassing situation the permanent natural factors (the nature of the country and the racial characteristics of the opponents, with their consequent individual tendencies of action) remain much the same; but the accidental temporary elements are changed. The forces are no longer organised in the sense of having a common centre of action, or a regular gradation of even military authority; they no longer act in masses, but are scattered in small bodies, much of whose immunity depends upon their faculty of melting away and subsequently reuniting; and there is behind them no recognized and efficient civil government. On the civil side the Boer bands represent a past, not a present; the organic society and government no longer exist. . . . The British Army in South Africa during 19 months, practically since the fall of Pretoria, has been engaged in a task analogous to that of which the United States army during the past century has had large experience, set- [illegible] the savagery in the prac- [illegible] of North American Indians, the [illegible] have much in common with them [illegible] combatants. To the adaptation of methods to environment which dis- [illegible] both, as it does natives usu- [illegible] they have further brought the [illegible] of the white man, and [illegible] of the tribal tradition of the Indian, they have that of a known [illegible] history and of a national existence, which, although excessively loose and unorganized, furnishes a certain bond of cohesion. Concert of action and persistence are thereby attainable to a degree impossible to the Indians, ever prone to disintegration and fickle with the fickleness of the savage. In scope of design and intelligence of direction there is also no comparison. Let it be added that in both cases the methods of fighting are not external habits, assumed like a change of garments or superinduced as training upon a recruit, but the outgrowth of surrounding circumstances and everyday life; an evolution rather than a system, and marked, therefore, with a spontaneity, a facility, and a readiness not to be attained off-hand by imitations. As well might a coat be expected to rival the skin in adapting itself to the form and movements of the body. Forces of this character, acting with in their usual environment, and unimpeded by considerations common to men of complex civilisation, possess a power of injury and an elusiveness which are enormous, to be matched only by their powerlessness for good and for self-initiated progress in the civil order. To meet the conditions in South Africa—which, though not unparalleled in kind, are perhaps unprecedented in degree, because the brains of white men are utilizing the capacities and immunities of the savage—are needed both adequate methods, probably somewhat original in character, and also familiarity with the particular circumstances which practice alone offers. In this also, and for this reason, Kitchener's command must be much more competent now than it possibly could be a twelvemonth ago.

THE EMPIRE'S PRESTIGE

With regard to "the broader question of the present prestige of the Empire" and its "consequent real status among the Powers of the world," Captain Mahan's conclusions are:

First among symptoms is one which, to my mind, gives immeasurable assurance of national power—the sure guarantee of prestige—and that is the progress towards unanimity in the nation, centreing round the idea of Imperialism, and finding an immediate impetus in the South African problem. Whatever the faults of a Government or the failures of an army, a unanimous and sustained national spirit is the vital force of which prestige is at best but the outward sign and faint reflection. The increase of unanimity throughout the Empire is witnessed both by the movement of the colonies and by the rejection of the disintegrating tendency in the Liberal party by its younger and abler members, to whom the future belongs. Imperialism has shown itself an idea capable of quickening national self-consciousness of bestowing strength of purpose and of receiving indefinite expansion. Again the sea power of the Empire still stands pre-eminent. I do not here consider the accuracy of the allegations made of failure on the part of the Government to maintain necessary progress. Even if these be true, no irreparable harm has yet been done. The Imperial movement of the colonies in contributing to the war is greatly contributive to sea power. By strengthening the Imperial tie it gives assurance of local support in many seas—the bases—which sea power requires, while the military effort and the experience gained by the colonial troops engaged render the defence and security of these local bases much more solid than ever before, because dependent upon men experienced in warfare. The foundations are surer. Again, closely connected with this last consideration is the inevitable superior efficiency of the army at large, Imperial, as well as colonial, consequent upon this protracted experience of way. I made this remark 29 months ago to an American audience which I believed to be impressed with the idea of lost prestige, and forgetful of this prolonged warlike practice, obvious as its effect upon efficiency should be. The comment rests now on an even wider and firmer basis than when first uttered. The British army, including colonial contingents, is to-day, to the number of over 250,000 men, a vastly more useful instrument that it could have been two years ago; and this gain will last for at least a decade, as a matter of international calculation, just as the disbanded but tempered forces of the United States remained after the Civil War. The confederation of the Empire, whatever shape that may ultimately, if ever, attain, has doubtless been furthered, not hindered, by the war. Community of sentiment and community of action have both been fostered. I would not speak with exaggeration, nor overlook the immense difficulties in maintaining community of interest and of aim between political entities so widely scattered as the component parts of the Empire. The work is one of time, and labour. I say only that the war has furthered it, and most justly, for from the point of view of the British Islands—the Imperial idea apart—the war, so far from being selfish, has been self-sacrificing.

IT IS THE EMPIRE

not the mother country, that is most interested in this comparatively eccentric and remote dependency. In development of power, both local and general, therefore, I believe the war to have strengthened materially the British Empire, and I believe it has likewise given renewed and increased force to the spirit of union, of concentration upon great ideals, without which material strength runs to waste. As an immediate result I look for the establishment of a group of South African communities in which the English tradition of law and liberty will henceforth prevail, partly by force of conquest, partly because of its inherent fitness to survive. Of this eminent inherent fitness the United States of America gives the most signal illustration, because, though so heterogeneous in the composition of its population, the English tongue and the English tradition overbear all competitors reconcile in themselves all rivalries, and sustain themselves in directive control, modified, doubtless, but not weakened, by the variety of foreign influences to which they are subjected. With these obvious gains—development of Imperial purpose, strengthening of Imperial ties, broadening and confirming the bases of sea power, increase of military efficiency, demonstrated capacity to send and to sustain 200,000 men on active service for two years, 6000 miles from home—I do not believe the international prestige of Great Britain has sunk in foreign cabinets, however, it may be reckoned in the streets and cafes of foreign cities. Against this, in order to support a charge of loss of prestige, is set the weary prolongation of the war. Men need not deceive themselves; there is here no even balance. The gain outweighs the loss. I unfeignedly wish that the war with its sorrows and suspense might end; but it remains true, and though the argument is, that the more completely the Boer exhausts himself now, the more convinced and the more final will his submission necessarily be.

After the Secret is Discovered—The Young Prince Presents Gladys Parker Deacon With a Ring and Proposes Marriage

London, Dec. 18.—Miss Gladys Parker-Deacon, who is the most sensational beauty in London, has known for a long time that the young crown prince of Germany was desperately smitten with her during his visit to London two months ago, as was cabled to The Chronicle then.

When he was leaving he presented to her an exquisite diamond ring. There is a rumor now that quite recently he wrote to her, formally proposing marriage. Such a union could only be morganatic and in any case the kaiser would not hear of it.

The crown prince, who recently returned to resume his studies at the University of Bonn has been taken away within the past fortnight under a plea of ill health. Probably he is lovesick. Probably also the kaiser has heard of his proposal and wants to get him under control.

Society has talked much for some time of the possibility of Lord Francis Hope marrying again. At first rumor had it, as was promptly cabled The Chronicle that he had chosen the beautiful Miss Deacon as the future duchess, but later and more trustworthy news is that it is Mrs. Parker-Deacon, who is honored by his choice.

It would be strange indeed if the woman who some years ago was the heroine of a strange, tragic story should eventually stand in the shoes May Yohe has kicked off.

If Mrs. Deacon had so chosen she might have been a much richer woman than she is. When Mr. Abeille was dying before her eyes from a wound inflicted by her husband he made an effort to will her a very large sum of money. The bequest was not legal, but the family offered to respect his wishes if she would sign a document acknowledging that she had received the amount. That she would not do, so she lost the money.

Revolt in Brazil Next?

London, Dec. 18.—Disquieting rumors have been current here for nearly a week of coming troubles in Brazil, due chiefly to German intrigues against the Republic. There can be no doubt that the position of affairs in Brazil is by no means satisfactory and the time is approaching for a little brotherly blood-letting.

The particular troubles referred to can be traced to Lisbon, where they caused a considerable stir on the Bourse. The Imparcial and other papers have received mail advices from Rio de Janeiro all to the effect that some sort of conspiracy is brewing with German backing.

The Imparcial's correspondent declares that the conspiracy was formed by financial and political aristocrats for the purpose of reviving the monarchy. He says that numerous secret societies are working for the restoration of the empire and that the republican authorities are showing a deplorable lack of vigor.

THE BOER WAR NEARING THE END

This is the Opinion of Lieut. Morrison of the Ottawa Citizen

A BIG ROUND UP NOW GOING ON

The Talented Writer, Who was With the Second Contingent Says Important Movements are on Foot

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—The Ottawa citizen, of which Lieut Morrison, a returned South African artilleryman, is editor, says:

General Bruce Hamilton is at present operating in the very heart of the Boer country—the Ermelo and Carolina district, south of Belfast, Transvaal, which, since the capture of Pretoria, has been the center of the burghers' resistance. The commandos in that district are the best mounted, best equipped and most dashing and courageous fighters in the Transvaal. The news of The past week that Lord Kitchener has taken the field in person to direct operations in the parallelogram formed by the Delagoa and Natal railway lines, fenced in by a blockhouse line at one end and the Swaziland and Portuguese end and the Swaziland and Portuguese that this district will be thoroughly cleaned out. The news of the captures of two large commandos by General Hamilton and that Delarey's men are meeting to discuss terms of surrender is the most significant that has been received from the seat of war this year. Lord Kitchener is a deliberate and methodical worker. He has probably been elaborating a scheme to pen a large portion of the Boer forces in the district referred to and strongly hemmed them in with line of communication troops before setting his mobile columns to work to chevy them about inside. Now that he has taken the field in person important results from the plan may be anticipated during the present week.

Roused by John Redmond

Dublin, Dec. 18.—The manner in which John E. Redmond and the other Irish delegates have been received in the United States has invigorated the nationalists and caused the British government to take a much more serious view of the situation in Ireland than it took before.

Irish Secretary Windham is reviving coercion prosecutions in order to check the rapid growing influence of the United Irish league. Two members of parliament, Connor O'Kelly and John Hayden, together with several other leaguers, have already been summoned before the coercion courts for making speeches in which they advised their constituents to boycott the men who have taken the farms from which the tenants have been evicted.

The tribunal consists of two resident magistrates, who may be dismissed without notice by the viceroy if the sentences they impose are not severe enough. Experience has shown that these magistrates almost invariably impose the utmost term within their power—six months' imprisonment with hard labor. O'Kelly and Hayden have repeated the offending speech as since they were summoned.

The United Irish league is one of the most formidable organizations that has ever confronted Dublin castle.

All portents indicates a stormy winter in Ireland.

The farmers have stopped in the hunting in Roscommon as a reprisal on the landlords.

In Limerick the tenants who were evicted from the O'Grady estate twenty years ago and have since been supported by the Irish nationalists' organisation have just been reinstated in their holdings at half the back rents they were evicted for being unable to pay.

There is no agrarian crime in the country, the policy of the league being passive resistance to the unjust exactions of the landlords.

Queen's Husband With Her

The Hague, Dec. 18.—Queen Wilhelmina and her husband, Prince Henry, arrived here to-day from the royal castle at Het Loo and were enthusiastically received. The streets were thronged with a cheering crowd and all the principal buildings were covered with flags. Afterward a great crowd assembled at the Noordeinde Castle and sang the national anthem.

Premier Seldom Talks Nonsense

London, Dec. 17.—A special cable from New Zealand announces that Premier Seddon in an address to returned soldiers, severely condemned War Office methods, and said that if the colonists had been given a free hand the war would have been over by now. As it was, if the British army was wanted elsewhere, as might soon be the case, the war could be easily finished by Canada and the other colonies.

Premier Seddon in making the above remarks has evidently allowed his valor to outrun his discretion. If he were put into Lord Kitchener's place, and asked to end the war he would probably take as long as anybody else. Seddon and other hot-headed critics forget that great wars are not finished in a week, and that if the South African war is over in three years, it will not have been a terribly long one as wars go.

BURNING BOER FARMS BY THE BRITISH ARMY

Interesting Letter from a Chaplain with the Imperial Forces

EXCITING PERSONAL EXPERIENCE

Why the Farm Houses Were Burned—Interesting Letter from a Reliable Source

Rev. Paul B. Bull, late acting chaplain in South Africa, tells this story of a farm-burning incident:—

I was ordered to join the 4th Cavalry Brigade, which was lying at Donker's Hoek, seven miles north of Bloemfontein, on the railway on April 6, 1900. On Sunday morning, while at breakfast with the General, a report came in which said that our patrol had been fired on from Mr. Richter's farm in Klip Drift, which was under the white flag, and one man killed. It was not known what had become of another, who had been seen to fall. Whether killed or only wounded was uncertain. It was an obvious duty for me to go and see if I could find this wounded man. The civilian surgeon of the 7th Dragoon Guards, Dr. Amard, asked if he might accompany me. So after parade service at 9 a.m. we started. We decided to walk, as riding might mislead the enemy as to our intentions. Klip Drift Farm lay about seven miles off to our right front. A young officer put us across the first river on a led horse, and then our way lay for about four miles among hills held by our own patrols. It was a very beautiful walk—nature lying so calm and peaceful in the bright sunshine that it needed quite a mental effort to remember that death was lurking hidden among the trees and watching keen-eyed from every kopje. When we had passed our own patrols we sat down in the shade of a tree for lunch—a biscuit and a piece of chocolate—and then read the 91st and 23rd Psalms.

The words of these beautiful Psalms of Divine protection had for us a new intensity of meaning. After a few prayers we started off for our walk across the three miles of veldt which separated us from the wooded banks of the river and the farm, which lay on the other side of the Modder. As we drew near the river we stopped frequently and waved my surplice as a flag of truce and a Red Cross flag which the doctor carried. Then down among the trees, and paddling across the rushing river, we climbed up the steep hill and came in sight of the farm house of Mr. Richter, nestling among the hilltops which encircled it on all sides except riverward. Again the striking contrast—external nature so calm and peaceful—the sheep browsing, the oxen lowing, the flowers bright and beautiful in the sunshine, but beneath it all the spirit world, trembling, quivering with the passions and fears and sorrows of two nations, meeting beneath the eye and hand of God, the Righteous Judge.

THE STORY OF THE FIGHT

We made our way past two cattle pens, past a dead horse, past an ominous tarpaulin sheet just inside the garden fence, up to the house, where, after some delay the door was opened by a young lady, who proved to be Mr. Richter's eldest daughter. We explained our errand, and she at once led us to an outhouse, where we found our wounded comrade—Trooper Cox of the 7th Dragoon Guards. He was lying on a bed, and by his side sat a young girl fanning him to keep off the flies. He told us his story in a few words. As he and Best and another man were riding up to the farm a terrible fire had opened on them from behind the wall of the cattle pen. Best was shot dead. Cox's horse was shot under him. He struggled out from beneath it, and ran toward the river. But a shot brought him down when he had run twenty yards. The other man, being to the rear, escaped. After Cox had fallen, about fifteen men, well-dressed and equipped, came out from behind the cattle pen and said they were very sorry, but were obliged to do it. One of them was a doctor, and bound up his wound, and they carried him to the outhouse, where we found him. Dr. Amard then dressed his wound afresh, and we held a consultation. It was already 3 p.m., too late to move the wounded man that day. We settled that the doctor should go back to camp and return next day with an ambulance, and that I should stay with Cox till the ambulance came. Then we made our way to the garden and drew aside the tarpaulin and examined poor Best's wound. I unpinned his Afghan ribbon, and on examining his pockets found a sixpence and a florin in the rim of which was the clear-cut dent of a Mauser bullet. On turning the body over we found on the other side a shilling which had been driven right through his body and was bent double and torn. The wound was only one inch higher up then that of his comrade. So constantly throughout this campaign life and death were only an inch apart.

THE OWNER OF THE FARM

After some milk and bread and butter at the farm house we made the acquaintance of Mr. Richter, the owner—a tall, handsome man, perhaps fifty years of age, with a full iron-grey beard and a fine figure. He told us through his daughter that he could not understand English, but I judged from watching him carefully that this was only a temporary infirmity. He explained with unnecessary emphasis that he was in hiding from the Boers who would come to make him go out on commando if they knew he was there. The hiding was rather a thin affair. All the blinds in the house were drawn down, but I noticed him walking about with considerable freedom at times when I wasn't looking! Next day I pointed out to him how rash this was, but he said his "boys" were watching on the neighboring hills, and would warn him to hide again. At about 3.30 p.m. we buried Trooper Best out on the hill-side, about 1,000 yards from the farm, the doctor and two daughters following the corpse, borne by Kaffirs, and joining in the solemn service.

After telling of a service at Mr. Richter's house and the incidents of the return to camp Mr. Bull continues:

On our arrival we learned something which gave a new thrill of interest to our adventure. In our absence one of Mr. Richter's Kaffir servants had come into camp and given information to the effect that on Sunday the fifteen Boers had been entertained at breakfast by Mr. Richter, that he had joined them in lying in wait for our troopers, and had boasted that he himself had shot the man who was killed, and had "thanked God he had lived to shoot one damned Englishman." He was arrested that night in Bloemfontein, and was awaiting his trial when we went forward on the great northward march.

A TREACHEROUS MURDER

It was not till my return home that I learned that he had been tried and found guilty, but let off with some slight penalty, and that his farm was subsequently burned for another act of treachery committed from it. Now I have written this record of facts within my own experience, not to revive the memory of what I doubt not was a foul and treacherous murder, but to help fair-minded Englishmen to form a right judgement with which our military authorities have had to deal. To an Englishman at home a Boer farm means cocks and hens and haystacks and rural simplicity. And the "ashes of a home" and "dying embers" and "desolate hearth" and such like phrases enable the imaginative to play upon the emotions of the ignorant in a way which is very blinding to the conscience. I think it will help men to get rid of this atmosphere of sickly sentiment if we remember that a farm in South Africa is much more than a peaceful home. It is in many cases a fortress, a food depot, an arsenal, where thousands of rounds of ammunition lie buried, an intelligence agency, a look-out post, which commands fifty miles of country, and, too often, a death-trap for our soldiers. And the stern military necessity which led to the destruction of many farms will be better understood if it is remembered that these homes offered a safe shelter to those who were bent on destroying the railway line.

TWO THOUSAND PEOLPE ARE WITHOUT HOMES

Effect of the Great Floods in Pennsylvania Was Far-Reaching and Disastrous in the Extreme

THE COLD WEATHER IS CAUSING GREAT DISTRESS

Estimates of Money Loss Place it at From $5,000,000 to $6,000,000—Nine Lives Lost in the Catastrophe

Philadelphia, Dec. 17.—Railroad service in this State, which was badly crippled by the floods of Saturday night and Sunday, is gradually recovering its normal conditions, and by this afternoon or to-morrow morning trains will be running practically on time. In some localities it will be weeks before the damage is full repaired.

The sweep of water was greater in some sections than was ever known before, and bridges that withstood the floods of years were swept away. The sudden drop in the temperature was providential in some respects, as it prevented the flood from spreading, but it caused great suffering among 2,000 or more persons made homeless by the destruction of their homes. All passengers on stalled trains were removed from their uncomfortable situation last night and this morning by the railroad companies, and the trains are now being taken to their destination.

The Frank Daniels Comic Opera Company, which was to have opened a two weeks' engagement at the Broad Street Theatre last night, did not reach the city until early this morning, having been nearly 48 hours in making the journey from Buffalo, which is ordinarily accomplished in twelve hours. The members of the company sat up nearly all of this time.

In the lower anthracite coal region the situation is growing worse. The mine workings are thoroughly soaked with water, and it may be weeks before some of them can be worked, although there was a resumption to-day in a few mines. It is estimated that fifty thousand mine workers and mechanics are idle as a result of the flood.

Various estimates are given of the money loss entailed by the floods. Conservative guessers place the loss at from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000. So far reports have been received here of the loss of nine

COL. LESSARD PRAISES WORK OF TOMMY ATKINS

The Inspector of Cavalry Draws Some Lesson From the War

The first of a series of instructional lectures on live military topics for the benefit of the officers of the Toronto Garrison was delivered last night at the Military Institute by Colonel F. L. Lessard, C. B., who commanded the first Canadian Mounted Rifles in South Africa. The gallant colonel illustrated his interesting address with the help of maps and blackboard drawings.

The colonel combated the prevailing idea that the war in South Africa would result in the transformation of all cavalry into mounted infantry. It was a mistake to suppose that Britain's wars would always be against nations like the Boers, whose army was composed almost entirely of mounted infantry, and whose methods demanded the employment of mounted infantry to prevail against it. It should be remembered that the cavalry, as sent out by England at the commencement of the war, was severely handicapped in the matter of horses. The animals reached South Africa more or less weakened by the long sea voyage, and the conditions demanded that they be at once sent to the front. After detraining they had to undergo a long arduous march, with extremely scanty rations.

Colonel Lessard deprecated the tendency to decry the value of discipline and training. The training of the future should combine the individuality shown by the Boers and the colonials with the power of acting in units, and in the coherent fashion that good training only could produce. The soldier 100 years ago had only to obey; now he had to think.

The lecturer thought that the mounted troops of Canada should be composed of mounted infantry. This could not be done, however, by saying the word, as he knew cavalrymen who declared they would be nothing else, just as there were artillerymen and infantrymen who declared they would be nothing else. Sir Edward Hutton seemed to think mounted rifles would be much less expensive than cavalry, be much less expensive than cavalry, on account of the latter's costly dress and saddlery.

THE IMPERIAL SOLDIER.

Colonel Lessard said he must say a word for "Tommy Atkins," whether a mounted or infantry man. Critics had dilated only on his mishaps; they said he lacked individuality, that he was helpless on the field. People had heard all this sort of talk, but hardly any of Atkin's brilliant achievements. He (Colonel Lessard) had fought with English troops, and his conclusion was that if they made mistakes and lacked individuality than other European troops must be similarly lacking. "While attached to Gen. French, as well as in command of my own regiment, I have been fighting with regular troops, and I cannot recollect one instance where regular troops did not come up to all that was expected of them." The speaker related several incidents, showing remarkable initiative and intelligence on the part of British regulars.

Colonel Lessard recounted very interestingly the several engagements in which his command took a prominent part during its term of service on the field, ending with the Bradfort engagement, where three Canadians secured the V. C.

A large number of prominent military men were present at the lecture. Colonel Lawrence Buchan, C.M.G., will give the next lecture.

AUSTRIA IN MISS STONE'S CASE

Strong Representations Made to Turkey and Bulgaria Regarding Outlaws

Birmingham, Dec. 18.—A despatch from Vienna to the Post says advices received in official quarters show that Austria-Hungary is making strong representations to Turkey and Bulgaria to take effective steps to put down outlawry and brigandage which are flagrantly prevalent on their borders. It is believed that Austria is speaking at present on behalf of the United States in this matter, the continued captivity of Miss Stone being the occasion for the remonstrances. Robert S. McCormick, United States Minister in Vienna, and Count Goluchowski, the Austrian Foreign Minister, have had frequent conferences recently on the present intolerable situation.

Fairyland

The local stores are now looking their prettiest, which befits the holiday season.

As the one presenting the greatest variety, in its own legitimate lines, China Hall stands pre-eminently first.

For twenty years this store has invited the public to view its Christmas display, and has received a generous share of patronage. The assortment of 1901 is more comprehensive than any of its forerunners, the stock including graceful ornaments, handsome dinner-sets, with their accompanying glasses, dainty china tea-sets, lamps, flower-pots, celery trays, salad bowls, pudding dishes, bread and butter plates, fancy cups and saucers in endless variety. In fact each article in this vast stock is suitable for a present, and a gift of china never offends, but always pleases its recipient.

China Hall in its present festive attire resembles a fairyland through which all are invited to wander, as the store will be kept open every evening until after Christmas.

THE WATERWORKS QUESTION

Now that this matter is fairly before the public, it is well to discuss it in an impartial manner, so that the citizens may understand what they are asked to vote upon. While it is a subject that affects all the ratepayers, it must be borne in mind that the smaller number by far have power to control the situation, because the right to vote is confined to actual owners of property and those who hold leases running for not less than thirty years. The proposed By-law is published; let us see what briefly it provides: First, it recites that it is in the interest of the town to acquire the waterworks; that an agreement has been entered into purchase same at $230,000, for which purpose debentures must be issued to that amount, payable at the end of 30 years with the interest at 3 3-4 per cent.; that to provide such interest and a sinking fund there must be raised $13,460.43 annually, and that the present debenture debt of the town, exclusive of local improvement debts, already amounts to $271,120. The By-law then proceeds with the usual and necessary enactments as to the borrowing of the money, and goes on to provide (Sec. 6 sub-sec. (2) that the revenues from the water works shall be applied in or towards payment of the sum to be annually raised and that (Sec. 8) the water works shall be managed by a "Board of Commissioners," three in number; of whom the Mayor shall be one, the Council being given the power to increase the number to five without the consent of the ratepayers.

This is the By-law which the qualified voters are asked to swallow at one dose on the 6th January next—that is, it has to be taken in its entirety and to stand for all time.

Over and above its local improvement indebtedness the town debt will will immediately be increased to over half a million dollars, the inevitable result of which will be a lowering in value of the town debentures. It may be very well to say that inasmuch as the water works debentures are to be a first charge on the works, and that the revenue from same will meet the liability, the effect suggested should not be produced; but the time has not yet arrived for capitalists to place such confidence in municipal ownership that these points will be taken into consideration. Then is not Alderman Best's statement somewhat illusory? His figures show that after providing for all charges there will be a surplus of $900 per annum. On the "revenue" side of the account he includes, of course, the amount now paid by the town for hydrants, fountains and street watering, between $5000 and $6000. This sum will not be actually received by the Commissioners, but will be saved to the town, and thus lessen the general burden of taxation. Now, will this result follow? Does anyone imagine that the general rate will be lowered? Will not the supposed saving in one direction simply afford a much desired excuse for spending more in some other? Then Mr. Best's figures are based upon other assumptions that are fallacious—for instance that the sinking fund can be invested for 30 years at three per cent. It is now fully recognized that to provide a sinking fund for a debt payable 30 years hence you cannot safely count upon more than 2 1-4 p.c. Another instance; Mr. Best allows only $500 per annum for the commissioner remuneration, because that is the sum the Directors of the Company, who are large shareholders, have been willing to accept. Does anyone imagine that three, four or five business men are going to undertake the supervision of the waterworks for any such paltry sum, or if they did undertake it, that there would be any supervision at all? One of the grave dangers is that the office of commissioner should become a place in which an ex-Alderman, supposed to have earned his reward, might enjoy his "ease with dignity." Then does anyone suppose that commissioners would exercise the same care and skill in the management of the works as a body of directors who have a direct pecuniary interest in the result?

Looking at the subject for every point of view, it seems to us that it might be a mistake for the town to take over the works now. The most favorable aspect in which Mr. Best presents it does not indicate that the town will be better off, and if, as above submitted, some of his important data are fallacious, there can be grave doubt that we should be much worse off.

Nothing tastes good. Nothing gives pleasure. The mind is dull and sluggish. The will is weak. Little things cause great irritation. What's the matter? The probabilities are that the stomach is deranged and the liver involved.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes a man who is run down and dispirited feel like a new being. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, stirs the sluggish liver into action, and increases the activity of the blood-making glands, so that there is an abundant supply of pure, rich blood.

Mr. Edward Jacobs, of Marengo, Crawford Co., Indiana, writes: "After three years of suffering with liver trouble and malaria I gave up all hopes of ever getting stout again, the last chance was to try your medicine. CHAINED FOR TEN YEARS
ASTHMA
EVERY BRINGS RELIEF.

"There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.
DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.
After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,
REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

CAN DANCE A TWO-STEP

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Nineteenth Century.

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—In my youth I was fond of dancing, and took in every dance for miles around. That is years ago. I fell a ready victim to rheumatism 12 years ago, and have been a sufferer ever since. Nothing seemed to give me relief, until I secured a box of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. My recovery since I began taking these pills has been miraculous, and for the first time in 12 years, I was able to participate in a social dance, and am now almost entirely well. I hope others may profit by my experience. E. J. Hall, G.T.R., Lindsay

Sir,—Please use my name in any way you like to show the wonderful results that Dr. Clarkes' Little Red Pills have wrought in my case. I was a sufferer for 22 years from dyspepsia, and could get no relief. Six boxes of the pills made me a well man. I might also mention that a friend, who was a lifelong sufferer from rheumatism, is also bearing testimony to these marvellous pills, having been entirely cured. A. N. Brown, Odessa, N. Y.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. An Eagle's Nest.

THOSE who seek to rob birds' nests sometimes repent of their deed, especially if the bird happens to be an eagle as fierce as those on the California coast. These birds are seldom shot, and consequently they have increased in numbers; but the eggs are in demand by collectors, and a few adventurous spirits make a business of trying to secure them. Mr. C. F. Holder tells in the New York "Commercial Advertiser" of an adventure where two egg-hunters had a trying experience, and the eagles came off victorious.

The nest was on a rocky pinnacle, perhaps one hundred feet in height, completely separated from the shore. In storms the waves rose, a splendid mass of foam, to the very summit. The base was covered with kelp, and the waves would rise eight or ten feet, then as suddenly drop away, leaving jagged points upon which a boat would be hung until overwhelmed by the next wave.

One quiet day the men approached. They rowed about the rock for ten minutes, then, the sea being level, rushed at it. With all their care, however the boat was dashed on a ledge, and they found themselves prisoners on the rock with nothing to eat——the provisions having been lost overboard—and the bottom of the boat crushed in.

They rescued a rope and a can of water, and being still determined to try for the eggs, they turned their attention to the nest, allaying their uneasiness by the thought that some passing yacht would take them off.

The rock, however, proved slippery from long accumulation of guano, and the men found it impossible to climb nearer than forty feet from the nest.

One of the adventurers decided to attempt that last forty feet after the fashion adopted by South Pacific natives in climbing trees. A long rope, doubled, with a stone attached to the doubled end, was hurled over the rock so that it fell on the other side, thus encircling it. Then the egg-hunter began climbing barefooted, not going up, but gradually circling the pillar and hitching the rope upward.

In one circuit of the rock he had gained ten or twelve feet, and the footing was growing better. The second brought him twenty-five feet up. He was reaching down to raise the rope when he heard a cry from his companion, and then came a sharp whistling sound, a rush, and something filled the air in front of him, striking fierce blows and throwing him from his feet, so that he hung for a second by the rope, faint and bewildered.

It was the mother eagle, that had plunged down upon him from a great height. She was driven off for a time by the man below, who hit her squarely on the breast with a stone.

The hunter, still undaunted, proceeded to climb, this time with his knife between his teeth. When he was within five feet of the top the former experience was repeated.

A short, sharp fight ensued. The bird fell away, but immediately returned. The man struck at it with his knife, missed it, and then, while one of its claws was fastened in his clothing, lost his balance and fell against the rope. The rope broke, and bird and man went plunging into the sea.

The fact that the bird's talon had caught in his clothing saved the hunter's life, for the eagle, as soon as it struck the water, began to try to fly, and actually helped the man out of the kelp bed into which he had fallen. Then by its struggles it freed itself, and the hunter swam to the rock.

All thought of securing the eggs was now abandoned. The boat proved to be damaged beyond repair, and the men spent a miserable night in a crevice of the rock, the sea rising all around them. Late on the following day they were rescued by a passing boat.

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.

Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.
F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of 300,000 shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is of 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerita Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.00 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. U. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hardison White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page 283).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 1876, and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from 300 to 700 feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $12,000,000, and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $1.75 to $4.00 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerita Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. 2000 acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.

13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reserve that the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale 50,000 shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a 100 barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

SOME POSITIVE PROOFS

What is Being Told of Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills—No Cure No Pay.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills cured me of kidney trouble of many years' standing, and after I had tried every other known remedy. Joseph Begley, Caledonia, Rochester, N.Y.

I was afflicted with rheumatism so badly at times that I could not walk. Nothing I took did me much good, until I tried Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. Three boxes cured me entirely.

I had the misfortune to have suffered some years ago from [illegible] [illegible]ing not less than three strokes. I could get nothing to do me any good until I was induced to try Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I took nine boxes, and although not by any means well, I think I am in a fair way to recovery. I can now walk with the aid of a stick and feel myself getting better every day. M. F. Mann, Martin, N.Y.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills permanently cured me of headache. I suffered for years, and took two boxes. That is a year ago. I have not had a symptom since. James R. Jackson, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

I do not believe there is a medicine to compare with Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills. They cured me of indigestion and catarrh of the stomach, after nine years' suffering. A. S. Macdonald, G.T.R. shops, Montreal.

Vaccine Was No Good.

Provincial Health Officer Bryce had a blue report on the smallpox situation to give out this morning. "I am afraid we are in for it," was the way he expressed his apprehensions. "It seems to be coming at us from all directions." In connection with his advice for general vaccination, he states that it will not be safe to trust to the vaccine which was on the market last spring. In many cases it did not "take," and a lot of it was poor stuff.

WORKMEN IN DISTRESS

Lack of Employment has Reduced Many Germans to Beggary

Berlin, Dec. 18.—Although the local newspapers seek to minimize the distress existing among the unemployed of Germany, the fact remains that much suffering prevails and the conditions are daily becoming worse. The lack of employment is being felt more and more severely week by week. Dr. Freund, who is the chairman of a committee representing the different German labor bureaus, is in favor of a resolution providing that work shall be given to natives only, which would raise the immigration question in an acute shape. It appears that Russians, Croatians and Italians are largely employed as navvies in the construction for example, of the Teltow canal, at the very gates of Berlin. Dr. Freund has directed the attention of the Prussian ministers of the interior and of public works to this circumstances and has also recommended that facilities be given for the return to their homes of those who have more recently migrated from a distance to Berlin and other cities in the hope of finding work.

In spite of the statistics of the unemployed, which, on the lowest estimate, bear witness to a very serious state of affairs, Dr. Freund does not admit the existence of acute distress at present, but confesses that there are serious grounds for anxiety with general trade depression is already affecting the lower middle classes, who have contracted habits of unwonted extravagance during the golden period of prosperity, and the papers are beginning to preach about the evils of luxury and to advocate a return to the old German traditions of simplicity of life. Necessity has already driven many persons to the plainest of plain living. Commercial uncertainty on the tariff question is responsible for much of the existing trade dullness.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Aukland, New Zealand, Dec. 17.—Great destruction to property has been wrought in the Cheviot district by an earthquake on Nov. 18. In the town of Cheviot and country the damage will reach £20,000. Scarcely a building was left standing. The fine homestead of Sir George Clifford was wrecked. Great fissures opened in the earth and water issued from them. In one office a heavy safe was thrown across the room, and brick chimneys fell like toy houses. The people are panic-stricken. The shocks still continue. At Waiau River great cracks opened in the river bed, into which water poured. Then they closed, and volumes of water were sent hundreds of feet into the air.

TO EXPLOIT SIBERIA.

Berlin, Dec. 17.—The correspondent at St. Petersburg of the Cologne Gazette telegraphs that a number of experts representing big American firms have arrived at Vladivostock, en route for Siberia, where they will build factories and exploit the agricultural and mineral wealth of the country.

QUEEN ATTENDS A BALL.

Stockholm, Dec. 17.—Queen Sophia attended a Royal ball at Christiania last night.

St. John, Nfld., Dec. 17.—On returning here from Cape Spear, Signor Marconi was served with a notice that the Anglo American Telegraph Company possesses an exclusive monopoly of the telegraph business in Newfoundland and dependencies, and demanding that he cease his experiments and remove his apparatus forthwith, else the company would apply to the Supreme Court for an injunction restraining him from further trials.

"I am aware," said Signor Marconi, "that my station here cannot be of service for commercial and other purposes while the Anglo American Telegraph Company's monopoly exists in this island, but their charter will expire in a little more than two years, and in the meantime it will take us some time to to arrange our plans and make the necessary preparations."

Marconi has not yet decided as to what course of action he will take in this matter, but he regards this action on the part of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company as the best proof of the importance of his new discovery.

Woman Killed by a Burglar

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 17.—Harriet P. Murphy, prominent in church and society circles, and Treasurer of the Kingsley House Fund, was murdered at her home, 6221 Howe street, east end, by a burglar, about 3 o'clock, this morning. The murderer made his escape and although the whole detective and police force of that section was called, the man has not been captured.

Miss Murphy was the only sister of Select Councilman John A. Murphy, from the 29th Ward, and was thirty years old. She, with her brother, and two servants, women, lived alone in the house, Miss Murphy sleeping on the second floor.

She was an expert with the revolver, having practised several years to protect herself from just such an attack as happened this morning, and she always had a pistol either under her pillow or within reach.

About three o'clock this morning her brother was awakened by two shots in the house, and hastening to his sister's room, found her lying dead on the floor with a bullet wound in the head. The burglar was a porch-climber. He scaled the porch posts and entered the window of Miss Murphy's room by breaking the glass. It is supposed that the noise of the crashing glass awakened her and as she jumped from the bed with her revolver in her hand the man fired. Marks in the snow on the porch roof indicate that only one man entered the room. Miss Murphy usually kept the collections for the Kingsley House Fund in her room until they reached a sum large enough to be placed in the bank, and it is thought the burglar was after this money.

CANADA BUSINESS COLLEGE

CHATHAM, ONT

has given you in the last two week's issues of this paper, testimonials from two out of four of its former pupils, whose combined earnings are $11,600 per annum—an average of $2900. We now give you a third, and a fourth will appear in next week's issue.

Here is the third:

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 2, 1901.

D. McLachlan, Esq.,
Chatham, Ont.

My Dear Mr. McLachlan,—In response to your inquiry I gladly add my testimony to the many you have received as to the merits of the Canada Business College.

When I decided to take a course in your institution in 1885, I did so because I considered it stood second to none in America, and I have pleasure in stating that the practical course of training I received has proved very beneficial to me.

I have been connected with The D. W. Karn Co. Piano and Organ Manufacturers of this town for eleven years, and during nine years of this time have held the best position in the office.

In conclusion I might say, I am receiving a salary more than four times as much as I received in 1885 when acting in the capacity of a school teacher.

I have no hesitation in recommending the C. B. C. to the favorable consideration of any young man or woman desirous of acquiring a thorough and practical business education.

Wishing you continued and abundant success, I remain,

Yours very truly,
E. C. THORNTON.

(Formerly a public school teacher in Durham County.)

Mr. Thornton is now office manager of the Karn Organ Co. of Woodstock, Ont. Had he continued at public school teaching he might possibly be earning $400 to $500 per annum to-day instead of the splendid salary he is now commanding.

If you cannot possibly come to Chatham, we can give you instruction BY MAIL, at your home, in Book-keeping, Shorthand or Penmanship, through our Mail Course Department.

During the past year 304 of our pupils secured good positions. Their combined earnings are close to

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000)

THE MYSTERY UNSOLVED

Baby Found in Well Some Time Ago Thought to be James Dunleavy

The mystery surrounding the finding of a man's body in an unused well in Otonabee some time ago is still unsolved.

Many people think the dead man is James Dunleavy, an eccentric Scotchman, who for years has lived at different places in the township. For some months past he has not been seen and a photograph of his which has been shown to a number of farmers has to some extent been recognized as a good likeness of the dead man. The matter will not likely be cleared up for some time, as these strange people have a habit of turning up alive when everyone thinks they are dead.

THE UNITED STATES WILL ABSORB MEXICO

The Death of President Diaz will put an end to the Mexican Republic

American Government will Assume Control When the Crisis Comes

Washington, Dec. 18.—Henry Jameson, a civil engineer, formerly of this city, but now engaged in railroad work in Mexico, is here on a visit and expresses startling opinions as to the political future of that country.

Mr. Jameson declares that with the death of President Diaz, who is now practically dictator, a serious crisis will arise. The intense bitterness between the political parties that is now kept smouldering like a volcano before violent eruption by the powerful influence of Diaz will then break out with extreme violence.

Peace is not likely to be restored to the republic, in Mr. Jameson's opinion, until the United States interfere, and the inevitable result will be the absorption of that country by its powerful and friendly northern neighbor.

NEED RAILWAY TO CANAL.

Americans are now rushing into Mexico thick and fast, engaging in every line of business and investing large sums in promising enterprises. When the canal across the isthmus is dug, Mr. Jameson says, the United States will find reason to desire control of Mexico. He believes the United States must have an all-rail route to the canal, to reach which it must go through Mexico, and it must control the railroad. At the rate that immigration is pouring in from the United States and capital is being invested it will only be a question of time, he declares, when the country will be controlled by Americans, and the construction of the pan-American canal would hasten the event.

FEAR AMERICAN AGGRESSION

City of Mexico, Dec. 18.—La Patria, a liberal newspaper of this city, warns the Mexicans that they may not hope to look to Europe for help against the North American aggression so much talked of by the clerical papers.

El Tiempo, a clerical organ, after waiting several days, emits its opinion on President Roosevelt's message, which, it says, is characterized by an arrogant and vainglorious tone. Roosevelt is a politician given to talk, whereas McKinley worked more than he talked. McKinley was more to be feared as a statesman and politician.

El Correo Espanola, an organ of the resident Spanish colony, praises Roosevelt's message as being "well written and full of altruism, optimism and ambrosia, but for all his fine sentiments there is Cuba in servitude to the United States by reason of the Platt law embodied in her new constitution. It is a badge of yankee servitude."

El Popular, a penny daily, praises General Diaz' doctrine as a complement to the Monroe doctrine rather than its interpretation.

KRUGER'S DELUSIONS.

The Old Man Still Scheming to Prevent Absorption of Republics.

London, Dec. 19.—If the statement made by the Daily Mail be correct, that Mr. Kruger is still scheming to prevent the absorption of the two republics by the British Empire, the ex-President of the Transvaal must be either a very fatuous or a very obstinate person. The temper of the people of the United Kingdom has been manifested recently on several occasions in such a manner that no one of ordinary intelligence could fail to understand public sentiment on the situation in South Africa. Notwithstanding the prolongation of the War beyond common anticipation in regard to it; notwithstanding the enormous cost already incurred and the expectation that the taxpayers will again be called upon to increase their burden, there is only one view expressed, whether it be in London or Liverpool, in Birmingham or Cardiff, in Glasgow or Edinburgh—the War must go on till the last opponent of British rule has disappeared from the field. In the interests of South Africa itself and of its people, whether white or black, Dutch or British, nothing less than this will be accepted by the British Government and nation.

HEAVIEST IN FIFTY YEARS

Recent Storm in Scotland and England Made Roads Impassible

London, Dec. 18.—The fall of snow in Scotland is heavier than at any time in fifty years. Several gamekeepers and shepherds are missing, and the destruction of sheep in the snow drifts, which range from 10 to 20 feet deep, is unprecedented. The roads are impassable.

Parts of England are suffering almost equally from the heavy fall of snow. A train which was snowed up near Hartington on Thursday was released only yesterday morning.

The frost is so severe that outside work has been suspended at many points.

The storm appears to be pretty general all over Europe. There has been a violent snowstorm at Rome. Several of the bridges over the River Tiber have been swept away.

Numbers of wrecks have been reported from the Mediterranean.

APSLEY.

—The principal topic in Apsley at present is the coming fowl supper and concert to be held in the village Christmas night, by the Methodists of this locality. The members of the choir are practising nearly every evening, some from a distance are expected to take part in the programe. The committee of management expect a large crowd, and if the sleighing continues good no doubt their expectations will be realized.

—Our blacksmith has been doing a rushing business the past few weeks in horseshoeing, but Jim can keep up.

—Our genial post master was down to town lately, and while there had a ride on the goat. It must have been rough riding, as he came home minus several teeth.

—There has been several accidents in the lumber camps, Andy Wilson had his foot crushed by a log, but expects to be able to go back to camp soon. Harry Hales cut his foot and is home for repairs.

—Ernest Lean is also laid up with a very sore leg, and it may keep him confined to bed for some weeks yet.

—The Apsley merchants are getting in their Christmas goods. They still have to get everything up by teams, as something went wrong with the N & A. R. R.

—Eels river has been unusually low this fall, and our grist and saw mill could not get in full time, but since the heavy thaw and rain on the 13th and 14th, it will be running full time now, as Sandy has several contracts on hand, besides a large amount of custom work.

—The Gun Club, after several meetings, got the history of their fall hunt written out in full, and each member received a copy from the President, Josephus Ananias, with strict injunctions to tell only what was therein written so that their stories would not be radicting one another and bringing discredit on the Club.

—There are a number of our Apsley young ladies who hope to wear orange blossoms in the near future. Having heard about that wonderful orange tree in Lakefield, would like to get some of the blossoms, if it is not too old to bloom. They prefer the blossoms to Oranges.

—Though we are not to say slow people up here yet when the mail is distributed Monday nights, you will see nearly everyone "behind The Times," looking for the latest local and foreign news. Be sure and send the Drs. Daily Regular; if it fails to come on time—well you know the Dr.

Catarrh is a Germ Disease

Science, armed with the microscope, has established it a fact, and this conclusion renders absolute the practice of treating Asthma, Catarrh and Bronchitis by stomach drugging, sprays, snuffs, &c. Such treatment are an utter failure because they cannot penetrate the delicate air cells of the lungs, or permeate the air passages of the nose and bronchial tubes where germs of Catarrh have their stronghold. Catarrhozone is the only certain remedy. It is inhaled by the mouth and after spreading through all the respiratory organs is exhaled through the nostrils. Catarrhozone kills the germs, heals the inflamed tissues, clears the head and throat in two minutes, and cures in a few hours. Nothing is so effective, pleasant and simple as Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment $1.00. Small size, 25c. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

OUR BOYS AT HALIFAX

A Letter From Jack Dundas Written from Halifax

The following letter was received yesterday from John Dundas, one of Peterborough's boys now in Halifax, who are waiting to leave for South Africa.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 15.

We have arrived here safe and sound, and had a good trip. We landed in Halifax at 4.30 o'clock on Saturday evening and are quartered in the exhibition buildings. It puts me in mind of our Toronto trip, only the food is ever so much better. We have breakfast at 5.30, dinner at 11.30 and tea at six o'clock. We also have a first-class corp., Major Brown, although I think he is to be made a sergeant of our troop. There is a bunch of us, and where one goes the rest always go. This is Sunday afternoon, and we are all writing to our friends. I have been down town this morning with Corp. Dick Rye, of the regulars.

Well, I have passed through a few towns since I left home, and I think Peterborough is the cleanest town I have seen. This is one of the worst places I have been in. We have got about 300 of our horses here. They came in this morning, but none of us Peterborough boys had to go to bring them up. They are a fine class of horses; all of them branded. We get our uniforms issued to us on Tuesday. Dick is as happy as can be. We both went on a horse this morning and he tried to throw me, but was not quick enough for that. Tell the Sergt.-Major I wish he was going out with us. Dick and I are the only Battery boys that are out here, but we mean to bring no disgrace on our old battery. I hope you have a good camp this year. We have to pay 5c. a plug for five-cent chewing tobacco, or 2 plugs of ten-cent tobacco for a quarter. I wish I had brought some with me. I also heartily thank you for the pipe, and will try and bring it back with me. Remember me to Mr. Ackerman and all the boys. As I have no more to write at present, I will say good-bye, hoping to hear from you soon. We do not sail till the 19th of January. I remain,

Yours truly,
J. R. DUNDAS.

You are Tired.

Your color is not good. Restless one moment, fretful and blue the next. The world's out of joint. You're out of joint with the world. Not temper, not feeling, but weakness. Neglect is unwise. You grow steadily worse. Get good rich blood, then feel new vigor, strength, buoyancy. You'll see a dozen things to do; you will do them too, if you use Ferrozone. It sharpens the appetite, and you enjoy your food; you get color, and old time strength comes back. That's because Ferrozone aids digestion, makes red blood. Ferrozone is strength for the nerves and vigor for the brain. Be sure of the name, Ferrozone. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

HASTINGS.

—Mr. Geo. Hill returned home last week from New Ontario where he has spent the summer.

—Miss L. Holdcroft of Tweed visited Miss B. Cleary during the past week.

—Miss M. Callahan of Wobler visited at the home of Mrs. J. Coughlan during the past week.

—Mr. J. Frappy of Norwood was in town on Monday.

—A large number of Norwood's young people drove down to the concert in the town hall on Monday evening.

—The concert on Monday evening under the auspices of the Norwood Model students was a decided success. The hall was well filled and all enjoyed the drama—The Merchant of Venice. The different parts were very ably taken, especially that of Shylock and Portia. The Hastings brass band furnished music for the occasion. Between acts Miss M. Kenneally gave a recitation entitled "Alsace," which was loudly applauded, and Mr. T. Howson also gave a recitation entitled "The Horse Race." These two people show great talent as elocutionists and the people of Hastings would like to hear them again. Should this company decide to visit any of the neighboring towns there is little doubt but that they will be well received, as their concert is a rare treat.

—What about the open air rink? Are the committee forgetting about their appointment? Wake up!

ACTIVITY IN NAVY CIRCLES IN RUSSIA

Sebastopol Works Being Enlarged and a Strong Fleet Assembled

PRIVATE QUAY SPACE TAKEN

The Russian is Still Keeping His Eye on the Gate of Constantinople

London, Dec. 18.—The Times' Odessa despatch quotes a correspondent, at Sebastapol who describes naval activity of every description at that port. He says private quay spaces are gradually being absorbed for the purpose of navy extension. A Russian naval officer recently declared that if Sebastopol had to play an active role, it would be in a position to give a better account of itself than 50 years ago. This sort of allusion is frequent in Russia, says The Times' correspondent and, coupled with the extraordinary efforts to increase the Black Sea fleet it is not without significance, especially in view of the tenacity of Russian naval men in clinging to a dream of one day reaching the gates of Constantinople.

NORTH AND SOUTH BURLEIGH.

Some one has said, "A good book is as a vine full of luscious grapes; a table loaded with tempting fruit; a garden redolent with fragrant flowers; an armory full of weapons; a rainbow full of promise." Mr. W. P. Payne, of Hall's Glenn, Dummer, has evidently recognized the truth of the statement. Being one who "loves his fellowmen," he has been instrumental in securing handsome libraries for the Sunday schools of South Burleigh and McIlmoyle appointments of the Apsley Methodist missions. Books have before been presented to some of our Sunday schools; and, although they were a little out-of-date, were thankfully received. These libraries, consisting of 160 books are not second hand, but are new books, good bindings, selected from the latest catalogue of the Methodist Book Room, Toronto.

We desire as Sunday school workers to express our sincere thanks to Mr. Payne for his very helpful and very acceptable Xmas-box.

Mr. Payne also deserves credit for his very liberal cash contributions to the poor in the northern part of this county.

KRITZINGER NOW IN BBRITISH HANDS

Was Captured by General French at Hanover Road, Cape Colony

THE GOVERNMENT CONFIDENT

Vigilance Committee Passes Resolution Condemning the Liberal Leader's Statement

London, Dec. 18.—The War Office has received from Lord Kitchener a despatch dated Belfast, on the Delagoa Bay Railroad Line, announcing that Commandant Kritzinger, the Boer commandant who has so energetically and successfully conducted operations in Cape Colony, has been captured by General French, after an attempt to break through the blockhouse cordon at Hanover Road. Prominent military men say that this is a big step towards ending the guerilla warfare in South Africa.

Small parties of Boers have been captured in the Eastern Transvaal and the Orange River Colony. General Kitchener's weekly report shows 31 Boers killed, 7 wounded, 372 prisoners and 48 surrenders. He details the position of the British columns, adding that the week's progress has been very satisfactory.

THE BEST SECURITY.

Cape Town, Dec. 18.—The Vigilance Committee recently held a meeting presided over by the Premier of Cape Colony, at which a resolution was passed condemning the attitude of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman on the and holding that the retention of Lord Milner and Mr. Chamberlain in their positions affords the best security for a settlement of the South African question that will be permanent, just and consistent with the honor of the Empire.

A PLAGUE OF LOCUSTS.

Bloemfontein, Dec. 18.—The mail train was delayed five hours last Saturday by an enormous swarm of locusts. Some farms in the neighborhood of this city were covered ankle deep with the pests. The damage to market products is great.

EUROPEAN OPINIONS.

Brussels, Dec. 18.—Ascertaining that the feeling of Deputies was adverse to his motion to the effect that the Chamber hoped Great Britain would take measures to reduce the mortality in the camps, M. Van Der Velde modified it so that it stated the Chamber hoped the measures Great Britain had taken would prove more efficacious. This was rejected as a reflection on the British nation.

WAR MAY END SOON.

London, Dec. 18.—A Daily News despatch from Heidelberg, Transvaal, says that the feeling there is that the war will be over in two months. This is taken to indicate that the meeting of the Boer leaders to discuss the situation, which was called for December 15, has been adjourned for a week, when a final decision will be reached.

MAJOR WOODSIDE GETS COMMISSION

He will Serve in Africa With the 2nd Mounted Rifles

THE LIST IS NOW COMPLETE

No Use Sending in the Recommendations Which are Pouring in from all Quarters

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 18.—It was definitely ascertained this morning that Major Woodside is to have a commission in the second Mounted Rifles, for South Africa. The Minister still awaits word from the War Office before the list of commissions can be made public. The Minister is receiving telegrams and letters daily from all parts of the country recommending persons for commissions in the regiment. It may save trouble to make it known that it is not use sending in recommendations as the list is complete, and there is nothing more to be done. The C.P.R. train coming east with the additional men for the regiment is to start from Vancouver on the 26th, picking up all detachments on the way.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Madrid, Dec. 18.—Capt. Diaz Moren, who commanded the Colon at the battle of Santiago, says that Admiral Sampson could take no active part in the fight because his ship was 12 miles to the west of Santiago harbor when the Spanish squadron appeared, while Admiral Schley, with the Brooklyn flying his pennant, and the Iowa, were close to the mouth of the harbor. "Both warships," says Captain Moren, "fought the Maria Teresa, which seven minutes afterward was on fire. My ship, the Colon, appeared then, firing her larboard artillery against the Iowa, which not moving quickly enough would have been sunk by the Colon, had not the Brooklyn fought an hour and a half with the Colon. Evidently the credit of the first part of the battle, during which the Maria Teresa and the Viscaya were placed hors de combat, belongs to Schley, as well as the second part, during which the Colon fought alone against the Brooklyn, the Iowa and the Oregon. She was finally vanquished by the superior artillery of the Iowa and the speed of the Oregon. I think Admiral Dewey's praise to Schley is just. It does not diminish Admiral Sampson's glory, to whom, as superior commander, was due the positions the ships held in the first time of blockade and without whose instructions, the result might be seen in another light."

TOBACCO WAR IN GERMANY.

Berlin, Dec. 18.—The Kleines Journal says President Duke of the American PTobacco Company, has acquired the Jasmatzi Cigarette Company, of Dresden, and also Kyriasi Brothers, of Berlin. Two other Dresden concerns, La Farmes and Sulima, will be amalgamated, and will then be absorbed by The American Tobacco Company. Mr. Duke, who has been spending several days in Berlin, has gone to St. Petersburg for the purpose of buying cigarette factories.

WOMAN FOUGHT WITH REBELS.

Colon, Colombia, Dec. 18.—A woman, Colonel Senora Ramona Mendoza, fought bravely with the insurgent forces in the conflicts between the Colombian Government and rebel troops at Nombre De Dois last week. Her husband and brother were killed just Thursday. When the Government troops defeated the insurgents in the trenches on Friday Senora Mendoza escaped to San Blas in a small boat with Indians. Senora Mendoza has been an intrepid fighter during the last two insurrections on the isthmus. She displayed gallantry in the recent battle at Buena Vista.

RESCUED BY THE LIFEBOAT.

Paris, Dec. 18.—Additional despatches received here from Marseilles announce that 40 of the members of the crew of 62 men belonging to the French steamer Kleber, ashore east of the mouth of the river Rhone, have been rescued through the use of life boats. The captain and the other officers of the Kleber have refused to leave the vessel.

BLIZZARD IN GREAT BRITAIN.

London, Dec. 18.—A snow blizzard is raging to-day over practically the whole of Scotland and parts of England and Wales. The roads and railroads are blocked. Many country districts are isolated and in others work has been suspended on account of the weather. There have been several deaths from exposure, and numbers of minor shipwrecks have been reported.

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 18.—Judge MacTavish this morning sentenced the two notorious American burglars who blew open the safes at the departmental stores of Bryson, Graham & Co. James Martin, the one who filed the bars of his cell and got out but was caught before he escaped, was sentenced to eight years, and Charles Smith to seven. Martin is supposed to be the famous Kid McManus, and one previous conviction has been traced against him in the States, and five also in the States against Smith.

THE RIGHT KIND.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Four men are now making their way on foot 400 miles over a winter trail from Dawson City in order to make a further trip of 4,000 miles at their own expense to Halifax that they may enlist in the Canadian Mounted rifles to fight for their King in South Africa. No matter what counsels prevail in the Dominion cabinet, so long as that spirit animates the breasts of Canadians this country is emphatically all right.

Cape Town, Dec. 18.—The Reverend David Wilcocks, Dutch Minister, at Mafeking, has been sent to gaol for twelve months for preaching treason. David admitted praying for General Cronje but argued that it is our duty to pray for our enemies. In future David would do well to stick to the liturgy and not pray for Boer victories. During the next twelve months he might couple Cronje with himself as one of "those who have erred and are deceived."

The Concentration Camps

London, Dec. 18.—The death rate in the concentration camps in South Africa seems high, but no more so than the the condition of large bodies of women and children living under canvas, and with not the first rudimentary idea of importance of sanitary laws, would warrant. But, after all, those primarily responsible for the condition of affairs in the concentration camps are the irreconcilables in the field who persist in continuing guerilla operations when all chance of success is at an end, who forced the British to form the concentration camps because they insisted on making the farms and villages the headquarters for their bandit operations. It is up to Herr Boer to chuck the job and come in to look after the missus and the kids whom the British government has been housing, nursing and feeding for over a year while their natural providers were out killing T. Atkins.

INVASION OF ENGLAND AGAIN BEING DISCUSSED

But the Mistress of the Seas Not a Bit Disturbed in Consequence

THE AFRICAN WAR A SORE DISAPPOINTMENT

The Germans Appear to Take England's Triumph in South Africa the Worst, Although France is Spiteful

London, Dec. 19.—The German and French press are again discussing the subject of invasion of England. A year or so since, a French army officer of high rank made himself supremely ridiculous by a public statement that the army of France could easily and successfully invade England. His utterances were regarded as being typical of the frothy, effervescent character of the French people and dismissed at once from serious consideration. Latterly, the fondness for boastful, warlike talk has manifested itself in staid and phlegmatic Germany to an extent that is somewhat surprising. Not long ago a German naval officer indulged in some rather belligerent expressions with reference to the United States, and later on Baron von Edelsheim, an officer on the general staff of the German army, has published a statement in which he argues very earnestly that Germany could invade England with a fair prospect of success.

Why the representatives of these two great military powers should find so much pleasure in discussing the possibility of invading England is not very clear, but it may fairly be taken as an indication of Continental dislike of Britain over the Boer war. Whatever the motive which inspires these utterances we may be very sure that no great Power of Europe will readily court the opportunity for such an invasion, or attempt it unless it can be done under exceptionally favorable circumstances. That a successful invasion of England may be possible no one can have the hardihood to deny. That it would be a work of great difficulty and fraught with infinite hazard to the would-be invader is equally beyond dispute. The first Napoleon always believed that England could be invaded and conquered, and it is well known that he had such an undertaking in contemplation But he fully realized that the task would be a most arduous one, involving many chances of dismal failure, and he never tried it.

In fairly considering such a problem, every element entering into it must be carefully weighed. In the first place Britain's enormous naval superiority is at all times to be reckoned with, and it is noteworthy that those who argue the feasibility of the invasion build their hopes very largely upon the invading country being able suddenly to concentrate its entire naval force for the purpose, while the British fleets are scattered all over the world. Such a condition is hardly supposable. No attempted invasion of England will ever take place without something equivalent to a declaration of war, and the complications leading up to this condition would be notice to England to concentrate her forces. If Germany could quietly mass her entire navy at Kiel, together with an ample army and transports to carry it, and then suddenly, without a word of warning precipitate the whole force upon the coast of England, it is highly probable that the movement would succeed. But we can not deal with the question upon any such basis as that. We must consider what would probably take place in a war, of which both parties had due notice, and for which both had been preparing.

A war having been begun we cannot imagine the world's greatest naval power remaining wholly on the defensive, allowing an enemy to concentrate his force and attack where he pleased. Whatever weakness England may have manifested in her land operations, she has never shown any at sea, and in the event of a war with Germany it is not at all unlikely that the British fleet would at once take the offensive with a good fair chance of a large part of the German navy being destroyed or crippled before it could leave its home waters. To be sure the British fleet might suffer disaster, for the fortunes of war are very uncertain, but we have no right in considering such a question to indulge every presumption against the stronger navy and in favor of the weaker one.

The naval superiority of Great Britain being conceded, it follows almost of necessity that if a landing should be effected on British soil, the invading army would have to be ample for the work of conquest, because it would be well-nigh impossible for it either to obtain reinforcements, or make a safe retreat. Besides all this, it should be borne in mind that it is far easier as a rule to defend a country than it is to invade one. Even raw levies will frequently fight valiantly and effectively in defensive operations at home, although they would be worthless in an aggressive campaign. To the invaders a drawn battle would be almost equivalent to a defeat, while to the defending army it would give the prestige and some of the advantages of victory.

There are entirely too many uncertainties involved in war to justify any one in speaking with much assertive assurance as to what could be done in the way of a successful invasion of England. Of course, it is theoretically possible, but we may be certain that it will never be undertaken unless the chance of succeeding amounts to something more than a bare possibility. There would also be a possibility of the fleet and army designed for the invasion being encountered at sea, or before the landing had been effected, and the whole force either captured or destroyed. But while all these things are true, it is equally so that England in her military organization and equipment is comparatively weak, and if she expects to maintain her position as a great world power she must have an army that is not only altogether adequate for home defence, but capable of making a good showing abroad.

Massacre in Manila Feared by Chaffee

Pekin, Dec. 18.—A private letter received here from an American general at Manila, whose position gives his statements the highest authority, says that secret service reports from all the provinces of Luzon show a remarkable and widespread revival of the spirit of rebellion there.

This letter says the American army expects a general outbreak throughout Luzon and is taking vigorous measures to suppress it.

Manila is the center of discontent.

Gen. Chaffee has frequent parades of the garrison through the city's streets to display American strength, fearing an attempt at a general massacre of Americans.

Arrangements have been made to concentrate American women and children in the public buildings on short notice.

ALL THE PARTICULARS

How a Peterboro' Citizen Was Caught by His Angry Wife

"Nine o'clock, and in this condition!"

Mrs. Jones, (the Times will call her Jones, because this is not her name), was justly indignant and her husband hastened to make the usual clean breast of it:

"Detained by arg'm'nt," he explained, mournfully. "Partne. said Gen'l Buller's meshage to Shir Geor' White was shitchscopped, 'scuse me, I mean spashcropped. Beg pardon, m'dear. Did I say skachpropped? 'Scuse me!" He was yearning to be polite to her.

"You perhaps refer to the spatchcocked or spatchcrooked message which lately figured in the London despatches," she interrupted. "And you are so full of liquor that you cannot say it!"

"Thanksh. Zash jes' what I said. Cashspotched!"

"Spatchcocked or spatchcrooked!" she snapped.

Z "ash it. Spachsprocked. I said it—spookscotched meshage. Didn't I try to tell him; Satchspooked. Hooray! Knew I wash right—trouble wish partner he's sho mixed! He don't know whether meshage was cooksprotched or—"

"You are tipsy!" she broke in angrily. You cannot even say spatchsprocked. I mean skatchspooked. I mean—

"Thanksh!" he gurgled, happily "Scashokrooched I knew it."

"I did not say it!"

"Yesh you did—you said it yourself. Skashokrotched."

"None! I said slashmatched. I mean sktashshacked. Oh! You unfeeling brute!"

And she fled leaving him to make the matter clear to the satisfaction of the cook who came to help him into the house.

Lord Strathcona's Secretary

London, Dec. 18.—Mr. Alfred Black, private secretary to Lord Strathcona, expired suddenly to-day.

A DECEMBER WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss Mabel Eleanor Wills and Mr E. A. Pratley

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Henry Wills, No. 161 Park street, on Tuesday evening, when his second youngest daughter, Mabel Eleanor, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Albert E. Pratley, of Lawrence, Mass., youngest son of Mr. Geo. Pratley, of town.

Rev. W. L. Armitage of All Saints' Church performed the ceremony.

The bride was very becomingly attired in a gown of white organdie trimmed with white Valenciennes lace and insertion. She wore a veil of white netted silk, entwined with flowers and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Ethel Wills, was attired in a simple gown of white organdie, trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. G. G. Pratley, of town. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner, after which the newly married couple left for their future home in Lawrence, Mass.

Among the many gifts to the bride was a gold brooch presented by the groom and a handsome gold watch and cheque from the father of the bride. The bridesmaid received a gold ring from the groom and Miss Mabel Gilbert a gold stick pin.

The newly married couple left for their future home with the best wishes of their hosts of friends, with which the Times heartily joins.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 19, 1901

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

VERY unhappy maiden was Constance Lester. Perhaps, among the thousands of miserables, who awaited the Christmas tide in the great city, there were many more hopeless and wretched, but surely none more discontented and unhappy. And her grief was the greater because it was of a secret nature that she could confide to nobody. Alone she must meet her fate—alone decide a question that, however she might cast her verdict, seemed fraught with utter misery to herself and others.

Constance Lester was one of those sweet and loving natures that seek happiness only in the happiness of others. Selfishness was utterly foreign to her. She had been born and reared in the lap of comfort and ease. Her father had been a well-to-do merchant in a suburban town, a busy, big-hearted man, who had taken pains to surround his family, which consisted only of his wife and daughter, with every luxury that his purse could provide. His death, which occurred suddenly from a carriage accident, had left his family in apparent comfort, but within a year the firm of which he had been a member failed, and the failure swallowed up not only the portion of the widow and orphan, but eventually deprived them of the comfortable home that had been a very ark of refuge in their troubles.

The blow was a sad one to Mrs. Lester. She was a semi-invalid, and years of suffering had worn her nature into that form of shrinking and half querulous selfishness that is contented with nothing but absolute protection from the chances of life. It almost killed her to give up her home, but there was no alternative. Constance had met the crisis with true heroism. A chance was opened for her to secure employment in the city in a business house that had formerly dealt largely with her father's firm, and the head of which had felt honored by his personal friendship. So the brave girl soon had her ailing mother established in a comfortable flat, while she spent certain hours each day over a big ledger in the famous wholesale house of Day & Co.

All might have been well had not Constance been as pretty as she was sweet of character, and had she not had a secret. Ah, that secret! Before she had left Westhridge, their country home, she had become engaged to a young lawyer, one Harold Cowen, who, while not quite a "briefless barrister," had yet his fortune and fame to make. She had not confided this secret to her mother, as it would only have added to her troubles. She and Harold had known each other long; he had been a true friend and legal adviser in her time of trouble; friendship and mutual sympathy had ripened into love, and they had parted with the most sacred of all earthly pledges between them. Each believed that they had years to wait; and was resolved to wait patiently the fruition of their hopes.

I.

"Why not, Constance?"

"Oh, mother, you know I cannot."

"I do not see why," continued Mrs. Lester, in the selfishly insistant tone that had become almost a second part of her nature. "Oh, Constance, you can't realize how this dreadful city life is wearing me out. There is not an hour of the day that I do not sigh for the dear old home where we were so happy, and I know I shall die unless I go back. I merely dropped the mildest hint to Mr. Day, and he instantly was full of sympathy, and he promised that one of the first things he should do after you were his wife would be to buy back the old home and fit it up as a country residence. He would expect to live there most of each year, spending only the winter in town, and it would be such a happiness to pass my last years there. Now, what can you have against Mr. Day?"

In the Old Home.

"Nothing, mother, nothing; but it is impossible. He has been the kindest of benefactors, and I know I ought to be honored by his offer, but I cannot love him."

"Nonsense, my child. What do you know about love? Any good woman could learn to love Mr. Day. He is not so old—what is three and fifty nowadays? It is but vigorous manhood for a man who has devoted himself to business and disregarded the dissipations of life. I am sure he is noble, high-minded, generous to a fault and very rich, my dear. Why, any girl would consider it a chance among a thousand. Surely, Constance, you would not throw away such a chance to provide for yourself and me?"

Poor Constance! What could she reply? The attentions Mr. Day had shown her had not at first excited her suspicions. They were so delicate that she accepted them merely as a continuance of the kindness that seemed a part of his nature. But suddenly her eyes had been opened by an invitation to accompany him to the opera.

Retrospect.

It is an evil day for the wife and mother when she scans her worn face in the mirror, and asks the question, "Does it pay? Does it pay to sacrifice health and happiness to wedded love?" But there is another question which rightly takes precedence of Does it pay? It is this: "Is it necessary to sacrifice health and happiness to wedded love?" Half a million women answer, No! They have been weak and have been made strong by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. They were sick and "Favorite Prescription" made them well. It will do the same for almost every woman who gives it a fair and faithful trial. It stops weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It tranquilizes the nerves and encourages the appetite.

"I expected to become a mother, and a threatened mischance greatly weakened me," writes Mrs. E. A. Nations, of Witts Springs, Searcy Co., Ark., "and my old disease returned. My husband got another doctor for me but I seemed to just drag along and get no better. At last I told the doctor that if his medicine did not help me I would go back to Dr. Pierce's medicines. I did so, and by the time I had taken them one month I could do my own housework, except washing, and tended my garden too. I was stouter than I had ever been while waiting baby's coming since my first baby came (this one was the sixth child). She is now eleven months old and is a healthy child. As for me, I feel as young now as I did at eighteen years of age; am thirty now. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine to all suffering womankind."

EVERY BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.
The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:
Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.
After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

which she could find no excuse for declining. Then had followed an invitation to the Charity Ball, one of the most fashionable events of the great city's social life, and her mother's intercessions and fear of offending a benefactor had forced her to accept that also. And now had come the crisis. Mr. Day had visited her mother, and announced his wish to make Constance his wife, and to lay his fortune at her feet.

"Were it not for Harold?" she had murmured in her secret heart, when the astounding news was told her. She well realized the selfish common sense of her mother's view of the matter. Mr. Day was a brilliant and eligible match for a penniless girl of twenty, as the ways of society went. She honored and almost revered him, but how could she marry him? She caught at her mother's last words.

"You would not have me marry for money, mother?"

"Not for money, my dear; but for your poor, sick mother—and the old home!"

This was the condition of things that had induced Constance to write to her lover the most pitiful of all letters, and had blotted every ray of happiness out of her life. Harold Cowen had not answered her letter, but instead had sent a curt telegram: "Look out for Christmas present." This enigmatical message only added doubt and perplexity to her almost unbearable load of sorrow.

III

"Package, ma'am! Miss Constance Lester. No, ma'am, nothing to pay. All right!"

The blue cap, brass plate, and red face of Expressman Sharkey disappeared as quickly as they had appeared, for it was the day before Christmas, and there was not a busier or jollier agent of Santa Claus in the whole big city.

"What can it be, Constance?" asked Mrs. Lester, all alive with curiosity.

"I do not know, mother."

Constance's cheeks were pale. Her hands trembled. For a moment she felt that she would faint. She somehow knew that her fate was bound up in that mysterious package. At last she summoned all her strength, and cut the strings. Inside the wrappings was a plain white pasteboard box, oblong in shape. This she opened, and drew from it a paper folded, subscribed and sealed in legal form. She opened it, studied it a few moments in a dazed way, and then the hot blood mantled to her cheeks and forehead.

"Why, mother," she cried, "this is a deed for the old home, made out in my name. And here is a note from Mr. Cowen pinned to it, saying: 'The deed is all right. The old home is yours again. I will call on you Christmas and explain.'"

"I knew it," was Mrs. Lester's surprising ejaculation. "Oh, Constance, he has discovered the truth—Mr. Cowen has found the fraud. I knew your father was never a bankrupt. It was all a conspiracy. And that young lawyer has been too sharp for them. Oh, thank the Lord for all his goodness!"

IV

"The fact of the matter is," said Harold Cowen the next day, in the explanation that necessarily preceded the Christmas dinner in the little flat, at which he was a most welcome guest, "I suspected from the first your mother was right in thinking there was a fraud. Mr. Lester was not a man to put up the inheritance of his wife and child as a security for business deals. But he might have kept his private papers in the company's safe at his office. This, in fact, he did do. Now, I got evidence to make it pretty clear that the issuing of stock in the store business in your father's name, with the deeds and other securities as collateral, was really an outright piece of fraud. When I made this clear to the reorganized firm, we had a pretty hot time. They denied everything, and swore they would fight it through every court in the State. But when I began to talk of the Grand Jury, they grew more reasonable. Really, it might have been a long and doubtful contest. There were rather too big men—honorable careers, church members, and all that—to be dragged through a grand jury inquest. When they proposed to settle by restoring every dollar they had wrongfully taken, I thought it better than years of legal fight, which, indeed, I did not have the means to make. The deed of the old home was in your name, Constance."

"I knew it, and it was with my consent, of course," said Mrs. Lester.

"And now, mother, what is to be Mr. Cowen's reward?" asked Constance, suddenly.

"Reward?" faintly queried the widow.

"Yes; I promised him a year ago that I would marry him when the old home was once more my own. You know lawyer's fees must be paid. Don't you think he has earned his reward, and a Christmas dinner?"

"Really, Constance," faltered the mother, "you were in love, then?"

"Yes, mother."

"And you thought of me and the old home?"

"Yes, mother; you and the old home were part of the bargain. I really think the promise must be kept. I would be sorry for Mr. Day, did I not know he can easily get a better and more suitable wife."

"Poor Mr. Day!" murmured the widow.

But there was no cloud on the Christmas dinner in the little flat.—Julia Kent.

D. McLachlan, Esq.,
Chatham, Ont.

My Dear Mr. McLachlan,—In response to your inquiry I gladly add my testimony to the many you have received as to the merits of the Canada Business College.

When I decided to take a course in your institution in 1888, I did so because I considered it stood second to none in America, and I have pleasure in stating that the practical course of training I received has proved very beneficial to me.

I have been connected with The D. W. Karn Co. Piano and Organ Manufacturers of this town for eleven years, and during nine years of this time have held the best position in the office.

In conclusion I might say I am receiving a salary more than four times as much as I received in 1888 when acting in the capacity of a school teacher.

I have no hesitation in recommending the C. B. C. to the favorable consideration of any young man or woman desirous of acquiring a thorough and practical businedd education.

Wishing you continued and abundant success, I remain,

Yours very truly,
E. C. THORNTON.

(Formerly a public school teacher in Durham County.)

Mr. Thornton is now office manager of the Karn Organ Co. of Woodstock, Ont. Had he continued at public school teaching he might possibly be earning $400 to $500 per annum to-day instead of the splendid salary he is now commanding.

If you cannot possibly come to Chatham, we can give you instruction BY MAIL, at your home, in Book-keeping, Shorthand or Penmanship, through our Mail Course Department.

During the past year 304 of our pupils secured good positions. Their combined earnings are close to

PROSPECTUS

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.

Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.

F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of 500,000 shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is a 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.50 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hermosa White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page 253).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 1876, and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from 200 to 700 feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $12,000,000, and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North American and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $1.75 to $4.50 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. 2000 acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reserve that the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale 500,000 shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a 500 barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

The manager of a firm which does the largest advertising in a near-by city, depends almost exclusively on newspaper publicity. He says: "We prefer, by all odds, the morning to the evening newspaper. The morning newspaper lives three or four times as long—in fact, all day, and very often a man takes his copy home for evening reading."

The concert given in the Charlotte street Methodist church on Tuesday night, under the auspices of the League and Orchestra, was a grand success.

The orchestral selections were admirably rendered. The program consisted of vocal and instrumental music, readings, recitations, and a very humorous lecture by Mr. Sornoliel, which kept the audience in a constant ripple of laughter.

The accompanists of the evening were Miss S. Campbell and Mrs. Hodgson.

Rev. D. O. Crossley fulfilled the duties of chairman.

Below we give a few of the leading places where holiday shoppers should go for their Xmas and New Year's presents: People who are looked for bargains, or for staple goods at fair prices can have their wants met in Peterborough now more completely than perhaps at any time in the town's history. Many of the merchants have stocked up more largely than before, and have run off their old stock early in the fall so are now ready to supply the newest and latest in their line at competing prices.

While this is the case some have still remnants of valuable stocks now offering at tempting prices so that the wants of all classes of buyers can readily be met.

FROST, THE JEWELLER.

Frost the enterprising jeweller is to the front with a well assorted stock of gold and silver watches, Diamond and wedding rings, Brooches, Bracelets, Pins, Studs and collar buttons, and a thousand other bewitching articles to tempt the lovers of things artistic and beautiful.

THE TIMES BOOKSTORE.

Here is displayed all the latest novelties in the way of fancy goods, &c. The stock of books is also large and varied. Call and inspect.

MISS DELANEY.

It is not easy to convert the world to the belief that 'nature unadorned is adorned the most' hence the human brain is ever active in devising ways and means of adorning and beautifying—if that were possible—the fairest of created beings, woman. None need be slaves to fashion, but there is a recognized propriety in dress and outward adornment which every lady is called upon to observe. And there are places in every town and city, where these habiliments especially may be found. Miss Delaney's depot for ladies fashionable novelties sustains its reputation for these goods, and possesses at this season unusual attractions.

SANDERSON'S JEWELLERY STORE

W. A. Sanderson's Jewellery Store is charmingly attractive, in addition to the usually large and varied stock of goods peculiar to his trade, he is displaying a host of rare and novel things carefully selected from the best manufacturers and specially adapted to the holiday season no discription that we could give would do amply justice to the display of high class fancy and ornamental marvels of beauty now offered to his patrons.

MRS. BYRNE.

Mrs. Byrne, Ladies' Hair Works has some special lines of interest to ladies. For many years this establishment has enjoyed the monopoly in this town for the manufacture of Switches, Waves, Bangs, Fronts, Wigs and all kinds of artificial hair goods, and theatrical make ups. They are also displaying a rich and varied assortment of fancy goods, ornaments, bric-a-brac, toys &c. &c. Those in quest of some pretty and useful present for their friends will here find a wide range of the curious and artistic to choose from. Their advertisement appears elsewhere in these columns.

JOHN J. HOWDEN.

We are pleased to refer our readers to John J. Howden's advertisement in another column calling the publics' attention to his fine stock of Xmas Beef, Lamb, Mutton, Veal, and Pork; Turkies, Geese, Ducks and Chickens. Although an old resident of this town and one whose business record places him in the front ranks for fair dealing, and strict attention to business, yet he recognizes the necessity, and rightly appreciates the value, of an ad in The Times to announce his Xmas specialties. We bespeak for him a large share of the public patronage for table necessaries and table luxuries for the Xmas and New Years season.

Kennedy's Meat Market presents unusual attractions for this season of the year. Purchasers of Xmas Beef will find here unlimited choice and of a quality unexcelled. Mr. Kennedy's long experience in business has made him an expert judge of cattle. He has personally selected and purchased a carload of the choicest Steers & Heifers from the best feeders in Ontario. His stock will be found most complete. Such a fine exhibition of prime meat was perhaps never seen before in Peterborough, and no finer beef will be offered in Canada than here this Christmas season.

CAREY'S SHOES.

Carey, "the shoe architect" thinks, and thinks rightly that you should leave your money in Peterborough. He also thinks a necessary adjunct to a happy christmas is to have warm feet and comfortably fitting shoes and being a professional shoe architect he claims a portion of the public patronage. His goods are hand made and satisfaction is guaranteed.

KINCAID'S TURKEYS

Turkeys and Geese now seem to take precedence of the old time roast beef for the Christmas dinner. They are immensely in evidence at any rate. The largest display of these fowl perhaps even seen in Peterborough is at John Kincaid's Hunter St next to Mick's. He has purchased about a thousand of them and is disposing of them fast. The first comers have the best choice.

DOUGHTY'S SLEIGHS.

John Doughty & Son at their warerooms on Water street display a large and elegant stock of cutters and sleighs. Their sale of these goods this season has already been far beyond their expectations. At their present rate of sales their stock will be exhausted long before the season is over.

HOLIDAY FLOWERS.

Mason, seed-man and Florist whose greenhouse is situated at the corner of Water and Brock streets is a paradise of beauty to the lovers of plants and flowers at this season of the year when all nature is wrapped in her winter garb it is refreshing to gaze upon the green foliage and sniff the sweet perfume of the hot house flowers when ever our own house plants refuse to respond to our patient care and coaxing efforts to put forth their bloom on these chilly winter days. No Christmas dinner table need lack the charm of floral decoration. A visit to Mason's greenhouse will accomplish this luxury at a small cost.

SMALLPOX

A Times reader has handed in the following:

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—Owing to the rapid spread of smallpox in the Province of Ontario, in the interest of humanity I ask you to publish the following, which has been successfully used in cases of scarlet fever and smallpox.

In the Toronto papers some weeks ago Dr. Bryce said we should prepare for smallpox this winter. In this connection I herewith append a receipt which has been used to my knowledge in hundreds of cases. It will prevent, though the pittings are filling. When the most scientific school of medicine—that of Paris—published this receipt as a panacea smallpox it passed unheeded. It is unfailing as fate and conquers in every instance. It is harmless to take by a well person. Here is the receipt as I have used it for smallpox when learned physicians said patient must die, it cured. Sulphate of zinc, one grain; Foxglove (digitalis), one grain; half teaspoonful of water. When thoroughly mixed add four ounces of water. A teaspoonful in a dose. For children smaller doses according to age. Either disease will disappear in 12 hours.

If countries would compel physicians to use this there would be no need for pest-houses. If you value advice and experience use this for terrible disease.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain,

READER.

HIS ELBOW CRUSHED

Mr. Bert Kindred Suffers a Painful Fracture

Mr. Bert Kindred, son of Wm. Kindred of the Temperance House, Hunter street, had the misfortune to fall from a scaffold at the new Cereal works yesterday afternoon and broke the bones of his arm and crushed his elbow.

The young man was removed to his home, where Drs. Carmichael and Boucher attended his injuries and reduced the fracture.

The arm was very painful and chloroform had to be administered to enable the patient to allow his arm to be properly attended to. Mr. Kindred was later removed to the Nicholls Hospital, where he is resting easily.

Dissolved Like Mist in Sunshine.

The old idea that oatmeal produced brain and muscle, is a false belief, and has dissolved like mist in sunlight. As a grain food, oatmeal has too much insoluble starch, is too heating for the blood and hampers digestion.

Malt Breakfast Food is fast superseding oatmeal and other starchy foods. It is free from starchy particles, it is delicious, it is appetizing and satisfying and always tolerated by the weakest stomach. It is the food for weak and strong. Ask your Grocer for it.

Fairyland

The local stores are now looking their prettiest, which befits the holiday season.

As the one presenting the greatest variety, in its own legitimate lines, China Hall stands pre-eminently first.

For twenty years this store has invited the public to view its Christmas display, and has received a generous share of patronage. The assortment of 1901 is more comprehensive than any of its forerunners, the stock including graceful ornaments, handsome dinner-sets, with their accompanying glasses, dainty china tea-sets, lamps, flower-pots, celery trays, salad bowls, pudding dishes, bread and butter plates, fancy cups and saucers in endless variety. In fact each article in this vast stock is suitable for a present, and a gift of china never offends, but always pleases its recipient.

China Hall in its present festive attire resembles a fairyland through which all are invited to wander, as the store will be kept open every evening until after Christmas.

Catarrhal Headaches.—The dull, wretched pain in the head just over the eyes is one of the surest signs that the seeds of catarrh have been sown, and it's your warning to administer the quickest and surest treatment to prevent the seating of this dreaded malady. Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder will stop all pain in ten minutes, and cure. 50 cents.—121.

ENGLAND AND RUSSIA COME CLOSER TOGETHER

The Anti-British Feeling in Germany May End Alliance

WHAT ENGLAND IS ABLE TO DO FOR RUSSIA

An Understanding with the Great Muscovite Power Would be a Serious Blow to the Rest of Europe

London, Dec. 19.—It is not surprising that the recent outbreak of Anglophobia in Germany should have caused a good many sensible Englishmen to consider the expediency of reversing their country's traditional policy toward Russia. The National Review, which is understood to speak for several influential members of the Salisbury Government, warmly advocates a cordial understanding between England and Russia, and to that end is willing to see large concessions made to the Czar and also to his French ally. The London Times in a leading article seems disposed to favor the same change of front, provided the concessions made to Russia do not include a naval station on the Persian Gulf. Such French papers as the Debats and the Matin receive the overture in a friendly spirit, and express the opinion that, under certain conditions, the suggested understanding would be entirely practicable. Naturally, the German newspapers are not pleased at the proposal, for it is obvious that England's adhesion to the Dual Alliance would upset the balance of power in Europe.

It need scarcely be pointed out how much Russia would have to gain from a combination with England, even though the latter power should persist in prohibiting the construction of a second Port Arthur on the Persian Gulf. The Czar could only desire a fortified harbor on the seacoast of southern Persia for the sake of its strategic position on the flank of the Suez route to India. Such an acquisition would be useless to him from the moment he should have made up his mind definitely to forego an assault upon the Anglo-Indian Empire. On the other hand, England has it in her power to render him inestimable services in the Mediterranean and on the Pacific coast of Asia. Let her once withdraw her support from the Sultan, and nothing could prevent a Russian fleet from capturing Constantinople. The Turks would fight, no doubt, but the loss of their European capital would compel them to withdraw to Anatolia; and Russia planted on the Bosphorus, could proceed at leisure to absorb the rest of the Ottoman Empire. The Times, while firmly opposed to the creation of a Russian naval fortress on the Persian Gulf, has not a word to say against a realization of the design imputed to Peter the Great. Its reticence on this subject is due doubtless to a recognition of the fact that, since England became mistress of Egypt, her relation to the question of the Near East has been materially changed.

Of singular importance for Russia is it to secure England's good will with reference to Manchuria and Corea. Were the existence of a friendly understanding between the London and the St. Petersburg Governments made known, China would at once sign the convention by which Manchuria would be gradually converted into a Russian province and Japan would renounce in despair her present purpose of resisting Russia's acquirement of ascendancy in Corea, or even the construction of a Russian naval fortress on the southeastern end of the peninsula, which would assure the command of the direct route from Vladivostock to Port Arthur. Neither have the whole of the advantages that might accrue to Russia from England's friendship been summed up. M. De Witte is aware that, as a borrower, he has gone almost the length of his tether in France. It is as yet uncertain whether even the Czar's last visit has made it possible to float a new Russian loan in Paris. To the Russian Government, therefore, it is a matter of transcendent moment to gain access for its securities to the London market. Thus and thus only, could M. De Witte be perfectly sure of obtaining the funds needed to carry out the canals, railways and other public works that have been planned on a colossal scale.

Hardly less potent is the profit that France might derive from England's adhesion to the triple Alliance. As it is, the combined naval force of France and Russia is more than a match for that of Germany, Austria, and Italy. With the weight of England thrown into the French scale, the German navy would be reduced to impotence and German commerce would be annihilated. With England's countenance, moreover, France would find it relatively easy to pursue a policy of expansion in Syria, in Central Africa, in southwestern China and perhaps in Morocco, also. Above all, she would be relieved from the drain on her financial resources to which she has been subjected by her Russian ally.

As for England, it seems manifest that a friendly understanding with Russia and France would put an end to all her troubles. It would free her from apprehensions of attack in India or in any other part of the globe; would deliver her from the necessity of adopting even a modified form of conscription, and would leave her at liberty to acquire ascendancy in the vast basin of the Yangtse Kiang.

WEDDED IN WINNIPEG

A Well Known Peterborough Lady Becomes a Bride

A despatch from Winnipeg, says:—"Mr. Harry W. Whitla, one of Winnipeg's popular young men, and a member of the law firm of Macdonald, Haggart and Whitla, was married yesterday to Miss Ethel Burnham, of Morden. The bride is a grand-daughter of the late Wm. Cluxton, of town, and is well known here. Her many friends in town will extend their hearty congratulations.

Pain in the Joints

may be muscular or rheumatic. The joints are hard to get at, and it requires a powerful penetrating remedy to reach the affected parts. Polson's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. The pain is expelled as if by magic, for one drop of Nerviline equals in strength five drops of other remedies. You won't often call the doctor if Nerviline is in the house. Price 25 cents.

Canada May the Best

St. John, N. B., Dec. 19.—A gentleman who arrived in this city from South Africa the other day says he sees no reason why there should be any diminution in the Canadian hay trade with that country for the next three years at least. The Canadian hay, he says, is the best that goes there, and is fed only to the best horses. Consequently, as the British Government will be obliged to keep a large military force there for at least three or four years, and a mounted force is the best adapted for the purpose, the demand for the best hay cannot be decreased. The so-called hay, that goes to South Africa from New Zealand, it is said, is like straw, and is fed only to oxen and mules. It is really cut before it is ripe, and not what our horses want to eat. The hay from the Argentine is all from Alfalfa grass, which is something like clover, but a plant of the bean family, and Canadian or European horses are not accustomed to it. The same kind of hay comes from some of the Western States. The best timothy hay comes from Canada, however. They raise good timothy in Great Britain, but not enough of it to export, and they don't raise timothy in New Zealand or anywhere else, that makes as good hay as the Canadian, in quantities fit to export. Of course the Canadian hay varies somewhat in quality, but some of the cargoes loaded in South Africa by the steamers from St. John have been the best received there.

A BOBCAYGEON FOG

So Dense That It Knocks the London Variety Into a Corked Hat

A bunch of travellers were talking on various subjects at the Snowdon House the other day, when the subject of fogs came up. One of the knights of the grip, who hailed from London, tried to impress his hearers with the thickness of the fogs in the British metropolis. He told of how people, standing on a street corner in London, could not see the lighted lamp on the post beside them; how people after leaving their own doorstep, could not find their way back home until the fog had lifted, and a dozen other stories, all greatly embellished.

When he had finished, the genial proprietor, who had entered, and was quietly listening, removed his pipe and broke out as follows:

"Fogs may be pretty thick in that town, but they ain't half so bad as I've seen them out in Bobcaygeon. I remember once when I had a man shingling the upright part of my house, a fog rolled in from the east, fit to put a man's eyes out. My man didn't take much notice at first, but kept on nailing down shingles, and by and by it lighted up some, and what do you think he'd been doing? was half a mile away from the house, and the shingles were lying all the way back. That blamed fog was so thick that the fellow had been nailing shingles on it, and didn't know it. And that ain't the worst fog I've seen, either. One day Harv. Thompson and—"

Just then "All aboard," was called, and the intensely interested listeners reluctantly broke away.

Poor Girl Pity Her.

Growing! Yes, into weakness, but not strength. Studies—plenty of them. Tired of course she is, and weak too. Does not eat enough, and digests far less than enough. This condition is so frequent, but how seldom noticed even by fond parents. Give her Ferrozone, then watch her appetite improve, her cheeks and lips grow ruddy, her step elastic, her spirits bouyant. All this simply the result of eating and digesting enough, making blood, and thereby strengthening the nerve and brain power. Ferrozone gives a woman's strength to weak girls. Your daughter or wife needs Ferrozone. Get it to-day.

Firemen Killed at Hamilton

Hamilton, Dec. 19.—While going to a fire at Kerr & Coombs foundry premises in the west end of the city, shortly before seven o'clock this morning, the Bay street hose wagon collided with a street car at the corner of King and Bay streets. Fireman Theodore Smith, married, of 20 Stanley avenue, was almost instantly killed in the collision, and his life blood is sprinkled over the street. Foreman Robert Wilson and Fireman Robert Aitchison and Robert Cameron were also badly injured, Wilson's injuries being of a very serious nature. The street car was badly smashed and was thrown to the side of the street. Motorman, conductor, and passengers were uninjured.

PRO-BOER ORATOR MEETS REBUFF

Birmingham People Determined to Stand No Disloyal Nonsense

THEY STORMED THE PLATFORM

Lloyd George, the Pro-Boer, Compelled to Escape in Disguise—Police Charge the Rioters.

London, Dec. 19.—The people of Birmingham are determined to stand no disloyal pro-Boer nonsense so long as they can prevent it. Mr. Lloyd-George, who is the leader of the Welsh Radicals and one of the most able and enterprising pro-Boers in Parliament, invaded Birmingham last night and met with a very decided repulse in the stronghold of Chamberlainism. The scene that occurred at the Town Hall was unprecedented in the city since the Ashton Park riots. Despite stringent precautions, the majority of the audience were hostile to the speaker, and were enraged by his pro-Boer and anti-Chamberlain utterances. They rushed the police cordon guarding the platform. In the meanwhile the building was besieged from the outside by a mob of fifty thousand people, who smashed windows and tried to force the doors which had been barricaded. They fusiladed the audience with stones thrown through the windows. The police reserves were turned out and succeeded in dispersing the mob. persons were injured and the Town Hall was completely wrecked. Not a single window was left whole.

Mr. Lloyd-George, who had been taken into the care of the chief constable and several of the force escaped from the Town Hall in the disguise of a Sergeant of Police. This was about half-past 9, and when the news became known the crowds outside the hall, who had by some means, obtained a scaffold and pole, broke open one of the doors. Thereupon the police of whom about 400 or 500 were on the spot, drew their truncheons and charged the mob, scattering them in all directions. The scene was one of wild confusion. People were knocked down, and trampled upon, and eight had to be taken to a hospital, with more or less serious injuries, while one man was believed to have been killed.

THE BURGHERS NEAR KROONSTAD

Despatch Says That the Forces are Gathering Near That Point

AN OFFICIAL IS SENTENCED

Convicted of Converting Government Property to His Own Use—Johannesburg Real Estate Booming

Bloemfontein, Dec. 19.—It is rumored here that a number of Boers are concentrating at a point about fifty miles from Kroonstad, outside of the blockhouse line. Their outposts avoid the British patrols as much as possible.

A man lately in the Government employ, who has been convicted of disposing of horses and converting the funds to his own use, has been sentenced to six months imprisonment at hard labor. The columns which have been operating in the southern corner of the Orange River Colony for the last three weeks report that the Boers have been cleared out of that section of the country.

KRUGER GROWS CHILDISH.

London, Dec. 19.—It is said that a number of Transvaalers who recently visited former President Kruger, were surprised at the old gentleman's condition. He has become excessively childish, and has employed a secretary to write Scriptural texts.

A BRIGHT OUTLOOK.

Johannesburg, Dec. 19.—At a recent meeting of the Johannesburg Consolidated Gold Mines Company the chairman, Mr. Carl Hanau, said that the company intend to build a residential hotel of a palatial description. The great demand, even for private residences in Johannesburg already far exceeded the supply. When the population returned with the enormous influx that was expected, the demand would certainly increase. The company intend to import motors for tramway traffic for the convenience of residents.

Numerous are the remedies, but the one standing pre-eminently above all others is Catarrhozone. It cures these diseases because it is sure to reach them. Catarrhozone is inhaled into the lungs, throat and nasal passages, and bathes every part of the diseased membrane with its germ-killing, healing vapour. You simply breathe Catarrhozone and it cures. FRAZERVILLE.

—Miss R. Pue is home from town.

—Slaying seems to be the order of the day. More lives have been lost recently in our vicinity than are reported for South Africa. Fortunately these are chiefly of barnyard pedestrians.

—Though turkeys strut, their little span is brief.

—And the barnyard fowl keeps groaning.

—Mr. Cline had a meeting of the patrons of the cheese factory last week in the Hall. Somewhere in the neighborhood of ninety attended. Mr. Cline received warm praise. One went so far as to place him in the fore front of cheese makers. We think that "Taffy, not cheese." Eh?

—The public examination of Cairo school takes place Thursday of this week. The present teacher leaves at the end of the week. The teacher engaged for next year is a fair one. This is evidently a "Fair" change and we hope will prove to be an excellent move. Miss Fair, we understand, lives near Bailieboro.

The Catholic Bazaar

The annual charity bazaar held under the auspices of the Sisters of St. Joseph in aid of the hospital fund was largely attended in the opera house yesterday. The hall was very prettily decorated for the occasion, the ladies showing their usual good taste in this direction on every hand.

The booths were ranged on the four sides of the hall, and in the centre, and include those for confectionery, fancy goods and many small articles of an attractive nature.

At one end of the hall is a cosy corner where the men may have a quiet smoke when they wish to retire from the bustle of the outer room.

The tables in the dining room were nicely arranged, and the meals served at noon and in the evening do credit to those in charge of this department.

You are Tired.

Your color is not good. Restless one moment, fretful and blue the next. The world's out of joint. You're out of joint with the world. Not temper, not feeling, but weakness. Neglect is unwise. You grow steadily worse. Get good rich blood, then feel new vigor, strength, buoyancy. You'll see a dozen things to do; you will do them too, if you use Ferrozone. It sharpens the appetite, and you enjoy your food; you get color, and old time strength comes back

EMERALD ISLE AGAIN IN FERMENT

A Revival of the Historic Times of the Boycott is Threatened

WAR AGAINST THE LEAGUE

Large Numbers of Police in the Counties of Clare, Mayo, and Roscommon

London, Dec. 19.—There is every indication that the Government is determined to conduct a vigorous campaign against the United Irish League, and Mr. Redmond's speech at Cork is taken to mean that the league is prepared to defend itself. The situation in Ireland is very critical, and seemingly the struggle between law, representing the landlord, and the league, representing the tenant, which rendered the early eighties historic, is about to be re-enacted. Large numbers of mounted and unmounted police have been drafted into the Counties Clare, Mayo, and Roscommon.

At Castlebar, County Mayo, yesterday Conor O'Kelly, M.P., one of the new members of the Irish Parliamentary party, who was convicted of intimidation and illegal assembly and sentenced to two months' imprisonment, was conveyed to jail under a strong escort of constabulary, amidst intense excitement and other important prosecutions are impending. There has been no such quartering of police as on the present scale in the West of Ireland since the days of Capt. Boycott.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Winnipeg, Dec. 19.—Joseph Bernier, M. P., has written a letter to the press protesting against a Montreal despatch touching on the pro-Boerism of certain leading French-Canadians, in which a reflection, he contends, is made on French-Canadian loyalty. He says the French-Canadian respects the British flag, is obedient and dutiful to English rule and admits not only without hesitancy, but with pleasure that he has found under the government of England liberty and respects for his rights. He deplores the presence in Canada of men who have undertaken the task of extirpating from the hearts of the French-Canadians the admiration, respect and love for the English name. He concludes as follows: "Before 1890 loyalty was never discussed; there was no difference between English and French. Since that unfortunate date we have been dispossessed of our school moneys, we have been deprived of our national and religious rights, hatred and war have been set afire not only in Manitoba, but the whole Dominion. Now, in all fairness, can one expect much enthusiasm from our ranks, when in spite of the constitution of the country you forbid us to teach our language and religion in our schools. I ask you why you are fighting in South Africa. You will answer, for the defence of our language and the religious rights of our compatriots. Are you more generous in Manitoba towards the French Canadians than the Boers towards your countrymen?"

London, Dec. 19.—Sir Thomas Lipton, in the long interview which he had with King Edward yesterday, at which the American Cup races were minutely discussed, unfolded his plans for the future. His Majesty exhibited the keenest interest in them, and at times offered suggestions. He expressed the opinion that it would be very hard to get a boat to beat the Americans, to which Sir Thomas replied that he was at least confident that he could secure a yacht a good deal better than Shamrock II. When Sir Thomas had finished explaining his reasons for this belief the King appeared to be satisfied and heartily wished him success."

MOLTEN METAL AND FLAMES FALL UPON MEN

Terrible Catastrophe at a Furnace in Pittsburg Costs the Lives of at Least Nine Men

OFFICIALS SAY THAT FIVE PERSONS ARE INJURED

Gas Which Had Accumulated in the Furnace Exploded When They Were Crowded on a Small Platform

Pittsburg, Dec. 19.—By an explosion of gas in the Soho furnace of Jones & Laughlin, near Brady street, this city, at 6.20 o'clock this morning, nine men were burned to death and five injured. The damage to the plant will amount to $20,000.

The explosion occurred in one of the big blast furnaces. The men were at work at the top of the furnace over 120 feet from the ground. They were employed as fillers and were just getting ready to quit work, being members of the night crew, when the gas which accumulated in the furnace exploded and tons of molten metal cinders and slag were thrown over the unfortunate men on top of the structure.

When the gas let go a panic ensued on the small platform about the top. All the men made a rush for the elevator, but it had gone down, and there was no escape. To jump meant death, and to remain on the platform was just as certain doom.

The tons of molten metal and flames fell upon them and burned ten men to death. Their bodies dropped to the roof of the mill, 85 feet below, every bone broken and an unrecognizable mass of human flesh.

Hurry calls were sent to the police and morgues. Patrols from all sections arrived before 7 o'clock and the morgue wagon was with them. The bodies of some of the dead and injured were strewn about the yard beneath the furnace, some of the dead having fallen from the slippery roof to the ground.

The cries of the injured broke the stillness which had spread over the place when the fury of the explosion and fire had abated.

To remove the dead from the roof of the mill it was found necessary to get hook and ladders and the firemen carried the burned, charred and misshapen humanity to the morgue wagon and placed them in. Four bodies were removed at a time, the wagon making three trips.

When the dead were removed the injured were then looked after. In all parts of the yard beneath the furnace the injured were found. How many injured there are is not known at this time. The injured were taken to the Mercy and other hospitals.

Thomas Jones and Arthur Young, managers of the plant, gave out the statement that nine men were killed and five injured. They say that ordinarily only three men work on top of the furnace, but this morning about 6.15 o'clock one of the heavy iron wagons used in taking up the ore to the top of the furnace got stuck on the top of the structure, and the three men sent for assistance. A few men went up, but they could not move the wagon, and more went up, until the number reached fourteen. It was while they were trying to get the wagon released that the fatal explosion took place.

All the men at work on top of the furnace were Slavs and Poles. Nine of them were killed outright, and the taken to Mercy Hospital are so badly injured that it is feared they will die.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR IS VERY SATISFACTORY

British are Clearing the Western Transvaal of Boers.

London, Dec. 19.—The Times' Pretoria despatch says: The progress of the war is eminently satisfactory, but care should be taken not to imagine that more has been done than is actually the case, in order to avoid subsequent disappointment. It is hoped that before long the cleared area in the Western Transvaal will reach as far west as Mabalaland, but there is a concentration of Boers, under Commandant Kemp, between Rustenburg and Zeerust.

Commandant Ledenburg is probably with Commandant Delarey, who has 400 men forty miles northwest of Klerksdorp (122 miles southwest of Pretoria), and another 200 near Wolmaransstad. In spite of the line of blockhouses and constabulary posts in the Eastern Transvaal, it is still possible for Boers to pass west. On December 15th 250 Boers passed over the Wilger River, are being closely pursued, and will probably either be captured or driven out. Blockhouses do not keep the enemy out unless built 600 yards apart, with barbed wire entanglements between.

The correspondent accounts for about 500 Boers in Orange River Colony besides De Wet's concentration, which is divided into two groups, comprising four commandoes.

"While the Boer nation," says the correspondent, "should not be condemned for the crimes of a few, such as recent outrages upon natives, as the enemy becomes more scattered discipline suffers, and many acts not countenanced by the leaders are committed by individuals. The Boers' treatment of British prisoners and wounded is generally correct, in spite of the long-continued war must have had on men's passions."

Sir Thomas Lipton also conveyed to Kind Edward a recapitulation of President Roosevelt's friendly comments on the King and England, which formed the gist of a conversation between Sir Thomas and Mr. Roosevelt while the former was in the United States. The King was evident much pleased. In turn he told Sir Thomas how greatly he admired President Roosevelt's personality, which, unfortunately, he only knew from hearsay. The King takes great interest in the preparations for building another challenger for the cup, which are believed to be already on foot.

London, Dec. 19.—The Associated Press learns that the War Office has come into possession of a cipher telegram, purporting to have been sent by the Boer Commandant Delarey, stating that he could not hold out longer than January.

According to the correspondent of the Times at Pretoria this morning, Delarey is believed to be 40 miles northwest of Klerksdorp, with about 400 men.

The War Office has taken a more hopeful view of the war than it has taken at any previous time.

TO MANAGE KING'S STABLES.

London, Dec. 19.—Lord Marcus Beresford has been appointed to manage the stables of King Edward. He will devote his entire time and attention to it. He will assume his duties on January 1, when the Duke of Devonshire, the present director, retires. The King's colors will be prominent in all big events in 1902.

WANTED—A YOUNG AMERICAN.

Berlin, Dec. 19.—The police of this city are seeking for a young American calling himself Harry Marshall, who disappeared from Berlin Tuesday night. He obtained several thousand marks in cash and jewelry, from American residents here. He presented himself as a Cincinnatian, as a former employee of Senator Foraker, and as a friend of "John McClain, Clerk of the Republican National Committee," and said he was over here for his health. Marshall obtained opportunities to swindle by showing letters written on the stationery of United States officials. Herr Sachs, a jeweler, from whom Marshall got some diamonds, knew the fugitive in Chicago, under the name of Vernon. It is believed Marshall is an international swindler engaged in "working" various European capitals. The records available do not give the name of "John McClain, Clerk of the Republican National Committee.

LEWIS P. KEKEWICH DEAD.

London, Dec. 19.—Lewis P. Kekewich, of the firm of Morrison, Kekewich & Company, a leading member of the Metal Exchange, died suddenly this morning. It is said that he committed suicide. The belief prevails that the deceased recently suffered heavy losses in copper. The Metal Exchange has closed as a token of sympathy.

Salinas, Cal., Dec. 19.—The northbound Sunset Express, No. 9, of the Southern Pacific, due to arrive at San Ardo at 12.50 a.m., and the Sunset Express No. 10, from San Francisco, due to leave San Ardo at the same time, were in collision this morning. The trains are scheduled to pass at Uplands, a few miles south of San Ardo. The southbound train left Salinas seven minutes late, and through some error, met the northbound train head-on, one-half mile west of Uplands, between San Ardo and San Lucas. Both trains were completely wrecked, the engine being thrown from the track and several of the cars telescoped.

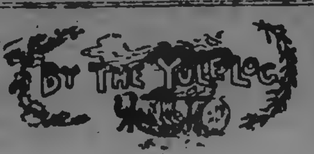
PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 20, 1901



A rhyme, and a light and lithe one,
That sways like a supple vine;
A song, and a bright and blithe one,
A-flood with the Christmas shine.

A catch, and a clear and glad one,
Like the linnet's note in the spring;
A stave, and a gay and mad one
That shall make the rafters ring.

Be the best of the dancers in it,
The lilt and the laughing lip,
And the thrill from the throat of a linnet
That dies to a rapture deep

Then it's cheer, my masters merry,
And cheer, my bonny maids, O!
Our song's for the holly berry,
Our kiss for the mistletoe.

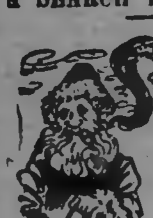
A SEARCH FOR "SANTY."



SANTA CLAUS is so vivid a reality to most little boys and girls that any doubts thrown upon his existence is usually indignantly resented by them. Little Robbie had no doubts upon the subject. Why should he? Hadn't kind old "Santy" brought him toys and candy every Christmas he could remember, and he remembered three of them? But a cloud had fallen on Robbie's faith. His mamma was sick and ailing, and many of the bundles of sewing that she had always seemed to be working upon remained unopened. Some days she could not get out of bed, and her hands were cramped so that she could hardly use them, and she almost creeped rather than walked.

"I am afraid Santy will not come to us this year, Robbie," she said, "but you must be a brave boy and never mind."

Truly, Robbie was a brave little fellow. A cheerier, merrier, more affectionate little chap was never left to console a poor, struggling widow. He had ways of his own, too, and an odd sort of independence that is often characteristic of the children of the poor.

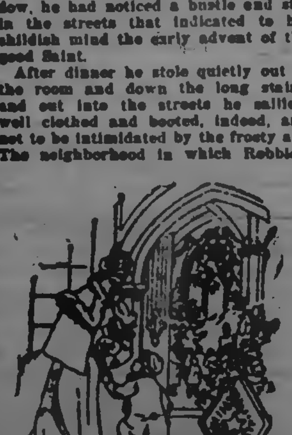
"I'll go find Santy," he said in his cheery way, "and tell him Robbie's mamma is sick, and that he mustn't forget Robbie."

Mrs. Garry scarcely paid any attention to the prattle of her boy, although he repeatedly announced his purpose to "find Santy."

The neighbors in the big tenement were kind to Mrs. Garry, but they were all poor like herself, and had children of their own to provide for. They did what they could, but their charity did not take in the idea of providing Christmas presents for the prattling Robbie.

It was the day before Christmas, and Robbie's little head was full of his plans for finding "Santy." He had figured out that he must arrive in town that evening, and during the day, from his perch in the high window, he had noticed a bustle and stir in the streets that indicated to his childish mind the early advent of the good Saint.

After dinner he stole quietly out of the room and down the long stairs, and out into the streets he sallied, well clothed and booted, indeed, and not to be intimidated by the frosty air. The neighborhood in which Robbie's mother lived had few stores, and these mostly of a small kind. Here and there he stopped at a window, to note a display of toys, but no sight of "Santy" rewarded his vision. He passed block after block until finally he was lost in a maze of streets, but his heart did not falter nor his sublime faith in meeting "Santy" in the least diminish.



The Finding of "Santy."

How long he wandered Robbie never knew. He never had dreamed the big city was so big. At last, he was attracted by music from a tall church, that was the principal object in a neighborhood so neat and orderly that it looked to Robbie like another world. He crossed the street, and standing on tiptoe on the steps, gazed through the great open portal of the church to ascertain what caused the music from the inside.

What a sight met his gaze! Within were crowds of people and crowds of children; light and music and laughter; and at the end of the chancel a great Christmas tree uplifted itself loaded with beautiful things; and, there—could Robbie believe his eyes?—was old "Santy" himself handing toys to the children from the well-laden tree. He clapped his hands, and laughed a merry laugh at his success in at last finding the object of his quest.

At that moment a richly dressed lady appeared from within the church.

"Say, ma'am," shouted Robbie, so eagerly that he was almost breathless, "is he coming out soon?"

When a man is drowning his rescue is a question of timely help. It is the same thing in disease. Many a time the doctor says of a man whose condition is hopeless, "If you'd begun in time you might have been cured."

This is especially true when the disease affects the lungs. Delay is dangerous. The timely use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will result in a quick cure of deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, and weak lungs. Even when hemorrhages have been frequent and profuse "Golden Medical Discovery" has been used time and again with the result of a perfect and permanent cure. Mr. McCauley, of Leechburg, Armstrong Co., Pa., had eighty-one hemorrhages, and after other medical aid had failed he was completely cured by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is no other medicine just as good for "weak" lungs.

"I was in poor health when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mr. Elmer Lawler, of Veigo, Jefferson Co., Ind. "I had stomach, kidney, heart, and lung troubles. Was not able to do any work. I had a severe cough and hemorrhage of the lungs, but after using your medicine a while I commenced to gain in strength and flesh, and stopped coughing right away. Took about six bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' then, and last spring I had Grippe and it settled on my lungs, leaving me with a severe cough. I had the doctor, but he didn't seem to help me any; so I commenced your medicine again and took three or four bottles of the 'Discovery' and two vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets, and that straightened me up. I feel like a different person. I gladly recommend your medicine to all sufferers, for I know it cured me."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

EVERY BREATH BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

CAN DANCE A TWO-STEP

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Nineteenth Century.

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—In my youth I was fond of dancing, and took in every dance for miles around. That is years ago. I fell a ready victim to rheumatism 12 years ago, and have been a sufferer ever since. Nothing seemed to give me relief, until I secured a box of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. My recovery since I began taking these pills has been miraculous, and for the first time in 12 years, I was able to participate in a social dance, and am now almost entirely well. I hope others may profit by my experience. E. J. Hall, G.T.R., Lindsay

Sir,—Please use my name in any way you like to show the wonderful results that Dr. Clarkes' Little Red Pills have wrought in my case. I was a sufferer for 22 years from dyspepsia, and could get no relief. Six boxes of the pills made me a well man. I might also mention that a friend, who was a lifelong sufferer from rheumatism, is also bearing testimony to these marvellous pills, having been entirely cured. A. N. Brown, Odessa, N. Y.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. "Whom do you mean, my boy?" asked the lady kindly.

"Old Santy! He's in there. I'm lookin' for him."

"Oh!" and the lady laughed in spite of all her gay attire at the funny little fellow, "you're look for Santa Claus are you?"

"Yes," said Robbie boldly; "my mamma's sick, and says 'Santy' won't come this year, but I thought I'd try to see him and tell him Robbie's been a good boy, and didn't make poor mamma sick. I guess he'll come if he knows that."

The lady bent down, as she wiped her eyes quickly with a lace handkerchief.

"Who are you, Robbie, and where do you live?"

Robbie knew who he was and where he lived, and he told it without hesitation.

Then a strange thing happened. The lady led him into the church, and, after a short talk with some other ladies, he was taken up and introduced to the big man in furs and long white beard, whom he knew to be "Santy."

Then the Superintendent arose and told Robbie's queer adventure, in simple, affecting words, to the whole school, and there was much laughter and clapping of hands.

Robbie was taken back to his home in a big sleigh, with furry robes, and prancing horses, but big as it was it was hardly big enough to hold the many beautiful things good old "Santy" and his children had given him. There came help and comfort too, for Robbie's mother, but that need not be told here.

This is the true story of how Robbie found Santa Claus.

A Modest Request.

A Bear's Christmas Gift.

It was Christmas Eve in Moscow, and every one was busily preparing for the great festival of the next day, when a tall man, so muffled in a thick sheepskin frock that he might almost have been mistaken for a woolsack, came tramping over the crisp snow past the red, many-turreted wall of the Kremlin, leading after him by a chain a huge brown bear, which plodded gravely at his heels without taking any notice of the admiring stares and pointing fingers of the countless groups that eddied carelessly to and fro through the "Krasnaya Ploshtchad" (Red Plain).

"Hello, brother!" cried a stout, red-faced, blue-frocked Izvoshtchik (hackman), who was driving slowly past in search of a fare. "Where are going with Meesha?" (i. e., Michael, the Russian nickname for a bear).

"They're going to have him and me in a Christmas show at one of the big circuses," replied the bear leader, "and to give us twelve rubles (nine dollars) a night. Not bad, eh?"

"And by what name are you two going to appear in the bills?" asked a dandified young fellow in a smart new fur cap. "You'll be 'The Renowned Bear Brothers,' I suppose."

"That's it, my lad," said the beast tamer; "and as bears generally have a monkey to perform along with them, hadn't you better come and join us?"

The laugh was now turned against the jester, who, irritated by the retort, took off his fur cap, and began to tease the bear by flipping him in the face with it.

"You'd better stop at that game, my fine fellow," said the bear's guardian, warningly. "Meesha's a good-natured creature enough in his way, but he don't understand being joked with by strangers, though he doesn't mind it from me. He's got teeth of his own, I can tell you, and if he makes one bite at you, I rather fancy you'll find your sum comes out wrong the next time you try to count on your fingers."

But the dude was not to be warned, either by the words of the man or the low growls of the beast, and was continuing to plague the bear, when all at once the shaggy head was thrust forward, and the huge jaws opened and shut with a snap like the falling of a steel trap. The joker drew back his hand just in time to save it, but at the same moment he saw his fine new fur cap (which had cost $7) vanish like a pill into the bear's capacious mouth, amid a roar of laughter from the crowd.

"Serves you right, young fellow," said the bear tamer, with stern satisfaction. "You've made him a nice Christmas present, anyhow; and there's no fear of your brains catching cold for want of it, for you don't seem to have any."

Here is the third:

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 8, 1901.

D. McLachlan, Esq.,
Chatham, Ont.

My Dear Mr. McLachlan,—In response to your inquiry I gladly add my testimony to the many you have received as to the merits of the Canada Business College.

When I decided to take a course in your institution in 1888, I did so because I considered it stood second to none in America, and I have pleasure in stating that the practical course of training I received has proved very beneficial to me.

I have been connected with The D. W. Karn Co. Piano and Organ Manufacturers of this town for eleven years, and during nine years of this time have held the best position in the office.

In conclusion I might say I am receiving a salary more than four times as much as I received in 1888 when acting in the capacity of a school teacher.

I have no hesitation in recommending the C. B. C. to the favorable consideration of any young man or woman desirous of acquiring a thorough and practical business education.

Wishing you continued and abundant success, I remain.

Yours very truly,
H. C. THORNTON.

(Formerly a public school teacher in Durham County.)

Mr. Thornton is now office manager of the Karn Organ Co. of Woodstock, Ont. Had he continued at public school teaching he might possibly be earning $400 to $500 per annum to-day instead of the splendid salary he is now commanding.

If you cannot possibly come to Chatham, we can give you instruction BY MAIL, at your home, in Book-keeping, Shorthand or Penmanship, through our Mail Course Department.

During the past year 304 of our pupils secured good positions. Their combined earnings are close to

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000)

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.

Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.

F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of 300,000 shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purpose.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is of 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.50 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hermosa White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page 251).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 1876, and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from 200 to 900 feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $26,000,000, and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $1.75 to $4.50 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our propositions possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. 2000 acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills cured me of kidney trouble of many years' standing, and after I had tried every other known remedy. Joseph Begley, Caledonia ave., Rochester, N.Y.

I was afflicted with rheumatism so badly at times that I could not walk. Nothing I took did me much good, until I tried Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. Three boxes cured me entirely.

I had the misfortune to have suffered some years ago from neuralgia, neuralgia, being at least three strokes. I could not anything to do me any good until I was induced to try Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. Mann, Marlin, N.Y.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills permanently cured me of headache. I suffered for years, and took two boxes. That is a year ago. I have not had a symptom since. James R. Jackson, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

I do not believe there is a medicine to compare with Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills. They cured me of indigestion and catarrh of the stomach, after nine years' suffering. H. S. Macdonald, G.T.R. shops, Montreal.

Vaccine Was No Good.

Provincial Health Officer Bryce had a blue report on the smallpox situation to give out this morning. "I am afraid we are in for it," was the way he expressed his apprehensions. "It seems to be coming at us from all directions." In connection with his advice for general vaccination, he states that it will not be safe to trust to the vaccine which was on the market last spring. In many cases it did not "take," and a lot of it was poor stuff.

THAT SNOW BY-LAW

Should be Repealed as Enforcement Makes Street Dangerous

The citizens who are asking for the fire limit snow by-law to be repealed have a very strong card in their hand, especially at this time, and an election approaching. It is easy enough to get along on the pavements where there is any snow on them but it is an entirely different matter when the snow is all removed. Under the present conditions, the pedestrian has to watch very carefully to avoid a fall.

As a matter of fact, it is doubtful if the by-law can be enforced when it imposes conditions on one portion of the town while the other portions escape.

People in general would be very well pleased if the restrictions now placed on some of them were removed.

ONTARIO MINISTER PRESENT

(Editor Morning Times)

Sir,—The Times gave us the names of a few leading citizens who were present and took part in the reception tendered Messrs. Redmond, McHugh, and O'Donnell, the Irish agitators, on the occasion of their late visit to Ottawa. I did not notice the name of Hon. F. R. Latchford, Commissioner of Public Works, in the Ross Government amongst the number although he was understood to have been present. I wonder what the loyal people of Ontario will think of Mr. Latchford when they learn that he helped to do honor to men who are working to destroy the British Empire? Loyal Catholics and Protestants will not tolerate this sort of thing. Did Mr. Latchford participate in these functions as a representative of the Ontario Government, or did he go of his own notion? If the former, then the Ontario Government should be ashamed of itself, and if the latter, Mr. Latchford should be asked to step down and out.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,
A LOYAL IRISHMAN.

Look at Yourself

Is Coffee Slowly Killing You?

IF YOU ARE A COFFEE DRINKER, examine yourself very carefully indeed. It will pay you big returns for the examination.

If you find that in the weeks and months past you have been suffering small or great aches or ails anywhere in the body, whether in the leg, body, heart or head, you may depend upon it that the root of the trouble is an unbalanced, disordered nervous system, caused wholly or in greater part by coffee drinking.

Remember, the nerves traverse the entire body, and when they are out of order, convey their trouble to some one or more parts. No living being can tell just where the nerves will deposit the trouble, but it is certain they will place it somewhere in one or more organs.

In some cases disease is slowly built up, for instance, in the kidneys, or in the brain, or perhaps in the bowels, and does not make any violent show for weeks or months, but it is being piled in slowly and surely, so that when enough diseased cells are built to make a showing, the trouble is so far gone that many times it is impossible to recover.

The only safe pathway for anyone who cares for health, is to throw out the poisonous drug coffee as soon as you find some evidence of incipient disease, shown by aches or ails, or uncomfortable feelings anywhere in the body.

Highly organized people are distinctly poisoned by coffee, and think it hard to give up the drug (for it is a drug habit). It is really no task whatever to rid one's self of coffee; if one will take on Postum Food Coffee, the result of the change will be so pleasing in point of good, healthy, comfortable feeling, that one is well repaid, particularly when there is no self denial, for the taste of Postum Food Coffee is so clearly marked and delicious when it is properly prepared (and that is easy), that the change from the old coffee is not noticeable.

Stop disease when it is small and you are able to stop it. If you allow it to grow it will master you. Postum Food Coffee offers a pleasant and sure way to conquer and be well.

CHRISTMAS BELLS

+A MERRIE CHRISTMAS!+

CHRISTMAS EVERGREENS.

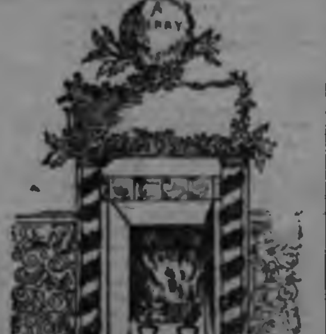
SUGGESTIONS FOR APPROPRIATE FESTAL EMBLEMS.

Laurel, Holly and Mistletoe, and How They May Be Utilized as Aids to Christmas Cheer—The History of Their Use in Church Decorations.

The use of evergreens at Christmas is of very ancient origin; the custom in England having been derived directly from the rites of the Druids. The Greeks and Romans used evergreens freely, the laurel and bay being held sacred to joyous festivals, and green boughs were strewn during celebrations of victory and peace. The Hebrews and Egyptians also made free use of evergreens, and the palm and lotus have become emblems of religious sentiment. The modern custom of evergreens at Christmas is due to the grafting of early Christmas practices upon the heathen rites of Northern Europe. Our Teutonic and Saxon forefathers brought many pleasant customs and poetic ideas to the service of Christianity.

The Puritans passed laws prohibiting the use of green as a heathen practice, and away back in the year 1600 the austere council "enacted it was not lawful to begirt or adorn houses with laurel or green boughs, for all this practice savors of paganism." But to-day the custom is universal, and even puritan New England contributes her share to the universal decoration.

Among the popular Christmas evergreens, the holly, with its splendid red berries and rich green leaves, signifies rejoicing, and can be appropriately used anywhere. Rosemary means remembrance, as unfortunate Ophelia was aware, and in the early days of "Merrie England" was used to decorate the wassail bowl. The mistletoe is the mystic plant of Christmas to all English-speaking people, emblematic of jollity and mirth, of domestic love, and the sly confidences of lovers. The suspended sprig of mistletoe is a veritable ally of Cupid. All of our American evergreens are appropriate for use at Christmas in wreaths, ropes, or otherwise, but the mistletoe and holly must not be forgotten.



A Striking Christmas Mantel.

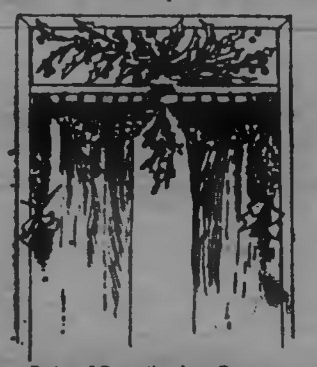
In decorating a church for Christmas, beside the ordinary wreaths and clusters of evergreen in the body of the building, beautiful effects can be produced at the altar and font with some very simple devices. Very distinct and perfect outlines in lettering can be obtained from holly leaves, and when completed, the motto or monogram may be made to look as if frosted. This is done by brushing the leaves over with mucilage and then dusting them with glass powder, which can be obtained for a trifle at any glass works. The glitter and sparkle give a brilliancy that does not seem artificial.

Ferns can also be used to great advantage in church decoration, and quantities of them should be gathered in the autumn, and kept fresh in the cellar by being packed in barrels, with a layer of ferns alternately. The evergreen kind is found all winter, but a heavy fall of snow near Christmas will effectually hide them from view. The small ferns or leaflets of the larger ones, make pretty letters, borders and other designs, while the long, light-looking fronds hanging over the edge of the font, have a very good effect.

Twigs gathered from tree shrubs can be made to do good service in the decoration of the dinner table. They are invaluable attached to baskets, and then bronzed with metallic paint. Tied with colored ribbons they make the most delightful ornaments on the table for ferns, as the bronze is so attuned to the green foliage.

A pretty design for a decorated mantel is shown in our first illustration. The main feature is the motto, "A Merry Christmas," consisting of a plaque of green, with the letters in red holly berries. The plaque is framed in holly leaves and berries. The idea can be adapted to a mantel without a mirror.

The hallway and stairs afford the proper starting point for decorating a house at Christmas time. The hallway may be adorned with mottoes made of brilliant berries and appropriately framed in greens, and the balustrades of the stairway may be twined with evergreens. A pleasant feature of Christmas decoration, and one of the most appropriate, may be made of a doorway, preferably that of the reception room. Our illustration shows a design for decorating such a doorway. The space above the portiere is adorned with holly, while wreathes of leaves and berries are twined gracefully over the portieres, and an simple sprig of mistletoe is suspended from the centre of the rod.



Design of Decoration for a Doorway.

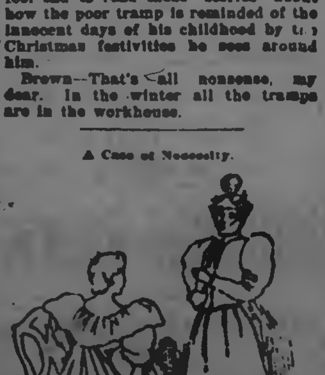
The main idea of Christmas decoration is to give the home a joyous aspect. There should be no ostentation—decoration is for the home and the dear ones whom it shelters. The making of Christmas a home festival is essentially Saxon in origin. In England and in Virginia, not the day only, but the season, which lasts till Twelfth Night, or Candlemas Day, is one round of merriment, and all the houses continue their adornment of green boughs and laurel wreaths. Even the simplest form of decoration is appropriate and not to be despised. Simple bunches of mistletoe or branches of holly may be placed over a picture, stuck in a vase, suspended from a chandelier, or used in masses anywhere with but little work. Garlands can be made of the running green with slight expenditure of time or labor, or a single set piece used at some central point. Even the smallest branch of green can be utilised to bespeak the time of merriment and good cheer. Every home should exhibit some sort of decoration on Christmas.

Sympathy Wasted.

Mrs. Brown—It always makes me feel sad to read those stories about how the poor tramp is reminded of the innocent days of his childhood by the Christmas festivities he sees around him.

Brown—That's all nonsense, my dear. In the winter all the tramps are in the workhouse.

A Case of Necessity.



"My husband doesn't want me to make him Christmas presents."

"And will you?"

"I must. I need things that I can't get any other way."

Fairyland

The local stores are now looking their prettiest, which befits the holiday season.

As the one presenting the greatest variety, in its own legitimate lines, China Hall stands pre-eminently first.

For twenty years this store has invited the public to view its Christmas display, and has received a generous share of patronage. The assortment of 1901 is more comprehensive than any of its forerunners, the stock including graceful ornaments, handsome dinner-sets, with their accompanying glasses, dainty china tea-sets, lamps, flower-pots, celery trays, salad bowls, pudding dishes, bread and butter plates, fancy cups and saucers in endless variety. In fact each article in this vast stock is suitable for a present, and a gift of china never offends, but always pleases its recipient.

China Hall in its present festive attire resembles a fairyland through which all are invited to wander, as the store will be kept open every evening until after Christmas.

THE BURGHERS RAID THE DIAMOND MINES

Business in the Orange River Colony is Generally Resuming Its Normal Conditions

GOOD WORK DONE BY MORLEY'S SCOUTS

The Lace Diamond Mines Raided by a Party of Boers Early This Week

London, Dec. 19.—A despatch from Bloemfontein says:—"Civil supplies in the Orange River Colony have now been placed under the control of the civil administration. Mr. Henry Pearse has been appointed director of supplies. For the month of December 350 ten-ton trucks have been allotted to bring up mining material to the Jagersfontein Mine to enable work to be recommenced. Most of the material has already arrived.

"The Lace Diamond Mines in the west of the Orange River Colony were raided by a party of Boers this week.

"Business in the colony is generally resuming normal conditions, and prices are regulated by competition in many cases under a schedule drawn up by the military authorities. The Land Settlement Board has already sown 8,000 boxes of French seed potatoes.

"Commandant Kritzinger was captured while bravely trying to rescue one of his captains who had been shot near a blockhouse while crossing the line near Hanover Road Kritzinger made three attempts to save his comrade-in-arms. The third time he was shot himself and dragged into the blockhouse. Two others who tried to rescue him were also captured.

A despatch from Pretoria says:—"Lord Kitchener visited the camp of the National Scouts at Brugspruit yesterday. He thanked the men for their services and said he would see to it that they received first consideration when the time for a resettlement of the country arrived. Morley's Scouts have recently taken part in some successful work against the Boers. A portion of the scouts, under Capt. Colliers, capture small parties of burghers numbering from three to eleven almost daily. They have been going out on three-day expeditions.

"Capt. Jameson has translated the text of Lord Kitchener's speech, which was read to 160 Boers. Of this number about forty were formerly members of the Staats Artillery."

The War Office has come into possession of a cipher telegram, purporting to have been sent by the Boer commandant Delarey, stating that he could not hold out longer than January.

The Times' Pretoria despatch says:— The progress of the war is eminently satisfactory, but care should be taken not to imagine that more has been done than is actually the case, in order to avoid subsequent disappointment. It is hoped that before long the cleared area in the Western Transvaal will reach as far west as Mabalstand, but there is a concentration of Boers, under Commandant Kemp, between Rustenburg and Zeerust. Commandant Lebenburg is probably with Commandant Delarey who has 400 men forty miles north-west of Klerksdorp (123 miles south-west of Pretoria) and another 200 near Wolmaranstad. In spite of the line of blockhouses and Constabulary posts in the Eastern Transvaal, it is still possible for Boers to pass west. On December 15th 150 Boers passed over the Wilger River, but are being closely pursued, and will probably either be captured or driven out. Blockhouses do not keep the enemy out unless built 600 yards apart, with barbed wire entanglements between.

The correspondent accounts for about 500 Boers in Orange River Colony, besides De Wet's concentration, which is divided into two groups, comprising four commandos. "While the Boer nation," says the correspondent "should not be condemned for the crimes of a few, such as recent outrages upon natives, as the enemy becomes more scattered discipline suffers, and many acts not countenanced by the leaders are committed by individuals. The Boers' treatment of British prisoners and wounded is generally correct, in spite of the effect the long-continued war must have on men's passions."

The 20th annual meeting was held on Thursday evening in the Y.M.C.A. parlors. Mr. J. W. Bennett occupied the chair, in the absence of Mr. B. F. Ackerman, the President. The attendance was very large. Rev. W. L. Armitage opened the meeting with devotional exercises.

The report of the Ladies' Auxiliary was presented by Mr. Robert Harding and was highly satisfactory.

On motion of Mr. Connal and Mr. J. C. Brown, the report was adopted. Great credit was given Mr. Williamson as a financier, the amount raised being within $5 of the budget.

MR. SMITH BOOKED

A Presentation to Mr. Wm. Smith at the Close of Term

At the closing exercises of the Central School, the pupils of Mr. Wm. Smith took the occasion to present him with an address and a "Book of Poems" as a slight expression of the kindly feelings of the pupils. The address was read by Miss M. Stone and the presentation made by Master C. Arnott.

The address was as follows:

To Mr. W. Smith, Principal Central school:

Dear Mr. Smith,—We, the pupils of your class, feel that we cannot separate for the Christmas holidays without expressing our appreciation of your untiring labors in our behalf. As teacher, counsellor or friend we never appeal to you in vain. The willing help in our studies, the valuable advice in perplexity, and kindly sympathy, have not passed unnoticed by us. We know at times our seeming indifference has caused you anxiety, but we trust that you will attribute these imperfections to the thoughtlessness of youth and not to any intentional wrong on our part. The band of union is not yet broken between us as teacher and pupils, and upon our return in January, 1902, to resume our studies under your faithful guidance, we will endeavor to prove our appreciation by earnest application to our work.

As a slight token of our affection and esteem we would ask your acceptance of this "Book of Poems," hoping you will enjoy the perusal in your spare moments.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

Mr. Smith was visibly taken by surprise, but made a very pleasing reply in which he thanked the pupils for their kind expressions and the beautiful "Book of Poems," which would give him great pleasure to read and keep as a remembrance of his class of 1901.

AN APPROPRIATE GIFT

A Bible Presented to Miss Richardson by Her S.S. Class

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Micks entertained the members of Miss Richardson's Bible Class at their home on Thursday evening. A most enjoyable evening was spent, one of the pleasing features being the presentation of a handsome Bible to Miss Richardson by the members of her Bible Class, as a token of appreciation and esteem.

Mrs. Micks made the presentation, while Miss Lush read the address.

Dear Miss Richardson:—The members of your Bible Class, who have admired your devotion to the duties you have so cheerfully undertaken in connection with the class, desire that you will accept this Bible, not in any way adequate compensation, but as some small tangible appreciation of your faithful services.

The relation of teacher to class is not only as instructor, but as guide and helper, and your class members recognize that your faithful, earnest work in the Master's cause must be a helpful factor in shaping other lives from day to day towards ultimate good.

We earnest and sincerely trust that you may long be spared to your class and that its membership may increase and be diligent in that which is well pleasing in His sight.

With hearty wishes for A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the class.

Miss Richardson suitably replied expressing her warm appreciation of the gift and the sentiments of the address.

Boer Suit will be Tried

New Orleans, Dec. 21.—The suit for $20,000 damages for slander brought by Gen. Samuel Pearson, the Boer army officer, against Arthur Vansittart, the British Consul at New Orleans, will be tried on its merits during January. Counsel for Gen. Pearson appeared in the United States Circuit Court this morning and moved to fix the case for trial. It was put down on the trial docket and now it will be incumbent upon the English Consul to stand trial, despite his demurrer filed some time ago that he was exempt from the jurisdiction of the court and the law by the fact that he was the British Consul.

The suit grew out of the remarks made by Vansittart that Gen. Pearson was connected with the attempted blowing up of the British transport Mechanician on Aug. 10 last.

Easy to End Carnage.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—The Record Herald has the following from The Hague: "Having in mind ex-President Steyn's proclamation issued in July stating that the burghers would conclude peace only if granted their independence, we cannot make peace overtures," said Mr. Wolmarans, a former member of the Executive Council of the Transvaal, to-night. Commenting on Lord Rosebery's Chesterfield speech, he continued:

"We earnestly desire to settle matters amicably. If England would open negotiations through envoys sent to Holland we would be happy to take part in the discussion of questions pending between the British and the Boers. Even if we were disposed to go to London to confer with the Salisbury government we could not do so while the British cabinet insists on unconditional surrender.

"I cannot understand the British argument that England's Ministers are unable to open peace negotiations while the Boers are still fighting. It seems to me that British statesmen might invoke the arts of diplomacy in Europe while British military men are invoking the arts of war in South Africa.

"It is foolish to talk of the burghers finding encouragement to continue the struggle from the fact that negotiations have been instituted. The history of the war shows that the Boers need no such encouragement. They are doing their utmost in the field, and will persist in that course until some means is discovered of settling the quarrel otherwise than by force of arms. Lord Rosebery wisely says that only a regular peace arranged according to definite terms can terminate hostilities."

The new position created by the highly respectful and conciliatory tone of Lord Rosebery's remarks concerning the leaders of the Boers has evoked enthusiasm in Boer circles in Holland, where the desire for peace is thoroughly sincere. President Kruger and his associates have no means of communicating with Mr. Steyn. Should England permit this, there is little doubt that an early settlement could be arranged.

MORE VIGOR NECESSARY.

London, Dec. 20.—Mr. Winston Churchill, M.P., of Birmingham, compared our army in South Africa to a diver weighed down with heavy boots and lead, and long slender pipe which might be called the line of communication, and which might be cut at any moment. Thus handicapped the diver was called upon to fight a fish which lived in the water and belonged to the element. He should continue to urge that we should do everything in our power at home to increase the mobility of our troops, to enable the diver to cope with the fish on fair and equal terms. More vigor was necessary.

Threaten to Arrest Officers

Windsor, Dec. 20.—Dr. King, manager of the United Gas and Oil Company, states that he will ask for the arrest of Joseph Hall, M. A. Brian and Provincial Detective Campau, if they persist in interfering with the valves of the Gas Company. Magistrate Bartlet, however, has instructed his men to continue the investigation, which yesterday disclosed that two valves in one of the gas mains crossing the river at Sandwich were wide open, justifying the belief of the citizens of Windsor that gas was still crossing to Detroit. The men closed the valves last evening, and the gas pressure in Windsor is reported perceptibly better than it has been for several weeks.

Magistrate Bartlet says Dr. King cannot arrest his deputies. He claims the men are working within the jurisdiction granted by the Ontario Government to him as keeper of the peace.

THE UNITED STATES AND THE BOER WAR

The Advice of Bourke Cockran for Interference is Ridiculed

UNCLE SAM SEEKS NO TROUBLE

Has Trouble Enough on His Hands in the Philippines — The Feeling Growing Stronger for England

Washington, Dec. 21.—There is a determined effort being made by the Irish and Boer factions to have some action taken by Congress. It is understood that a resolution will be moved, asking the President to offer his services as mediator.

The Star of this city says:—Bourke Cockran's claim to consideration as an orator are undisputed. He has voice, assurance and vocabulary, and as a phrase maker pure and simple he has few equals. Of his claims to consideration as an adviser in public affairs so much may not be said. It was only last year that he was advocating Bryanism, and only last month that he was on the stump in New York city urging the success at the polls of Tammany Hall.

Fresh from these two failures Mr. Cockran seeks now to disturb the peace between the United States and Great Britain. He gives out that his sympathies are with the Boers in South Africa—if he really has any. But when he seeks to embroil the United States in a war with Great Britain over any cause now existing he but gives evidence of how subordinate his intelligence is to his tongue, and of how little his advice is to be trusted. He raises the question of his common sense or sincerity, and he suffers, no matter how the question is decided.

Headless Body Found

Carrollton, Ga., Dec. 20.—The headless body of a man, supposed to be that of Prof. Chandler, a school teacher who lived in Polk County, Ga., has been found beneath a mass of rock at Oak Level, Alabama. Prof. Chandler disappeared in October. He lived in Lime Branch, Ga., and taught school just over the Alabama line in Cleburn County. He was seen one day with $125 in money, and the next day he disappeared.

The entire community was stirred up over his disappearance, believing he had been foully dealt with, and robbed. The country was searched, but no clue to the missing man's whereabouts could be brought to light until the body was found and identified by a gold watch which Chandler always carried. A farmer by the name of Knighton has been arrested on suspicion, and committed to jail.

No Plans Made for Furness

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 20.—Mr. Francis H. Clergue writes to the News-Recorder as follows: "It is my duty to inform you that your reporter has been grossly imposed upon in respect to shipbuilding at Sault Ste. Marie as reported in your issue of the 13th. No plans for such an establishment have been made, nor had Sir Christopher Furness' visit to Sault Ste. Marie any connection with the order for twelve ships which he said is said to have taken back to England. Sir Christopher Furness has no connection with the steel plant or the tube works at Sault Ste. Marie. The visit of this distinguished gentleman to Sault Ste. Marie was only an incident in a comprehensive tour of the industrial centers of the United States and Canada. He has been extremely cordial and appreciative in declaring his favorable opinions resulting from his visit to the Sault, and with all other citizens I should be most happy if this successful manufacturer could be persuaded to transfer a small part of his energies here. The opportunities afforded at the Sault for shipbuilding was discussed at the time of his visit, but no plans whatever were adopted. Sir Christopher was certainly misquoted in New York respecting his alleged plans at Sault Ste. Marie."

FORT FRANCIS WATER POWER

Meeting at the Office of the Commissioner of Crown Lands

Toronto, Dec. 20.—The water power at Fort Francis was discussed in all its phases in the office of the Commissioner of Crown Lands, Hon. E. J. Davis, this morning.

Three parties have laid claims to it of late, Mr. D. C. Irwin, of Peterboro; Mackenzie & Mann, and Mr. Backus, of Chicago. The first-named gentleman was represented by Mr. R. R. Hall, Peterboro; the railway magnates by Mr. W. H. Moore, and the Windy City capitalist by Mr. Allan Royce. They came together to settle the matter for all time to come. It came out during the conference that Mr. Irwin, whose claim was based on one belonging to a man named Fowler, had assigned his rights in the matter to Mackenzie & Mann. After a lengthy argument had been carried out, the Commissioner advised an adjournment till 2.30, in order that some settlement might be talked over, and probably arrived at in a private way. The suggestion was accepted by the contending parties.

It seems that the power at Fort Francis is a very valuable one. An arrangement will no doubt be arrived at by which Mr. Backus can develop it in his own interests on the American side and for Mackenzie & Mann on the Canadian border.

FIVE MEN KILLED IN AN EXPLOSION

Boiler in Pittsburg Blew Up, Causing Terrible Destruction

WRECKAGE 50 FEET HIGH

Boiler Works Adjoining Wrecked Building Also Destroyed—Twelve Employees Injured—Two Unaccounted for.

Pittsburg, Dec. 20.—Five men were killed and twelve injured in an explosion at the Black Diamond Steel Works this morning. Two more are unaccounted for. At 4.15 o'clock as the night crew was about to turn over the mill to the day force, one of the four boilers in the ten-inch bar mill exploded with terrific force, scattering death and destruction in all directions. The mill was completely wrecked and the debris is piled from fifty to seventy-five feet high. The boiler works of James McNeil, adjoining the Black Diamond mill, were also destroyed. A force of men went to work as quickly as possible after the explosion, searching in the debris for bodies.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Dec. 20.—A despatch to The London Times, from Wellington, New Zealand, says over a thousand volunteers for the eight New Zealand contingent for service in South Africa, presented themselves in one day exclusive of those in several districts from which the returns have not yet been forwarded. One hundred and thirty-three officers volunteered for the forty-four places. Sixty-three of them have previously served in the Boer war.

TWO FAKIRS ON TRIAL.

London, Dec. 20.—The trial of Theodore and Laura Jackson (Miss De Bar) at the Old Bailey, was continued today. Anticipations of a verdict being reached sooner than expected revived interest in the "Theocratic unity," and the court room was well filled when the proceedings were resumed. The female prisoner as usual furnished the dramatic features of the examination of the witnesses cross-examining them in modulated tones, and alternately whining or threatening.

When the case for the prosecution was closed the defendants announced that they would not call any witnesses but would testify in their own behalf.

Jackson was then sworn and commenced an address, in the nature of a lecture, during the course of which he claimed to be a man bound to single life by religious vows, and emphatically denied the testimony furnished as to his conduct with Daisy Adams, whose story, he said, was a tissue of falsehoods. He described the female prisoner as a medium through whom he, Jackson, had communication with his "spirit wife."

The jury returned a verdict of guilty against both defendants in the Jackson case. The judge sentenced Jackson to fifteen years penal servitude, and Mrs. Jackson to seven years penal servitude.

BROKE SEALS OF SHIP'S STORES.

Perth, West Australia, Dec. 20.—Capt. Harrassowitz, of the North German Lloyd steamer Neckar, who was fined £25 for breaking the seals of the ship's stores, in contravention of the Australian tariff, and was imprisoned, having refused to pay the fine, has furnished bonds and been released.

REMAINS OF ST. AGNES FOUND.

Rome, Dec. 20.—In the progress of excavations at the Basilica of St. Agnes last week it was found that the silver casket in which the remains of St. Agnes were placed upon their discovery by Pope Paul V. in the seventeenth century, and which was buried in the crypt of the Basilica, had never been removed from the crypt.

St. John's Nfld., Dec. 20.—Marconi's local lawyers has informed counsel for the Anglo-American Cable Company that he will temporarily cease his tests and without admitting the rights of the Anglo-American Company will notify that company prior to resuming operations. The situation is otherwise unchanged. Sir Cavendish Boyle, Governor of Newfoundland, gave a large luncheon in honor of Marconi to-day. The affair was practically a state function.

HOW GERMANY WOULD INVADE THE STATES

A German Officer Tells of a Scheme to Invade the United States

WITH AN ARMY OF ONLY 25,000 MEN

The Napoleonic Scheme Evidently not of the Von Moltke Type—War Between the Two Countries is said to be Close

London, Dec. 21.—That war between Germany and the United States is liable to follow the occupation of a South American port, is not unlikely.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 21.—The engineers of the German cruiser Vinetta, now here, say the vessel will sail for Havana on Tuesday to meet three German warships. Then they will go to seize a Venezuela port if the debt claim is not paid. The American cruiser Prairie will go with the Vinetta and will follow her when she sails.

Washington, Dec. 21.—When Von Moltke was notified of Prussia's declaration of war with France he simply pulled out a paper from a pigeon hole in his desk and turned it over to the King. It was labelled "The march to Paris," and contained the plan of the invasion in detail. So, today, the German general staff is supposed to keep in stock plans for every possible military contingency, from an assault on Paris to the besieging of Timbuctoo. Just how the Kaiser would Timbuctoo. Just how the Kaiser would proceed against the United States is not known outside the general staff but one of its shining members, Lieut. Von Edelsheim of the Second Uhlans, has drawn up a scheme of invasion, which he has published in a pamphlet at his own expense. The Courrier des Etats Unis has made the plan public in America.

The Lieutenant begins by observing that Germany has made many commercial concessions to the United States, but there is a limit to this, and it may be necessary to appeal to arms. The first combat, of course, would be at sea, and as the American naval force is divided between the two oceans, the German fleet would naturally be successful. But the Lieutenant, sagacious officer that he is, realizes that the resources of the United States are so extensive that a naval defeat would probably not crush opposition. Therefore, as soon as the squadron is off on its conquering expedition he would mobilize transports to convey a corps of 25,000 men to America. He does not plan to capture Chicago or Kansas City. The interior, he thinks, could not well be reached, but there would be chances of success in striking blows upon the littoral and cutting the great arteries of exportation and importation, so as to paralyze the industrial and commercial life of the United States, which would oblige that power to accept peace."

To the German corps of 25,000, the accomplished Von Edelsheim finds the United States could oppose only 20,000 men. About 30,000 of this country's soldiers, he admits, are available for domestic service, but 10,000 of these are needed to look after the Indian territories and the coast fortresses. Most of the 100,000 militiamen, he says, refused to fight in the Spanish war, and they are still armed with muzzle-loading guns, so they may be left out of the account. Besides as the United States has no good scheme of mobilization, it would be unable to oppose the landing of the German corps. Once on American soil, the undaunted 25,000 would strangle trade at their leisure, and it would not be long before the terrified government at Washington would sue for peace.

A most ingenious plan, it is, and worthy of a brilliant strategist. Probably not one man in a thousand would have thought of it. Fortunate Von Edelsheim! The general staff doubtless were unaware what a second Von Moltke it was cherishing until this pamphlet appeared. The scheme is Napoleonic in its grand conception, and its contemptuous disregard of danger. It is to be hoped that when the day comes to put the project into operation, Von Edelsheim himself may be placed at the head of the gallant 25,000. None other could lead it so worthily.

Tolstoy on Marriage and Woman.

AFTER an interval of nearly ten years Count Tolstoy reverts to the subject of his much-discussed "Kreutzer Sonata," and in a book on "The Sexual Question" elaborately expounds his theory of marriage and purity. A chapter from this book has been translated from the original for "La Revue" (Paris), and it sufficiently indicates the position defended in this volume. "Marriage," Tolstoy declares, "is a sin, not a duty," and the ideal of religious and moral men should be its abolition—at the cost of the gradual disappearance of the human race. The book appears to be exceptionally frank and outspoken, and the author does not shrink from the logical conclusion of his premises, but nothing could prove more completely that the so-called "great" Russian is simply a madman.

Here, for example, is one of his categorical statements:

"The whole question of sexual relationship is solved in one word—the God-fearing man, married or celibate, must always and under all circumstances be as chaste as possible.

"Marriage is not a Christian institution. Christ did not marry, nor did any one of His disciples, and He never authorized it. Addressing men among whom there were married people, He told them not to put away their wives—that is, not to divorce them, as had been allowable under the Mosaic law; to some He distinctly said that it were better they did not marry, and He told all that the greatest sin was to regard a woman as an object of desire."

But this is not all. Marriage is decidedly anti-Christian, Tolstoy asserts, for it turns men and women away from the only purpose of life, from their only duty—the realization of God's will. The love of man for woman or of woman for man conflicts with brotherly love, the only love that is pure, unselfish, essential to true happiness. For those who earnestly desire to follow Christ's teachings, Tolstoy draws the following moral and practical conclusions, after stating that Christianity in its ethical part holds up an ideal to be slowly approached, not a rigid set of rules to be obeyed once for all or disobeyed at one's peril:

1. "Those who are firm and strong enough to overcome temptation and weakness should not marry at all, but remain absolutely chaste."

2. "Those who cannot live up to this ideal of Christian conduct should marry and be as chaste as possible—have few children, live with their wives not as lovers, but as brothers with sisters, and they should educate their children properly, discouraging marriage and training them for celibacy."

3. "The married should regard themselves as sinners, but as sinners whose fall is not irremediable, and who are still able to promote the Christian ideal within their marriage relation."

The important thing, Tolstoy continues, is the point of view, and the chief trouble is that marriage has been regarded as a blessing, if not as an actual sacrament.

The prevailing conception, according to Tolstoy, is absurd as well as wrong. He illustrates this by citing the novelists. At present, he says, "novels end with the marriage of the hero and the heroine. They ought to begin with it and end with the separation of the hero and heroine—that is, with their liberation. To write of the life of men and women and stop at the point of marriage is like telling of a voyage and suspending the recital when the traveler falls among brigands."

Men, Tolstoy admits, have tyrannized over women and held them in legal subjection, but the effect has been disastrous to the men. The women have exercised the subtle and effective power of passive resistance and have secured the real control of society. It is the women who rule, who determine the direction of our art, literature, politics and government. They mold public opinion, which is stronger than law and government. Their influence is based on their attraction, and is essentially immoral and irreligious. They must be resisted and converted into comrades and coworkers for Christ.

For the Next Royal Babe.

It is said that never before has there been such a mighty stitching going on at one time as at present in Holland. Every woman of the kingdom appears to feel an absorbing interest in the prospective baby who will be heir to the Dutch throne, and tremendous rivalry among the good wives in the various towns is manifesting itself in the contributions which they are making to the royal layette. Little dresses, gowns, caps, skirts, sacks, coverlets, pillows—everything imaginable in baby outfitting—are being made in elaborate form, covered with beautiful lace and embroidery, and wrought with wonderful needlework skill. The women of Amsterdam are not content with mere needlework. They are to present a Dutch baby's cap of linen, with the great ear-lappets of the national head-dress, but the linen is to be sprinkled with costly pearls and diamonds. The women of the Dutch nobility will give a cradle to the royal baby. It is to be a very gorgeous affair of silver, decorated with the arms of Holland and Mecklenburg Schwerin, while at the head of the cradle is a full-sized angel of silver, and at the foot a silver baby of equally lifelike proportions. From the women of The Hague will come the christening robe of white silk, with its jeweled embroidery and eiderdown, and its buttons of diamonds, and the wives of the cabinet ministers are making the satin cushion upon which the baby will be laid as soon as born, so that, according to old custom it may be shown to the cabinet ministers, and they may certify that it is a genuine prince or princess.

Polite, But—

Anxious Father (from top of stairs)—Say, Mary Jane! Mary Jane—Yes, papa. "Is it eleven o'clock yet?" "Yes, papa." "Well, give the young man my compliments, and ask him to kindly close the front door from the outside." —Chicago "Daily News."

A clergyman observed his little son attentively studying a map of the world. "What place are you looking for, Willie?" he enquired. The small boy knit his brows and traveled a circuitous route with his forefinger before he answered earnestly, "Twying to find Christendom."

The guests are gone the smile slips from the face of the hostess and she gives up to the pain which racks her body. Many a woman entertains and wears a smile while her back aches and her nerves quiver with pain. Surely any medicine which offers relief to women would be worth a trial under such conditions. But when the woman's medicine, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, is offered with the proof of efficacy in thousands of well attested cures, what excuse can then be offered for suffering longer?

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"It is with the greatest pleasure I write you the benefit my mother has received from your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" says Miss Carrie Johnson, of Lowesville, Amherst Co., Va. "She suffered untold misery with uterine disease and nervousness and had a constant roaring and ringing noise in her head. After taking six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' she was entirely cured."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets stimulate the liver.

ASTHMA
EVERY BOTTLE BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.
DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:
Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,
REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

AVON SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901.
DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

H. H. Edmison, Druggist, Peterborough.

It is said on good authority that the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal will, before the end of January, announce that they cannot accept any more new subscribers for some time. Their offer of three handsome pictures along with a year's subscription to that great paper, for one dollar, has been the means of creating such a rush of new subscribers that all their calculations for supplies of pictures were knocked sky high.

The extra work involved in preparing the three large pictures for mailing has somewhat delayed the filling of orders, but a large staff are now employed night and day, and those who have subscribed, or do so this month, need have no anxiety about getting their pictures, as the publishers guarantee to carry out their promise, and that is sufficient for those who know them.

Anecdotal.

An assistant judge had dropped asleep on the bench. The presiding judge, who was collecting the votes, asked him for his. Rubbing his eyes, the latter said, "Hang him!" "But it is a meadow we are dealing with." "Ah? Well, mow it, then."

A young minister of high-church tendencies was called to preside over a congregation that abhorred ritualism and was a stickler for the simplest of services. He asked Bishop Potter what would be the result if he went in for ritualism just a bit. "Suppose I should burn a pastille or two during the service: what do you think would happen, bishop, for I dearly wish to try the experiment?" "You congregation would be incensed, your vestrymen would fume, and you would go out in smoke," quickly replied the bishop.

An officer in one of the English volunteer regiments, who had made himself exceedingly unpopular with the men, was coming home one evening when he slipped and fell into deep water. He was rescued with great difficulty by a private in his own regiment. The officer was profuse in his expressions of gratitude, and asked his preserver how he could reward him. "The best way," said the soldier, "is to say nothing about it." "But why?" asked the officer, in amazement. "Because," was the blunt reply, "if the other fellows knew I'd pulled you out they'd chuck me in."

The following conversation took place during a recent election in Cumberland, England, between two free and independent electors: "Wot's these 'ere Socialists, Jock?" questioned one of the other. "Well," replied the other, "it's this way. If yer had two carriages and two horses, you'd give me one, wouldn't yer?" "Just think I would," replied Bill. "An' if you'd two fields, you'd give me one, wouldn't yer?" "You bet I would," said Bill. "You're a Socialist, Bill—a born Socialist. If you'd two pigs you'd give me one, wouldn't yer?" "Nay, I wouldn't," replied Bill. "Before I'd give yer one I'd fight yer for it!" Bill had two pigs.

A worthy Sunday school superintendent was also the village dry goods merchant, and it is only just to him to say that he was energetic and efficient both in secular and religious pursuits. He had told most eloquently the lesson of the day, and at the conclusion he looked about the room and enquired encouragingly: "Now has anyone a question to ask?" Slowly and timidly a little girl raised her hand. "Ah, I see that there is a question. Well, what is it, Martha? Don't be afraid. Speak out." The little girl cast down her eyes, fidgeted a minute, twisting her fingers, and then said desperately: "Mr. Brooks, how much are those little red parasols in your window?"

CANADA BUSINESS COLLEGE

CHATHAM, ONT

has given you in the last two week's issues of this paper, testimonials from two out of four of its former pupils, whose combined earnings are $11,000 per annum—an average of $2,750. We now give you a third, and a fourth will appear in next week's issue.

Here is the third:

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 2, 1901.

D. McLachlan, Esq.,
Chatham, Ont.

My Dear Mr. McLachlan,—In response to your inquiry I gladly add my testimony to the many you have received as to the merits of the Canada Business College.

When I decided to take a course in your institution in 1888, I did so because I considered it stood second to none in America, and I have pleasure in stating that the practical course of training I received has proved very beneficial to me.

I have been connected with The D. W. Karn Co. Piano and Organ Manufacturers of this town for eleven years, and during nine years of this time have held the best position in the office.

In conclusion I might say I am receiving a salary more than four times as much as I received in 1888 when acting in the capacity of a school teacher.

I have no hesitation in recommending the C. B. C. to the favorable consideration of any young man or woman desirous of acquiring a thorough and practical business education.

Wishing you continued and abundant success, I remain.

Yours very truly,
E. C. THORNTON.

(Formerly a public school teacher in Durham County.)

Mr. Thornton is now office manager of the Karn Organ Co. of Woodstock, Ont. Had he continued at public school teaching he might possibly be earning $400 to $500 per annum to-day instead of the splendid salary he is now commanding.

If you cannot possibly come to Chatham, we can give you instruction BY MAIL, at your home, in Book-keeping, Shorthand or Penmanship, through our Mail Course Department.

During the past year 304 of our pupils secured good positions. Their combined earnings are close to

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000)

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in all development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The Incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to all enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of 500,000 shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is of 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.00 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hortensia White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page 283).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 1876, and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from 300 to 700 feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $12,000,000, and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $1.75 to $4.00 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Results of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. 2000 acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reserve that the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale 500,000 shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a 500 barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

SIGNOR MARCONI WILL VISIT CITY OF OTTAWA

Invitation Extended to Him by Finance Minister Fielding

He is Assured of Co-Operation by the Canadian Government

St John's, Nfld., Dec. 22. — Finance Minister Fielding, of the Dominion Government, telegraphed to Marconi this morning from Ottawa, offering him, in behalf of the Canadian Cabinet, every facility for erecting wireless telegraph stations on the Nova Scotia seaboard, making him most encouraging propositions, assuring him that there is no obstacle in the way of his carrying out his experiments in Canadian territory, and inviting him to Ottawa to discuss the matter. In consequence of this flattering proposal, Marconi will leave St. John's for Ottawa to-morrow night. He will meet at Montreal the capitalists who, through Governor Boyle have offered him financial support in his ventures.

LET IRISHMEN STAY AT HOME

Patrick McHugh's Advice as the Result of His American Tour

SAW DARK AND LIGHT SIDES

And the Lesson He Has Learned is That Sons of Erin Should Stay in Their Own Country

London, Dec. 22.—Patrick A. McHugh member of Parliament for the North Division of Leitrim and editor of The Sligo Champion, who visited the United States recently with John Redmond and Thomas O'Donnell, also members of Parliament, has been celebrating his return to Sligo by rather curious remarks about America. Speaking at a public meeting, he declared that the lesson he had learned from his tour was simply that the Irish should stay at home. This, he added, is the advice of one who has seen the dark as well as the bright side of life in the great American cities.

D'Arcy Scott Declines

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—Mr. D'Arcy Scott, president of the St. Patrick's Society, and son of Hon. R. W. Scott, Secretary of State, will not accept a position on the Executive Committee of the Irish League of America if it is offered him, but so far he has not heard anything of it. "I am not," says Mr. Scott, in an interview, "in accord with that part of the platform of the league which asks for the national independence of Ireland."

A Suspicious Death

A coroner's inquest on the body of the late William Miller, who was frozen to death among the lumber piles at Severn Bridge last Tuesday night was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at that village. As the evidence of a witness was not very satisfactory an adjournment was made until Dec. 28th, and a post mortem examination was ordered, which took place to-day. If the doctors' evidence shows that foul play has been committed an arrest will be made.

INCREASING RAPIDLY

The Peterborough Federation of Labor Rapidly Increasing Its Numbers

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Lodge—American Federation of Labour was held in the S. O. E. Hall on Simcoe St., on Friday night.

Mr. G M Roger gave a very able address on the history of the Peterborough Waterworks. Some discussion took place as to the part the union would take in the coming Municipal Elections, and it was decided that no active part would be taken as an organization, but that the candidates for Municipal honors would be asked to express their opinion at the meeting to-night.

About 30 new members were initiated at the meeting, which brings the membership up to nearly 700.

A vote of thanks was enthusiastically passed to Rev. J. C. Davidson for his general interest in the order, and especially for his remarks on Sunday last at St. John's Church.

ANOTHER EXPLOSION AT PITTSBURG

Seven Men Scalded and Twenty or Thirty Burned

TWO MEN ARE LIKELY TO DIE

Frozen Pipes Which Supplied Two Boilers With Water said to Be the Cause of the Disaster

Pittsburg, Dec. 22.— For the third time within 72 hours Pittsburg steel workers have been killed or maimed by terrific explosions. Following on the heels of two awful disasters at the Eliza Furnace of Jones & Laughlin on Thursday, and at the Black Diamond Steel Works yesterday, the city was shocked this morning by the report of another explosion at Singer-Nimick's west end plant of the Crucible Steel Company of America, in which seven men were scalded, one badly cut and twenty or thirty others slightly burned.

At 6.55 o'clock two of a battery of five boilers used to operate the sheet-mill exploded with terrible force. Scalding water played havoc among the workmen, who had just started in for the day, while pieces of the boilers caused great destruction to the mill property. Of the seven men scalded two, it is said, will die.

The cause of the explosion is attributed to frozen pipes, which supplied the two boilers of the five with water. This froze some time early this morning. About 60 men were at work in the sheet mill when the boilers let go.

Burned to Death

Rapid City, Man., Dec. 21.—The three year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McKinnon died yesterday morning as a result of a serious burning accident on Wednesday last. The little one was playing around a fire when its clothing became ignited and was terribly burned.

A Burglar's Confession

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—James Martin, one of the Ottawa burglars who has been sentenced to eight years in Kingston penitentiary has confessed to a Pinkerton detective, that he was implicated in a big robbery in Paris, France last summer. He told where a large amount of the booty is hidden.

Measures will be taken to recover the goods if possible.

ENJOYABLE ENTERTAINMENT

Concert Given in Magees School House Emily

A very pleasing and enjoyable concert was given in Magees School in Emily on the evening of Dec. 14th. A first class programme, consisting of reading, recitations, dialogues, vocal and instrumental music was presented by the school children and local talent.

Mr. John Mahood acted as chairman, and introduced each part in a very pleasing and happy manner. After a very successful programme had been carried out, the chairman, Mr. Mahood asked the teacher, Mr. W. H. Hooper and Mrs. Hooper, to come on the platform, when Miss Edith Ferguson read the following address:

To Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hooper:

It is with feelings of sorrow that we anticipate your departure from our midst, and we cannot let the occasion pass, without, in some way, expressing our sentiments. During the past few years, you have, by your united and untiring efforts, been engaged in that most noble task,—the moulding of the lives and character of the boys and girls, who are to be the men and women of to-morrow. For the accomplishment of that object you have spared no pains, and when your regular employment did not interfere, you found other channels as an outlet for your zeal. The full extent and value of your work, we cannot tell, nor will you ever be able to measure, suffice it to say, that those of us who have come under your influence will never forget your self-sacrificing devotion to duty.

Would you therefore accept this slight token of our appreciation of your services, and may it in after years remind you of your ever grateful friends and pupils. Be well assured that our best wishes follow you both for your future success and happiness.

Signed in behalf of the school

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Hooper was presented, by Miss Maud Henry, on behalf of the school, with a pair of beautiful Beaver gauntlets, and Mrs. Hooper a glass crystal tea set. The recipients were so taken by surprise that Mr. Hooper said he could scarcely find words to express their appreciation for the beautiful gifts, and the kind wishes expressed by the pupils and ex-pupils of the school.

Mr. Hooper has for eight years held the position of teacher in the school and by his kindly disposition, and genial manner has made hosts of friends for himself and Mrs. Hooper.

Mr. Hooper is leaving the school in March and will remove to Manvers to continue his work. Mr. and Mrs. Hooper will leave a blank in the community, and all will hope for success in his new field of work.

ASHBURNHAM PUBLIC SCHOOL

Below are given the promotions for Ashburnham Public School for the term ending December, 1901. The promotions are based on the results of the weekly examinations, which are entered in the monthly reports. By this plan, regular attendance and steady, faithful work are encouraged, and pupils have no opportunity to pass by cramming for a few weeks before the end of the term.

In most cases, the parents take a genuine interest in the reports, and sign and return them promptly.

Parents and guardians are expected to insist on seeing the reports of every pupil once a month, except pupils in the junior First Class, no reports are given to them, as they frequently lose them.

The names below are, in order of merit "Honors" means half in each subject, and 75 per cent of the total. "Passed" means 40 per cent in each subject and at least 60 per cent of the total.

Shocking Brutality

Cologne, Dec. 22.—The Gazette publishes a despatch to the effect that shocking brutalities are being continued by the Turks in Armenia. Russia may protest strongly to the Sultan if the story is substantiated in detail.

A COASTING ACCIDENT

A Little Girl Gets a Broken Leg and Severe Cuts

Dorothy Hill the five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hill, received very severe injuries on Friday afternoon, while tobogganing on Smith townhill. It seems that five or six little ones were enjoying the fun on the hill, and were seated on the toboggan, and, in going down the hill the one who was guiding lost control and it dashed into a tree with such a force as to cause little Dorothy's leg to be broken and cut, and bruised her considerably. At first people thought she was killed from the way blood was streaming from her head and face, but we are pleased to say such was not the case.

Miss Dorothy was quite bright on Saturday and we hope to soon see her around again.

Grave Reason for Alarm

London, Dec. 20.—The Times' Dublin despatch says, The absolute authority which the United Irish League demands and secures not only in regard to the disposal of lands by private persons, but also in regard to the alteration of public appointments and contracts, is constantly being illustrated. The North Sligo branch of the League has resolved that the local Nationalist Board shall not consider tenders by persons who do not prove themselves Nationalists.

The Times in an editorial says: The return of John E Redmond and companions from their mission to "raise the wind" on the other side of the Atlantic synchronises with attempts on the part of the Irish Executive to vindicate the law. Prosecution has been instituted against Nationalist members of Parliament and others who have defied authority of Parliament and the Crown, and have persisted in holding meetings at which violent incitements to terrorism have been used. "It is," says the Times, "perilous and misleading to argue, because the actual record of crime and outrage is not large, that there is no need for alarm about the state of Ireland. There is ample evidence that the aims and working of the United Irish League are openly supported by the Irish Parliamentary party and a majority of the priests. The pressure on peaceable citizens is tremendous, and it is not surprising that many Loyalists pay 'blackmail.'"

Verdict of Manslaughter

Rat Portage, Dec. 20.—Wm Watson has been on trial here for the past few days, on a charge of murdering a man by the name of McRae, who with another man endeavored to break up a quarrel in a hotel, between the bartender, Davis, and the prisoner. Watson fired two shots from a revolver, one of which struck McRae in the abdomen causing his death next evening.

The defence pleaded insanity, and said he had done the deed in a fit of insane anger. An uncle and sister are insane and prisoner was committed to an asylum in Oklahoma, from which he escaped in July 1900. After five hours debate the jury found prisoner guilty of man-slaughter.

Seriously Injured

St. Thomas, Dec. 20. Peter Abt. Section fireman and Mr. Weaver, laborer, on the Michigan Central Railway were badly injured this morning while riding on a handcar about a mile west of Hawtrey. The car was struck by a train and both men thrown some distance. Abt had his right shoulder and knee badly injured and Weaver his leg badly bruised. Both men were taken to the Amasa Wood Hospital where their injuries were attended to.

Canadian Officer Wounded

A despatch received by the Governor-General on Friday states that Major J. H. C. Ogilvy, a Canadian Officer on the staff of the South African Constabulary had been badly wounded in an engagement at Kilpent, in South Africa on Thursday last.

In October 1899 Major Ogilvy went to South Africa with the first contingent in the capacity of Adjutant and was with his regiment through its many engagements. For his services he received the D. S. O. from the Imperial Government.

After the first contingent left for home he accepted a staff position under General Smith Dorrien, a position which he filled with great acceptance to that office. In June last he was selected for a commission in Baden-Powell's South African Constabulary. Before leaving Canada for South Africa Major Ogilvy had served for sometime in the Royal Canadian Artillery as Lieutenant. In October 1896 he received the brevet rank of Captain, and in May last the rank of Major.

Three years ago he was chosen one of the officers to go to the Yukon, with the Canadian Permanent force to preserve order there.

A DISORDERLY SOLDIER

A Toronto Man Discharged from Rifles Arrested in Montreal

Montreal, Dec. 20.—Maurice P. Howard, a Torontonian, who enlisted with the Montreal Rifles in that city and went through with his fellow-troopers to Halifax, and was discharged because of his peculiar conduct, arrived in the city last night. He was brought before Recorder Poirier this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct and displaying a dangerous-looking knife to the police of No. 6 station last night. He was remanded till Dec. 27th.

THE LATE JOHN M'KEE

Formerly of Town Died Suddenly in New York on Saturday

The many friends of the late John McKee, in town will be grieved to learn of his unexpected demise in New York on Saturday. The first intimation of the sad and unexpected news came in the form of a telegram from Dr. C. S McKee, son of the deceased.

For years the late Mr. McKee carried on a drug business in town, but moved to Toronto five years ago, where he took a responsible position as travelling representative for a large drug firm. His territory was mostly in the States.

About three months ago Mr. and Mrs. McKee removed to New York. Mr. McKee expected to live for some time.

During his sojourn in Peterborough, Mr. McKee made made friends in town and country and the news of his death will come as a great shock to them.

Mrs. McKee and two sons will have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

Mr. McKee was a member of the Peterborough Lodge A. F. and A. M. and other fraternal societies.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

London, Dec. 22.—It is rumored that the newspaper correspondents who served in South Africa will not receive the silver war service medal, but a bronze decoration identically the same as will be given to mule drivers, colored Cape boys and other civilians employed in connection with the war.

The Pall Mall Gazette believes that the correspondents will refuse the medal, and that certainly those present in Mafeking will reject it because they were enrolled and fought with the defenders.

XMAS PRESENTS.

London, Dec. 22.—Lady Baden-Powell, mother of the Major-General, who is arranging the Christmas presents for the South African Constabulary, has announced that each man of the Constabulary has been sent a Christmas pudding, half a pound of tobacco, a pipe and a handkerchief.

ASQUITH'S PROPOSAL.

London, Dec. 22.—Mr. Asquith's proposal, as announced during a speech at Bilston recently, that the conclusion of the war should be followed by a generous measure of amnesty, does not find much favor in Unionist circles.

A REBEL'S TRIAL.

London, Dec. 22.— A despatch from Cape Colony says that the trial of Commandant Scheepers is progressing. There are thirty charges against the prisoner, including murder and arson. Scheepers was very active in Cape Colony before his capture last October.

AFFAIRS IN NATAL.

Pietermaritzburg, Dec. 22.—The people of Natal are already discussing the question of territorial expansion as a result of the war. Natal statesmen recently returned from England are of opinion that Natal will not receive, in the final settlement after the war, more than the Vryheid district, taken, it will be remembered, by the Boers from the Zulus. There are other prominent men who think that this addition to her territories will not be sufficient recompense for Natal.

DEFENDS BRITISH METHODS.

New York, Dec. 22.— Dr Conan Doyle, the novelist and war correspondent, is preparing a pamphlet in defence of British methods in South Africa. He treats of the hardships accompanying the suppression of guerilla warfare, the execution of rebels and the concentration camps. He has advertised in the leading London dailies asking that any documents or information dealing with alleged atrocities of any kind by the British army in South Africa be forwarded for his inspection to Undershaw, Hindhead.

Albany, Dec. 22.—The State Superintendent of Prisons has issued an order prohibiting the cutting of the hair of convicts with clippers, and directing that prisoners be permitted to wear their hair of such length as to comb and part properly. There have been radical changes in discipline in the state prisons in recent years, and many of the customs of the old systems have become inconsistent with the changed conditions. Among them were the lock step, which was abolished last July, and the "prison hair cut," which is now done away with. Mr. Collins says that these changes must not be understood as a relaxation of discipline, but merely the application of methods conducive to its greater efficiency.

Detroit Mich., Dec. 22.—Edith Collins a young woman with a police record, jumped from the second-storey window of a room in a house here last night, to evade the police, and landed on the stone sidewalk. Her skull was fractured and she may die. She was accused by her male companion of having robbed him of a sum of money, and when the police were called in she jumped from the window. A large roll of bills was found on the woman's person by the police matron.

BOERS CAPTURED BY A CLEVER ARRANGEMENT

Full Details of a Successful Swoop Made Upon Oshoek

THE BOER SPIES WERE DELUDED BY BRITISH

Camp Was Pitched with Ostentation, But at Nightfall a Rapid March Was Made

London, Dec. 22.—Full details have been received of the successful swoop on Oshoek, which resulted in the capture of a large number of Boers.—

Intelligence have been received through Major Woolls Sampson that the Ermelo and Bethal commandoes had laagered at Oshoek, 20 miles south-east of Ermelo, General Bruce Hamilton made careful arrangements to effect a surprise.

Colonel Spens reached Ermelo in the afternoon of the 3rd inst. and General Bruce Hamilton came up a little later the same afternoon, and the whole force proceeded to pitch its camp with considerable ostentation in order to delude the spies of the enemy who were hovering in the vicinity.

Towards nightfall, however, Colonel Spens' column moved quietly out, but doubled back to Kaffirspruit, where it was joined by the columns of Colonel Rawlinson and Major Gough. The combined forces then proceeded in a south-easterly direction, marching rapidly through the whole night.

Before dawn our troops spread out and covered a very wide front, with Spens on the right, Rawlinson on the left, and Gough in the centre.

Under the guidance of Major Woolls Sampson the British force quietly occupied a ridge overlooking a Boer laager snugly hidden in a hollow surrounded by hills. The first outpost of the enemy, consisting of 30 Boers, was discovered hidden in a donga within easy range of the Boer main force. The men at once surrendered. Their Kaffir sentry, however, in his excitement, emptied his magazine at our approaching troops, and so gave the alarm to the Boers in the laager.

BOERS IN A PANIC

The two pom-poms attached to Spens' column at once dashed into action, and, assisted by Jenner's mounted infantry, opened a heavy fire upon the camp, the first effect of which was to stampede most of the horses.

The Boers rushed hither and thither on foot in their attempt to escape, and hid under the wagons and disappeared in the dongas. Gough's mounted infantry charged the laager, which was captured without resistance, and the same force continued in pursuit of about a hundred Boers, who were escaping in all directions.

Of the fleeing Boers we captured about 20, but Gough was unable to maintain the chase for long, owing to his insufficient force.

The captured Boers were a very mixed lot, and included several old men and a number of young men between the ages of 14 and 16.

In the laager the captors found a few trophies taken at the fight with Benson at Brakenlaagte, many of the prisoners having participated in that attack. Was also found a British ambulance wagon.

Colonel Spens brought the prisoners to Standerton. This capture practically wipes out the remainder of the Bethal and Standerton commandoes.

Among the prisoners are the following Bethal officials:—Vermeulen, public prosecutor; Klynhans, landdrost of Bethal; Nagel, field cornet; Corporal Neude, Captain Drensberg, and Mr. Stojennes, Dutch Reformed Church minister, all of Bethal. There are also Mr. Stojennes, Dutch Reformed Church minister at Ermelo, and Dr. Burns, of Boksburg. The clergymen and Dr. Burns have since been released on parole.

THE BRITISH COLUMNS DESTROY TWO TOWNS

And Seven Villages With a Force of Two Thousand Men

London, Dec. 22.—Particulars have now been received of General Dening's operations against the Mahsuds in Waziristan. On the 4th inst. the force marched over twenty miles from Jhandola to Dwashinkai, within twelve miles of Kaniguram, and camped for the night.

Their advance has been entirely unexpected, but during the night the news spread rapidly among the Mahsuds, who began to collect. On the morning of the 5th the troops destroyed some villages and towns two miles above the camp. The column was followed on its return by Mahsuds, who came to close quarters with the rear guard. On the 6th troops halted at Ghurikhel, where some sniping took place during the day.

On the 7th the British column retired slowly to Marghaband, destroying villages on the way, the Mahsuds following as far as Kotahingha, once even charging and coming to close quarters. They were repulsed with small loss.

The mobilization of the reserve brigade has not been officially sanctioned, and the movement of the troops concerned is in abeyance.

A telegram from the Viceroy of India describing the operations against the Mahsuds mentions that the column under General Dening, 2,000 strong, marched with little opposition to Shinkai, where it destroyed two towns and seven villages, with heavy loss on the Mahsuds. On retiring the rear guard, consisting of 200 men, under the command of Colonel McRae, was attacked, but inflicted heavy loss on its assailants. The casualties were — Killed, eight; wounded, fourteen, native rank and file; Captain McVean, 45th Sikhs, wounded in arm.

ACCIDENT AT TIMES OFFICE

Boy Seriously Injured in the Press Room Saturday Morning

Norman Hines the twelve year-old son of Mr. A. Hines of Ashburnham met with a serious accident in the press room of the Times Printing & Publishing Co. on Saturday morning. The boy had been engaged to run errands in the Bookstore during Christmas holidays, and about nine o'clock in the morning wondered down into the press room to where his brother George was working. He stayed a few moments with him and turned to go up a few steps leading up to the bookstore. In some manner he got inside a railing and came in contact with a large belt which transmits the power from the motor to a counter-shaft which again transmits the power to the presses. What took him there nobody can tell unless out of boyish curiosity he went to watch the belt working on a pully, when in some unaccountable manner he was caught by the belt and drawn toward the pully. The machinery came to a sudden stop and the operators looked to see what was the matter, when they saw Norman lying on the floor beside a broken belt. Assistance came to him quickly, and a doctor was sent for and on arrival found the boys left arm broken above and below the elbow, two ribs were also broken and side badly crushed. Drs. McClelland and Pigeon were called and had the boy removed to the Nicholls Hospital where his injuries are being attended to. We sincerely hope that the injuries will not prove fatal and that the boy will pull through all right.

Later,—We received word from the Hospital last evening, which said young Hines was resting quietly. No particular change being noticed in his condition. While the report is not very reassuring we hope the unfortunate boy will soon show signs of improvement and that before long he will be all right again.

Up to time of going to press no further particulars could be obtained.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 23, 1901

Wet Moon and Dry Moon.

THERE are still some students of meteorology who believe that the moon may influence the weather, but the current popular beliefs on the subject are almost pure superstition. Witness the distinction between a "wet" and a "dry" moon, based on the position of the crescent, and still made by some presumably intelligent persons. The position of the crescent obviously depends on the relative positions of sun and moon, and is the same at the same season of the year. Mr. Arthur K. Bartlett has thought it worth while to devote a short magazine article to the detailed elucidation of all this. His explanation, which first appeared in the Battle Creek "Moon" (Battle Creek, Mich.), and is reprinted in "Popular Astronomy" (October), runs as follows:

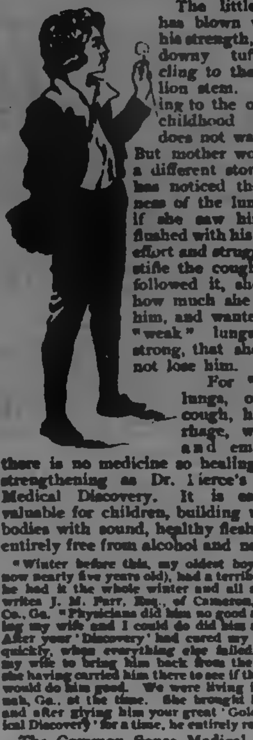
"Owing to the changing position of the crescent seen upon the western sky after sunset, such expressions as these are frequently heard: 'If the moon lies so water can not run out, we shall have a drought;' 'A wet moon is one upon which the Indian can hang his powder-horn,' etc. Now, it is a fact not generally known that the crescent moon always appears 'upon its back' in spring, near the vernal equinox, and 'upon its end' in autumn, near the autumnal equinox, and these positions, which occur regularly each year, may be easily understood by a little consideration after the conditions have once been carefully explained.

"The change of direction in which the moon's 'horns' are turned is caused by the varying position of the moon when at her 'new,' relatively to the sun and earth, and depends upon the difference in declination of the sun and moon. If the moon be further north than the sun soon after the 'new,' the sunlight strikes under her and she appears with her 'horns' upturned; but if she be further south the light reaches around her disk to the northward, and her 'horns' appear nearly vertical, as if the crescent moon was resting upon one of them. We see the moon in varying positions on the sky, and at first sight there appears to be no definite relation between her position and the position of her cusps or 'horns.' In fact, this feature of her aspect has seemed so changeful and capricious that it has even been regarded as a weather token. But in reality there is a simple relation always fulfilled by the moon's 'horns,' or points of the crescent. The line joining them is always at right angles or perpendicular to a line drawn from the sun to the moon, so that the 'horns' are always turned directly away from the sun. The exact position in which they will stand at any time is, therefore, easily predictable, and has nothing whatever to do with the weather. . . . As the late Professor Proctor well remarked, 'to assert that there will be such and such weather when the line joining the cusps is seen (for instance) nearly horizontal, the moon being new, is the same as asserting that there must be such and such weather at the time of new moon in February and March, if the moon is then nearly at her maximum distance from the ecliptic. And so with all such cases. If there were any value at all in such predictions, they would imply the strictly cyclic return of such and such weather.' The tradition that the crescent of the 'new' moon, when nearly horizontal, foretells a 'dry month,' or when nearly vertical a 'wet month,' is too absurd to be refuted, as it is without any foundation whatever. Like most other so-called 'signs,' those who accept them do so from coincidences observed. Cases which prove the 'signs' are noted, but those which do not are neglected, and we are convinced only because we wish to be convinced."

The Raw-Food Fad.

THE eaters of raw food are feebly encouraged by the editor of "Good Health," who remarks that whatever may be said of uncooked food, it is certainly preferable to food badly cooked. He says: "Just now the raw-food diet threatens to become a fad. Certainly many people are experimenting with this new dietetic idea. Fortunately it is not a very dangerous one. On the whole, much more mischief is done by bad cookery than could ever possibly result from the use of raw food, and there can be no doubt that it would be far better for the average man or woman to adopt an absolutely raw diet, and eat everything which he could possibly eat or relish in a perfectly raw state than to swallow into his stomach the horrible messes which are concocted by the average cook. If the writer had to take his chances between raw food and the food found upon the average table, he would certainly dine with nature every time. Raw potatoes would be far less likely to do mischief in the alimentary canal than fried potatoes, Saratoga chips, or even ordinary baked potatoes well buttered while hot. Raw beefsteak, dripping and quivering, from the side of a freshly slaughtered animal, is probably one of the most digestible of all known foods, although certainly not the most esthetic or appetizing; while the same steak, dried and fried on the griddle along with burnt butter and salt, is only a little more digestible than a bit of sole-leather. Raw wheat would certainly digest after a lengthy peregrination, but the same wheat made into doughnuts, griddle-cakes, pie crust, or noodles, might tarry for a lengthy period in some nook along the digestive highway without undergoing that transmutation by which harmless food-stuffs are converted into live blood and vitalized tissues. It is safer on the whole for man to take his food as he finds it in its natural state than to take it as he finds it on the table of the average boarding-house or hotel. In other words, it is far safer for man to receive his food straight from the hand of his Maker, than from the hands of a French cook. The raw-food idea is not to be hastily condemned nor too much discouraged. It will open the eyes of a multitude of people to the evils of our present ways in diet, and certainly will serve a purpose in pointing toward the natural way in diet from which the civilized portion of the race has wandered so far astray. Our natural-food friends only need to drop off a few coarse and comparatively innutritious as well as unpalatable food stuffs to find themselves in the perfect way in diet which was marked out for man in the beginning, and in which our nearest relatives, the gorilla, chimpanzee and orang-outang, are still walking."

"DOES MOTHER WANT ME?"



The little fellow has blown with all his strength, and the downy tufts still cling to the dandelion stem. According to the oracle of childhood mother does not want him. But mother would tell a different story. She has noticed the weakness of the lungs, and if she saw him now, flushed with his unusual effort and struggling to stifle the cough which followed it, she'd feel how much she wanted him, and wanted those "weak" lungs made strong, that she might not lose him.

For "weak" lungs, obstinate cough, hemorrhage, weakness and emaciation there is no medicine so healing and so strengthening as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is especially valuable for children, building up weak bodies with sound, healthy flesh. It is entirely free from alcohol and narcotics.

"Winter before this, my oldest boy (who is now nearly five years old), had a terrible cough; he had it the whole winter and all summer," writes J. M. Parr, Esq., of Cameron, Screven Co., Ga. "Physicians did him no good and nothing my wife and I could do did him any good. After your 'Discovery' had cured my cough so quickly, when everything else failed, I wrote my wife to bring him back from the country, she having carried him there to see if the change would do him good. We were living in Savannah, Ga., at the time. She brought him back and after giving him your great 'Golden Medical Discovery' for a time, he entirely recovered."

HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
EVERY BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.
The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:
Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.
DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

Here is the third:

D. McLachlan, Esq.,
Chatham, Ont.

My Dear Mr. McLachlan,—In response to your inquiry I gladly add my testimony to the many you have received as to the merits of the Canada Business College.

When I decided to take a course in your institution in 18[illegible], I did so because I considered it stood second to none in America, and I have pleasure in stating that the practical course of training I received has proved very beneficial to me.

I have been connected with The D. W. Karn Co. Piano and Organ Manufacturers of this town for eleven years, and during nine years of this time have held the best position in the office.

In conclusion I might say I am receiving a salary more than four times as much as I received in 18[illegible] when acting in the capacity of a school teacher.

I have no hesitation in recommending the C. B. C. to the favorable consideration of any young man or woman desirous of acquiring a thorough and practical business education.

Wishing you continued and abundant success, I remain,

Yours very truly,
E. C. THORNTON.
(Formerly a public school teacher in Durham County.)

Mr. Thornton is now office manager of the Karn Organ Co. of Woodstock, Ont. Had he continued at public school teaching he might possibly be earning $400 to $500 per annum to-day instead of the splendid salary he is now commanding.

If you cannot possibly come to Chatham, we can give you instruction BY MAIL, at your home, in Book-keeping, Shorthand or Penmanship, through our Mail Course Department.

During the past year 304 of our pupils secured good positions. Their combined earnings are close to

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.

Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.

F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of [illegible] shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about [illegible] miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one portion from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is a 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 67 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.50 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hortensia White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 67 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page [illegible]).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 18[illegible], and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from [illegible] to [illegible] feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $[illegible], and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 67 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $1.75 to $4.50 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are, now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 67 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lenghty to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. [illegible] acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 67 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 67 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reservation the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a 500 barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

SOME POSITIVE PROOFS

What is Being Told of Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills—No Cure No Pay.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills cured me of kidney trouble of many years' standing, and after I had tried every other known remedy. Joseph Bagley, Caledonia, [illegible], N.Y.

I was afflicted with rheumatism so badly at times that I could not walk. Nothing I [illegible] did me much good, until I tried Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. Three boxes cured me entirely.

I had the misfortune to have suffered [illegible] years ago from [illegible] [illegible] being at less than three strokes. I could get nothing to do me any good until I was induced to try Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I took nine boxes, and although not by any means well, I think I am in a fair way to recovery. I can now walk with the aid of a stick and feel myself getting better every day. M. F. Mann, [illegible], N.Y.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills permanently cured me of backache. I suffered for years, and took two boxes. That is a year ago. I have not had a symptom since. James R. Jackson, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

I do not believe there is a medicine to compare with Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills. They cured me of indigestion and catarrh of the stomach, after nine years' suffering. [illegible], G.T.R. shops, Montreal.

Vaccine Was No Good.

Provincial Health Officer Bryce had a blue report on the smallpox situation to give out this morning. "I am afraid we are in for it," was the way he expressed his apprehensions. "It seems to be coming at us from all directions." In connection with his advice for general vaccination, he states that it will not be safe to trust to the vaccine which was on the market last spring. In many cases it did not "take," and a lot of it was poor stuff.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1898, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of this treatment, in a plain, sealed wrapper.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

NOTE.—The Times requests its readers to contribute items of news to its columns. Anything that is phoned or sent in writing to the office, of a nature suitable for publication, will be received and published. [illegible]

—The thermometer registered 12 below zero on Saturday morning.

—The trains were all late on Saturday, owing to the heavy holiday traffic.

—The merchants had a good day on Saturday, judging from the crowds on the streets.

—The Standard Life Assurance Company, of which Mr. T. E. Bradburn is inspector, has sent The Times a very pretty calendar and almanac for 1902. It is characteristic of this progressive company to get up nothing but the best.

—The Orillia News Letter says, that at a first curling meeting there were 40 curlers all ready to [illegible] the roaring game, [illegible] curling club has about 100 members. Peterboro has, according to the report in local press, 40 members. There must be something wrong in the management somewhere.

—At the entrance of G. E. Whiten's photo studio there can be seen as fine a display of artistic photos as any one would wish to look at. Have your best photos taken at Whiten's, corner of George and Hunter streets, west side.

—Mr. Deacon David on the enterprising proprietor of the Ormond & Walsh drug store, has issued a very handsome calendar for 1902. It is a work of art, and shows that in Mr. David-son's opinion there is nothing too good for the customers of this popular establishment.

DEATH OF J.E. PARSONS

At His Home Rubidge Street on Saturday Evening

Mr. J. E. Parsons, a well known citizen, aged 50 years, died at his home, 143 Rubidge St. on Saturday evening at eight o'clock, after a lingering illness of over six months. Death was due to the effects of Consumption, from which the deceased has been suffering for some time. He was an employe of the Canadian General Electric Works, and will be greatly missed by his fellow employes.

The sympathy of the community will go out to his wife and child, in their time of sorrow. The only relatives in town are Alderman and Mrs. Wm Batten, the parents of the grief stricken wife.

The deceased was a member of the Foresters and Peterborough Lodge I. O. O. F. under whose auspices the funeral will take place this afternoon at three o'clock from his late residence Rubidge St. Interment will take place at the Little Lake Cemetery.

Original "Fake" Advertiser Dead.

John Napoleon Bonaparte Little, one of Wheeling's best-known characters, is dead. He was born in Pennsylvania sixty years ago. He went to Wheeling, Va., when a small boy, and has been a resident ever since, except the time he spent in the Union army during the late war.

He was known far and wide as the proprietor of "Pa" Little's celebrated Philadelphia cream pop. One of his great fakes was a corn lotion.

Twenty years ago he advertised that on a certain Sunday afternoon he would leap from the suspension bridge into the Ohio River, eighty feet below. The whole town turned out, and excursions were run by boat and rail for fifty miles. Little's cream pop and confectionery store was at the bridge entrance, and he kept seven clerks going all that day. When the hour arrived, "Pa" appeared wrapped in a flag, and announced that he had decided to postpone the jump till the river rose to within three feet of the bottom of the bridge. He cleared nearly $1,000 on the deal.

Another time he advertised that he would make a balloon ascension from the front of his store. This drew as big a crowd, and when the time came he appeared with a huge paper balloon, fired it and balanced himself in the seat, but it would not rise. He used many other dodges to advertise himself and business, and all were successful.

His wife, who was equally adept in helping along business, died a year ago. He leaves no relatives, and the G.A.R. post attended to his funeral.—New York "Journal."

Applied knowledge: "Spell ferment and give its definition," requested the teacher. "F-e-r-m-e-n-t, to work," responded a diminutive maiden. "Now place it in a sentence, so that I may be sure you understand its meaning," said the teacher. "In the summer I would rather play out-of-doors than ferment in the schoolhouse," returned the small scholar.—Wisconsin "Journal of Education."

"My little man," said the visiting pastor, "I am afraid you've been fighting. A black eye! Don't you want me to pray with you?" "Naw," said the good little man; "run home and pray with your own kid. He's got two black eyes."—Philadelphia "Press."

"He thinks he's popular, eh?" "Does he? Why, whenever his name appears in the paper, he fancies the public reads it this way: 'John (cheers), Henry (applause), Muggin (loud and continuous cheering).'" — Philadelphia "Press."

Professor Dabney—Ah, well, love is blind. Miss Penelope—Oh, no, Professor; love isn't blind—it is cross-eyed; it sees a lot of things it doesn't see, and it doesn't see a lot of things it ought to see.

A Miracle Explained.

The vagaries of memory are some of the most interesting of those connected with the human mind and body. Why do we forget certain things and remember others? Myriads of these irregularities are as yet unaccounted for; perhaps not even the cleverest metaphysician will ever account for them.

Professor James reminds us how something which we have tried in vain to recall will afterward, when we have given up the attempt, "saunter into the mind," as Emerson says, as innocently as if it had never been summoned.

Again, bygone experiences will revive after years of oblivion, often as the result of some cerebral disease or accident.

Such a case is the one quoted by Coleridge of a young woman in Germany who could neither read nor write, but who was said to be possessed of a devil because, in a fever, she was heard raving in Latin, Greek, and in an obscure rabbinical dialect of Hebrew. Whole pages of her talk were written down, and were found to consist of sentences intelligible in themselves, but not having the slightest connection with one another. To say that she was possessed of a devil was the easiest way of accounting for the matter.

At last the mystery was cleared up by a physician, who traced back the girl's history until he learned that at the age of nine she was taken to live at the house of an old pastor, a great Hebrew scholar, and that she remained there until the pastor's death. It had been for years the old man's custom to walk up and down a passage near the kitchen, and read to himself in a loud voice.

His books were examined, and among them many of the passages taken down at the young woman's bedside were identified. The theory of demoniacal possession was abandoned.

Curious Bits of News.

Dr. G. L. Johnson, whose studies of the eyes of mammals have recently been published, calls attention to the fact that men and monkeys alone possess parallel and convergent vision of the two eyes. On the other hand, the lower mammals possess divergent and consequently very widely extended vision. Squirrels, for instance, and probably hares and rabbits as well, are able to see an enemy approaching directly from behind without turning the head.

It is not surprising that more people live to be over 100 years old in warm climates than in the higher latitudes. The German Empire, with 55,000,000 inhabitants, has 778 centenarians. France, with 40,000,000, has 213. England has only 146, and Scotland 46. Sweden has 10, Norway 23, Belgium 5, Denmark 2, Spain 401, and Switzerland none. Servia, with a population of 2,250,000, has 575 people over 100 years old. It is claimed that the oldest living person, one Bruno Cotrim, living in Rio de Janeiro, is 150 years old.

Ever since the Forth bridge was opened—eleven years ago—painting has gone on continuously, according to the "Mechanical Engineer." "Beginning at the south end, the workmen take three years to cover the entire length of the bridge, and, as three years represents approximately the life of the paint, no sooner are they finished than the men have to begin again. In this way every square inch of steel comes under observation at least once in three years. The staff of men employed varies in number from the maximum of 36."

In comparison with the English tongue, foreign tongues seem parsimonious in some ways of expression and wasteful in others. For instance, it is impossible to "kick" a man in French. You must give him a "blow with the foot." The Portuguese do not "wink" at one; they "close and open the eyes." In the languages of the American Indians there is no word with which to convey the idea of "stealing," perhaps because the idea of property is so vague. It is related of one of the early missionaries that, in attempting to translate the Bible into Algonkin, he could find no word to express "love," and was compelled to invent it.

The first thing that strikes a landsman on a man-of-war is the rigid discipline observed everywhere. On some of the ships belonging to the tropical countries, however, discipline is very lax. The "Defense," a Haytian man-of-war, was lying in the harbor of Port au Prince. One day a mess cook, for some reason, cleaned about a peck of knives and forks on the gun-deck, and, being suddenly called away, and not wishing to spend time to go to the galley, he seized the mess-pot full of knives and forks and stuck it in the muzzle of the ten-inch gun, putting the tampion in after it. About an hour afterward the admiral came aboard, and as the gun was loaded with blank cartridge, they used it to fire a salute. It happened that the gun was aimed toward the town, and almost pointblank at the Grand Hotel. The guests assembled on the porch to witness the ceremonies, when they were saluted with a rain of knives and forks, which stuck against the wooden walls like quills on a porcupine. Fortunately no one was hurt, although there were many narrow escapes.

A Famous Necklace.

The famous pearl necklace of the Countess Castiglione, which has just been sold by auction to a French jewelry dealer for eighty-four thousand three hundred dollars, is one of the most beautiful things of its kind in existence. The piece consists of two hundred and seventy-nine pearls, which are threaded on five strings. Each string was put up separately and knocked down to different bids. Granberg of Paris succeeded in securing all of them, thus giving him possession of the beautiful necklace in its entirety. The countess was an eccentric character. To punish France for having become a republic she shut herself up in her house and never let the light of day shine on her, contenting herself with candles and gas. At the same time she abolished mirrors from her apartments, and thus spared herself the pain of looking at her face as it aged.

Fairyland

The local stores are now looking their prettiest, which befits the holiday season.

As the one presenting the greatest variety, in its own legitimate lines, China Hall stands pre-eminently first.

For twenty years this store has invited the public to view its Christmas display, and has received a generous share of patronage. The assortment of 1901 is more comprehensive than any of its forerunners, the stock including graceful ornaments, handsome dinner-sets, with their accompanying glasses, dainty china tea-sets, lamps, flower-pots, celery trays, salad bowls, pudding dishes, bread and butter plates, fancy cups and saucers in endless variety. In fact each article in this vast stock is suitable for a present, and a gift of china never offends, but always pleases its recipient.

China Hall in its present festive attire resembles a fairyland through which all are invited to wander, as the store will be kept open every evening until after Christmas.

Like Poison

Coffee Acts on Some People

That dizzy feeling, sluggish brain and throbbing headache are all direct results from the use of coffee.

"Coffee works like poison to me. It acts on my brain and nerves in a peculiarly disagreeable way.

"Being forced to give up coffee, I did it in a half-hearted way, drinking cocoa in the morning, but soon became tired of that and longed for the real Java.

"Finally I tried Postum Food Coffee, and since that time have drunk it to the exclusion of every other beverage. You can imagine I like it.

"Last summer I was in a place where nothing but Java coffee was served on the breakfast table, and I recommenced the use of it.

"In two or three weeks I again began to suffer from dizziness and explosive noises in my head.

"One evening after walking about half a mile I became dizzy and could hardly get back home, where I fell, exhausted, on the bed. I knew what the trouble was, and thereafter insisted upon having Postum instead of the old-fashioned coffee, and I got well in short order.

"I have always thought it worth while to warn the cook, wherever I happen to be, to make the Postum properly, that is, by boiling it long enough. Please do not print my name."

This person lives in Pasadena, Cal., and the name will be given on application to the Postum Co. at Battle Creek, Mich.

BRITAIN'S NAVAL POLICY STANDS FOR SUPREMACY

Present Naval Strength Fqual to Any Three of the Continental Powers

AND IS NOW BEING ENOEMOUSLY INCREASED

An American Expert Gives His Views on the British Navy—A Comforting Position.

Washington, Dec. 24.—A despatch gives an interview with Commander Richardson Clover, naval attache of the American embassy in London, who is home on leave. Commander Richardson makes some statements on the naval policy of England which sheds a comforting light on the real position. He says that the naval forces of Great Britain are in a far more effective and efficient condition than the Continental powers believe, and that never in her naval development, has England been stronger on the seas. Recent torpedo boat accidents have made little impression in British naval circles, he declares, and their program calls for the continued advance of the highest class of boats of the swiftest possible speed. Commander Clover added:—

"The naval force that Great Britain is capable of exerting is equal to-day to that of any three Continental Powers, and was never in a more efficient condition. The British service has been severely criticised but much of this criticism as to its efficiency is due to a policy of the Naval League and the press to depreciate in the mind of the public England's strength, in order that large appropriations may be secured for expanding the navy and to continue the policy of maintaining it equal to that of the combined strength of any two world Powers. The policy in England seems to be to impress the public with the weakness rather than the strength of the British service, with a view to ensuring additional ships through misapprehension in the public mind that the force is not keeping pace with its importance to the nation.

"England to-day is stronger than any two of the most powerful Continental Powers, and stronger than those with another Power included. She has 89,000 men afloat, and although her naval reserve is not so strong and perhaps as well drilled as that of France, the real strength of her personnel is in the trained disciplined men afloat, who are being constantly increased. Her Channel fleet is a magnificent aggregation of fighting force, constantly kept at sea and ready for any engagement. The ships are always in excellent condition, and reports of weakness and rottenness are without the slightest foundation of truth. These reports are circulated by the Naval League, an organization for the upbuilding of the British Navy, with branches throughout the British Islands. In fact, the Admiralty will often refuse to officially deny statements of reported defects in the British navy, and rather encourages a feeling of depreciation of its strength than magnifying it.

"Last year men were employed by the Admiralty to walk the populous thoroughfares of London with posters decrying the weakness of the British navy, and containing statements of the terrible condition of the ships and ruin that would befall the nation if the navy was not strengthened. The posters were designed to create public sentiment among the people for more liberal appropriations, and had some effect. The Naval League in its publications magnifies purposely any accident befalling a torpedo boat, or large vessel or any report of weakness developed in some fine ship, in order to depreciate the real strength of the navy in the public mind. This policy works upon the feelings of the people with the result that England each year votes enormous sums for her defences."

FRANCE NOT GAINING

Excess of Births Over Deaths Smaller in 1900 Than in the Previous Year.

Paris, Dec. 23.—The statistics just published by the Government concerning the population of France in 1900 less satisfactory than those of the preceding year. In excess of births over deaths was 31,394, giving the hope that France was slowly rebuilding up its population, but in 1900, on the contrary, there was an excess of 25,988 deaths over births. In only two Departments, the Seine Inferieure and the Cantal, the excess of births over deaths in 1900 was greater than in 1899. In thirty other departments the number of births in 1900 was greater than that of deaths, but that excess of births was inferior to that of 1899. On the other hand, in 55 Departments the number of deaths in 1900 was larger than during the preceding year; whereas, in 1899 that increased mortality existed in only 43 Departments. If the number of births diminished, the number of marriages increased by 2,302 in 1900, Divorces were less numerous.

A correspondent, writing in The Temps, has drawn attention to some interesting facts, relative to the marriages, divorces and births. In 1900 there were in France 299,084 marriages and 7,157 divorces. Therefore, of every 41 couples united in legal wedlock, one sought release from it. That was the average for the whole of France, but the statistics indicate that in Paris people are much more inclined than in the provinces to demand the breaking of the bonds of legal union, as one divorce was pronounced for every 20 marriages celebrated. The proportion of divorces in Paris, is therefore, double that of the provinces, the figures being 33,983 marriages and 1,653 divorces. Examining the births, the writer notes that there were only 73,121 illegitimate children born in France in 1900, and that 19,141, or almost one-third of them, were born in Paris. The statistics, not only of 1900, but of previous years, show that in France 21 male children are born to every 20 females. Nevertheless, the feminine population of France is a little larger. Men die earlier than women.

Quoting the statistics of the last ten years, the Temps correspondent affirms that it is the legitimate unions which are productive of that happy majority of the birth of male children. Taking the average of the last ten years, the writer shows that of the annual offspring of those legitimate unions, 390,364 were males and only 381,000 females. This predominance of the male sex is, according to the correspondent of the Temps, who has studied the statistics for many years, so constant as to be a sort of law. However, the predominance of the male sex in the offspring of illegal unions is much less marked. In this category, the average for the last ten years is 37,674 males and 36,817 females. As among the legitimate unions, the marriages des raison must figure for a considerable proportion, and as the illegal unions must all be regarded as unions d'inclination, the writer suggests that the sex of the child may, perhaps, depend to some extent on the relations of the parents.

INVESTIGATING WAR ENGLAND AND STATES

The American Papers Strongly Condemn The German Press

A WAR WITH BRITAN IMPOSSIBLE

So Says the Kansas City Star and Other Leading Newspapers in the United States

The Berlin Kreuz Zeitung prints an article "believed to be inspired by the government" the obvious purpose of which is to get the United State and Great Britain by the ears. It is explained that while the Kreuz Zeitung is not an official organ it is practically an organ of Von Bulow and on international affairs frequently reflects the views of the government.

The article openly urges the United States to intervene in behalf of the boers. And it would have us intervene with a vengeance by threatening to invade Canada. The writer observes that the United States would need only to give orders to march on Canada to bring Britain to terms and that if they should do this they would win the sympathies of the Christian world.

He reminds us Americans that we are a pretty bad lot in some respect; that corruption abounds in our high places; that we are dominated by a plutocracy, and so on. But he is good enough to say that all this will be forgiven us by the Kreuz Zeitung's eminently Christian world if we will only have the kindness to intervene in behalf of the boers.

How can we fail to have a better opinion of mankind in view of this beautiful and disinterested devotion to the interests of a poor suffering people engaged in a life and death struggle for independence with one of the strongest powers in the world? We have the more reason to be agreeably surprised at this expression of a noble, altruistic spirit when we reflect that it comes from a staunch supporter of the divine right of kings and that the boers are fighting for a government or two governments republican in form.

That is to say, we have the more reason to be agreeably surprised if we assume that the Berlin paper is entirely sincere in its championship of the boer cause, But we may be pardoned for suspecting that it cares much less for the boers than it does for the promotion of certain ambitious designs which are cherished by the German emperor if we may take certain of his speeches seriously.

We cannot be expected to overlook the fact that if a state of implacable enmity between Britain and the United States could be induced both these powers, and especially Britain, would be greatly weakened and it would be much easier for the kaiser to accomplish his imperial designs. If we of the United States could only be goaded into the attempt to wrest from Britain all her American possessions both powers would be to a great extent exhausted by the war and if she would succeed Britain would suffer great loss of imperial prestige and the kaiser would stand a chance to pick up a good deal of wreckage.

Why should the Berlin paper imagine that it is possible to induce us, under existing circumstances, to intervene in behalf of the boers? We are not exactly in a position just now nor do we desire to intervene at the risk of war with a firstclass power in behalf of anybody. We are on pretty good terms with John Bull and we are not likely to terminate amicable relations to please either the boers or the Germans.

WORLD'S NEXT GREAT WAR

Then the Nation Strong in Submarine Boats Will Be Ruler of the Earth.

Paris, Dec. 24.—Lucien Millevoye, Deputy, said to-day to the Journal correspondent:

"The next great war will be won by the nation possessing the most powerful submarine navy. The ships that won at Manila and Santiago are out of date. A terrible war of nations is inevitable sooner or later.

"Men talk of peace, but the war spirit is abroad. The big cruisers of to-day are at the mercy of tiny submarines, and nations careful of their safety will have to build a submarine navy.

"France is well supplied, but it is not building enough submariners. Aerial navies may come, but I do not see how they can be as destructive as invisible battleships under water. We have science enough to build a great submarine navy if our public men were only enterprising."

FREEZING CURE FOR FEVER

New York Doctor Claims Refrigerator Is the Latest Remedy.

New York, Dec. 24.—A new cure for typhoid fever—in fact for almost every fever—has been discovered and experimented with successfully. The patient is put in a specially constructed refrigerator the fever frozen out. The discoverer of the new method is Dr. Lester L. Rose. The refrigerator itself is nothing more than a long rubber bag with what are called "auxiliary pockets" for ice. After the patient is in the bag Dr. Rose treatment consists in wrapping him in a wet sheet and blanket, the temperature of which is gradually reduced from 70 to 40 degrees. In addition to this, ice is closely packed about the patient, who is kept in the refrigerator until nearly frozen.

THE SECRET OF LIFE AT LAST REVEALED

Dr. Houghton of Chicago Believes Mystery Nears Solution

WONDERFUL DISCOVERY IF TRUE

Explains How He Has Created Moving Cells from Chemicals—Problem Now is to Make These Organisms Recreative.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Living animals from chemicals, and life from substances, is the hope of Dr. A. D. Houghton, who was deposed from the faculty of Hahnemann Medical college. He says he was deposed because of his advanced ideas. The registrar of the college gives another reason.

Dr. Houghton yesterday refused to discuss the tilt with the school, but talked willingly of his work in attempting to produce life.

"I started in this work by studying the formation of crystals. I found that by retarding the crystallization of a solution I could form almost anything. I succeeded in this way in forming a shell of microscopic size. Then I thought I might be able to place life in this shell.

"Along in the early part of last century, Culver thought he had demonstrated that life was spontaneous, but later Tyndall exploded this idea and said that from nothing nothing could be produced. Now, I am not working along the same lines heretofore followed in the attempts to produce life from dead material.

PROVES THAT HE IS CORRECT.

"I assumed that if the essential components of protoplasm were worked upon by some force they would form a cell containing life. In this I have proved myself to be correct, but I have not been able to make these cells reproductive. When I do that, and I will, I will have solved the problem of creation.

"To make my method simple, suppose I took a portion of protoplasm from the human body and allowed it to rot so that none of the protoplasmic form remained, but still all the disintegrated chemical compounds were present. I have then simply the chemical components of protoplasm as though I had poured so many chemicals from so many bottles. By placing then in this solution of disintegrated protoplasm a motive agent such as an enzyme, which is not a living agent like yeast, but of the nature of pepsin I cause the chemicals which formerly made up the protoplasm again to seek their protoplasmic form and thus create a living cell of protoplasm. This I have done repeatedly.

CELLS NOT REPRODUCTIVE.

"I have not as yet been able to make these cells reproduce their kind, but Dr. Loeb has succeeded in impregnating unfecundated cells by chemical action and if this scheme is once applied to my chemically produced cells I will be able to make animals to order.

"But it is considerable in advance when one can create living cells that will display all the functions of organic life for two weeks or more. This I have done. I have had cells in my laboratory that I have created from chemicals poured from bottles and these cells have lived and acted for weeks in my presence. These created cells are the same and as good as any cell in your body, but they lack the power of reproduction."

FROM SOUTH AFRICA

LETTER FROM A CANADIAN LAD IN CHARGE OF STOCK

South African Farmers Were Cutting Their Oats a Month Ago—Only 27 Horses Died out of 180 shipped

Woodstock, Dec. 24.—Mrs. Joslin, of Wood's Fair, received an interesting letter from her son, Herb, Joslin, who went in charge of horses to South Africa. He writes from Cape Town that they were thirty-two days on the trip, which was quite smooth, no rough weather being experienced, and only 27 horses were lost out of 180. On coming into the harbor a fine view is obtained of Cape Town, and before landing the vessel was boarded by a doctor, who found no sickness on board. All the boys were in fine health, and enjoyed the passage thoroughly. As soon as they arrived they took the horses, about 25 miles out, to Durbanville, and along the way they saw the vegetables growing in the gardens, farmers cutting their oats, and except for the sandstorms, found it difficult to realize that they were in any other place than Ontario. He described Cape Verde Islands, where they stopped to coal up, and where they saw many things that were new to them. Among other things of interest were numerous sharks and whales, also the famous bird, the Albatross. While lying in the harbor of St. Vincent, the native boys would swim around the ship and dive for coppers, which they rarely failed to secure. For a nickel a boy would dive from the deck, 30 or 40 feet above water, and pass below the vessel, which was drawing 30 feet of water, coming up on the other side. St. Vincent is a small place at the foot of two mountains. The people are nearly all natives, the only whites being the Portuguese government officials. Here they saw what they have often read about, the children to the age of 12 or 13 entirely naked, and men and women with very little more clothing. They live in houses about ten feet square, one room, where the family eat, sleep, and live. As soon as they arrived they were boarded by the natives, and to one of them he gave an old coat, in exchange for 150 oranges and three cocoanuts, which they enjoyed very much.

How to Get up an Appetite

Distaste for food often follows Grippe and fevers, and is associated with a general weakness of the system. To impart a real zest for food, and give power to the stomach to digest and assimilate, no remedy can equal Ferrozone. This is a new and startling discovery. It strikes at the root of disease, and by removing the cause cures quickly and permanently. Ferrozone will quickly enable you to eat and digest anything. Ormond & Walsh, druggists, can tell you a great deal more about Ferrozone, how it cures, and why it cures. Call to-day and see them.

SPLENDID PROGRESS MADE BY THE BRITISH

Kitchener Getting His Work in Now in a Substantial Manner.

THE END OF THE WAR IN SIGHT

A Feeling That Resistance May Collapse at any Moment—The Outlook Brightening Every Day.

London, Dec. 24.—The concentration camps in South Africa are to be handed over to the control of the civil authorities. Eastern Cape Colony has been cleared of the boers, and our columns are operating Northward clearing the country along the Basutoland frontier. The chain of Blockhouses in the Transvaal has been pushed forward in a north and south line about two-thirds of the way from Pretoria to the Portuguese frontier. This means that the disturbed area in the new colonies is gradually being narrowed. There is a considerable force of boers in the western part of Cape Colony, but their dispersal cannot now be a matter of a very long time. The Imperial government is said to propose shortly to place the people now in the concentration camps out upon farms in the pacified districts.

We epitomize these facts in this way for the purpose of showing the nature of the progress being made by the forces under the command of Lord Kitchener. There is nothing very spectacular about it, and the absence of features of this nature has given rise to much unfavorable comment abroad. Foreign papers talk about "the war" as though we were contending with organized governments and organized armies, and that at any day the tables might be turned upon us. As a matter of fact we are engaged in that always formidable task of reducing a conquered country and a hostile population to order. The world has not seen very much of this sort of thing recently, but every one familiar with history knows that it is always a work of great difficulty and attended with many delays and disappointments. A few instances may be cited. One of them is the very serious undertaking the United States has on hand in the Philippines. Others are afforded by the difficulties France encountered in Madagascar, Algeria and Tonquin. In these cases the conquering governments were contending against semi-barbarous people, not very well skilled in modern warfare and almost destitute of modern military appliances. On the other hand the Boers are of European stock. They are just as courageous fighters and just as proficient in the use of modern arms, of which they have a good supply, as the best trained army in Europe, and for guerilla work they probably have no superiors in the world. If the task of restoring order under such circumstances is tedious, surely no one need feel the least surprise.

Lord Kitchener's task is rendered more difficult by the fact that it is a part of his duty to protect and in a very large measure support non-combatants, as well as cope with an exceedingly mobile enemy in the field. In this respect his position is almost without precedent. A Napoleon would have laid waste the country and subjected the unfortunate inhabitants to all the unnameable horrors of war.

THE PURCHASE OF THE WATERWORKS

Prolonged Discussion at Public Meeting Last Night

Not Very Much Opposition—Mayor and Council Endorsed

The present Mayor and Council were given a hearty endorsation at the public meeting in the Opera House last night to discuss municipal affairs and there wasn't a whisper of opposition to their continuance in office. There was a large attendance from the Federation of Labor. Business interests were not so well represented, owing, no doubt, to the pressure of the holiday season.

Mayor Denne was received with great heartiness and explained the objects of the meeting with his usual and commendable brevity.

Major Miller was first to take the floor. In an exceedingly complimentary speech he moved a vote of thanks to the Mayor and Council for the faithful and efficient way in which they carried out their work during the past year.

Rev. J. C. Davidson in seconding the motion was gracefully complimentary to the Council. President Henry of the Federation of Labor added his good word, Town Clerk, Armstrong put the motion and it was carried by a standing vote.

The Mayor made an appropriate acknowledgment and spoke with enthusiasm of the growth and prospects of the town whose welfare he has so much at heart. Two large factories are building. The Council is in correspondence with three or four others. They expect to meet representatives of two of these concerns in January, and there is every probability that one at any rate will establish itself here next summer. It is of great importance to the town that the Trent Valley canal be pushed to completion. Senator Cox recently declared that if he could get a pledge from the Minister of Railways and Canals that the northern section of the canal would be hurried to completion, he could get for Peterborough the largest factory in the Dominion. Twelve months ago, the Mayor said he expressed himself in favor of the town owning the waterworks. During the twelve months the council had given the matter very careful consideration, and he was still of the same opinion. The Mayor then called upon Ald. Best, chairman of the committee, to tell about the proposed purchase.

Mr. Best read the committee's report and explained certain parts of it. He read communications from Brantford, Galt and other places, showing that wherever municipal ownership has been tried the ratepayers are practically a unit in its favor. Speaking of the condition of the pipes, he said that the one recently broken on George street was lying on some old masonry, and the heavy pressure on the rigid support caused it to burst. The broken pipe now lies in the water company's yard, and anyone can see that it is not corroded, is apparently as good as when put in the ground. The Town Council of Moncton, N.B., held that the waterworks should be valued on the basis of cost of construction. The company held that the basis should be their commercial value, and the arbitrators supported the company's view. The value of the Peterborough works on the basis of cost of construction is $283,000. To this $27,000 was added for commercial value Arbitrators might make it more or less, but the arbitration itself would cost perhaps that amount.

Ald. Best answered many questions, showing his careful study of the matter. Ald. Shortly followed him with a few words and then Ald. Rogers discussed the question pro and con, pointing out objections but showing advantages that outweighed them. It was a matter for the ratepayers to decide. Speaking as a private citizen he was much in favor of the purchase.

Mr. J. H. McClelland wanted to know how much on the dollar of stock the shareholders of the waterworks company would receive from the sale to the town.

Ald. Roger said the company had $112,994 of stock. They had a mortgage of $80,000 and other items would bring their liabilities up to over $220,000. As near as the council could get at it, it will take all the money they get from the town to give the stockholders 100 cents on the dollar. Some of the company are opposed to the transfer. And they didn't let the council know all about the business.

Mr. A. P. Pousette thought that posterity rather than the present generation would benefit by the purchase. He asked for information about the commissioners.

Mr. Roger said the idea of the clause providing that the commissioners be "elected or appointed" was that the law might be amended so as to provide a better system than electing commissioners every year. It was a matter that might safely be left to the future.

Various others took part in the discussion which continued until a late hour. The prevailing sentiment was decidedly in favor of the purchase.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King and the Mayor.

SOON TO STRIKE FOR IRELAND'S FREEDOM

The United Irish League of America to Furnish the Necessary Funds

WAS THE RESULT OF MR. REDMOND'S VISIT

Independence of Ireland Will be the Battle Cry—The Address Which is Being Made to the People of the United States

New-York, Dec. 24.—At the meeting of the executive committee of the United Irish League of America, there was no attempt made to disguise the object of the League, which is to obtain absolute independence for Ireland. The constitution and bylaws are now ready, and are in the hands of the printers. The following is the full text of the address to the people of the United States and Canada:

"'Ireland by her chosen and accredited envoys who recently visited the United States and Canada, has called upon us, her kith and kin on this continent and on all lovers of liberty, to aid her in winning back from England the national independence of which she has been so unjustly deprived, and also the fertile lands, the natural heritage of her people, of which successive crown confiscations—the result of violated treaties—robbed their ancestors.

"The grievances under which Ireland, after the lapse of generations, still labors would justify an appeal to arms. Where her military resources and opportunities equal to draw the sword or use the rifle with even a reasonable chance of success we would prefer that method of obtaining her rights and avenging the insults heaped upon her by a remorseless government to any other. But we know that she is not—at present untrained, unarmed and without formidable allies as her people are—in a position to cope with the forces of England.

"Must we, therefore, brood in sullen silence over the grievances still endured by our kindred in Ireland while England is left to pursue, absolutely unchecked by any force whatever, her programme of the extermination of the Irish people on their native soil?

"Mr. Redmond and his associates told us fully and frankly, during their recent tour in this country, that the chief cause of despondency over the future of Ireland is the strong tide of emigration which ever sweeps the young and vigorous of both sexes from her shores, gradually but surely reducing her population to two classes—the aged and the immature.

"The threatening tide of emigration proceeds mainly from the agricultural classes, because, by a singular economic contradiction, the result of England's selfish policy and of landlord rapacity, the poorer lands of Ireland are overpopulated, while the richer are mostly given over to the beasts of the field.

"The great task then of our generation is to strive and root the Irish people in their soil—the work so gloriously begun by Parnell and now so ably prosecuted by Redmond, Davitt, O'Brien, Dillon and their associates The young rural people of Ireland must be given a living interest in the land that gave them birth. In order that they may cleave unto the soil they must be made, like the Frenchman, the Hollander and the Boer, farmer proprietors.

"The farming youth of Ireland must be brought down from the mountains and out of the moors which the wondrous industry of their fathers partially reclaimed and wrung a meagre living out of in spite of penal persecution and felonious landlordism. They must, instead, be planted on the broad and fertile plains, and enjoy the heritage intended for them by the God of nature.

"This, allied to the underlying cause of Irish national independence, is the noble mission of the United Irish League of Ireland. We, American Irish, are honored in being commissioned by its leaders to supplement its good work by forming an auxiliary organization in full harmony with that of which John E. Redmond is President.

"It is our duty to sustain Ireland in her chosen policy, which in no way conflicts with our national sentiments either as friends of Ireland or as American citizens.

"We therefore, obedient to the request of the Irish nation made through its accredited representatives, call upon the American Irish throughout the limits of this continent to form as soon as may be possible branches of the United Irish League of America, to co-operate with our Irish brethren in the cause of national liberty and agrarian reform."

THE LATE JOHN M'KEE

Death Came Very Suddenly and Was Also rather Unexpected

The following particulars have been received regarding the death of Mr. John McKee, whose death we announced yesterday.

"Shortly after saying good-bye to his wife, who was returning home to Toronto, Mr. John McKee expired suddenly in New York on Saturday. Mr. McKee was employed as a traveling agent by W. Lloyd Wood, the general agent of Allen and Hanburys, Limited, of London, England, for Canada and the United States. Deceased arrived in New York on Friday from New Haven. After taking leave of Mrs. McKee on Saturday, he went to his office, where he complained of feeling ill. While sitting in a chair, he began to slip towards the floor. He was assisted back to a sitting position, but died almost immediately. Mr. McKee was the father of Dr. C.S. McKee, the well-known Toronto physician. Mr. Harry McKee, of Toronto, is also a son of the deceased. The remains arrived in town last night and were removed to the residence of Mr. D. Belleghem.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. D. Belleghem, Hunter St. this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

Anecdotal.

The following anecdote is told by Andrew Lang in "Longman's:" Mr. M. of —— was out in the Forty-five. He was taken, and was being brought to the Tower with Kilmarnock and Balmerino. A block stopped the sad cortege, and a lady, looking from a window, cried: "You tall rebel!" (Mr. M. was six feet four) "you will soon be shorter by a head!" "Does that give you pleasure, madame?" said Mr. M. "Yes, it does." "Then, madame," said Mr. M., taking off his hat and making a low bow, "I do not die in vain."

A writer in the San Francisco "Argonaut" spoils a good story in this wise: Pauline Bonaparte Borghese, Napoleon I.'s younger sister, posed entirely nude to Canova, and it is said that she remarked, when asked if she did not feel cold without drapery: "No, the room was kept warm by a stove." The real story, according to the "Critic," is that a friend, who was very much shocked when she heard what Pauline had done, exclaimed, "How could you do such a thing!" To which the Princess replied, with a shrug of her beautiful shoulders, "It was nothing—the room was warm."

One day, just as Pere Monsabre, the celebrated Dominican preacher of the Cathedral of Notre Dame, Paris, was preparing to ascend the pulpit, a message came to him that a lady wanted to see him who was worried about an affair of conscience. After much waste of time she came to the point. She was given up to vanity. That very morning, she confessed, she had looked in her looking-glass and yielded to the temptation of thinking herself pretty. Pere Monsabre looked at her and said, quietly: "Is that all?" "That's al," "Well, my child," he replied, "you can go away in peace, for a mistake is not a sin."

The story is told of three Protestant ladies who walked into a Roman Catholic church in Ireland during high mass. It was raining, and they had gone in for shelter. The priest, one of nature's gentlemen, recognised the ladies, and, stooping down, said to an attendant: "Three chairs for the Protestant ladies." It was a kindly thought, but the priest must have wished he had never thought it when the man stood up in the church and shouted: "Three cheers for the Protestant ladies!" It was over in a minute— the cheers were cheered and could not be called back; but it was one of the most uncomfortable moments in the good priest's life.

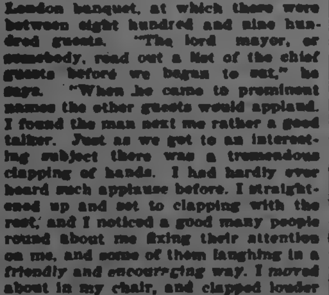
Herbert Spencer, the great English sociologist and philosopher, is very fond of a game of billiards, and the other day at the Reform Club in London he met an acquaintance whom he invited to play with him. The young member accepted, and Spencer said joyfully, as he chalked his cue: "Young man, good billiard-playing is the proof of a well-balanced mind." "I believe it is," replied the young man. They played and the great writer was beaten fearfully. He had only scored thirty-eight when his young antagonist finished his one hundred. Herbert Spencer put the cue away in disgust. "Young man," he said, "such fine billiard-playing as yours is the proof of an ill-spent youth."

General O. O. Howard, who commanded one of the wings of Sherman's army on the famous march to the sea, and who bore Lee's first shock at Gettysburg, was once interviewed on the subject of answers to prayer. In his famous fight with Stonewall Jackson the Union forces were defeated, so he was asked: "You prayed before that battle?" "Yes," he answered. "And Jackson was a praying man. He prayed also?" "Yes," he assented. "Then how was it he gained the victory? Did that mean that the Union cause was wrong?" Very gently the good old general replied: "Both our prayers were answered. Jackson prayed for immediate victory and I for the ultimate triumph of our cause. We both got what we prayed for."

Mark Twain had a peculiar experience when he attended his first great London banquet, at which there were between eight hundred and nine hundred guests. "The lord mayor, or somebody, read out a list of the chief guests before we began to eat," he says. "When he came to prominent names the other guests would applaud. I found the man next me rather a good talker. Just as we got to an interesting subject there was a tremendous clapping of hands. I had hardly ever heard such applause before. I straightened up and set to clapping with the rest, and I noticed a good many people round about me fixing their attention on me, and some of them laughing in a friendly and encouraging way. I moved about in my chair, and clapped louder than ever. 'Who is it?' I asked the gentleman on my right. 'Samuel Clemens, better known in England as Mark Twain,' he replied. I stopped clapping. The life seemed to go out of me. I never was in such a fix in all my days."

Not a Happy Outlook.

"Life."



Potato Palmist—This line tells me that you will meet with a terrible accident in your old age. You will be skinned alive, your eyes will be dug out, then you will be boiled, and finally mashed to a pulp.

A school inspector, having a few minutes to spare after examining the school, put a few questions to the lower form boys on the common objects in the schoolroom.

"What is the use of that map?" he asked, pointing to one stretched across the corner of the room; and half a dozen shrill voices answered, in measured articulation:

"It's to hide the teacher's bicycle, sir!"—Wasp."

The Secret

Of womanly health would be esteemed as priceless by thousands of suffering women. Each month sees them moaning in a darkened room. At the best they endure pain every day. At the worst the pain becomes torment.

The secret of womanly health is in keeping the womanly organism in a perfectly healthy state. This can be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, dries debilitating drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Women suffering from chronic forms of disease are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential and womanly confidences are guarded by strict professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There is nothing else "just as good" for womanly ailments.

"I suffered for more than two years with female weakness of very bad form," writes Mrs. D. Marwood, of Treherne, Macdonald Co., Manitoba. "I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' with good results. I am able to do all my own work now. I do not know how to thank you enough for the kind advice you have sent me by letter. Your remedies did for me more than all other doctor's medicines, and I have taken lots of them."

Verdict of Manslaughter

Rat Portage, Dec. 20.—Wm Watson has been on trial here for the past few days, on a charge of murdering a man by the name of McRae, who with another man endeavored to break up a quarrel in a hotel, between the bartender, Davis, and the prisoner. Watson fired two shots from a revolver, one of which struck McRae in the abdomen causing his death next evening.

The defense pleaded insanity, and said he had done the deed in a fit of insane anger. An uncle and sister are insane and prisoner was committed to an asylum in Oklahoma, from which he escaped in July 1900. After five hours debate the jury found prisoner guilty of man-slaughter.

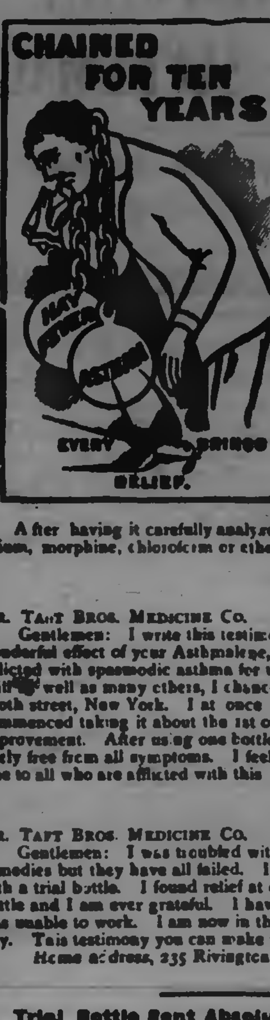
Asthma Cure Free

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent Cure in All Cases,

Sent ABSOLUTELY FREE on receipt of postal. Write your name and address plainly.



There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER
Rabbi of the Cong. Bnai Israel.
NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:

Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,

O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

Tale of The Press Censor.

MR. A. G. HALES, the war correspondent, tells a funny story about a press censor in the second number of the "Week-End." We had some fun, he says, with some of those haughty gentlemen of the press gag. I was working part of the time with a correspondent who had two faults: firstly, he wrote a hand that no one but a telegraph clerk or a compositor could decipher; secondly, he stuttered when he talked, so that no one but an archangel could understand him when excited. We struck a most imperious censor, who was so well informed that I doubt if he could read cold print without assistance. My friend took up his "copy." It was an awful hand. If he had written it with the butt-end of a Blucher boot I don't think it could have been worse. The censor looked at it and handed it back. "Can't send messages in cypher," he said. "That ain't cyp-p-p-p-pher, it's pla-a-a-ain English," retorted the correspondent. "Well, then, if that is plain English, just you read it out for me, for I'm blanked if I can read it," said the censor.

So the correspondent commenced to read. He stuttered and stammered through half of it; then the censor stopped him. "Halt," he cried; "you write as if you were an India-rubber idol, but you talk ten times worse than you write. Give it to me; I'll sign it. No operator on earth can read it." But the operator could and did, and my friend got off the smartest bit of news that had left the front for many a day. However, when the censor found out what he had been induced to sign he evened matters up by sending the correspondent after his "cable" as far as Cape Town, where he is to this day. It is good fun to get him to talk about that censor; he gets so wild and stutters so much that he has to finish his story in deaf and dumb language on his fingers.

Working Himself Out of a Job.

A collector of bad accounts received a lesson from a delinquent debtor a few days ago that has started him to thinking a bit. The collector had been chasing this delinquent for about six months and had become tired of "Call to-morrow," "I haven't it just now," and other excuses of a similar dilatory nature, and thought it was time to become "sassy."

"See here," he said, the last time he called, "are you ever going to pay this bill?"

"Why, yes," replied the delinquent, "I suppose I will pay it some day or other. But look here yourself, young man; I think I can show you a thing or two. How many bills have you in that bundle?"

"About forty, I guess."

"How long does it take you to visit these people?"

"Generally, I can get over my route in a day."

"Suppose every one of them should pay up?"

"That would be fine!"

"Oh, it would, would it? What would you do for a living if everybody paid promptly?"

The collector turned the thought over in his mind for a moment or two, and looked blank.

"Gracious!" he said, "I'd be out of a job!"

"That's exactly my point. Don't, therefore, be so infernally anxious to collect every cent due to your people at one time. A few collections a day are enough. As for my account, come around some day next week, and I may help you out of business by paying it. Good-day."

—THE—

CANADA BUSINESS COLLEGE

Chatham, Ont.

has given you in the last two week's issues of this paper, testimonials from two out of four of its former pupils, whose combined earnings are $11,000 per annum—an average of $2,750. We now give you a third, and a fourth will appear in next week's issue.

Here is the third:

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 3, 1901.

D. McLachlan, Esq.,
Chatham, Ont.

My Dear Mr. McLachlan,—In response to your inquiry I gladly add my testimony to the many you have received as to the merits of the Canada Business College.

When I decided to take a course in your institution in 1888, I did so because I considered it stood second to none in America, and I have pleasure in stating that the practical course of training I received has proved very beneficial to me.

I have been connected with The D. W. Karn Co. Piano and Organ Manufacturers of this town for eleven years, and during nine years of this time have held the best position in the office.

In conclusion I might say I am receiving a salary more than four times as much as I received in 1888 when acting in the capacity of a school teacher.

I have no hesitation in recommending the C. B. C. to the favorable consideration of any young man or woman desirous of acquiring a thorough and practical business education.

Wishing you continued and abundant success, I remain,

Yours very truly,
H. C. THORNTON.

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.

Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.

F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of 500,000 shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 40 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is a 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.00 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hermosa White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page 283).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 1875, and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from 200 to 700 feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $15,000,000, and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $1.75 to $4.00 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid returns. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. 2000 acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reservation the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale 500,000 shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a 500 barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

London, Dec. 22.—It is rumored that the newspaper correspondents who served in South Africa will not receive the silver war service medal, but a bronze decoration identically the same as will be given to mule drivers, colored Cape boys and other civilians employed in connection with the war.

The Pall Mall Gazette believes that the correspondents will refuse the medal, and that certainly those present in Mafeking will reject it because they were enrolled and fought with the defenders.

XMAS PRESENTS.

London, Dec. 22.—Lady Baden-Powell, mother of the Major-General, who is arranging the Christmas presents for the South African Constabulary, has announced that each man of the Constabulary has been sent a Christmas pudding, half a pound of tobacco, a pipe and a handkerchief.

ASQUITH'S PROPOSAL.

London, Dec. 22.—Mr. Asquith's proposal, as announced during a speech at Bilston recently, that the conclusion of the war should be followed by a generous measure of amnesty, does not find much favor in Unionist circles.

A REBEL'S TRIAL

London, Dec. 22.—A despatch from Cape Colony says that the trial of Commandant Scheepers is progressing. There are thirty charges against the prisoner, including murder and arson. Scheepers was very active in Cape Colony before his capture last October.

AFFAIRS IN NATAL.

Pietermaritzburg, Dec. 22.—The people of Natal are already discussing the question of territorial expansion as a result of the war. Natal statesmen recently returned from England are of opinion that Natal will not receive, in the final settlement after the war, more than the Vryheid district, taken, it will be remembered, by the Boers from the Zulus. There are other prominent men who think that this addition to her territories will not be sufficient recompense for Natal.

DEFENDS BRITISH METHODS.

New York, Dec. 22.—Dr. Conan Doyle, the novelist and war correspondent, is preparing a pamphlet in defence of British methods in South Africa. He treats of the hardships accompanying the suppression of guerilla warfare, the execution of rebels, and the concentration camps. He has advertised in the leading London dailies asking that any documents or information dealing with alleged atrocities of any kind by the British army in South Africa be forwarded for his inspection to Undershaw, Hindhead.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1896, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of this treatment, in a plain, sealed wrapper.

Slight Misunderstanding

Pte Dick Boyle of 'C' Squadron Canadian Mounted Rifles, writing from Willow Park Camp, — Halifax, to a friend in town says:

Dear Sir,— Some of the Peterborough boys having received a check for $25 from the Town by this morning's mail, I thought I would receive one too, but I see the town took good care that they didn't send it to me. Well, if I am not able to take care of any money for myself, I will let the town know. It was just the same last time; I only received it about ten minutes before the boat sailed, whereas the others got theirs a few days after they left town. I shall write and tell my mother to return it. I don't consider it a favour granting me $25, and I don't care whether they do so or not. They must send it to me direct or not at all.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain,

NUT-BEARING TREES

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have an idea regarding city forestry that I think would work in Peterborough and other towns and cities in Canada. I am of the opinion that trees planted in public squares and on streets should be of the nut-bearing variety. I believe that a sense of honor could be cultivated in boys even in the worst neighborhood if it were explained that the nuts belonged to them and that they would only damage their own property if they interfered with them before the proper time. Then when the nuts were ripe they would be taken from the trees under the direction of the City Forestry Department, and a new festival day be inaugurated, marking their distribution. What do you think of the idea, Mr. Times?

Yours truly,
JOS. CULLY.

PETERBOROUGH'S G. F. J.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I send herewith a few verses, scratched off at random, which are dedicated to Peterborough's leading newspaper, The Times. If you care to insert it, you may do so, only do not put my name at the bottom, as I am of a retiring disposition:

The Times it now beats all creation,
It's got a growing circulation;
The paper's good, the types are new,
There's every appearance there, too;
From [illegible] all the way to [illegible],
From Keene and Lindsay [illegible] came;
There [illegible] papers small [illegible],
They beat all nature, they're such rushers;
The Times' reporters top the wire,
Long life success and grand success [illegible]
Await the sheet from Peterboro town.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,
A READER.

Lakefield, Dec. 23.

Reply.—We put the above in, although it may break the press. We are sorry our contributor is so modest; were he less retiring, he might rise to eminence as a writer of poetry. But we fear there is no hope for a man who has no ambition to see his name at the foot of such a literary gem as the above.—Ed. Times.

TO LIFT THE FALLEN

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Icy pavements are now with us, and women are beginning to fall frequently. Do you know the right way to help them up? I ask the readers of The Times this because I see all about me in the winter time prostrate women, and men making monkeys of them and of themselves by offering help that is not helpful. For instance, down goes a young lady. A young man rushes to her and standing before her, takes both her hands. Then he pulls, but since she has nothing to brace her feet against, instead of rising to the pull, she slides along in an undignified way. Another woman falls, and the man who runs to her gives her his hand. She takes it, so as not to hurt his feelings, but it is a hindrance to her, instead of a help, for unless she is being actually lifted up, she needs both her hands in rising, one to arrange her skirts with, the other to press on the pavement as a kind of lever. The proper way to assist a woman to her feet is to stand before her saying, with a smile and a soothing gesture: "Remain perfectly still, please," and then to step gallantly to the rear, put your hands under her arms and raise her with a firm grip.

I was pleased to see the article in The Times a short time ago regarding the clearing of the snow from the sidewalks. Surely we are as intelligent and as progressive as the people of Westmount.

FROM HALIFAX

Our Soldier Boys Express Their Thanks for the Gift From the Council

Yesterday Mayor Denne received letters from Messrs. R. H. Turner, Fred Trussler and George Daniels acknowledging the receipt of a cheque from the Town Council for $25.00 to each of them. Below are the letters as received which will be read with interest.

FROM REG TURNER.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 19, 1901.

To Mayor Denne and the Town Council of Peterborough:—

Gentlemen,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your cheque for $25.00, which you so generously granted me on this, the eve of my departure for South Africa, for which kindly accept my sincere thanks, as it is appreciated very much; more so from the fact that it was far beyond my expectation. I have no idea when we will leave here. The western men came in last night and are a very fine lot of fellows, yet our Ontario boys are no second. Last but by no means least, The Noble Dozen, as our Corp. Brown, see "Major Brown of 3rd Dragoons" calls us, have both feet in the correct place every time. Every one here speak of us as The Noble Dozen, and I trust we may live and die, to merit the title and wishing Town and Council (not forgetting yourself, Mr. Mayor), the good wishes and prosperity of one, who when my time expires, will be pleased to again get back to the best town in Canada.

I am, Dear Sir,
Your Humble Servant,
REG H. TURNER.

I hope I may do my duty as one of your representatives and be a credit to my Town and Country. The boys are all well and we appreciate your enthusiastic send-off which you gave us. I wish you and the good old Town every success, and wishing you all a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year, I remain, Gentlemen, Yours for King and Country.

THE QUOTA COMPLETE

Large Numbers of Applicants—Rigid Examinations

At the drill hall yesterday recruiting for Peterborough's second quota of eight men was begun at 9.30 During the day Surgeon-Major Young was busy examining recruits, and about twenty five men received their medical attention. There were about fifty applications for places so the recruiting officer had plenty to choose from.

At noon Lt. Col. Lessard arrived from Toronto and in the afternoon the men were paraded and the number chosen. The examinations were most rigid and many of the boys went away badly disappointed.

The complete list of those who were accepted is as follows:

Sergt. Murphy,—57th Regt.
W. C. Bradburn,—3rd, P.W. Dragoons
Leo. O'Connor,—57th Regt.
A. B. Cranfield,—57th Regt.

POWERS PREPARE TO ACT AGAINST SULTAN

Will Insist on Reforms in the Dominions of the Ruler of Turkey

FRENCH AND RUSSIANS ARE TAKING THE LEAD

Conditions in Armenia and Macedonia Regarded by the Powers as a Menace to Peace

London, Dec. 24.—There are increasing signs that the great powers of Europe are concentrating definite plans for action toward Turkey.

Early this week the Russian Ambassador in Constantinople informed Said Pasha, the new Grand Vizier, that the condition of Armenia and Macedonia was regarded by Europe as a disgrace to the Ottoman Government and peril to universal peace.

This significant announcement was followed almost immediately by a presentation of notes by all the Ambassadors with reference to the amazing attitude adopted by the Porte in the matter of the mining regulations.

UNDERSTANDING IS SOUGHT.

France and Russia are the leaders in this latest attempt to set the European steam roller in motion to make smooth the rough places of Turkey. What they are trying to reach is the basis of "an understanding for making representations to the Porte and for eventually taking action in order to oblige the Sultan not only to carry out the clauses of the Treaty of Berlin relating to both Macedonia and Armenia, but to give guarantees for the execution of these and further reform and for the settlement of the numerous questions pending." So run the terms of what is undoubtedly a semi-official communication from Paris.

Russia it is said, is discussing the question with Germany, the co-operation of Austria-Hungary and Italy can be taken for granted, and there is no doubt that Lord Lansdowne, the British Foreign Secretary, will combine in any genuine scheme to effect the objects which Lord Salisbury vainly endeavoured to obtain some years ago.

NECESSITY OF UNITY.

There has never been the least question that the powers could speedily solve the problem of the near East if they would speak with one voice and were animated by one fairly disinterested motive. But right here has been the hitch.

France startled the world by her independent course at Mitylene. Papers now assert in Paris—probably on the authority of the quai d'orsay—that French action was not more dramatic simply because the whole fabric of Ottoman administration is so rotten that a heavy blow might pulverize it. If this be so, all the more credit is due to M. Delcasse for forbearance. The Turkish flag waves over many millions of human beings, and the horrors that would follow the overthrow of the regime of Abdul Hamid until such time as an efficient substitute was ready, can be more easily imagined than described.

What would be the attitude of the Sultan should the powers come to an understanding that would leave him no room to question their earnestness? No one can predict with certainty the course of this most remarkable and miserable of potentates, but the opinion in London is that, so long as the dread word "partition" remained unspoken, Abdul Hamid would offer nothing more than a conventional opposition to the demands of Europe.

He is getting on in years. By degrees he has drawn into his own hands all the threads of administration throughout his vast dominions. The Sultan is one of the hardest workers in the world, but no physique is capable of indefinitely sustaining the strain he imposes on both mind and body.

As a natural result, intervals of absolute inertness overtake him, and the accumulated work, which he will allow no one else to touch, has fallen appallingly into arrears.

ALIENATES HIS SUBJECTS.

Moreover, Abdul Hamid trusts no one. He has alienated the whole Mussulman population of the capital. Individual freedom no longer exists in the capital, even for the faithful. Secret arrests and sudden disappearances increase. Within a fortnight, seventy Turks, including several prominent men, have been denounced by spies and banished to Arabia. The troops are unpaid. If an Arabi appeared tomorrow the Yildiz would be sacrificed.

All this is known and fully appreciated by the Sultan. It all predisposes him to yield to the powers. The question resolves itself into one of method, and the plan which finds most favor among the advocates of Turkish reforms is the opening of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus to all the fleets of the world. Truly a simple remedy, but its very simplicity is the most formidable obstacle to its adoption.

AFTER THE WAR

Mr. Rhodes' Idea of How South Africa Should be Treated.

Capetown, Dec. 23.—A letter from Mr. C. J. Rhodes is published, elaborating a scheme of British land settlement in South Africa, and indicates one line of probable British action after the war. Boer farms vacated by the death or banishment of the former occupants are to be sold. It is hoped that a good many of them will fall to British settlers, preferably yeomen from England now serving in the army. Mr. Rhodes proposes the sale of the land at a low rate of interest, with a sinking fund, so that settlers may have a sense of possessing the property, the expenditure being made a debt of the Transvaal. There are only between four and five thousand habitable farms in the Transvaal, the rest situated in the low country, being used only in winter, when the Boers used to trek with their stock to them. On these 5,000 Mr. Rhodes says that he wants to see an intermingling of the two races, following the same pursuits, having the same interests and daily exchanging social intercourse. Without such interchanges Mr. Rhodes has fears of an embittered future.

Heavy Penalties.

Municipal councillors are expressly forbidden from violating the liquor laws. There is no penalty against the ordinary individual for drinking in a bar after prohibited hours. But the member of a municipal council who does so is subject to a penalty of $40 a day for every day he remains in office after such a violation of the act has been proved against him. The government does not regard this provision of the Liquor License Act as a mere formality. Mayor Morris, of Ottawa, was deprived of his office by reason of a violation of the act, and although a large petition was sent to the government asking for a remission of the penalty, the government has refused to grant the request of the petitioners. Mr. Morris will remain disqualified from office two years. Such is the governments' intention to make certain public officials respect the laws of the land.

PEACE RUMORS CONTINUE TO GROW

Rosebery's Speech Gives Hope of an Early Settlement.

KRUGER HAS LOST CONTROL

And Peace Will Come Without His Consent and Against His Wishes and Advice.

London, Dec. 25.—The outlook for peace is said to be growing. The speech of Lord Roseberry, in which he stated the policy of the Liberals was to see the war through regardless of cost, is having its effects. No longer can Kruger and his agents delude the fighting Boers with the story that England is divided on the question of the war.

Lord Roseberry's reference to the possibility of "arranging an accidental meeting" preliminary to discussion, such as has occurred before now at a "wayside inn" is considered by many to have more behind it than the mere expression of a personal wish. There is an impression that the suggestion was in the nature of a test of public opinion in reference to some such procedure. Preliminary steps in this direction by way of carefully sounding the Boer leaders at The Hague have already been taken quite unofficially and without implicating the Government in any way.

The chief influence which it is believed has been at work with this object in view, is that of the English Court, where the anxiety to see peace at any rate within view by the date of the coronation is probably even keener than in any other circles. The Duchess of Albany, who has been visiting her sister, the Dowager Queen Emma of Holland, is believed to have been the intermediary for this work of sounding the Boer Executive in the Netherlands.

Rumors regarding the Boers' attitude have been frequent and contradictory. One of the latest has been contradicted as flatly as it was asserted. It is that they are ready to accept the position of a federal unit in a confederation of South African States analagous to the federation of Australian colonies. It is, however, too early yet to discuss any very definite arrangement, and though the British people grow daily more wearied of this inglorious war, their temper is such that any steps toward settlement must be taken with the greatest caution.

THE FIGHTING BOERS ARE WELL ARMED

Five Messengers Killed While Going Through British Lines.

THE NEWS THEY TOOK TO KRUGER

The Boers Claim to Have Still a Large Fighting Force in the Field, and Mean to Continue the War

Paris, Dec. 25.—Three emissaries sent from Louis Botha, the boer commandant general, to President Kruger have passed through Paris. They report that five messengers sent ahead of them were successively killed while trying to run through the English lines.

The chief of the present party did not object to giving the information, which is only a part of a message sent to Mr. Kruger:

1. General Botha reports that he has under him 24,000 combatants in the Transvaal, the Orange Free State and the northern regions of Cape Colony, all fully armed and nearly all well mounted.

2. This number comprises 14,000 veterans who have been fighting almost since the war began, and, therefore, are seasoned soldiers.

3. The other 10,000 are mostly Cape Dutch, besides whom there is a slightly growing number of foreign volunteers.

AN INTERESTING CLAIM

A Man Puts in a Bill that is Exciting Great Interest.

Washington, Dec. 25.—An interesting claim has been presented to Congress in a bill introduced to-day by Representative Grosvenor of Ohio for the benefit of Jacob Rittersbach, who was a member of Company H, Sixth Pennsylvania Volunteers in the Civil War.

The night that Booth assassinated President Lincoln he was a stage carpenter in Ford's Theatre. As Booth fled across the stage Rittersbach clutched the assassin by the throat and tried to hold him until aid could come. Booth threw the [illegible] from him, and rushed out the rear door. Rittersbach ran after him, and says he thinks he could have caught him if he had gone up the alley into F street, but he turned down through a vacant lot into E street, and so got away. Rittersbach wants Congress to pay him for his kit of carpenter's tools that was seized by the soldiers during the excitement following the assassination. He was kept as a prisoner for thirty days in the Old Capitol Prison, and when released his tool chest was gone, and he has never seen it since. It was worth about $100, and General Grosvenor thinks he can get the bill through for the old soldier.

False Economy.

Whenever business grows dull, the first expense to be subjected to the pruning knife is advertising. This is false economy. Cutting down advertising might appear for a short time to have effected a saving, but it is sooner or later reflected in a further decrease in the volume of business done necessitating further reduction in the expense. An established firm, whenever business is dull should curtail expenses in every other department, but in that of advertising only as a last resort. Where advertising has built up a business, and continues to bring in business, if reduced in amount, its power for good for the business is limited in proportion to the reduction. Cut down on the help, on the postage, on the printed matter, but never cut out a paper that pays a dividend regularly monthly upon the investment. It is foolhardy, and menaces the future of the business instead of being a help to it.

RECIPROCITY WITH THE UNITED STATES

How the Matter is Regarded by Leading Americans.

GOOD FOR BOTH COUNTRIES

Great Obstacles in the Way, However—They Are Not Insurmountable.

Kansas City, Dec. 25.—The Star says: In spite of the fact that the Reciprocity Convention apparently attempted to kill the movement; that the President's Message treated it with the faint praise that is supposed to be fatal, and that the Ways and Means Committee of the house, together with the republican leaders, are committed to the 'let alone policy,' the subject of tariff modification will not down. The New York Chamber of Commerce will soon have a debate on reciprocity; the great tariff contest in Germany gives the subject renewed importance, and in Canada the leading politicians and the newspapers are discussing commercial relations with the United States. Canada, by reason of her position, and the fact that she is one of the best customers of the United States, furnishes a problem which demands attention, and Former Secretary of State John W. Foster, one of our oldest and most experienced diplomatists, discusses the question of Canadian reciprocity in a striking article in the New York Independent.

The ten year reciprocity treaty of 1854 was not renewed because the advantages rested chiefly with Canada and because the general hostility to official Canada during the Civil War prevented calm consideration of the subject. From 1865, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier says, delegations have repeatedly been sent to Washington "in an endeavor to secure reciprocity." No more, he now says, would be sent. John Charlton, a leading member of the Canadian Parliament, spoke in the same strain before the New York Chamber of Commerce the other day, and in [illegible] newspapers hinted at tariff retaliation. Mr. Foster considers the various efforts made to establish reciprocal trade relations, and he finds that Canada has been and still is largely at fault. Her uniform demand has been that the free or favored list should be confined to natural products, while the United States has insisted that a "list of manufactured articles should be included in the schedules for free or favored exchange." Canada, in which the manufacturing interest was relatively small, in 1890 asked entrance for her natural products, and had nothing to offer to our manufactures. In 1898 Canada's proposals, through the Joint High Commission, were practically the same, and Mr. Charlton's plan does not differ from them. As the Dominion is a part of the British Empire, the problem is especially difficult, because, in the words of Secretary Blaine's report on the negotiations of 1890:

"If Great Britain should be permitted to enjoy gratuitously the benefits conferred upon the United States by means of a reciprocity treaty, its benefits to the latter would, in a great measure, be neutralized."

On the other hand, if Canada should wish to grant us special favors to the exclusion of Great Britain, the Imperial Parliament must be reckoned with. The probability of making a reciprocity treaty of use to this country depends upon the amount of England's self-abnegation in favor of her colony. Mr. Foster, however, is not discouraged by the difficulties, and says:

"Notwithstanding the manifest obstacles to free and reciprocal commerce with Canada, I think there is a solution of the subject which would redound to the peace, prosperity and mutual advantage of both countries. This solution was suggested by Mr. Blaine in the conference, not officially, but as expression of his personal views. After discussing with the Canadian Commissioners fully and at great length the subject of reciprocity, and to no purpose, as his report shows, he finally said: 'Gentlemen, there is only one satisfactory solution of this question—it is to let down the bars.' He then proceeded to elaborate the scheme, with the force of language of which he was such a master, of a complete commercial union between the United States and Canada, with a common tariff upon an agreed basis of division of revenue, and free and unrestricted commerce between the two countries, as is now enjoyed by the States of our Union. Such is real reciprocity, and I do not regard it as visionary to labor and hope for its consummation."

In plain language, this is free trade with Canada. Whether or not Mr. Foster's plan is practicable, it is interesting and chiefly significant as showing that men of light and leading in the Republican party are recovering power of speech, and are ready to protest vigorously against the ridiculous and dangerous extremes of Dingleyism which have carried the Republican party into perilous deep water.

SEVERE MEASURES PROBABLE

A Military Correspondent Voices Opinions on Way to End War

London, Dec. 25.—The break-up of the main Boer forces in the Transvaal, and the capture or surrender of a few of the better-known leaders of the enemy, will probably be the signal for the adoption of severer measures in dealing with the enemy. That this is the view of the military authorities at the front, is indicated by the following extracts from a letter from a military South African correspondent who is in a position to speak with authority:—

I will give you my views as to the real causes of the prolongation of the war, which I take to be three in number.

1. The composition of the remnant of the Boer forces who are now in the field.

2. The so-called "humanity" of the English people, which will not allow the army to carry on the war in the only really effective way, viz., as war and not as an experiment in the methods by which war may be reduced to merely harmless man-catching.

3. The attention paid by the Government to any outcry got up in Europe against the methods of warfare—and this, although it is bringing such outspoken abuse on the Government, is really only the result of the feeling mentioned above—and for which the press is largely responsible, by giving undue prominence to such unfounded criticisms.

Composition of Boer forces.—The remnant now in the field are more than 70 per cent. "bywonders"—which is perhaps best rendered in English as "tramps"—men who are mere loafers in peace time, and who live as badly if not worse, than Kaffirs. To such men as these the present system of warfare is, as you can imagine, the pleasantest experience they have ever known. They have a horse and a rifle, a share of whatever food is going, and anything in the shape of loot they can get.

The only way in which we can hasten the end with such men as these is to really make war a risk to them.

The way to do it is to make war—war. Take the gloves off and show these men what war is. To do this we should be able to shoot every man directly he is caught who has any particle of khaki uniform on him, or who has expanding bullets in his cartridges, hang or shoot every Cape rebel caught in arms, and in other ways take full advantage of the customs of war.

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of The Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. Johns, writes: I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 60 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $10 for any case that these pills do not help.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh, and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema same price. $10 will be paid for any case they will not permanently cure.

Perfect Cure for Bronchitis.

This disease can be treated only by a remedy carried to the affected parts along with the air breathed, for nature intended these organs for the passage of air alone, and sprays, atomizers and internal medicines utterly fail. But Catarrhozone doesn't fail, for it goes wherever the air breathed goes, and its healing antiseptic vapor is sure to reach every affected part. Catarrhozone is inhaled at the mouth and after passing through every cell of the breathing organs is slowly exhaled through the nostrils. Catarrhozone protects and heals the inflamed surfaces, relieves congestion, allays inflammation, and perfectly cures all bronchial affections. Price $1, small size, 25 cents. FIERY SERMON BY A WOMAN

Deacons Berated for Snoring in Church and Sitting Awake in Theatres.

Williamsport, Dec. 25.—Mrs. P. I. Frey who occasionally fills her husband's pulpit, last night delivered a sermon on "Popular Sins," and during her remarks said: "One of the popular sins of the day is theatre going. Many an old deacon will sit and snore in the house of God while the pastor is preaching the word, but the same deacon will go to the theatre, sit with his eyes wide open and split his sides laughing over some silly, nonsensical performance on the stage. Our young girls care more for their pretty ball gowns and the flowers that some dude has sent them than they do for the robe of righteousness or the approval of God Almighty.

"The drink evil has also crept into the Church. Some of the best paying members of our churches have made their money through beer and whisky, and plenty of church members have wine and beer in their cellars. Tobacco using is a curse that should be wiped out. Tobacco smoking on the street is the streak of civilization, and no Christian can honor God and indulge in it. The saddest sight that the angels have to look upon is the theatre going, dancing, wine drinking, card playing church member."

ENGLAND IN EGYPT.

Material Improvement Since British Assumed Command There.

London, Dec. 25.—The abstract of the Egyptian budget which we receive from Cairo is another proof of the great material improvement which has befallen that land since English administrators brought honesty to the task of governing it. Each year the surplus grows, and what is even more satisfactory to the poor Egyptian, each year the taxation is diminished. The present budget, in spite of a reduction of £00,000 in taxes, shows a surplus of £210,000 after the due installment of over £700,000 has been paid into the caisse of the public debt. It is true that expenses have been high, owing to an extra expenditure of £90,000 on the railway, but that is an outlay which may safely be counted upon to repay itself both in revenue and in the general increase of agricultural and other prosperity. The saving, we are glad to see, has been chiefly in army expenses and the suppression of useless officials.

A YANKEE OPINION

How Americans Regard the Canadian Soldiers in South Africa.

Detroit, Dec. 24.—The Tribune says,—Instead of needing regulars to hold them in line, the Canadians were most effective when given their heads. They fought with intelligence. They moved with rapidity and discretion. They were always ready to take the initiative. When they got into a tight place they invariably showed the good stuff that is in them. Military authorities were slow to appreciate the fact that the best soldier for modern warfare is the hardy horseman of quick intelligence, who can find a shelter for his own skin when the bullets are flying thickly, and who can by skilful use of his rifle and his wits give a good account of himself to the enemy. Who does not care a picayune if his cavalry squadron is out of alignment when it scours across the country. Who is not ashamed to scud for cover when nothing is to be gained by sacrificing his life. Who, on the other hand, when it comes to a hand to hand scrimmage, shows an ability to stay with the regulars, and a readiness to make any sacrifice that may seem necessary?

But the British military authorities have gradually come to learn this, and the Canadians, as well as the Boers, taught it to them. And so it is not surprising that the latest contingent of volunteers from Canada should be so very welcome.

Kansas City, Dec. 24.—[illegible] says,—

MULE TRUST ANNOYS BRITONS

New Orleans, Dec. 24.—The enormous English demand for American mules caused the formation of a mule trust. The fact was learned yesterday on the arrival of the British officers from Kansas City. Colonel Deburgh, it is said, will buy no more mules in the United States, as a result of the advance in prices. His associates say the trust has killed a business that left 40 million dollars in the country, and disposed of a grade of animals otherwise unsalable.

A few days ago leading mule men of the country got together and agreed to advance the price of mules to the British government $15 a head. The price had been $100 and the new price asked was $115. It was thought England would stand it. The war department will go to South America for mules.

They Have the Pull

A very pretty little Christmas folder has been issued to the patrons of the Canadian Bank of Commerce by the staff of the local branch.

In the gloaming the crest is liable to be taken for a corkscrew. But this is a mistake. In any case the Ontario Bank fellows say they have the "pull."

Banquetted Last Night

The employees of the C. G. E. Works, tendered a banquet last night, at the National Hotel, to two of their members, Messrs. Cranfield and O'Connor who are leaving for South Africa. A most enjoyable evening was spent. Songs, speeches were indulged in till a late hour when the party broke up with best wishes to the two who are soon to see service under The Old Flag.

This young lady is looking into the baking powder question in a practical way. She will find that, using Cleveland's Baking Powder, and a Cleveland receipt book, she can make cake and rolls finer than the baker's and save half the cost.

Besides, she will be sure that they contain no alum and are absolutely pure and wholesome.

THE BRAZILIAN REBELS ARE AIDED

Bolivia Seeking Revenge for an Old Injury

A BIG WAR NOW BREWING

The Insurrection in Two Brazilian Provinces Becoming Very Formidable

New York. From late accounts it appears that Brazil has all she can do to maintain her authority in the disturbed province.

There are six battalions of Brazilian troops operating in Matto Grosso. They are assisted by three war vessels, whose movements are not so free as desired. Altogether the Brazilian Government is said to be spending about $1,000,000 a month in the suppression of the revolt, but no results of a satisfactory character have been obtained so far.

Great are the rejoicings of Bolivians over the troubles of the Brazilians. It is generally understood that the Bolivians, furthermore, are giving material aid to the insurgents. For many weeks the Bolivian Government has relaxed its vigilance over the frontiers on the eastern departments to the great advantage of the revolutionists.

Into Matto Grosso all who have wish to do so have been descending from the mountains of Bolivia since the revolt started. While Bolivian filibusters and traders have been profiting by this state of affairs Brazilian troops have, with difficulty, been ascending the valleys and rivers to reach the scene of revolt.

One reason why Brazil has not made a complaint concerning this state of affairs is that Col. Montes is directing Bolivian affairs. He is hostile to Brazil, and would probably make a curt reply to any complaint. He is especially anxious to retaliate upon Brazil for her course during the insurrection in the Bolivian State of Acre.

At the time of the outbreak of the troubles in Acre, Col Montes was Minister of War. He knew the facts in the case. He was aware that the rebellion was fomented and supported by Brazilian and Portuguese merchants dealing in Bolivia, particularly those engaged in the rubber industry. Owing to the efforts of Bolivia to prevent smuggling, the merchants fomented the revolt.

In order to prevent the Brazilians from giving aid to the Acre insurgents President Pando, of Bolivia, last January proclaimed a blockade of Puerto Alonzo. The blockade was made effective by Col. Montes.

As Puerto Alonzo controlled the water highway of western Brazil the Brazilians immediately complained that their rights of navigation were being interfered with by Bolivia. This was merely a pretext to aid the rebels of Acre, since the Bolivian authorities did not prevent any Brazilian vessel with proper papers from passing Puerto Alonzo. Brazil urged that the blockade be suspended. Col. Montes replied that the suspension of the blockade would render his plan of campaign ineffectual.

Then Brazil decided to intervene in Acre. It was asserted that it would be of incalculable benefit to Bolivia and the peaceful people of Acre to raise the blockade. Furthermore, the Brazilian Cabinet informed Bolivia that she was incompetent to deal with the insurrection in Acre. For these reasons. Brazil sent the cruiser Tiradentes up to raise the blockade of Puerto Alonzo.

Col. Montes acted promptly. With forces, commanded by himself and Vice President Velasco, he started for Puerto Alonzo. On the way he met the insurgents. He defeated them at every turn. He drove them ahead of him, forcing them to take refuge in Brazil as they always did when hard pressed.

When Col. Montes arrived at Puerto Alonzo, Acre was completely pacified. He himself announced the raising of the blockade. So quickly was the work done that Brazil found it necessary to despatch couriers to intercept the Tiradentes and countermand the previous orders.

Col. Montes declared that he would sink the vessel if it approached Puerto Alonzo. The cruiser stopped at Para. Brazil was compelled to apologize for her action.

There is little doubt that Brazil will suffer more through the revolt of Matto Grosso than Bolivia has suffered through that of Acre. Bolivia neither asked nor obtained any indemnity from Brazil for her interference in Acre, but she certainly has not given up her rights in the matter.

Col Montes is now in supreme power in Bolivia, in fact if not in name, and it is not a mere coincidence, it is believed, that the revolt of Matto Grosso has occurred now. While by intervening in Matto Grosso there is little doubt that he will arrange matters so that Bolivia will profit by the troubles of Brazil.

The revolt of Matto Grosso has so disturbed frontier conditions that there is no longer any necessity for the presence of troops to support the customs officers of Oriental Bolivia. Therefore, the troops are being withdrawn, so that filibusters and revolutionary leaders can go to the assistance of Matto Grosso rebels without hindrance.

Herein lies the revenge of Bolivia. While Brazilian filibusters who assisted the insurgents have had to ascend rivers and scale mountains to do so Bolivian filibusters in order to help the Brazilian insurgents can reach them with ease. On the other hand the Brazilian troops can reach the hostile districts only after hardships while the war vessels, their base of operations, cannot always come within reach of them.

The inhabitants of Matto Grosso have revolted because of the oppressive taxation to which Brazil has subjected them. Being in conflict with Brazil they have the sympathy of Bolivians which is a great advantage to them. So far all the accounts of battles published by Bolivian papers favor the rebels.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 25, 1901

The Revolution in English Character.

IT is the opinion of Mr. Bernard Shaw, as expressed in a characteristic preface to a late volume of his plays, that the nature of the English people has, within the past ten years, undergone certain conspicuous modifications. Excitability—"theatricality" is his own word for it—Mr. Shaw believes to have been steadily mounting in force among the English, usually so solid and stolid; and this he ascribes to the pronounced romanticism of taste developed among them by the literature, the books and plays, of the past five years; a taste which has caused them to lose their true sense of the realities, with all the steadying effects thereof.

It will not be disputed that the special style of literature in vogue during a period leaves its impress upon it, nor will it be gainsaid that the demands and tastes of the period in turn determine the essential nature of its literary supply. We are hearing it said on all sides now that popular education accounts for the love of the novel of adventure. Popular education creates an enlarged reading public, but one which does not wish to have the realities of life laid before it; which, indeed, in many cases, reads, or goes to the play, just to escape reality. If one accept this explanation of certain present phenomena it is only going a step farther to find in all democratically organised, popularly educated societies an inherent inclination toward romanticism. As no countries have carried the modern experiment so far as the English-speaking countries, we ought not to be surprised to see a strong bent toward the romantic attitude showing itself, in many directions, in an English or American public; the romantic attitude here meaning any attitude betraying absence of a full perception of the realities, or disinclination to look at them.

Out of all this we seem to draw three propositions: that democracy appears to presuppose a certain sort of popular education, that without that education there would be no democracy, and yet that that education is calculated to destroy the sense of the realities. Now how is this? The very plea made for the education which, more and more, is prevailing against the classical education, is just this—that it cultivates the true perception of real things. It is a "practical" education for that precise reason, say its advocates. Why, then, asks the writer of "The Point of View" in "Scribner's Magazine," should this same generation manifest so much liking for the romantic fiction, the romantic plays, which are a means of getting away from the real conditions of existence? He proceeds to answer this question as follows: "It may very probably be that this liking is a taste of the moment, without ulterior connections or deeper significances. And, indeed, it seems to have been too much overlooked by some writers who have no love for the novel of adventure, that it is by no means the first time in the world that romance has been in high favor. It is none the less true that this subject does suggest another of far greater moment, which is the question what the "popular" education ought to be, and whether the democratic state of modern man really needs exactly that form of it which is now so insisted upon as essential to its maintenance and well-being. To perceive the realities in the high sense, and in that sense be willing to abide by them, is never, at any time, the portion of more than the few. But general education goes forward, very properly, on the assumption that all may be made in some degree to know the life to which they belong, to realise it. Realization comes, however, only in part through the development of practical efficiency. It comes also through the unfolding of the spiritual nature, the growth of moral vision, the dreams of the imagination—to none of which is the 'classical' education a stranger."

Pleasing Kind of Mal de Mer.

News comes from Honolulu that the transport "Thomas," which reached there on August 1, having on board three hundred male and one hundred female teachers, en route for the Philippines to engage in educational service under the Taft Commission, developed a veritable matrimonial epidemic. The young men and women on board represented almost every State of the Union. After the transport left San Francisco friendships were formed which soon ripened into love, and the day prior to the arrival at Honolulu Captain Buford found that thirty couples desired the nuptial knot tied. He refused to permit the ceremony on board the vessel, and the next day a clergyman at Honolulu made the thirty pairs happy by uniting them in matrimony. Prior to the sailing of the transport from Honolulu several other cases were reported. The departure from New York last week of the fifty-four Cuban girls and twenty-four men, who have been students at the summer school of Harvard University, developed the fact that they, too, had been victims of Cupid's darts, although their courtships have only reached the engagement stage. Most of the Cuban men are returning engaged and several Harvard students and professors are said to have lost their hearts to the girls from the South. Five of the ladies took home with them diamond engagement rings.

A Humane Pater.

One reads so frequently of the paternal boot as applied to the undesirable youthful suitor that it is a pleasure to chronicle the more humane method adopted by a wealthy Glasgow merchant for choking off a "follower" of his daughter. The girl was very young, so was the follower, but nevertheless he called formally on the object of his affections. The merchant and his wife entered the room, the latter bearing a glass of milk and a huge slice of bread spread with butter and jam. "Now, dear, run away to bed," said the kindly mother to her daughter; "it's time that all good girls should be in bed." Then the Glasgow merchant addressed the astonished young man: "Now, youngster, you drink that glass of milk, and take that slice of bread and jam to eat on the road home—and hurry, for your mother must be anxious about your being out so late by yourself." The young man did not call again.

Piecing.

That's a word which may not be in the dictionary in this sense of its use, but which is in very common use in some sections of the country. "She's always piecing" they say of the woman who runs to the cupboard at irregular hours and eats a piece of pie, cake, or some other dainty. This irregular eating is one of the chief causes of dyspepsia and "weak" stomach.

Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are completely cured by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the supply of rich, pure blood, and gives the body vitality and vigor.

"A year ago I was feeling very badly," writes Mrs. Lizzie Abrams, of 158 Johnson Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. "Had a very poor appetite and when I sat down at the table I could not eat, but would have to go away without even tasting the food. Chancing to hear from a friend who used your 'Golden Medical Discovery' for a disease similar to mine, I thought I would give the medicine a trial, and I can hardly express the benefit received from it. The first dose seemed to do me good. My appetite returned and I was able to eat heartily. I have improved so much since taking the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I do not look like the same person. Am to-day well and strong—the result of taking six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows of 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. A Famous Name.

The recent death of Dr. Charles Lempriere, senior fellow of St. John's College, Oxford, recalls a famous name. Dr. Lempriere was the son of the Rev. John Lempriere, well known as the author of the celebrated "Classical Dictionary." Lempriere the younger was called to the bar in 1844, and was contemporary and occupied the same chamber with the late Lord Chief Justice Cockburn. He went the Western Circuit with Sir John Karslake and Lord Chief Justice Coleridge for some years. Subsequently Dr. Lempriere was appointed Colonial Secretary of the Bahamas, and was entrusted by the Governments of the day with several important missions abroad.

Dr. Lempriere also undertook on one occasion a special mission to Mexico at the instance of the late Sir Moses Montefiore, and he was also interested in various immigration schemes in Virginia and elsewhere. He wrote largely for the press both in New York and London, and was a frequent contributor to The Times on various questions of interest recording his experiences in the various parts of the world which had been visited by him.

The East and the West.

The western editor of The El Dorado Republican rises on general principles to remark, and his language is plain:—

"Of the forty million people who live east of the line drawn from north to south through the centre of Indiana, thirty-nine million of them believe that thirty-nine million of the forty million who live west of that line are a coarse, unlettered, uncombed and unwashed people, who feed on hog, hominy and prairie hay, live in clapboard houses and on dirt floors, sleep on straw beds, eat in the kitchen with their fingers, have cockle burrs in their hair, go to the horse races on Sundays and shoot each other on sight. They believe all this, and much more, because they themselves are untravelled and ignorant, because they are narrow, prejudiced and provincial to the thirty-third degree, and because they have been taught from the beginning that everything coarse, common and vulgar finds willing worshippers in the brutal, uncivilized west.

"Eastern newspapers teach and preach it; eastern magazines, whose pages are usually filled with the insipid drivel of the Q. Milsop Pbilgeizer, the Jane Spindleshank Soapsuds class of writers, revel in picturing everything from the west as cranky, sensual and unworthy of any sort of notice except beastly caricature, and yet, taking one mile square right under the noses of those skimmilk writers, there is more crime, more debauchery, more drunkenness, more of all that is vile and brutal, than can be found in the vast area lying west of the Indiana line.

"The eastern lobsters who are forever reviling the west, and have no more knowledge of this country than has a Digger Indian of a mahogany seat in the New Jerusalem, are as narrow as a clothesline, and as stupid as they are ignorant. There is more patriotism, more love of country and of the flag, more real manhood and womanhood, more love of the beautiful and true in any one western State than can be found in an entire string of States along the Atlantic coast.

"The west apes nothing, parrots nothing, and accepts no goggle-eyed chimpanzee's declarations as its standard of business or social ethics; nor does it fall on its stomach and sing paeans when its snobocracy passes down the street. The west is a law unto itself, and that its business and social and political ideas are placed upon a more honorable, truthful and manly pedestal than those of any other people goes without saying. The west knows the east from A to Izzard—knows all its washed-out, half-baked ideas of what constitutes polite society, and is charitable enough to forgive it in its honest regard of the brotherhood of man, but it doesn't forget the chattering magpies, who, while hoisting the black flag, drool their senile rot through all the eastern publications in condemnation of everything and everybody west of the Indiana line.

"And we recall that one-half of all this rancid so-called fine writing is done by long-haired "literary fellers" whose practical knowledge of the world is as circumscribed as is the environment in which they rattle around while stringing words together at so much per string, and by short-haired grannies, who, if they could have their way, would not let a man live anywhere north of the equator, we feel like hoisting the black flag in return and keeping it hoisted until the owners or managers of these eastern publications banish the entire tribe of Puritanical warts to the Antipodes."

His Own "Boots."

"I've been having the time of my life, I tell you," said the suburbanite gloomily to his city friend at lunch.

"What's the matter? Pipes burst? Furnace won't work? Dog killing the neighbor's chickens?" asked the friend, sympathetically running through the list of the suburbanite's usual grievances.

"No, worse than that," sadly answered the first speaker. "I've been having an English friend visit me. It's years since I've been across the water, so one or two of his ways were a little strange. The worst of his doings was what has broken me up so. He went to bed the first night before the rest of us, and when I came along the corridor an hour or so later there were his shoes standing outside his door, and frightfully muddy, too.

"I looked at them in astonishment. Then I remembered the English custom of having the boy come up for the boots. We keep only two servants, you know, both women, and, of course, in the country you have to rub them the right way or they'll leave. I knew perfectly well that if I told either of those free and independent Irishwomen to clean the Englishman's shoes we'd be left servantless, and that would have been the death of my wife.

"I lifted the shoes gingerly by two fingers and carried them to my room. When I thought the servants must be asleep, I crept downstairs and got to work with a brush. At every sound I would nearly jump out of my boots and drop his. I fancied every moment that the girls would see my candle and give the alarm of burglars, or that my friend would be taken ill and get up and find me brushing his shoes. Oh, I had a pretty time of it. He stayed a week, that Englishman, and what, with loss of sleep and overstrained nerves, I'm a wreck."

"Well, why on earth didn't you have the moral courage to——"

"Moral courage! I'd like to see the man who'd have the moral courage to tell an English gentleman with a monocle that the ways of even well-bred people in this country differ from those he's been accustomed to! My friend, you do not know the breed." And he drowned his sorrows and braced his nerves with a second cup of [illegible].

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.
Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.
F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of [illegible] shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about [illegible] miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is [illegible] 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.00 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hermosa White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast, (X-Report Page [illegible]).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in [illegible], and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from [illegible] to [illegible] feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders [illegible], and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day [illegible] to [illegible] per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid returns. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. [illegible] acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reservation the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a [illegible] barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

WONDERFUL DISCOVERY IF TRUE

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Living animals from chemicals, and life from substances, is the hope of Dr. A. D. Houghton, who was deposed from the faculty of Hahnemann Medical college. He says he was deposed because of his advanced ideas. The registrar of the college gives another reason.

Dr. Houghton yesterday refused to discuss the tilt with the school, but talked willingly of his work in attempting to produce life.

"I started in this work by studying the formation of crystals. I found that by retarding the crystallization of a solution I could form almost anything. I succeeded in this way in forming a shell of microscopic size. Then I thought I might be able to place life in this shell.

"Along in the early part of last century, Culver thought he had demonstrated that life was spontaneous, but later Tyndall exploded this idea and said that from nothing nothing could be produced. Now, I am not working along the same lines heretofore followed in the attempts to produce life from dead material.

PROVES THAT HE IS CORRECT.

"I assumed that if the essential components of protoplasm were worked upon by some force they would form a cell containing life. In this I have proved myself to be correct, but I have not been able to make these cells reproductive. When I do that, and I will, I will have solved the problem of creation.

"To make my method simple, suppose I took a portion of protoplasm from the human body and allowed it to rot so that none of the protoplasmic form remained, but still all the disintegrated chemical compounds were present. I have then simply the chemical components of protoplasm as though I had poured so many chemicals from so many bottles. By placing them in this solution of disintegrated protoplasm a motive agent such as an enzyme, which is not a living agent like yeast, but of the nature of pepsin I cause the chemicals which formerly made up the protoplasm again to seek their protoplasmic form and thus create a living cell of protoplasm. This I have done repeatedly.

CELLS NOT REPRODUCTIVE.

"I have not as yet been able to make these cells reproduce their kind, but Dr. Loed has succeeded in impregnating unfecundated cells by chemical action and if this scheme is once applied to my chemically produced cells I will be able to make animals to order.

"But it is considerable in advance when one can create living cells that will display all the functions of organic life for two weeks or more. This I have done. I have had cells in my laboratory that I have created from chemicals poured from bottles and these cells have lived and acted for weeks in my presence. These created cells are the same and as good as any cell in your body, but they lack the power of reproduction."

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1896, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of this treatment, in a plain, sealed wrapper.

An Up-to-date (?) Rig

Considerable amusement was evoked yesterday afternoon by the appearance on George St. of a venerable old gentleman in a very up-to date (style of cutter. The horse passed without any comments. I will endeavor to give you a short description of the sleigh. The gearing and running part of the affair was evidently made in those days when iron and blacksmiths were altogether unknown, for there was neither bolts nor shoeing in the gearing.

The superstructure was of a most primitative nature. At each corner of the sleigh frame wooden stakes were inserted and inside there were attached boards, unplaned and badly used up. At the back the stakes were of extra length to admit of an extra board being placed across the sleigh for the occupant to lean against. The only upholstering was an armful of old pea-straw with horse blankets spread over it.

The drawing gear was made out of two long round poles, attached to the front end of the sleigh. The traces bein gattached to the front of the sleigh box.

The gentleman who was the sole occupant of the rig was not in the least put out by the chaff he received from the people on the streets. He had evidently come to town to see the sights, and he was determined to drive around and see them the same as any one else would do.

BEAUTIFUL WORK OF ART

A Local Picture Which is Attracting Much Attention

There is a photograph in Mr. R. M. Roy's show window that is attracting much attention. It is entitled "Santa Claus' Interview With the Little One." The picture is probably the largest ever made in Canada, being 25x44 inches, and is a genuine work of art. It was taken from life the originals being Mr. Samuel Johnston, Macdonnell street, and Miss Jean, the pretty little three year old daughter of Mr. Anderson, bookkeeper at the Peter Hamilton Company's works.

The picture is a marvel in the art of photography, and is exceedingly true to life.

Laid at Rest

The remains of the late John McKee, who died in New York on Saturday, arrived here on Monday evening and were conveyed to the residence of Mr. D. Belleghem, on Hunter street. Wood and Dr. Carmichael.

Rev. J. G. Davidson conducted the funeral.

THE CHILDREN'S AID

Mr. Cochrane the Agent—The Right Man in the Right Place

There is no season of the year which brings such unalloyed, such incalculable joy to the children as does the Christmas season. From the birth of Christ up to the present day the giving and receiving of presents at this particular season has always been the custom. It is therefore to be expected that wards of the Childrens' Aid would be remembered. Through the generosity of the citizens this year, the sixty-five children in the Shelter and in a number of otherwise unremembered homes, Christmas cheer has been given under the auspices of the Childrens Aid Society. The ladies of the different churches undertook to provide for a certain number each. Not only was Christmas cheer provided in the shape of food and other presents, but warm clothing and other necessities are being provided.

Mr. George Cochrane, Agent, was naturally anxious that everyone would be remembered. The most difficult proposition he encountered was where he would get the means, but he was not the only one who was thinking of the children. Others were thinking of the children and for every article he wanted to get a sum of money suitable for his needs, was handed him by interested parents.

In this way a considerable amount of money was received, which was unsolicited and the children are now happy.

The Society wishes to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of $17.25 from Mr. F. F. Matthews on behalf of the Murray street Baptist church and friends Lakefield.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

We wish our readers, one and all, a merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

At this time light hearts should prevail among the merchants and business men generally, as well as among the industrial classes, for the year which is soon to close has been one of plenty.

We are on the threshold of a new year, and no clouds darken the sky of prosperity that now arches over the country. Let us, therefore, endeavour to simulate the example of Him whose birth we to-day commemorate, and exercise the Divine grace of Charity to its fullest extent.

GOING HOME FOR XMAS

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The almost universal practice of going home for the holidays, preparations for which event many are already making, has inspired the thought that there are a great many who cannot enjoy that privilege, and that fact has prompted the following lines:

I.

When the frost is on the ground,
And the dead leaves lie around,
And the snow white-caps the mountains, Far away.
There's a voice in every breeze
That comes rustling through the trees
And we think about the old-time Christmas Day.

II.

When the night wind's breath is chill,
And creation all seems still,
There's a mystic voice that
Sings its plaintive lay.
From afar it calls us home,
Whispers softly, "Cease to roam,"
And we sigh to miss our childhood's Christmas Day.

III.

Every wanderer hears that voice
But a wanderer has no choice,
Few can answer to that call except
To pray.
That in some future time
He may hear the old bell's chime
Where he first enjoyed his childhood's
Christmas Day.

THE PRINCE IMPERIAL

Editor Morning Times.

Sir.—Please relate the circumstances attending the death of the Prince Imperial in South Africa in 1879. Was Capt. Carey court-martialled for cowardice and acquitted? What was his subsequent career? O. M.

Reply.—The Prince Imperial went to the front in the Zulu war as a spectator and on the day of his death, June 1, 1879, joined a reconnoitring party consisting of Lieut. Carey, six soldiers and a Zulu guide. The party off-saddled about noon, and were attacked by a large party of hostile Zulus; each man ran for his horse, and all mounted except the Prince whose stirrup leather broke; while he was trying to jump into his saddle, his horse plunging all the time, his rein broke and his horse bolted, leaving him alone. He was killed at once. Mr. Carey was court-martialled of cowardice, and convicted, but the reviewing authority set aside the conviction. He was promoted later, in the natural course of events; and died a few years afterward after leaving the army fin unofficial That comes rustling through, the

ADMIRAL BYNG

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Will you give me the known facts about Admiral Byng of the British Navy, some centuries ago?

Reply.—Admiral John Byng, the fourth son of Admiral the Earl of Torrington, was sent out in 1756 with a fleet of ten poor vessels to relieve Minorca in case it was attacked by the French; he arrived off Minorca to find a French fleet besieging St. Philip, a town on the island. On the day after his arrival, an indecisive engagement was fought; shortly afterward, after a council of war, Byng withdrew to Gibraltar, leaving Minorca to its fate. He was tried for cowardice and acquitted; but the court-martial reported that he had not done his utmost to relieve the place. In spite of a recommendation to mercy made by the court, and in spite of the efforts of his friends, Byng was shot on the quarterdeck of his flagship on March 14, 1757. Ed Times.

Why it is Considered as an Investment

The advertiser who considers his money spent in advertising as an investment, usually succeeds in making it pay, because he treats this expense as an investment, conservatively and shrewdly. He does not expect that every dollar spent in printer's ink will bring him back two, by the time the ink on the paper becomes dry. He is satisfied if at the end of the year a certain amount spent in advertising has increased the business over a year ago by 20 per cent, while if he has been so fortunate as to double his business, then he congratulates himself upon his good fortune. Among the successful advertisers to-day there are to be found few who have reached this point by a chance gamble in advertising. They have steady climbed to the ladder of success, round by round, by conservative advertising, and increasing this investment each year, proportionately, as the investment has made their business grow.

Letter from Carlos Le Brun

The many friends of Mr. Carlos Le Brun will be pleased to learn that he is doing well in New York. A letter to a friend of his in town says,—

"You will wonder at my long silence, but you will now hear a bit of news from me. I am at present in New York city as traveller for the extensive firm of Heintz & Co., manufacturers of the celebrated Heintz pickles and other goods of a somewhat similar nature. The business of this firm is enormous and I am doing well as their representator. We expect to have a great union of all the travellers of this firm who number over four hundred and fifty, and who will come from all parts of the earth, in the city of Pittsburg on the second of January. The object of this convention is to give to all their travellers a practical insight into the manufacture of their goods, so that in what ever part of the world they are they can speak from a personal knowledge of the manufacture, packing and shipping of the goods. I will be the representative of New York city at this great convention and expect to have a jolly good time with the other fellows The firm has engaged a special train which will be run from here to Pittsburg, and the entire expense of the convention will be met by Heintz & Co. Well now how is that for pickled cucumbers, eh. Remember me to all the boys and tell them I am coming to see Peterborough some of these days.

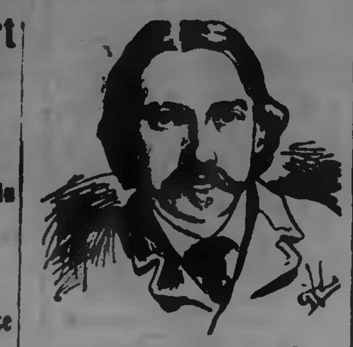
WILL SEEK TO REFORM SOUTH SEA ISLANDERS

The Appeal of Robert Louis Stevenson at Last is Heard

Horrifying Conditions of Life in the Samoan Islands in the Pacific

Mission Work to be Begun at Once and Prosecuted with Vigor



THE LATE ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Chicago, Dec. 27.—In answer to the last pleadings of Robert Louis Stevenson for the rescue of the Southsea islanders from their pitiable condition the work of sending missionary help to those wild lands in the southern Pacific ocean has been launched. A bill has already been prepared, asking congress for an appropriation to carry on the work of mercy.

Miss Alice R. Palmer, an around-the-world missionary, Miss Mary C. Brehm, president of the Illinois branch of the national Woman's Christian Temperance union, and Miss Fanny Rastall, prominent in several large missionary organizations, made the appeal to the ministers and were assured that everything the various denominations could do to carry out the project planned years ago by the famous novelist would be done gladly.

The three women visited the weekly meetings of the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and Congregational ministers and met with great favor at each. They hope that the bill may pass congress and that something active may be started at a not far distant date for the rescue of the savages of the South sea islands.

MAKES HORRORS PUBLIC.

After Robert Louis Stevenson took up his residence in Samoa he made some considerable study of the conditions of the natives of the Samoan islands, the Friendly islands, the Tonga islands and the Hawaiian islands. He discovered that most of these natives were in a pitiable condition. They were savages, in many instances cannibals. They did not know the first laws of life. They lived in squalor and horrifying conditions.

These facts, with many others, were published in letters written by Stevenson to the New York Herald. The German government, which had control of most of the islands, especially of those most strongly condemned as being in a helpless condition, became so wroth over the criticism of Stevenson that they threatened to drive the author out of Samoa and much controversy was had over the matter at the time.

It was said at that time by many friends of the novelist, who was taken to task by Germany for publishing the deplorable condition of the natives, that the German government was to blame for much of the misery suffered by the savage inhabitants of the South sea islands. It was asserted that the German army and navy could stop certain abuses if it chose.

HAWAIIAN NOT AFFECTED

The Hawaiian islands were not included in the controversy to any extent and they have since come into the hands of the United States.

It is said by the persons interested in the new movement that the same lamentable conditions so strongly portrayed years ago by Robert Louis Stevenson, still exist almost unchanged. It is to answer the pleadings of the humanitarian novelist that the present scheme is set on foot.

Back of the project are nearly all the missionary workers of the United States and Canada, and the matter will be pushed with all the vigor possible. If the bill pending in congress do not pass and no government appropriation is forthcoming, the leaders will undertake to interest the various church missions in the new and urgent work of rescuing the natives of the South seas.

KAISER TO VISIT HIS UNCLE

Wilhelm Will Attend Memorial Service for Queen Victoria.

London, Dec. 27.—The World announces the probability of a visit from Emperor William to London on Jan. 20. He will remain as the guest of King Edward until Jan. 24. The purpose of his visit is to attend the memorial service for the late Queen Victoria at Frogmore.

Cassel, Dec. 24.—Tired of travelling continually about the country unveiling monuments and statues and dedicating churches, museums and city halls, the Kaiser has issued an order to his ministers, directing that any application for such service on the part of the chief of the state must be indorsed both by the provincial president and minister, and the reasons which demand the emperor's presence clearly stated.

The order is the result of the injury which the kaiser's health has sustained recently from exposure and much travelling on such occasions. In the beginning of the new year his majesty will devote considerable time to the recuperation of his health in his various castles, Cassel among them, leaving the representation of the imperial house on minor occasions to his sons, especially the crown prince.

DISCOVERY AT POMPEII.

Roman Villa Uncovered and Many Art Objects Found.

London, Dec. 26.—Another important discovery has been made at Pompeii, at the same spot where was recently found what was believed to be the mummified body of the elder Pliny.

It consists of a grand Roman villa, one room of which is filled with objects of Greek and Roman art. These include a bronze statue representing Genius with a torch in its extended right hand, the whole being of superb workmanship. There are also four of the most beautiful Etruscan vases and models of various descriptions. Seven other rooms were found to be full of [illegible] and other food stuffs.

Further exploration of this particular corner of Pompeii is expected to yield rich results.

THE JOKE DIDN'T WORK

How a Number of Travellers Were Caught in Their Own Trap

A number of travellers were passing the time away the other night in the back parlor of the Snowdon House, by recounting stories of personal experiences, in which practical joking played a chief part. One of the raconteurs prefaced his story by saying the occurrence he would relate had forever cured him of any desire to play a practical joke, as, meeting the victim at a later period, the latter assured him that the joke had nearly cost him his life. Such assurance, he said, carried with it the greater force, inasmuch as prior to that time the victim had been himself an inveterate practical joker, but the lesson he learned stopped him from again indulging in his old time hobby, although it was this very predilection which probably saved his life and helped him to turn the tables on his assailants with inimitable wit. In telling the story, the speaker said that the incident occurred in the Man and Saddle Hotel, Dewsbury, England. Regularly once a year a Mr. Mockett visited the cities and towns in the northern countries of England soliciting orders for pens, which he manufactured in a small town in Bohemia. He was well liked wherever he went, and his wit and practical joking were so mirth provoking as to disarm any resentment. So accustomed had commercial men and others become to meeting Mr. Mockett that his absence one year from the hotels he stopped at occasioned many inquiries, but none of the bonifaces was able to give any information on the subject. The following year Mr. Mockett turned up again in Dewsbury, but, spare as he had always been, he was but a shadow of his old self, and he had evidently been suffering from a severe illness. A number of men, however, who were also stopping at the Man and Saddle Hotel determined to treat him to a practical joke. Hiring a handsome and expensive coffin on some pretext or another they had it conveyed to Mockett's bed room and placed in the middle of the bed. Without giving the slightest inkling of what he thought of the trick, Mockett took his place at the breakfast table next morning, and, excepting for the effects of his illness, appeared to be as bright and cheerful as usual. A hurried search of Mockett's bed room disclosed the fact that the coffin had disappeared. Nonplussed and expecting every minute that the owner of the coffin would be sending for his property, one of the jokers ventured to remark, "What is this we hear, Mockett, of your having had a strange bedfellow last night?" Mockett's matter of fact and quiet reply acted like a bombshell. "A bedfellow!" he asked. "No. I did not have any bedfellow last night. By the way," he added, "I do recall that there was a very handsome coffin in my room. Such a coffin, I should think, cost quite a good sum of money. As I had no use for it, I sold it this morning to an undertaker as "a misfit" for £10." Later in the day the four would-be and disconsolate practical jokers paid the original owner's bill, amounting to about £20.

NEWSPAPERS THE BEST.

A few years ago it was said that half a million advertising calendars had been given away in a single year, at a cost of $50,000. This year, it is stated, most of the leading establishments will not distribute calendars, preferring to add the sum they would cost to their newspaper advertising appropriations. Nearly all schemes of publicity are worth something, but it is undeniable that the very best is newspaper advertising.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR SOUTH AFRICA

There Will be a Great Boom After the War.

KITCHENER'S WAR METHODS

The War Now Campagn Against Individual Commandoes

Isolated Bodies of Boers and Their European Mercenaries May support Themselves in the Mountains for Months to Come.

London, Dec. 27.—Those who still refuse to believe that the definite establishment of British rule in South Africa is steadily progressing would do well to pay some attention to the reports of the Banks, and of the commercial and mining companies which depend upon that area for their existence. The half-yearly meetings of many of their corporations have lately been held, as usual at this period of the year. The most bigoted critic of Lord Kitchener, and the military regime, those who consider the despatches are "cooked" to suit the appetite of the British public, and do not represent the real state of affairs, cannot fail to find therein very powerful independent testimony as to the reality of the pacification of those areas of the country in which commercial prosperity mainly centres. The first resumption of gold mining on the Rand took place last May. The nine months in 1899, which preceded the war showed a product of fifteen million pounds sterling ($75,000,000). The production from May to November this year has totalled £624,012 ($3,000,000), and the refusal of the military authorities to allow more than nine companies to resume quartz crushing was mainly due to the strain upon the transport which supplying the large number of employes necessary would entail. In November there were but [illegible] miners employed. In January it is calculated that the railway facilities will have been so improved under Sir Percy Girouard's direction that six times the number can be fed without handicapping Lord Kitchener's military requirements. The lines converging upon the mining district known as the Rand, have not been once cut for more than a few hours during the last two months. One great hindrance to increasing the train service has been due to delay in the arrival of new locomotives and trucks ordered in Britain, now arriving. Another difficulty which will be specially appreciated by prohibitionists has arisen through obtaining native labor, not on account of the war, but mainly owing to the action of the Transvaal Administration in refusing to recognize the rights granted by the late South African Republic to the Portugese for the free importation of spirits from the province of Mozambique. This caused the Portugese authorities to prohibit the exportation of natives from that territory. This is the region from which the natives for work in the Rand mines have in the past been chiefly recruited. Steps have been taken by the Imperial Government to remove the embargo and it is reported that these have been successful.

The opinion that work on a large scale at Johannesburg is one of the surest methods of hastening the end of the war, is held in high quarters, as well as by close students of the position in South Africa. When the mining operations are again in full work, free from restrictions such as the dynamite monopoly and other hindrances imposed by the Kruger regime, it is expected that the annual gold output will total over one hundred and fifty million dollars, and for many years. At a recent meeting of the Royal Colonial Institute some very interesting facts regarding the ancient history of gold mining in South Africa were adduced. In Rhodesia it appears there are undoubted evidences of gold mining having been carried on during Himyaritic and Phoenican occupation of the country—between the fifteenth and ninth centuries before the Christian Era.

If we turn from the mining prospect to the agricultural the outlook is equally hopeful. The "Tommy Atkins", who guards the blockhouses, which now form an almost continuous chain along the three main railway arteries, is, for the fertile miles of its lines, now engaged in tilling the soil with such satisfactory results that fresh fruit and vegetables are becoming generally available. The natives are rapidly congregating along these arteries held by the military, and are offering themselves as labourers now that their fear of Boer raiding and sjamboking are passing away. The natives, now that they have found out which white race is the under dog in South Africa are also becoming more reliable as help to Lord Kitchener's Intelligence Department. There was a time when they were perplexed as to whose rule they were eventually to come under. They, too, remembered Majuba. Isolated bodies of Boers and European mercenaries, especially the latter, may support themselves in remote mountainous districts for many months yet. But, without any despatches from Lord Kitchener or speeches from British Cabinet ministers, there is ample evidence that the business of sowing and reaping, in all its branches, is being steadily and generally resumed.

Unlike other wars, this one cannot end by the negotiation of a treaty of peace, like that of Paris, Frankfort, Vienna or Berlin. There is no stable government in South Africa, which could ensure the performance of any conditions which Mr. Kruger might be willing to accept for himself and his Dutch entourage. As a strategic war Lord Roberts was correct in describing it as ended with the capture of the enemies' capitals. It is now a campaign against individual commandoes of independent views, as incompetent as they are unwilling to negotiate a general peace on a given day. Hostilities must "fizzle" out.

CANADA WILL AID MARCONI

Dominion Cabinet Offers Him Stations for Experiment in Nova Scotia.

St John's N.F., Dec. 27.—Finance Minister Fielding of the dominion government telegraphed to Marconi from Ottawa to-day offering him, in behalf of the Canadian cabinet, every facility for erecting wireless telegraph stations on the Nova Scotian seaboard, making him the most encouraging propositions, assuring him that there is no obstacle in the way of his carrying out his experiments in Canadian territory and inviting him to Ottawa to discuss the matter.

In consequence of this flattering proposal Marconi will leave St John's for Ottawa to-morrow night. He will meet at Montreal the capitalists who have offered him financial support.

It is reported on fairly reliable authority that the Anglo-American Cable Company is receding from the position which it had taken against Marconi and that it will permit him to continue his work here.

WONDERFUL MIRAGE STORY

Toledo, Ohio, Dec. 27.—A mirage appeared over Lake Erie to-day near the lower Bay Shore, which was witnessed by Harry Ashley, Charles Carroll and other citizens of this city. A large city appeared, in which the streets and buildings could be seen distinctly. It lasted thirty minutes, during which time they saw flames burst from one of the large buildings, and then saw fire apparatus, horses and people pouring out at different parts of the city. The buildings were remarkably plain, and the spectators stood in amazement for about half an hour, when the haze seemed to lift, and slowly the strange sight faded away.

The men who witnessed the sight said that fully 2,000 buildings were to be seen, but that only for a few minutes when the fire came, did the people and horses show distinctly. None of the party could recognize what city it was reflected was thus shown. One of the party insisted that there were many things about the business part of the miraged town that reminded him of Pittsburg.

SMALLPOX OUT OF CONTROL

Forty Cases Reported at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., Despite Strict Regulations.

Marinette, Wis., Dec. 27—There are forty cases of smallpox at Sturgeon Bay and the authorities are unable to cope with it. A fine of $50 is now imposed upon all parties not reporting cases when they break out.

TROUBLF BREWING IN THE PERSIAN GULF

Bombay, Dec. 27.—It is feared here that fresh trouble is brewing in the Persian Gulf. Mabarouk, the Sheikh of Koweyt, the proposed terminus of the Bagdad Railroad, has curtly refused to allow a special mission sent by the Sultan from Constantinople to land, and declines to accede to the Sultan's desire that he visit the Yildiz Palace at Constantinople and make obeisance to his suzerain.

Mabarouk has also threatened a revival of the troubles with Ibn Rashid, the Emir of Nejd, who at the instigation of the Turks, has collected a fresh army. Mabarouk has again appealed for British protection.

At Koweyt are the British third-class cruiser Pomone (2,135 tons), and the British gunboat Redbreast (805 tons).

The Russian American-built cruiser Varing (6,500 tons) has just arrived in the Persian Gulf. Her powerful searchlights and heavy guns have greatly impressed the natives. The Variag's commander is paying marked attention to the Sultan of Muscat, and Russian doctors are investigating the healthfulness of Ormus Kishi, opposite Bunder Abbas.

England has always attempted to maintain the status quo in the Persian Gulf. To that end British vessels have aided the independent chiefs along the coast in resisting the encroachments of Turkey and the tribes in the interior who were urged to attack them by the Sultan. Russia has long sought to establish a naval station at some point in the gulf.

THE TWO REPUBLICS HAVE REACHED A BASIS

Argentina and Chili Agree to Suspend Hostilities for the Present at Least

REMEDY NOT BELIEVED TO BE A PERMANENT ONE

Armies of the Two Countries Continue Warlike Preparations, and Chili is Building New Forts

Buenos Ayres, Argentina, via Galveston, Texas, Dec. 27.—The Chilian controversy may be considered definitely settled. The Tribuna, President Roca's organ, has made the following announcement,—

"Minister Portela, in taking leave in Santiago of President Riesco, was informed that Chili was about to make a new proposal. Minister Portela considered the proposal quite acceptable and forwarded it to his Government.

"Meanwhile Minister Concha continued negotiations in Buenos Ayres, though officially the matter should be settled in Santiago.

"At the Cabinet meeting presided over this afternoon by President Roca it was decided to accept the second proposal of Chili about Ultima Esperanza, and it will be signed to-day.

"Chili disavows the opening of pathways in the disputed territory, as requested by Argentina.

"In regard to the Ultima Esperanza feature of the controversy, both Governments will sign the following protocol:

"First, Argentina will withdraw her police station from Cerro Palque and transfer it to Los Morros, situated many miles to the eastward.

"Second, Chili will transfer its station to Puerto Consuelo.

"The whole zone thus remains included in the disputed territory."

The newspapers say the new protocol between Chili and Argentina dispels the immediate danger of war, but that the remedy is not permanent. The armies of the two countries in the meantime are continuing their warlike preparations. Chili has decided upon the erection of new fortifications at Talcahuano and Punta Arenas.

A LARGE TURNOUT

Enthusiastic Send-off to Peterboro's Second Quota of the Mounted Rifles

For the second time in two weeks the citizens of this town and country have been called on to bid, "God speed and a safe return," to men who are anxious to serve the Empire on the sandy veldt of South Africa. Last night seven of our young men and true, left by midnight express, C.P.R. on the first stage of their long and arduous voyage by land and water, a journey of over 7000 miles during which they will become acquainted with nearly all the different climes of the world. Leaving here in the North temperate zone they pass through the torrid zone into the south temperate, and will there be in a part of the world entirely different to the one they have always been accustomed to.

Early in the evening crowds were seen on the streets, many going to the drill hall, others discussing the latest news from Africa, and about the boys who were in a few hours to bid farewell to their homes and friends, some to return, some, perhaps, to remain for ever in the land, lying under the southern cross.

At the armouries large crowds had assembled to see the boys and wish them good-bye, and a safe journey.

That the men of this district have heartily responded to the call of duty is well known. During the past two years nearly forty men have answered that same call. Some have returned and some have not, for those who gave their life on the battle field, we mourn, but what is a soldiers profession, it is to "do or die," but we sincerely hope that those who have left so recently will all return safe and sound, to their home and friends.

Those who left last night are,—

Acting Corporal, M. Murphy.
Sergt 57th Regt.
Ex. Sergt. George Might
57th Regt.
Bugler, B. Cranfield.
57th Regt.
Bugler, L. O'Connor.
57th Regt.
W. C. Bradburn.
Lat. 3rd P.W.C. Dgns.
W. H. Blanchard.
Vetrinary Surgeon.
Alex Trotter, Civilian.

The men paraded at the Drill Hall last night at eleven o'clock and went from there to the station in a body. The bugle Band turned out in full strength to give two of their member a hot time. Messrs. Cranfield and O'Connor are going as representatives of the band in this contingent and will no doubt uphold the honor of that organization in the most soldierly manner.

At the drill hall the officers presented Sergt Murphy, Buglers Cranfield and O'Connor each with the sum of twenty-five dollars, a gift which is most acceptable and useful to a soldier.

The employees of the C. G. E. Works remembered Messrs. Cranfield and O'Connor, two of their fellow employees in a most substantial manner by presenting them each with a sum of money on Tuesday evening. At the George Matthews' works, yesterday, Mr. Alex Trotter, an employee of that firm, were presented with a sum of money by his fellow employees.

Mr. R. M. Roy secured a photo of each of the men yesterday afternoon at his studio.

To warm things up for the boys a large bon fire was built on Hunter St. corner. The fire teams turned out and conveyed the soldiers to the C.P.R. station.

The Toronto and London men passed through on same train the local men went on.

The Queen Improving

London, Dec. 27.—Queen Alexandra is making favorable progress towards recovery. Dr. Laking visited her today. Notwithstanding her indisposition her Majesty sent a present to each patient in the Cheyne Hospital. There was private service in the Chapel at Marlboro House yesterday. The King and Princess Victoria were present.

A ROYAL JOKER

The Grand Duke of Hesse squirted Water on the Royalties.

Darmstadt, Dec. 27.—The Grand Duke and the Duchess of Hesse were formally separated by the superior court yesterday. The grand duchess was regarded as one of the beautiful princesses of Europe. She is the daughter [illegible] the late Alfred of Coburg. The grand duke is the son of the late Princess Alice, Victoria's daughter.

The royal pair were estranged in the first year of their marriage. The grand duke was in the habit of selecting his young wife as the butt of numerous practical jokes. These led to a quarrel and the duchess left Darmstadt and lived with her sister, the crown princess of Roumania. At a ball in the palace at Darmstadt, the electric lights were extinguished suddenly, whereupon the young grand duke and several associates who had previously provided themselves with squirt guns, [illegible] water at the bare neck and shoulders of the women present, incidentally hitting them whenever they got a chance. For a time a reconciliation was effected by the late Queen Victoria. The duke is a querulous, bad tempered man and the duchess is proud and high-spirited.

Absent Minded

"Speaking of absent-minded men," said "Jimmy" Spearman, the popular wine clerk at the Palace, "a fellow came in yesterday morning carrying a heavy overcoat on his arm. He shivered as he came up to the bar. 'Bit o' chilly and raw this morning, ain't it?' he said. 'Yes, it is,' says I. 'What'll you have?' 'Guess I'll take a hot punch to warm me up' says he, and he shivered again as he poured out a stiff drink. After he had downed it I says: 'If your so chilly why don't you put on your overcoat?' 'By George, I never thought of that' says he. I've been carrying it on my arm ever since I left home.' He put o his coat and started for the door. 'Here!' I says, 'you forgot to pay for your drink.' Then he came back, planked down a dime and says: 'Did I have a I forgot.' Say, that fellow was the limit."

GERMANY BEING WATCHED

UNITED STATES WILL HARDLY ALLOW HER TO SEIZE PORT

If She Does There May Be Trouble—Bitter Feeling Growing Up Between the Two Countries.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Informal inquiries have been made at the State Department, it is understood, as to what this Government would do if Germany should seize a Venezuelan port to force the payment of claims of German citizens.

The German Ambassador's visit to the State Department a few days ago was connected with that subject, although it was given out that he made no official representation.

Department officials have been extremely reticent, except to say in a general way that the United States will not be called upon to intervene unless the well-established policies of this Government are interfered with.

The trouble between Germany and Venezuela is said to have grown out of the Venezuelan Government's failure to pay the 7 per cent. interest guaranteed on the bonds of the Caracas-Venezuela Railroad, which bonds are held in Germany, principally in Hamburg. There is also said to be another claim against the Venezuelan Government of [illegible] for damage to the railroad by revolutionists when Gen. Castro, now President, was at their head.

Should Germany seize a port she would add to the original bill all her expenses, and that might so increase the alleged indebtedness as to require an indefinite occupation of Venezuelan territory.

The Government has carefully noted the progress of events and is prepared to take such action as the situation may demand.

Germany is expected to apprise this Government of her full purpose in any move she may make against Venezuela, and if any action is suggested which this Government might regard as offensive, Germany would be so informed.

It was said at the State Department to-day that there was no new developments.

MILK IN BASKETS

Washington, Dec. 26.—The State department has published the following report by Robert Burgh, United States consul at Gothenburg, Sweden:

"Dr. M. Ekenberg, of Gothenburg, has made a discovery, which will be of importance in dairy farming. He claims to have invented an apparatus by which milk can be brought into the form of powder, like flour in appearance, but possessing all the qualities of milk in concentrated form, moisture excepted. It is said that this milk flour is completely soluble in water, and can be used for all purposes for which common milk is employed. The milk flour does not get sour, does not ferment, and in the dry state is not sensible to changes in the weather. It can be kept and transported in tin cans, baskets, barrels, bags, etc. The cost of production Dr. Ekenberg has estimated at about twenty-seven cents per ten quarts, and he thinks that flour made from skimmed milk can be sold for about thirteen cents per pound. At a recent meeting of the Academy of Agriculture, Dr. Ekenberg exhibited samples of the milk flour, which received favorable comments. It is considered that the invention will be of the greatest importance for the utilization of skimmed milk, which heretofore, has been wasted, but in the dry form can be transported all over the country without losing any of its original good qualities.

"The product mentioned is considered superior to the casein products 'protan,' and 'proteide,' now manufactured from milk by the aid of rennet, acid or lye."

A Comic Opera Strike.

THERE is, as a rule, little that is humorous in a strike. But a recent strike in Columbus, O., is so humorous and at the same time so extraordinary that it seems almost incredible. It sounds as if it took place in Topsy-turvydom instead of in the United States of America. It would make a good libretto for one of Gilbert and Sullivan's crazy operettas.

This is the story of the Columbus strike: C. M. Jones is editor and proprietor of the Columbus "Press-Post"—that is, he was. The paper is now apparently being edited by almost everybody but the editor. It seems that Editor Jones got into trouble with his city editor. The city editor is a member of the Newspaper Writers' Union. Now it has long been a grievance among newspaper reporters that they are not so well treated as the printers, because they have no union. On the other hand, the printers have a union which is the most powerful and prosperous trade union in the country, with the possible exception of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. The reporters have attempted to form unions. But they are like ropes of sand. So they finally decided to organize under the wing of the printers.

In every union printing-office there is a body called "the chapel," presided over by a "father." The foreman represents the employer, the father of the chapel represents the printers. Whenever there is a question at issue, the printers invariably take their orders from the father of the chapel instead of the foreman. So in the office of the "Press-Post," the reporters organised as a newspaper writers' union under the protection of the printers' chapel.

Editor Jones found City Editor Marshall unsatisfactory for various reasons. First, he had criticised some court house officials who were friends of Editor Jones; and, second, he had been "scooped" by the other Columbus papers on a railroad wreck; they had run the wreck with "scare-heads," and City Editor Marshall had not run it at all. Therefore Editor Jones requested Marshall to resign. Marshall refused. Editor Jones then informed him that he was discharged. Marshall at once ordered a strike, and Newspaper Writers' Union No. 2 walked out. Editor Jones attempted to parley with them and offered to secure another editor. They refused to return unless Marshall was replaced. Thereupon Editor Jones broke off negotiations, got ten young men from the State University as reporters, edited their copy himself, and it was sent to the composing-room. The father of the chapel walked to the imposing-stone, rapped thereon with a mallet, a chapel meeting was held, and the printers stopped their work. The father of the chapel informed Editor Jones that if the non-union copy was not removed from the hook the printers would strike. Editor Jones took back his non-union copy. That day the "Press-Post" did not come out. The next day Editor Jones sent the paper to press without any local news, filling it up with narratives of the low-necked gowns at Newport, snake stories, accounts of the shocking attire worn by the young women at Long Branch, and other refined and pleasing miscellany of the kind usually found in the Sunday supplements of great daily newspapers. Unfortunately, Editor Jones, feeling somewhat embittered over the situation, wrote with his red right hand a savage editorial on the labor question and sent it in to the printers. Not being local news, and being written by the editor and proprietor, it might be supposed that they would print it. Not so. Again the unfortunate editor was informed that he must withdraw his non-union copy, or the printers would strike. Editor Jones withdrew his editorial.

At last accounts the "Press-Post" is still running without the local news, and Editor Jones is beseeching President Lynch of the International Typographical Union to devise some means by which he may be allowed to get his paper out.

So the question may be asked. Who is editing the Columbus "Press-Post?" Is it the proprietor, Editor Jones? or is it the discharged employee, City Editor Marshall? or is it the Newspaper Writers' Union No. 2? or is it the father of the Columbus printers' chapel? or is it the president of the International Typographical Union of North America?

Expenses of Society Life in New York.

Mothers of daughters having social aspirations find it very expensive to meet all the social requirements and demands made upon them, as is shown in proceedings in the Supreme Court of New York brought by Mrs. Kate Shippen Roosevelt to have the yearly allowance of her daughter, Dorothy Quincy Roosevelt, increased from $1,500 to $3,000. Even the larger sum will not by any means be sufficient to keep this young lady in good society and meet all the various expenses incidental thereto; but Mrs. Roosevelt says she is willing to pay the additional expenses, which will amount to several thousand dollars annually, out of her own pocket. Miss Roosevelt inherited $100,000 from a deceased uncle, which is being held in trust for her until she becomes of age next year. Inasmuch as her income amounts to $4,000 and Mrs. Roosevelt proved to the satisfaction of William J. A. McKim, the referee, that $3,000 is only a reasonable amount for a young woman of good social position, the increased allowance was granted. In giving her testimony, Mrs. Roosevelt said she had six tutors for her daughter, who, among other things, was being educated in German, French, and Italian. She was also being instructed in elocution, belongs to several social dancing-classes, is a member of golf, tennis and bathing clubs, is fond of riding, and has an English governess. Mrs. Roosevelt added that the needs of her daughter were increasing year by year, that she found entertaining and traveling abroad added greatly to the cost of living; that one of her daughter's greatest incidental expenses was for hire of cabs going to and from social functions, and that a great deal of the social life which young ladies in New York see is where gentlemen are not invited, such as teas, receptions, etc.

EIGHT POUNDS!

Eight pounds of love and laughter, of smiles and sunshine or—? Many a mother can fill up the blank out of her experience of puny, wailing children, whose coming brought no gladness to the home. Women who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a pre-natal preparation know that it makes all the difference between happy, healthy motherhood, and a motherhood of murmuring and misery. And they know also, that happy, healthy mothers have happy, healthy children. "Favorite Prescription" strengthens the whole body for the strain of motherhood. It practically does away with the pains of childbirth, gives the mother abundant vitality and enables her to nurse and nourish a healthy child.

The "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, chloral nor any other narcotic.

"I am mother of six children," writes Mrs. C. A. Briggs, of Millwood, Douglas Co., Oregon, "and always took three or four bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' before confinement and never suffered any to speak of; had no after pains; my babies were large—they all weighed more than eight pounds, and I am not a large woman; weigh about 115 pounds. I have had some stomach trouble, but a few doses of 'Golden Medical Discovery' would set me all right. I am hardly ever without your medicines. They are all the medicine one needs, if taken in time, to keep one in perfect health.

"I feel that I owe my little boy's life to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, as he had convulsions, and everything he ate would bring them on. I commenced to give him the 'Golden Medical Discovery' in ten drop doses three times a day. Now he is just as healthy a child as can be found and he grows like a weed."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the best laxative for women.

HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
EVERY BOTTLE BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER
Rabbi of the Cong. Bnai Israel.
NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.
DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:
Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,
REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

AVON SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901.
DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows of 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of The Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, who will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. Johns, writes: I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the doctors have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Curious Bits of News.

Scotland for many years held the record for the highest mill chimney in the world, but now the Silver Works Company, at Antwerp, has beaten that record with a shaft 419 feet high, surmounted by a lightning conductor 58 feet high.

An examination of the ravages due to tuberculosis shows that England, with a damp and foggy climate, only loses 50,000 consumptives per annum, while in France, with a much healthier climate, the victims, on an equal population, are annually 150,000.

The flags to be hoisted at one time in signalling at sea never exceed four. It is an interesting arithmetical fact that with eighteen various colored flags, and never more than four at a time, no fewer than seventy-eight thousand six hundred and forty-two signals can be given.

In the recent heat wave in Rome four swimmers made up a party at eleven o'clock in the morning and proceeded to take their breakfast in the Tiber. They appeared on the river bank carrying a table loaded with dainties, pushed off, and had their meal without returning to the bank, and, what is more surprising, without touching the bottom.

A singular deed has been filed in Northumberland County, Pa. It is dated October 9, 1793. In a series of whereases it traces the ownership of the land conveyed from the Creator of the earth, who, "by parole and livery of seizin did enfeoff the parents of mankind, to wit, Adam and Eve, of all that certain tract of land called and known in the planetary system as the earth."

Berlin is in possession of a shorthand writer with a unique specialty. He attends all funerals of prominent persons and takes down verbatim the addresses of the officiating clergymen. Then he prepares highly ornamented copies of the addresses and sells them to the friends of the eulogized dead. His business is so good that he has found it necessary to engage a staff of assistants.

The "Mexican Herald" tells of an exciting scene witnessed in the Romita ring during a bull fight on bicycles. Two of the chulos placed the banderillos, or short stabbing sticks, into the neck of the bulls. When the second bull entered the ring, Jose Basurto, manoeuvring his bicycle cleverly, placed the sticks with great daring, while his comrade coolly sat on his wheel, which was propped to stand upright in the center of the ring. Luckily, the bull paid no attention to him.

In Lower California there is a colony of outlaws, including some of the most noted escaped criminals who operated during the latter half of the nineteenth century. They live in a strange, rugged stretch of country, with the Gulf of California on one side and a range of foothills which spread down toward the Mexican border on the other. There are no ports at this point on the coast of California, and no railroads reaching in from the other direction, so the men are pretty well isolated. They are practically prisoners, but as they do no harm nobody has troubled to interfere with them.

Arrangements are being made by a Mr. Robinson of New York for a round-the-world trip on a motor car. It is proposed that the tour shall start from Calais about May, 1902. Moscow will be taken in via Paris and Berlin. Thence the route will follow the great Siberian Railway to Vladivostock, when ship will be taken to Japan. This interesting country will be traversed, and the party will re-ship to America. No difficulty is anticipated in crossing the American Continent, though up to the present no one has accomplished the feat. At New York passage will be taken for Liverpool; from there the run will be to Dover, when the tour will conclude.

"Fifty casks of a special design and the strongest possible construction," says the "Youth's Companion," will soon be sent to Behring Sea by the United States Revenue Marine Service, and placed upon the highest hummocks of the floe ice. It is hoped by tracing their future course to test the direction of the currents that cross the polar regions. The casks are twenty-eight inches long and sixteen inches in diameter, pointed at the ends and painted black, so as to be seen easily. Inside of each are directions printed in several different languages, asking the finder to write to the nearest United States consul, giving the latitude and longitude in which the cask was found, and the date."

Purveyor by Appointment to His Majesty the Cat.

Those of the public who may imagine that there is no room for initiative and ingenuity in the cats' meat trade, says the London "Chronicle," are vastly mistaken. In Kensington an enterprising young fellow is said to be making a fortune through the happy idea of supplying, on request, fish instead of meat for the cats on his round. The pets of the prosperous can obtain meat at almost any time, and they will not look, for the most part, at the wares of the cats' meat man. But no cat can resist a tasty bit of fish, be it offered when it may, and a huge success is the result of the innovation. Again, there are certain purveyors who take trouble to obtain a close knowledge of every single animal on their rounds and its little peculiarities. This knowledge once gained, the cats' meat man buys and cuts his portions accordingly, taking care that each cat gets its favorite bit. All chance of rivalry is removed at once by this means, for a cat will not for weeks, unless driven by desperate hunger, touch the strange cuts of a new purveyor.

TOBACCO, LIQUOR AND DRUGS

Dr. McTaggart's tobacco remedy removes all desire for the weed in a few weeks. A vegetable medicine, and only requires touching the tongue with it occasionally. Price $2.

Simply marvellous are the results from taking his remedy for the liquor, morphine, and other drug habits. Is a safe and inexpensive home treatment; no hypodermic injections; no publicity; no loss of time from business, and a certainty of cure.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of those gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of [illegible] shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offered for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one portion from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is a 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.50 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a [illegible] bbl. white oil gusher) [illegible] White Oil Co., Overman & Paris, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page [illegible]).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 18[illegible], and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from [illegible] to [illegible] feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders [illegible], and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $[illegible] to $4.50 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid returns. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. [illegible] acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reservation the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a [illegible] barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

London, Dec. 21.—There are increasing signs that the great powers of Europe are concentrating definite plans for action toward Turkey.

Early this week the Russian Ambassador in Constantinople informed Said Pasha, the new Grand Vizier, that the condition of Armenia and Macedonia was regarded by Europe as a disgrace to the Ottoman Government and peril to universal peace.

This significant announcement was followed almost immediately by a presentation of notes by all the Ambassadors with reference to the amazing attitude adopted by the Porte in the matter of the mining regulations.

UNDERSTANDING IS SOUGHT.

France and Russia are the leaders in this latest attempt to set the European steam roller in motion to smooth the rough places of Turkey. What they are trying to reach is the basis of "an understanding for making representations to the Porte and for eventually taking action in order to oblige the Sultan not only to carry out the clauses of the Treaty of Berlin relating to both Macedonia and Armenia, but to give guaranties for the execution of these and further reform and for the settlement of the numerous questions pending." So run the terms of what is undoubtedly a semi-official communication from Paris.

Russia, it is said, is discussing the question with Germany, the co-operation of Austria-Hungary and Italy can be taken for granted, and there is no doubt that Lord Lansdowne, the British Foreign Secretary, will combine in any genuine scheme to effect the objects which Lord Salisbury vainly endeavoured to obtain some years ago.

There has never been the least question that the powers could speedily solve the problem of the near East if they would speak with one voice and were animated by one fairly disinterested motive. But right here has been the hitch.

France startled the world by her independent course at Mitylene. Papers now assert in Paris—probably on the authority of the quai d'orsay—that French action was not more dramatic simply because the whole fabric of Ottoman administration is so rotten that a heavy blow might pulverize it. If this be so, all the more credit is due to M. Delcasse for forbearance. The Turkish flag waves over many millions of human beings, and the horrors that would follow the overthrow of the regime of Abdul Hamid until some time as an efficient substitute was ready, can be more easily imagined than described.

What would be the attitude of the Sultan should the powers come to an understanding that would leave him no room to question their earnestness? No one can predict with certainty the course of this most remarkable and miserable of potentates, but the opinion in London is that, so long as the dread word "partition" remained unspoken, Abdul Hamid would offer nothing more than a conventional opposition to the demands of Europe.

He is getting on in years. By degrees he has drawn into his own hands all the threads of administration throughout his vast dominions. The Sultan is one of the hardest workers in the world, but no physique is capable of indefinitely sustaining the strain he imposes on both mind and body.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1895, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of this treatment, in a plain, sealed wrapper.

LETTER TO SANTA CLAUS

It Was Picked up on the Street by a Newsboy

Yesterday a Times newsboy brought in a letter which he picked up on Albert street, and which bore the simple inscription: "To Dear Santa Claus." On opening it the letter read as follows, and was evidently written by a child:

Dear Santa Claus; I would like you to send me if you please, good Santa Claus, one steam car, one little red wagon, one stocking full of candy. I have a little sitter (sister) who is sick, and mamma says she is going to the angels. Please send her a doll that can open and shut its eyes, and much oblige, your little friend, DAVIE M.

The Times made enquiries as to the little author, and found he was the son of a poor woman. Santa Claus answered the note, although a little late, with the result that two little ones were made supremely happy.

A GREAT SUCCESS

Mark Street Church Christmas Tree and Entertainment

The annual entertainment of Mark St. S. School is always held on Christmas night, in the Town Hall, Ashburnham. The gathering last night was, as formerly, quite successful.

Rev. O. L. Thompson, pastor of the church, occupied the chair.

Interesting recitations were given by Cecil White, Martha Murray, and Clinton Rightmyer. Several choruses and carols were rendered by the school and by the choir. These were very appropriate to the occasion. An excellent dialogue. The Census Taker, was ably rendered by several members of Auburn Sabbath School. The members of Mark St. School presented another, "Taming a Lion," which was also given in a pleasing manner.

A piano duet was given in excellent style by Misses Hubbs and Thompson.

The distribution of the presents was, in several instances, the cause of considerable fun. Each child belonging to the school received a bag of candies, and nuts.

The evening was much enjoyed by all present.

A THRILLING INCIDENT

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I was engaged in conversation on the market yesterday morning with friend, who is comfortably well off. As we talked, a ragged tramp approached. "Excuse me a minute," said my friend, "I know this unfortunate fellow." As he looked in the tramp's direction the latter turned away and crossed the street hurriedly as if to avoid his old acquaintance. "Poor fellow!" remarked the business man. "I want to give him something." He followed the miserable-looking tramp, halted him at the other side of the street and quietly passed him a note. "Thank you, Mr. Billy," was the tramp's reply. "Why did you run away?" asked his benefactor. "I have not seen you for several years." "Well, I felt ashamed; you done so much for me before," replied the tramp. "God bless you and increase your store." The business man came back and in explanation of the incident said "That poor wreck came from Ireland with me nearly 50 years ago. His people were large millers in a prosperous town. He was once as fine a looking young man as you could look at. I don't know what happened to him, but he went to ruin. It is the old story, I suppose.

LOCAL NEWS-LETTERS

APSLEY.

—It was hardly daylight—the dawning of the morning had not completely dispelled the shades of night when "Paddy" cracked his whip and the stage team started up the street trotting briskly with a load of something that looked like trunks, piles of dry-goods and furs. From the depths of one pile is heard a voice, "Are ye cold?" Let me explain: The holiday season is here, the schools are closed, and the teachers are going home via stage, wrapped and bundled up as though it was a cold morning, when it was only 15 below zero. Some allowance must be made however, as it is more the custom of school teachers to sit in an easy chair with a story book than to get up before breakfast and go out in the cold. There are, of course, some exceptions and Apsley has for the past two terms had one of the exceptions in the person of Mr. E. J. Howson, of South Dummer. He got up every morning before breakfast, unless he had been out to a taffy pull the night before. It was alright to have the taffy pulled, but he didn't like to have his hair pulled. The progress of the school speaks well for Mr. Howson's ability as a teacher; he is a willing helper in any good work. His services were appreciated as president of the Epworth League and as a member of the choir. It would be well if more of our school teachers were willing to let their helpfulness extend beyond six hours per day in the school room.

—Rev. Mr. McConnell, B.A., of Queens University, preached a very helpful sermon on Sunday evening, taking as his subject, "King David." Mr. McConnell will remain during the holidays.

—A few cases of scarlet fever have been reported.

—As yet the Dr. has been able to attend all the calls, but if the work should increase too rapidly he can call out his faithful assistant, Rev. Mr. Lord.

Mr. William Garbutt and Albert Carpenter appeared before the council and spoke at considerable length with regard to this communication, and urged the council to send delegates to interview the farmers growing the beets in Michigan Moved by Mr. Allen, seconded by Mr. Sullivan that the Reeve be appointed a delegate to go to Michigan for the purpose of investigating the statements made as to the sugar factories there. The financial statement for the year was read, and the Clerk authorized to get the necessary number of copies printed and disposed of according to law. Fairyland

The local stores are now looking their prettiest, which befits the holiday season.

As the one presenting the greatest variety, in its own legitimate lines, China Hall stands pre-eminently first.

For twenty years this store has invited the public to view its Christmas display, and has received a generous share of patronage. The assortment of 1901 is more comprehensive than any of its forerunners, the stock including graceful ornaments, handsome dinner-sets, with their accompanying glasses, dainty china tea-sets, lamps, flower-pots, celery trays, salad bowls, pudding dishes, bread and butter plates, fancy cups and saucers in endless variety. In fact each article in this vast stock is suitable for a present, and a gift of china never offends, but always pleases its recipient.

China Hall in its present festive attire resembles a fairyland through which all are invited to wander, as the store will be kept open every evening until after Christmas.

THE KING, THE QUEEN and THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.

A Remarkable Offer.

Here is the best offer ever made in this community. By a very excellent arrangement made with the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal we are enabled to offer the PETERBORO WEEKLY TIMES and that great Family Paper, the Family Herald and Weekly Star, for one year for the small sum of $1.50 and include to each subscriber three beautiful premium pictures, of which the following is a brief description:

KING EDWARD VII.—True to life, a beautiful portrait, size 18x24 inches, on beautiful heavy white satin finished paper for framing. This portrait has been taken since his accession to the throne, and is the very latest and best obtainable. It cannot be had except through the FAMILY HERALD AND WEEKLY STAR, each picture bears the King's autograph. This picture has the great merit of being the first taken after the King's accession, and has therefore an historical value that no other picture can possess.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.—An exquisitely beautiful picture of the remarkably beautiful and good Queen Alexandra, also taken since the King's accession to the throne. It is the same size as that of the King, the two forming a handsome pair of pictures that alone would sell for many times the subscription price of paper and pictures.

No portrait of the King and Consort taken at the second or succeeding sittings can have one fraction of the value of the first. These go down to history.

THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.—The Renowned Gainsborough Picture. Sold at auction sale in London twenty-five years ago for $10,000, stolen by clever thieves, hidden for over twenty-four years and delivered to its owner on payment of $25,000 reward and since sold to Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan for $75,000.

This, in brief, is the history of one of the premium pictures, which, by a clever stroke of enterprise, the publishers of the Family Herald have secured for their subscribers. The picture is 22 x 28 in ten colours, and is reproduced line for line, colour for colour with the original. Copies of the reproduction are now sold in New York City, Montreal and Toronto for $12 each, and this is the picture Family Herald subscribers are going to get absolutely free together with the pictures of the King and Queen.

Is that not big value? Call at THE TIMES Office and see samples of these beautiful pictures.

You want THE TIMES for the local news, and you want that great paper the Family Herald for its 24 pages of general news and family reading. Its agricultural pages alone are worth many times the subscription price.

MINISTERS ALARMED OVER WAR OUTLOOK

Cases in Cape Colony Overlooked in a Time of Momentary Rejoicing

THE POLICY OF UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER

Said to be Running all Chance of Early Peace—The Only Terms the Boers Will Accept

London, Dec. 28.—There is a widespread and growing impression here that the south African outlook has greatly improved and that the war is near its end.

"Hope springs eternal" on every British success and General Bruce Hamilton's achievements, coupled with the succeeding lull in the war news, accounts for the current optimism. The next boer success will be followed, as usual, by a relapse into wailing pessimism and futile demands for more vigorous measures.

Meanwhile despite the capture of Kritzinger—the importance of which naturally has been magnified — the area of the rebellion in Cape Colony is increasing instead of diminishing.

The correspondent for The London Post can state on positive authority that the Cape ministers are so desperately alarmed at the situation that they have advised the imperial cabinet that the unconditional surrender policy is ruining all prospect of the continuance of British dominion in south Africa. Furthermore, the cabinet here is agreed that if through informal overtures by the Cape Dutch leaders the boers could be induced to withdraw to the northern section of the Transvaal, leaving to Great Britain the gold area and Pretoria, terms not distinguishable from independence might be arranged with them.

Apparently it was to consider this scheme of settlement, President Steyn of the Orange Free State, Commandant General Botha, General De Wet and General Delarey gathered Dec. 16.

It is possible, therefore, that peace may be coming, but if it is concluded it will be under terms very different from unconditional surrender or humiliation for the Boers, for which the jingoes have been shrieking.

A Times' despatch, dated from Pretoria, Dec. 26th, says that the war is assuredly on its last legs, as the Boers are incapable of further serious resistance.

Seethings in South America

New York, Dec. 27.—Under the rule of General Castro—nominally President, but really military dictator—Venezuela has been brought into a frightful position.

A special cable despatch from the German capital shows that at a meeting of the German cabinet called by Count von Buelow it has been determined to bring Castro's government to account for the long overdue debt of ten million dollars owed by Venezuela to Berlin bankers.

As there is no question of the justice of the debt and Germany formally disclaims any intention of annexing territory the United States government will not intervene. A special cable despatch from Willemstad, island of Curacoa, chronicled the outbreak of still another and serious insurrection against Castro's government, headed by the president-elect of one of the Venezuelan States and two former war ministers of the republic.

Meanwhile further south the friction between Chili and Argentina has become more intense. A cable from Buenos Ayres chronicled the fact that the Argentine government has wired its minister in Chili authorizing him to withdraw from the country and that military operations were being pushed on both sides of the Andes. Officials and diplomatists in Washington regard Argentina's action as probably the prelude to war, and United States war ships are being ordered to the South Pacific.

Even in view of these facts it is difficult to believe that the two republics will indulge in such a foolish and useless war. Argentine officials evidently have a bad case of "swelled head." Lord Lansdowne should apply a cold compress, for England has large colonies and enormous investments in both republics—those in Argentina amounting to a billion or a billion and a half dollars. Both republics by solemn treaty have referred all the questions in dispute to the arbitration of the British government, and to make war while this was pending would certainly not be complimentary to Great Britain, to say nothing of the fact that it would still further impair their ability to pay their debts.

Incidentally, it would seem scarce worth while for two republics having a population of perhaps half a dozen inhabitants to the square mile to war over a beggarly strip of territory, the ultimate ownership of which is to be decided by King Edward VII.

A LIVELY SCENE.

How an Inebriated Servant Made Things Lively in the House.

A citizen told The Times the following story yesterday:

He happened to come to his front door yesterday afternoon and was startled by the cry of help coming from the house next door. He went out on the porch and listened, and sure enough the cries emanated from the adjoining premises, and were punctuated by pounding noises. Presently a stout female, carrying a bundle, emerged from the house and stalked away. It was the cook. Her mistress was found in a state of nervous collapse by the woman next day, and between sobs she told of how the cook had been imbibing too freely, refused to do her work, had given impudence, and had been discharged. Then the trouble began. She refused to be discharged. She threatened her mistress. She even chased her through the house, vowing to do her bodily harm. Then she retired to the seclusion of her own room, where the bottle was. Taking advantage of this her mistress crept up, closed the door, and turned the key on the outside. Then came calls for help, hearing which the belligerent cook kicked a panel out of the door, liberated herself, and marched out with her belongings. It is a strenuous thing to discharge a cook, especially in Peterborough.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS TREE

About 60 children gathered for tea at five o'clock on Thursday evening at St Andrew's Sunday School room to partake of the good things of their annual Christmas tree.

The tree was daintily decorated and Santa Claus distributed suitable gifts to the children.

Last night the Senior Sunday school scholars held their annual tea and entertainment. Tea was served at six o'clock, programme open at eight. A very fine programme presented consisting of readings, recitations, dialogues &c., which was greatly enjoyed by the large audience.

MALT BREAKFAST FOOD

Ordinary cracked wheat and wheat granules are sold by some manufacturers as health foods. This is unfair and misleading to the masses who use grain foods at breakfast. This wheat food (it matters not by what name it is called), contains too much starch, which gives rise to thousands of cases of stomach troubles.

Malt Breakfast Food is made from the choicest Wheat and purest Malt.. The Malt renders the starch of the Wheat soluble, and gives us a partially predigested food of great nutritive value. Food experts say it is the only true health food in the World. If you are a stranger to it, you miss a treat each morning. At all Grocers.

A CANADIAN PROTEST

How a Trooper Regards the Pro Boers in England and Elsewhere.

London, Dec. 28.—A Canadian trooper writes to the London Times a few words which ought to make some of those who are abusing the sacred privilege of free speech ashamed of themselves. The Canadian writes: "With regard to the innumerable protests by pro-Boers, Little Englanders, and others, against the system of concentration camps in South Africa, I cannot help thinking what a good thing it would be if we could have a large concentration camp at home, in which we could detain till the end of the war these said pro-Boers and Little Englanders, who are doing their best, by encouraging the enemy, to nullify the efforts of our soldiers at the front—efforts which are not unaccompanied by hard work, poor feeding, and other discomforts."

Do those who are continually exalting everything Boer and decrying everything British, with their mistaken idea of working political injury to the party which happens to hold the reins of office in England, really wish to have bloodshed continue? Do they really desire that Canadians and other colonists, as well as Irish, Scotch, England and Welsh, under arms in South Africa, should continue to suffer hardship, privation, death? Every word of sympathy for the Boers published within the British Empire prolongs the war and gives encouragement to men who would gladly see this Empire crushed. Do pro-Boer orators and writers actually wish this; are they going ahead with their eyes open and fully aware of the consequences of what they are saying and writing?

Woe unto the world, and the cause of human freedom, when the much-reviled British Empire is in the dust and shorn of her power. Then will tyranny exult, and liberty in all lands be curtailed. Then will the weaker nations be absorbed by the stronger as they never have been before. Then will the only nation which has spent its millions of money, and thousands of lives to crush out slavery, to put down piracy, to protect the world against terrifying tyrants, be gone. Then will the great power for peace, the purchaser of the world's products, the backbone of the commerce of all the earth be broken. No country will be so insignificant as not to feel the consequences of so dire a disaster."

BRITAIN MUST QUIT IS THE BOER DEMAND

The Cool Proposal of Kruger & Co. Excites Ridicule.

BRITAIN TO QUIT SOUTH AFRICA

It is the Only Way That the War Can Be Stopped, Say the Boers—But Britain Will Show the Gang Another Way.

Paris, Dec. 27.—A correspondent of the Paris Figaro had an interview today with Mr. Kruger at which Dr. Leyds was also present. The ex-President stated that the war would only cease when Britain got off the continent of South Africa. He said that the forces of the burghers were gradually increasing, in spite of losses by capture and by battle.

London, Dec. 27.—Under the pressure of the long-continued war the British people are said to be getting restive, but we fancy that they will be content to fight on for months, and even for years, when they are fully advised of the terms in consideration of which the Boers will cease campaigning. Kruger gave out his version of these conditions a fortnight ago. That they do not err on the side of modesty a brief examination makes plain. In the first place, there must be unconditional amnesty to all Cape rebels. It is possible that after a satisfactory peace has been accomplished, His Majesty's Government may be ready to forget and forgive the action of those British subjects who without reason sought to dispossess the British Crown. But Kruger's demand is that the revolt to arms must be excused, not as a matter of clemency, but as a matter of right belonging to those who fought. This point is emphasized by the further proposals which require compensation to all Boers for material losses sustained during absence on commando, and the restoration of the Boer Republics with full autonomy under an Afrikander flag. The idea of Kruger is that the Republics should be put back where they were before they declared war; that the Boers who fought should be indemnified for their losses by Britain, and that the rebels should escape, not by free pardon, but on the assumption and with the confession by the Imperial Government that they were justified in attempting to drive the British from Africa. The thing amounts practically to an apology by Britain to the Boers, coupled with the provision that these people may do it again whenever they are ready. If Mr. Kruger's "minimum", for such his announced conditions are said to be, is a somewhat cool proposal, his "maximum" or rather the Boer maximum, as outlined by General Botha's European emissary, is cooler still. The only terms acceptable by the Boers, according to this individual must include the surrender of all South Africa by the British. The recognition of autonomy would not be sufficient. He says: "We must be masters of the Cape, as well as of the Transvaal." It seems probable that Botha's agent, in that he differs from Kruger, is interpreting the mind of the ex-President. Kruger wants something short of the complete withdrawal of Britain from South Africa; but his "minimum" were it accepted, would render the maximum of Botha possible within a few years. If Britain were to restore the Republics and apologize to the Boers, it would only be a question of time when her power in South Africa would end. The re-establishment of the Republics would enable them to arm once more for a conflict; the capitulation to the men in the field would inspire these men to fight again whenever the preparations are completed for a raid upon British territory. Britain does not desire to fight this battle over again. Unless she finish it up now this stern necessity will be forced upon her. Therefore a fight to the end is her best course. The announcement of the terms has a serious effect upon the fortunes of the Boer sympathizers in England. These gentlemen have represented that there was no desire on the part of their clients to capture South Africa, and that all that these people want now is a species of autonomy under the flag, such as accorded to Canada and Australia. But this is all moonshine. The Boers coveted British territory from the first, and indeed annexed a good deal of it soon after the war broke out. By the leaders the old aspiration is still cherished, and the autonomy they want is freedom to arm once more that they may fight later on for the realization of their dream. No self-respecting nation could consent to such a programme.

THE LATE JOHN M'KEE

Particulars of His Death — Stricken With Heart Disease—He Evidently Was Expecting a Sudden Call

Mr. R. B. McKee, of town received a letter from Mr. John McKee, of New York, a connection of the late John McKee, whose untimely death is so universally deplored. Mr. McKee says:

"I suppose you know that the deceased had been travelling for some time for an English house known as the Infant Food Co. They have a process of drying milk into a powder, and by pouring hot water on it, it becomes fresh milk again. Mr. and Mrs. McKee came here last week from New Haven, Conn. Mrs. McKee was going to Toronto, but Mr. McKee decided to remain in the city during the holidays. He and I saw Mrs. McKee off on the Empire Express on Saturday morning at half past eight, o'clock. Mr. McKee said he was going down town, and I was going to 125th St. but we agreed to be home for dinner at six o'clock. About noon Saturday a boy came to the house and asked if John McKee lived there, and on an affirmative answer being given, he said that he had dropped dead. The people in the house naturally thought it was me. Later on, one of the girls came up town and found me still in the flesh.

I went to 81 Fulton street, the office of the Infant Food Co. The office was all shut up and nobody there except two steam-pipe fitters. They told me that a man came in there about ten o'clock, sat down on a chair, and said he was feeling very ill. He asked for a glass of water, of which he took a mouthful. He turned around, laid his hands on his desk, then laid his head on his hands and began to slide off the chair. The steamfitters laid him on the floor, when he gave a deep sigh and was dead.

The body had been removed to an undertaker's on Pearl street. I went there and sure enough it was our old friend, John McKee.

"I did not know how to reach any of his family, so wired you. I found afterwards that he had a card in his pocket book, on which was written: "If anything happens to me notify Mr. Sears, Western Union Telegraph building, Buffalo N.Y." Mr. Harkness the manager of the Food Company, wired Mr. Sears, and he advised Dr. Charlie McKee, in Toronto, who came to New York at once, reaching here Sunday, and started Sunday night at eight o'clock for Peterborough.

"I believe poor Mr. McKee was expecting sudden death.

FLOCKING TO THE BRITISH SCHOOLS

Boer Children Attending School in Large Numbers

STIRRED UP BY BOTHA'S AIDE

Parisians Roused by Sandberg, One of Louis Botha' Aides

London, Dec. 28.—The Times publishes a letter from Pretoria on the subject of education in the Transvaal and Orange River Colonies. It was stated at the beginning of the war that the Transvaal was educating 14,700 children, which number was nearly equalled last month in schools opened by the British, while the Orange River Colony about 8,000 are being taught. The average attendance of pupils in the concentration camps is 70 per cent. and the general average in the Transvaal is 75 per cent.

Quoting the Temps, the Paris correspondent of the Times says a large throng attended the morning performance organized by the Comite du Sou des Boers for the benefit of Boer women and children. Sandberg, Louis Botha's aide, gave details of the horrors of war in South Africa, evoking numerous demonstrations on the part of the audience. He wore the costume of a combatant, with a tri-color cockade and a bandolier.

What a Little Ad. in The Times did for The Stanley Piano Co.

Yesterday The Times received a telephone message from Mr. Stanley, the popular President and General Manager of the Stanley Piano Company, stating that the little notice which he placed in The Times, advertising two organs for sale, had secured buyers. The ad only appeared three times.

It is the old story, so often told, that "everybody reads The Times." It is pleasing to know that this great family journal is thus appreciated. Our friends on the street have been humbugged into believing that they were in the swim for business when their announcements appeared in our little local evening contemporaries. They evidently forget that fully one-half or more, of the buying community of the town and surrounding district read this g.f.j. as regularly and persistently as they eat their food.

RUSSIA AND BRITAIN ARE NEARING WAR

London, Dec. 28.—Each succeeding report of a treaty between Russia and Persia giving Russia commercial and military access to the Indian ocean is more detailed and positive than the one which went before it. The latest report is accepted in England as a practical confirmation. And however England may pretend indifference, she knows that it means one more forward step of the crafty bear in that slow, stealthy, steady march to try and force England out of Asia.

For a century and a half Russia has been a mighty land grabber. But a century ago Russia saw and adopted the policy that is making her stronger every day. While England has been compelled to grab indiscriminately here, there and everywhere, assembling a vast heterogeneous and scattered empire, Russia has abandoned all her isolated territories or sold them, and has simply extended her borders. She extended them to the west until she was open to the Atlantic through the Baltic, to the east until she was on the Pacific far down into the temperate zone, to the south in Europe until she was practically a Mediterranean power, to the south in eastern Asia until she was one of the great east Asiatic powers with a long Pacific seaboard, and now to the south in western Asia until she is a power ready to dispute the possession of southern Asia with England.

Masonic Officers Installed by Rt. W. Bro. Judge Harding, Acting Grand Master

At the new Masonic Temple at the corner of George and Simcoe streets the largest gathering of Masons ever seen in Peterborough assembled last night to witness, and take part in, the installation of Officers of Peterborough and Corinthian Lodges A. F. & A. M. The installation ceremonies were conducted by Rt. Wor. Bro. Judge Harding, Acting Grand Master, assisted by Ver. Wor. Bro. H. Winch, Rt. Wor. Bro. R. E. Wood, Rt. Wor. Bro. H. Rush and Wor. Bro. Thompson. A large number of visiting brethren were present, including many distinguished members of the order. At the conclusion of the installation ceremonies a sumptuous banquet was served by Mr. Harry Long which was very acceptably interspersed with speeches and vocal and instrumental music.

Wor. Bro. H. C. Rogers officiated as chairman of the proceedings, Rt. Wor. Bro. N. Rush as 1st Vice-President, and Rt. Wor. Bro. R. E. Wood as 2nd Vice-President.

The new Masonic Temple, which was used jointly by the two lodges for the first time last night, meets the requirements of the fraternity in every way, and Masons may well be proud of their new quarters. Both the blue and red halls are models of beauty, comfort and utility, while the adjoining anterooms and offices are up-to-date in all their appointments.

The general consensus of opinion seemed to be that last night's event was the most brilliant Masonic function ever held in Peterborough.

The new Temple will be dedicated on March 16th next, when it is expected that the Grand Lodge will convene here, together with a Lodge of Instruction.

MARRIED IN TORONTO

Mr. J. C. Turnbull, Formerly of Town, to Miss Rutherford

The marriage took place at No 149 Gerrard St. Toronto on Christmas day, of Miss Eliza J. Rutherford, daughter of Mrs. Wm. Rutherford, to Mr. J. C. Turnbull, of Davisville, formerly of town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Salmon, assisted by Rev. Dr. Zimmerman, formerly of Bethany tabernacle.

Deafness is Curable

Sufferers from impaired hearing will be glad to know that their affliction is probably not due to any organic defect in the ear, but results probably from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear caused by catarrhal inflammation. Hundreds of perfect recoveries as a result of the inhalation of Catarrhozone are reported, and on the highest authority we recommend this treatment to our readers. Catarrhozone quickly restores lost hearing, and its efficiency is placed beyond dispute by the case of Mr. Foxall of St. Thomas, who recovered perfect hearing by using Catarrhozone, after years of deafness. Price $1. At Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

At the Opera

At the opera house last night, a play entitled "A Pretty Sinner," written by Harry Lindley, the popular theatrical manager was presented to a full house. The full houses which attend at the plays of this company speak for the popularity of his plays. At the opera house this afternoon there will be a Matinee and a new play in the evening.

Made from grape cream of tartar most highly refined and chemically pure. Leaves neither acid nor alkali in the food.

PONTYPOOL.

The annual congregational fowl supper and entertainment of the Methodist church in this village, took place on Christmas night and was a huge success in every way. There was great difficulty in providing accomodation for the crowd, which numbered at least 300 persons. Long before the hour for supper arrived, the Oddfellows' Hall, where the supper was held, was jammed to the doors. So crowded did the hall, where the tables were set, become, that it was impossible for the waiters to get around. In vain did the Rev. Dr. Marvin, the popular pastor of the church, appeal to the people to move out. After an anxious delay, the crowd began to realize that they would have to make room, and a sufficient number moved out to allow supper to proceed. After all had been served, they adjourned to the church, which was also uncomfortably crowded. The pastor presided, and in a happy manner, introduced the various entertainers. The programme consisted of vocal and instrumental music, readings, recitations, etc. Mrs. E. Williamson, of Lindsay, was a host in herself, and was loudly encored. She is a clever elocutionist, and the audience were immensely pleased with her efforts. About $90 was realized.

—The Presbyterian congregation will hold their annual supper and entertainment on New Year's night. A good programme is being prepared, in which Rev. Mr. Potter and a quartette of singers from Peterborough, will take part. Special arrangements with the C.P.R. are being made for the midnight train to stop so as to accomodate those wishing to return the same night.

—There were many jolly sleighing parties on Xmas Day, the sleighing being fairly good here just now.

—It is pleasant to see the faces once more of Mr. and Mrs. Sam McRoberts, and two children, of Iowa, who will spend a few weeks visiting their relatives.

—Miss Maggie Byers, and the Misses Margaret and Addie Chambers, of Peterborough, spent Xmas in the village.

—Master Norton Chambers, of the Stanley Piano works, is spending a few days visiting his parents and friends here.

GLEN ALDA

—Mr. George Hawley cut his foot, nearly severing the heel cord.

—Mr. George Robinson is laid up with a severe cut.

—Mr. Chas. Danser cut his leg.

—Mr. Fennel and Mr. Herndon, of Hilton, having bought a block of timber in this neighborhood, are doing a good business.

—Mr. H. A. Mix has his nephew and heir, David Mix, of Wadsworth, living with him this winter.

—The school entertainment was a great success. Our teacher, Miss Campbell, deserves great credit for the manner in which she trained the children.

The Monkey's Point of View.

A NATURALIST once came upon an Ourang-Outang while the latter was taking his siesta under a banyan tree in a forest. The Naturalist viewed him for a time in silence and then apostrophized him as he might had little Harold been present.

"Base brute, thou liest there with no thought beyond the gratification of thy instincts! And yet scientists tell us that man, the noblest work of God, has evolved from such as thee. Insensate animal! Thou hast never had the glorious privilege of eating of the fruit of the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil."

"Pardon me!" said the Ourang-Outang, awakening suddenly from slumber, "I've had a few nibbles. Several years ago, a Scientist visited our wood, and he and I became quite chummy. He was always urging me to evolve and contended that it was quite an easy job. All I had to do, he said, was to strike fire with flint, make some stone implements and mud pottery, and haul off my neighbor's wife, thus establishing the sacred institution of the Family; but I have a strain of caution in my blood, and, as you see, I have rather a tidy berth here, so I demurred at the idea of exerting myself so tremendously for the doubtful good of obtaining something he called 'Progress.'

"Well, the more I hung back, the more the Scientist urged and coaxed: so we finally decided that if he would pay all the expenses, I would take a trip around the world with him and study various phases of civilization, and then, if I thought the game worth the candle, I would evolve for him while he waited.

"I assure you, I never was so fagged in my life. He hauled me over land and sea and showed me pleasures and palaces, steam yachts and automobiles, libraries and pictures, wine, women and song—in a word, the kingdoms of earth.

"When I had seen them all, I said, 'Get thee behind me, Satan.' This splendid civilization is a masterpiece, but a masterpiece of fools. Half of the civilized toil that the other half may play various silly games that they call Society, Power and Fame."

"What did he reply to this?" asked the Naturalist.

"He had no time to make reply," answered the Ourang-Outang. "Knowing him as well as I did, I was quite sure that he would convert the entire Bander-log people to his views and have all the monkeys in the country doing various stunts in their frantic efforts to evolve; so I simply cracked his head open with a cocoanut and disposed of the question without further argument."—Mrs. Wilson Woodrow in "Life."

R. S. Macdonald, Druggist, Peterborough

The bather sometimes finds the sand soft and yielding to his feet. It does not trouble him and he goes on until presently he sinks to his knees and discovers to his horror that he has to fight for his life in a quicksand.

Disease is much like the quicksand. The first symptoms of stomach trouble do not cause anxiety. But when the body grows weak through lack of nourishment and disease of the stomach breeds disease of heart, lungs, liver or kidneys, the sufferer realizes his danger and seeks for medicinal aid.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, etc., when these diseases have their origin in disease of the stomach and its allied organs.

Thomas A. Swarts, of Sub-Station C., Columbus, Ohio, Box 103, writes: "I was taken with severe headache then cramps in the stomach, and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble, and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. At last I had all the complaints at once, and the more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I got so thin I had given up to die. Then a neighbor said, 'Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles, in about six weeks I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) pounds. I have done more hard work in the past eleven months than I did in two years before, and I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

EVERY [illegible] BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:

Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows of 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,

O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

Kidneys and Bladder

Don't neglect these most important organs of the body, as you will regret it. Have you pain in the back, a dull feeling in the region of the kidneys? At times your water passes freely, a large quantity, light in color, with no peculiar sensations, while at other times you do not make it quite so freely, it is dark in color, you make a small quantity, and a sort of burning sensation? If such is the case give your condition immediate attention or more serious complications will arise. He Said "No."

THE great Young Men's Christian Association Convention recently held in Boston brought delegates from all parts of the world to testify to the value of the Christian religion as the highest rule of conduct for a practical life. It was natural, as the delegates met each other, for them to exchange vital experiences. The following was told by one who had traveled eight thousand miles to attend the meetings:

"My father was a rancher on a small scale in Australia. He had only a thousand sheep or so and a couple of square miles of run for pasture. He was an English emigrant of sturdy yeoman stock, and while the free life of a shepherd had taught him tolerance and kindness, he remained true in principle to the strict lessons of his early years.

"The nearest neighbor or station was ten miles away, but the ranchmen used to think nothing of riding twenty or forty miles to a centrally located farm on Saturdays to spend the night in carousal, and ride back on Sunday.

"The isolation was so depressing and the heat so exhausting that when the men came together once a week in this way, drinking and gambling seemed inevitable. In the kindled passion and excitement of these coarse pleasures they thought they might forget for a few hours the suffering and privation of their lot.

"At last it was my father's turn to entertain. He must invite the herders of the kraals and ranches within a radius of nearly fifty miles.

"'Boys,' he said to his two sons, my brother and myself, 'it's the parting of the ways. We either live as we have lived, simply, in the fear of God, minding our business, paying our debts if we can, saving our money if possible, and being cut by every man round here, or we fall into the ways of our neighbors, and drink and gamble ourselves into perdition. I am not going to break your mother's heart, and I say "No," even if they burn us down.'

"It was the critical moment of our lives. I could have fallen at my father's feet and worshipped him when he made that decision. He looked like a god—determined and invincible.

"So it came about that my brother and I divided the circuit between us, and I rode to the north and he to the south. To every ranchman this message went: 'Father invites you for Saturday and Sunday as usual. There will be no cards or liquor—only a quiet talk about old England and the welfare of the colony.'

"We waited that Saturday afternoon with trembling, not expecting a single guest. But suddenly one rode up, and then another, and another, until the whole section was represented. There never had been so large a gathering. They came in curiosity and with respect.

"With mother opposite him, father said grace at table, and we boys saw tears flow down rugged cheeks. That night the men talked long about bushmen and rabbits and fences and drought, and how to stand by each other.

"The next morning, as he did every Sunday morning, father conducted prayers, this time before fifty of the roughest men I had ever seen assembled; and there was singing of hymns, broken here and there by sobs and tears. When they parted, my father, although a recent comer, was the acknowledged leader of the community.

"That section became the most prosperous section in all the country round. And I thought if Christian courage could accomplish that, it was good enough for me to live and die by. My father's 'No' was the one thing needed to save the community, and it saved it."

A Roosevelt Story.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, the new President of the United States, was not always the mighty hunter he is now. He has had his day of being afraid of big game. But that was many years ago, when he was a wee little boy in short trousers and used to play tag in Madison Square in New York.

Opposite the square on the east side stood a Presbyterian church, and the sexton, while airing the building one Saturday, noticed a small boy peering curiously in at the half-open door, but making no move to enter.

"Come in, my little man, if you wish to," said the sexton.

"No, thank you," said the boy. "I know what you've got in there."

"I haven't anything that little boys mayn't see. Come in."

"I'd rather not." And the juvenile Theodore cast a sweeping and somewhat apprehensive glance around the pews and galleries and bounded off to play again.

Still the lad kept returning once in a while and peeping in. When he went home that day he told his mother of the sexton's invitation and his unwillingness to accept it.

"But why didn't you go in, my dear?" she asked. "It is the house of God, but there is no harm in entering it quietly and looking about."

With some shyness the little fellow confessed that he was afraid to go in because the seal might jump out at him from under a pew or somewhere.

"The seal? What is the seal?" the mother enquired.

"Why," explained Theodore, "I suppose it is some big animal like a dragon or an alligator. I went there to church last Sunday with Uncle R——, and I heard the minister read from the Bible about the seal, and it frightened me."

Down came the Concordance from the library shelf, and one after another of the texts containing the word "seal" was read to the child, whose eyes suddenly grew big and his voice excited, as he exclaimed:

"That's it—the last you read!"

It was Psalm lxix., 9: "For the zeal of thine house hath eaten me up."

The bride of William A. Clark, jr., the son of Senator W. A. Clark, the Copper King, has a dress in her trousseau made of hair-like copper wire that was created in Paris especially for her. The effect is said to be unique.

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs. Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen. Mgr., Los Angeles, California.
Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.
F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of 500,000 shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offered for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin [illegible] is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower [illegible] Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley [illegible] district, The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is [illegible] gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerito Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.50 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells it can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hortensia White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page 233).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 1876, and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from 200 to 800 feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $10,000,000, and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $4.25 to $4.50 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerito Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. 2000 acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reservation the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale 500,000 shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a 500 barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with the Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—In answer to the last pleadings of Robert Louis Stevenson for the rescue of the Southsea islanders from their pitiable condition the work of sending missionary help to these wild lands in the southern Pacific ocean has been launched. A bill has already been prepared, asking congress for an appropriation to carry on the work of mercy.

Miss Alice R. Palmer, an around-the-world missionary, Miss Mary C. Brehm, president of the Illinois branch of the national Woman's Christian Temperance union, and Miss Fanny Rastall, prominent in several large missionary organizations, made the appeal to the ministers and were assured that everything the various denominations could do to carry out the project planned years ago by the famous novelist would be done gladly.

The three women visited the weekly meetings of the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and Congregational ministers and met with great favor at each. They hope that the bill may pass congress and that something active may be started at a not far distant date for the rescue of the savages of the South sea islands.

MAKES HORRORS PUBLIC.

After Robert Louis Stevenson took up his residence in Samoa he made some considerable study of the conditions of the natives of the Samoan islands, the Friendly islands, the Tonga islands and the Hawaiian islands. He discovered that most of these natives were in a pitiable condition. They were savages, in many instances cannibals. They did not know the first laws of life. They lived in squalor and horrifying conditions.

These facts, with many others, were published in letters written by Stevenson to the New York Herald. The German government, which had control of most of the islands, especially of those most strongly condemned as being in a helpless condition, became so wroth over the criticism of Stevenson that they threatened to drive the author out of Samoa and much controversy was had over the matter at the time.

It was said at that time by many friends of the novelist, who was taken to task by Germany for publishing the deplorable condition of the natives, that the German government was to blame for much of the misery suffered by the savage inhabitants of the South sea islands. It was asserted that the German army and navy could stop certain abuses if it chose.

HAWAIIAN NOT AFFECTED

The Hawaiian islands were not included in the controversy to any extent and they have since come into the hands of the United States.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1898, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Just Like a Woman.

A busy man, with a package, bustled up to the stamp window in the Post Office the other morning. "How much postage on this?" he asked. The young lady took the package and weighed it. "Thirty-four cents," she announced. "What!" exclaimed the busy man. "That's right," said the lady. "It goes at letter rates. You see the strings are sealed with sealing wax." "Just like a woman," growled the busy man. "My wife asked me to mail this for her. It's a Christmas present to one of her relatives and I happen to know that the contents cost her exactly a quarter. Now it costs me 34 cents in postage. Here, gimme the stamps. I suppose I might take it home and make her wrap it properly, but I've wasted too much time over the blessed thing already!" And the busy man bustled away to the mailing department with his package.

DISMISSED THE CHARGES

Against Three Merchants Charged With Breaking Early Closing By-law

The early closing by-law is still in force, and as a result three George St. merchants were up before Magistrate Dumble yesterday, to answer for keeping their places of business open after hours. The defence in one case was that they were ignorant of the time, in another case it was held that no evidence was given that any customer was served after that hour. In the third case the accused acknowledged that he had sold goods after seven o'clock, but had closed immediately when notified.

The Magistrate dismissed the three cases, saying, he did not propose to decide the question as to the validity of the by-law. He said it was a pity, in his opinion, that the by-law did not provide for stores to be open for more than one night before Christmas and New Years. One night was enough before other holidays but at this season an exception should be made. He thought the merchants should ask the council to make a change in the by-law, but as it was their own making they should abide by it. Under the act the interpretation of the word "closed" would mean no serving of customers.

He held that in two cases no evidence had been given to show that customers had entered the store after hours and in the third, a young man had got a pair of shoe laces. Taking the view he did, of the two cases he did not propose to deal differently with the third, who had pleaded guilty, and, therefore, dismissed all the cases as a warning.

—At the police court yesterday morning, John Kennedy who was charged with stealing oats from Mr. W. A. Pue, of Cavan, was remanded for judgement.

—The Hastings Star says, that Peterborough has four cases of Smallpox. This proves the truth of the old saying that one must go from home to get the news. The statement is incorrect.

—At the entrance of G. E. Whiten's photo studio there can be seen as fine a display of artistic photos as any one would wish to look at. Have your best photos taken at Whiten's, corner of George and Hunter streets, west side.

We cannot see how the present council can be improved on as they have worked harmoniously and did a lot of good work. The majority of the electors like a contest, and it is for them to place men in the field, and we hope that the best material will be placed on the ballot.

A MILITARY FUNERAL

The Late Alexander Brough Buried With Military Honors Yesterday

The funeral of the late Alexander Brough took place yesterday afternoon from St. John's Church to the Little Lake Cemetery, and was well attended.

Preceding the hearse was a firing party of ten men under Col. Sergt R. Sturgeon of No 5 Company. Behind the hearse came Sergt Hatton, Sergt Major Brittain, Captain Bennett and Lieut. McLean. All of No. 5 Company.

A large number of members of the Federation marched in a body behind the hearse. The bearers, Messrs. Quinlan, Daily, Mandon, Quinlan, Lacey and Elliott. A number of floral designs were placed on the grave, among them a wreath from the Union and one from No 5 Company 57th Regt, of which the deceased was a member.

Rev. J. C. Davidson, Chaplain of the Regt. conducted the services.

At the grave the firing party fired a farewell salute over the grave.

Letters from the People on Interesting and Timely Topics.

Opposed to Prohibition.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I noticed a sermon by Rev. Mr. Locke, of Orillia, formerly pastor of the George Street Methodist Church, Peterborough, which deals with the liquor question. In order that the people of Peterborough and surrounding districts may know Mr. Locke's position on the liquor question, I ask you to print the following, taken from an Orillia paper. Mr. Locke says: If prohibition was properly enforced, it would be a blessing, and none would rejoice more than I. But if it is no better than when the Scott Act was in force, I for one would say we are better under a license law. I will give my reasons. When the Scott Act was supposed to be in force there were about ten houses selling for the one there is now, or was before the Scott Act was passed. And then when these people were informed on and some of their customers subpoenaed, what was the result? When the question was put to one of those who got the liquor, "Did you get whisky at such a place?" the answer would be, "I asked for lemon sour or some other soft drink, and I supposed I got it." That was the way the majority did who got the vile stuff. If not perjuring their souls to shield those men who sold it, what was it? And then, if the distillers were stopped, in every secret place there would be private whisky making going on. There would need to be an army of excise men to watch or the country would be flooded with it. And the last state would be worse than the first. Do not think I have said what I have because the traffic is pleasing to me, for it is not, but because I think the license law as it is provides a remedy for everyone who wishes to prohibit any person from drinking. Nothing is hidden the same as if total prohibition was passed.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

CIVIC AFFAIRS

With the approach of the elections, it is very necessary that every elector should be thoroughly alive to the interest he has in the welfare of the town. We believe that the apathetic state of municipal affairs, which existed for some years prior to last election, gave place then to an improved condition, and that a still greater interest is being taken in our public business. Though this is very satisfactory, we cannot say that there has been the corresponding improvement, in the transaction of the public business that it was natural to expect would have occurred. However, it is not a time for regret but for renewed effort. And here we would read a homily to the citizens generally. In the past it has too frequently been the case that those who have been the most adapted to serve in a public capacity have been the most disinclined to do so. This has caused the entrance into municipal life of others—worthy citizens enough—who did not possess the qualifications requisite for the positions which they filled. It is, of course, generally speaking, unreasonable to suppose or expect that a candidate for municipal honors should see himself as others see him. He undoubtedly is deeply imbued with [illegible] fitness to become a municipal representative. And this is where the difficulty occurs. For if the thoroughly qualified citizen refuses to offer himself for election, then the electors have to choose between less qualified candidates, and it becomes a question in that case of the selection of the lesser of two evils. What then is the solution or remedy? Is it not in the initiative action which should be taken by the citizens themselves, as we contended last year, in the selection of candidates? Should not the candidates be sought and brought out; and should not these candidates be heard before the election takes place? And with regard to the latter, we must emphasize the remark that altogether too much reticence has been shown by the candidates of the past to discuss at public meetings the matters of moment to be dealt with by the incoming council. At this time last year there was a move made in the direction of holding public meetings with beneficial results. Let it be renewed this year. Let public meetings be called, and give the people an opportunity of hearing the views of candidates on the municipal questions of the hour.

Fairyland

The local stores are now looking their prettiest, which befits the holiday season.

As the one presenting the greatest variety, in its own legitimate lines, China Hall stands pre-eminently first.

For twenty years this store has invited the public to view its Christmas display, and has received a generous share of patronage. The assortment of 1901 is more comprehensive than any of its forerunners, the stock including graceful ornaments, handsome dinner-sets, with their accompanying glasses, dainty china tea-sets, lamps, flower-pots, celery trays, salad bowls, pudding dishes, bread and butter plates, fancy cups and saucers in endless variety. In fact each article in this vast stock is suitable for a present, and a gift of china never offends, but always pleases its recipient.

China Hall in its present festive attire resembles a fairyland through which all are invited to wander, as the store will be kept open every evening until after Christmas.

THE KING, THE QUEEN and THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.

A Remarkable Offer.

Here is the best offer ever made in this community. By a very excellent arrangement made with the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal we are enabled to offer the PETERBORO WEEKLY TIMES and that great Family Paper, the Family Herald and Weekly Star, for one year for the small sum of $1.50 and include to each subscriber three beautiful premium pictures, of which the following is a brief description:

KING EDWARD VII.—True to life, a beautiful portrait, size 18x24 inches, on beautiful heavy white satin finished paper for framing. This portrait has been taken since his accession to the throne, and is the very latest and best obtainable. It cannot be had except through the FAMILY HERALD AND WEEKLY STAR, each picture bears the King's autograph. This picture has the great merit of being the first taken after the King's accession, and has therefore an historical value that no other picture can possess.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.—An exquisitely beautiful picture of the remarkably beautiful and good Queen Alexandra, also taken since the King's accession to the throne. It is the same size as that of the King, the two forming a handsome pair of pictures that alone would sell for many times the subscription price of paper and pictures.

No portrait of the King and Consort taken at the second or succeeding sittings can have one fraction of the value of the first. These go down to history.

THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.—The Renowned Gainsborough Picture. Sold at auction once in London twenty-five years ago for $10,000, stolen by clever thieves, hidden for over twenty four years and delivered to its owner on payment of $25,000 reward and since sold to Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan for $75,000.

This, in brief, is the history of one of the premium pictures, which, by a clever stroke of enterprise, the publishers of the Family Herald have secured for their subscribers. The picture is 22 x 28 in ten colours, and is reproduced line for line, colour for colour with the original. Copies of the reproduction are now sold in New York City, Montreal and Toronto for $12 each, and this is the picture Family Herald subscribers are going to get absolutely free together with the pictures of the King and Queen.

Is that not big value? Call at THE TIMES Office and see samples of these beautiful pictures.

You want THE TIMES for the local news, and you want that great paper the Family Herald for its 24 pages of general news and family reading. Its agricultural pages alone are worth many times the subscription price.

MINISTERS ALARMED OVER WAR OUTLOOK

Cases in Cape Colony Overlooked in a Time of Momentary Rejoicing

THE POLICY OF UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER

Said to be Running all Chance of Early Peace—The Only Terms the Boers Will Accept

London, Dec. 28.—There is a widespread and growing impression here that the South African outlook has greatly improved and that the war is near its end.

"Hope springs eternal" on every British success and General Bruce Hamilton's achievements, coupled with the succeeding lull in the war news, accounts for the current optimism. The next Boer success will be followed, as usual, by a relapse into wailing pessimism and futile demands for more vigorous measures.

Meanwhile despite the capture of Kritzinger—the importance of which naturally has been magnified — the area of the rebellion in Cape Colony is increasing instead of diminishing.

The correspondent for The London Post can state on positive authority that the Cape ministers are so desperately alarmed at the situation that they have advised the imperial cabinet that the unconditional surrender policy is ruining all prospect of the continuance of British dominion in South Africa. Furthermore, the cabinet here is agreed that if through informal overtures by the Cape Dutch leaders the Boers could be induced to withdraw to the northern section of the Transvaal, leaving to Great Britain the gold area and Pretoria, terms not distinguishable from independence might be arranged with them.

Apparently it was to consider this scheme of settlement, President Steyn of the Orange Free State, Commandant General Botha, General De Wet and General Delarey gathered Dec. 18.

It is possible, therefore, that peace may be coming, but if it is concluded it will be under terms very different from unconditional surrender or humiliation for the Boers, for which the jingoes have been shrieking.

A Times' despatch dated from Pretoria, Dec. 26th, says that the war is assuredly on its last legs, as the Boers are incapable of further serious resistance.

Seethings in South America

New York, Dec. 27.—Under the rule of General Castro—nominally President, but really military dictator—Venezuela has been brought into a frightful position.

A special cable despatch from the German capital shows that at a meeting of the German cabinet called by Count von Bulow it has been determined to bring Castro's government to account for the long overdue debt of ten million dollars owed by Venezuela to Berlin bankers.

As there is no question of the justice of the debt and Germany formally disclaims any intention of annexing territory the United States government will not intervene. A special cable despatch from Willemstad, island of Curacao, chronicled the outbreak of still another and serious insurrection against Castro's government, headed by the president-elect of one of the Venezuelan States and two former war ministers of the republic.

Meanwhile further south the friction between Chili and Argentina has become more intense. A cable from Buenos Ayres chronicled the fact that the Argentine government has wired its minister in Chili authorizing him to withdraw from the country and that military operations were being pushed on both sides of the Andes. Officials and diplomatists in Washington regard Argentina's action as probably the prelude to war, and United States war ships are being ordered to the South Pacific.

Even in view of these facts it is difficult to believe that the two republics will indulge in such a foolish and useless war. Argentine officials evidently have a bad case of "swelled head." Lord Lansdowne should apply a cold compress, for England has large colonies and enormous investments in both republics—those in Argentina amounting to a billion or a billion and a half dollars. Both republics by solemn treaty have referred all the questions in dispute to the arbitration of the British government, and to make war while this was pending would certainly not be complimentary to Great Britain, to say nothing of the fact that it would still further impair their ability to pay their debts.

Incidentally, it would seem scarce worth while for two republics having a population of perhaps half a dozen inhabitants to the square mile to war over a beggarly strip of territory, the ultimate ownership of which is to be decided by King Edward VII.

How a Sprain Does Hurt

But it isn't the pain alone that is dreaded, just think of the time and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the pores of the skin surrounding the joint. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that's Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25c.

DIAMOND HALL FROST'S DIAMOND HALL

350 GEORGE STREET, PETERBORO Opp. Opera House

A LIVELY SCENE.

How an Inebriated Servant Made Things Lively in the House.

A citizen told The Times the following story yesterday:

He happened to come to his front door yesterday afternoon and was startled by the cry of help coming from the house next door. He went out on the porch and listened, and sure enough the cries emanated from the adjoining premises, and were punctuated by pounding noises. Presently a stout female, carrying a bundle, emerged from the house and stalked away. It was the cook. Her mistress was found in a state of nervous collapse by the woman next day, and between sobs she told of how the cook had been imbibing too freely, refused to do her work, had given impudence, and had been discharged. Then the trouble began. She refused to be discharged. She threatened her mistress. She even chased her through the house, vowing to do her bodily harm. Then she retired to the seclusion of her own room, where the bottle was. Taking advantage of this her mistress crept up, closed the door, and turned the key on the outside. Then came calls for help, hearing which the belligerent cook kicked a panel out of the door, liberated herself, and marched out with her belongings. It is a strenuous thing to discharge a cook, especially in Peterborough.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS TREE

About 60 children gathered for tea at five o'clock on Thursday evening at St Andrew's Sunday school room to partake of the good things of their annual Christmas tree.

The tree was daintily decorated and Santa Claus distributed suitable gifts to the children.

Last night the Senior Sunday school scholars held their annual tea and entertainment. Tea was served at six o'clock, programme open at eight. A very fine programme presented consisting of readings, recitations, dialogues &c., which was greatly enjoyed by the large audience.

MALT BREAKFAST FOOD

Ordinary cracked wheat and wheat granules are sold by some manufacturers as health foods. This is unfair and misleading to the masses who use grain foods at breakfast. This wheat food (it matters not by what name it is called), contains too much starch, which gives rise to thousands of cases of stomach troubles.

Malt Breakfast Food is made from the choicest Wheat and purest Malt. The Malt renders the starch of the Wheat soluble, and gives us a partially predigested food of great nutritive value. Food experts say it is the only true health food in the World. If you are a stranger to it, you miss a treat each morning. At all Grocers.

A CANADIAN PROTEST

How a Trooper Regards the Pro-Boers in England and Elsewhere.

London, Dec. 28.—A Canadian trooper writes to the London Times a few words which ought to make some of those who are abusing the sacred privilege of free speech ashamed of themselves. The Canadian writes: "With regard to the innumerable protests by pro-Boers, Little Englanders, and others, against the system of concentration camps in South Africa, I cannot help thinking what a good thing it would be if we could have a large concentration camp at home, in which we could detain till the end of the war these said pro-Boers and Little Englanders, who are doing their best, by encouraging the enemy, to nullify the efforts of our soldiers at the front—efforts which are not unaccompanied by hard work, poor feeding, and other discomforts."

Do those who are continually exalting everything Boer and decrying everything British, with their mistaken idea of working political injury to the party which happens to hold the reins of office in England, really wish to have bloodshed continue? Do they really desire that Canadians and other colonials, as well as Irish, Scotch, English and Welsh, under arms in South Africa, should continue to suffer hardship, privation, death? Every word of sympathy for the Boers published within the British Empire prolongs the war and gives encouragement to men who would gladly see this Empire crushed. Do pro-Boer orators and writers actually wish this; are they going ahead with their eyes open and fully aware of the consequences of what they are saying and writing?

Woe unto the world, and the cause of human freedom, when the much-reviled British Empire is in the dust and shorn of her power. Then will tyranny exult, and liberty in all lands be curtailed. Then will the weaker nations be absorbed by the stronger as they never have been before. Then will the only nation which has spent its millions of money and thousands of lives to crush out slavery, to put down piracy, to protect the world against terrifying tyrants, be gone. Then will the great power for peace, the purchaser of the world's products, the backbone of the commerce of all the earth be broken. No country will be so insignificant as not to feel the consequences of so dire a disaster.

BRITAIN MUST QUIT IS THE BOER DEMAND

The Cool Proposal of Kruger & Co. Excites Ridicule.

BRITAIN TO QUIT SOUTH AFRICA

It is the Only Way That the War Can Be Stopped, Say the Boers — But Britain Will Show the Gang Another Way.

Paris, Dec. 27.—A correspondent of the Paris Figaro had an interview today with Mr. Kruger at which Dr. Leyds was also present. The ex-President stated that the war would only cease when Britain got off the continent of South Africa. He said that the forces of the burghers were gradually increasing, in spite of losses by capture and by battle.

London, Dec. 27.—Under the pressure of the long-continued war the British people are said to be getting restive, but we fancy that they will be content to fight on for months, and even for years, when they are fully seized of the terms in consideration of which the Boers will cease campaigning. Kruger gave out his version of these conditions a fortnight ago. That they do not err on the side of modesty a brief examination makes plain. In the first place, there must be unconditional amnesty to all Cape rebels. It is possible that after a satisfactory peace has been accomplished, His Majesty's Government may be ready to forget and forgive the action of those British subjects who without reason sought to dispossess the British Crown. But Kruger's demand is that the resort to arms must be excused, not as a matter of clemency, but as a matter of right belonging to those who fought. This point is emphasized by the further proposals which require compensation to be made for material losses sustained during absence on commando, and the restoration of the Boer Republics with full autonomy under an Afrikander flag. The idea of Kruger is that the Republics should be put back where they were before they declared war; that the Boers who fought should be indemnified for their losses by Britain, and that the rebels should escape, not by free pardon, but on the assumption and with the confession by the Imperial Government that they were justified in attempting to drive the British from Africa. The thing amounts practically to an apology by Britain to the Boers, coupled with the provision that these people may do it again whenever they are ready. If Mr. Kruger's "minimum", for such his announced conditions are said to be, is a somewhat cool proposal, his "maximum" or rather the Boer maximum, as outlined by General Botha's European emissary, is cooler still. The only terms acceptable by the Boers, according to this individual must include the surrender of all South Africa by the British. The recognition of autonomy would not be sufficient. He says: "We must be masters of the Cape, as well as of the Transvaal." It seems probable that Botha's agent, in that he differs from Kruger, is interpreting the mind of the ex-President. Kruger wants something short of the complete withdrawal of Britain from South Africa; but his "minimum" were it accepted, would render the maximum of Botha possible within a few years. If Britain were to restore the Republics and apologize to the Boers, it would only be a question of time when her power in South Africa would end. The re-establishment of the Republics would enable them to arm once more for a conflict; the capitulation to the men in the field would inspire these men to fight again whenever the preparations are completed for a raid upon British territory. Britain does not desire to fight this battle over again. Unless she finish it up now this stern necessity will be forced upon her. Therefore a fight to the end is her best course. The announcement of the terms has a serious effect upon the fortunes of the Boer sympathizers in England. These gentlemen have represented that there was no desire on the part of their clients to capture South Africa, and that all that these people want now is a species of autonomy under the flag, such as accorded to Canada and Australia. But this is all moonshine. The Boers coveted British territory from the first, and indeed annexed a good deal of it soon after the war broke out. By the leaders the old aspiration is still cherished, and the autonomy they want is freedom to arm once more that they may fight later on for the realization of their dreams. No self-respecting nation could consent to such a programme.

THE LATE JOHN M'KEE

Particulars of His Death — Stricken With Heart Disease—He Evidently Was Expecting a Sudden Call

Mr. R. H. McKee, of town received a letter from Mr. John McKee, of New York, a connection of the late John McKee, whose untimely death is so universally deplored. Mr. McKee says:

"I suppose you know that the deceased had been travelling for some time for an English house known as the Infant Food Co. They have a process of drying milk into a powder, and by pouring hot water in it, it becomes fresh milk again. Mr. and Mrs. McKee came here last week from New Haven, Conn. Mrs. McKee was going to Toronto, but Mr. McKee decided to remain in the city during the holidays. He and I saw Mrs. McKee off on the Empire Express on Saturday morning at half past eight o'clock. Mr. McKee said he was going down town, and I was going to 121st St. but we agreed to be home for dinner at six o'clock. About noon Saturday a boy came to the house and asked if John McKee lived there, and on an affirmative answer being given, he said that he had dropped dead. The people in the house naturally thought it was me. Later on one of the girls came up town and found me still in the flesh.

I went to 61 Fulton street, the office of the Infant Food Co. The office was all shut up and nobody there except two steam-pipe fitters. They told me that a man came in there about ten o'clock, sat down on a chair, and said he was feeling very ill. He asked for a glass of water, of which he took a mouthful. He turned around, laid his hands on his desk, then laid his head on his hands and began to slide off the chair. The steamfitters laid him on the floor, when he gave a deep sigh and was dead.

The body had been removed to an undertaker's on Pearl street. I went there and sure enough it was our old friend, John McKee.

"I did not know how to reach any of his family, so wired you. I found afterwards that he had a card in his pocket book, on which was written: "If anything happens to me notify Mr. Sears, Western Union Telegraph building, Buffalo N.Y." Mr. Harkness the manager of the Food Company, wired Mr. Sears, and he advised Dr. Charlie McKee, in Toronto, who came to New York at once, reaching here Sunday, and started Sunday night at eight o'clock for Peterborough.

"I believe poor Mr. McKee was expecting sudden death.

FLOCKING TO THE BRITISH SCHOOLS

Boer Children Attending School in Large Numbers

STIRRED UP BY BOTHA'S AIDE

Parisians Roused by Sandberg, One of Louis Botha's Aides

London, Dec. 28.—The Times publishes a letter from Pretoria on the subject of education in the Transvaal and Orange River Colonies. It was stated at the beginning of the war that the Transvaal was educating 14,700 children, which number was nearly equalled last month in schools opened by the British, while the Orange River Colony about 8,000 are being taught. The average attendance of pupils in the concentration camps is 78 per cent. and the general average in the Transvaal is 76 per cent.

Quoting the Temps, the Paris correspondent of the Times says a large throng attended the morning performance organized by the Comite du Sou des Boers for the benefit of Boer women and children. Sandberg, Louis Botha's aide, gave details of the horrors of war in South Africa, evoking numerous demonstrations on the part of the audience. He wore the costume of a combatant, with a tri-color cockade and a bandolier.

What a Little Ad. in The Times did for The Stanley Piano Co.

Yesterday The Times received a telephone message from Mr. Stanley, the popular President and General Manager of the Stanley Piano Company, stating that the little notice which he placed in The Times, advertising two organs for sale, had secured buyers. The ad only appeared three times.

It is the old story, so often told, that "everybody reads The Times." It is pleasing to know that this great family journal is thus appreciated. Our friends on the street have been humbugged into believing that they were in the swim for business when their announcements appeared in our little local evening contemporaries. They evidently forgot that fully one-half or more, of the buying community of the town and surrounding district read this g.f.j. as regularly and persistently as they eat their food.

RUSSIA AND BRITAIN ARE NEARING WAR

London, Dec. 28.—Each succeeding report of a treaty between Russia and Persia giving Russia commercial and military access to the Indian ocean is more detailed and positive than the one which went before it. The latest report is accepted in England as a practical confirmation. And however England may pretend indifference, she knows that it means one more forward step of the crafty bear in that slow, stealthy, steady march to try and force England out of Asia.

For a century and a half Russia has been a mighty land grabber. But a century ago Russia saw and adopted the policy that is making her stronger every day. While England has been compelled to grab indiscriminately here, there and everywhere, assembling a vast heterogeneous and scattered empire, Russia has abandoned all her isolated territories or sold them, and has simply extended her borders. She extended them to the west until she was open to the Atlantic through the Baltic, to the east until she was on the Pacific far down into the temperate zone, to the south in Europe until she was practically a Mediterranean power, to the south in eastern Asia until she was one of the great east Asiatic powers with a long Pacific seaboard, and now to the south in western Asia until she is a power ready to dispute the possession of southern Asia with England.

A BRILLIANT FUNCTION

The new Masonic Temple, which was used jointly by the two lodges for the first time last night, meets the requirements of the fraternity in every way, and Masons may well be proud of their new quarters. Both the blue and red halls are models of beauty, comfort and utility, while the adjoining anterooms and offices are up-to-date in all their appointments.

The general consensus of opinion seemed to be that last night's event was the most brilliant Masonic function ever held in Peterborough.

The new Temple will be dedicated on March 10th next, when it is expected that the Grand Lodge will convene here, together with a Lodge of Instruction.

Deafness is Curable

Sufferers from impaired hearing will be glad to know that their affliction is probably not due to any organic defect in the ear, but results probably from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear caused by catarrhal inflammation. Hundreds of perfect recoveries as a result of the inhalation of Catarrhozone are reported, and on the highest authority we recommend this treatment to our readers. Catarrhozone quickly restores lost hearing, and its efficiency is placed beyond dispute by the case of Mr. Fourall of St. Thomas, who recovered perfect hearing by using Catarrhozone, after years of deafness. Price $1. At Druggists or by mail, from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

At the Opera

At the opera house last night, a play entitled "A Pretty Sinner," written by Harry Lindley, the popular theatrical manager was presented to a full house. The full houses which attend at the plays of this company speak for the popularity of his plays. At the opera house this afternoon there will be a Matinee and a new play in the evening.

GREETING TO THE NEW YEAR.

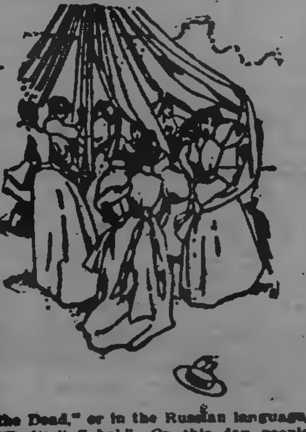
Your hand, New Year, since we must comrades be
Through the strange circles of the seasons four!
Plodding lonely paths 'mid drifting snow.
When days are dark and whirling tempests roar.
Will your strong guiding arm be round me pressed?
And when the ice bars melt and warm blue streams
Laugh in the sun and leap toward the sea.
Will you then share my happy springtime dreams—
The waking songs that birds and poets know?
And when red roses burn on bended sprays,
And lovers roam through shadowy woodland ways,
Will you keep kindly pace. And last, when brown
Lie the sweet fields, and faded leaves come down,
And we are tired both and fain to rest.
Will you be friends with me, still true and near?
Then take my hand and heart, dear comrade year.

IN OTHER CLIMES.

How New Years is Observed in Many Lands—The Ancient Reckoning.

In Mexico the day which is really our 12th of February is often kept with many characteristics of an old-fashioned English May day. Young women, handsomely dressed, dance around a pole to which are a number of colored ribbons, and, very much as the "merry Mayers" of old did, interweave these ribbons into many hued patterns, producing charming effects. This is symbolic, when the dancers are all brought to the centre by their shortening ribbons, of the winding up of the seasons, and when their dancing draws them from near the pole, with [illegible] lengthening ribbons, the aspect [illegible] whole is said to represent the ex[illegible] of the seasons. All this is a[illegible]hed to the air of a song generally composed for the occasion, and the whole exercise is poetic and graceful.

The Russians at their New Year's hold a feast dominated "The Feast of the Dead," or in the Russian language, "Raditsll Sabol." On this day people visit the graves of their departed friends and place food upon them. The priests also attend and celebrate mass, taking the food left upon the graves.



The Persian New Year corresponds to our June, the Abyssinians' to our 29th of August, the Greeks make it September 1, the Chinese date it our first moon in March, the Turks and Arabs from the 16th of July, and our own red men reckon from the new moon of the vernal equinox.

In England the "historic year" has always commenced on the first day of January, because William the Conqueror was crowned on that day. Historians have always commenced the year with the first of January, though in all civil affairs the ancient manner of reckoning from the 25th of March was retained until the year 1752, when by a statute passed under George II. it was enacted "that from and after the last day of December, 1751, the new year should commence on the first day of January."

The celebration of the day is in some respects similar in England to its observance in Scotland. It is customary to hold festive gatherings on the last day of the year for the purpose of "seeing the new year in." Balls, parties and family gatherings are the usual forms of grouping persons in the same social scale, while dinner parties among persons with old-fashioned ideas are not unusual. The amusements of the assembled guests continue in the usual manner until the approach of the midnight hour, a few minutes before which all festivity is suspended, and an awful attention begotten by listening for the first iron clanging of the clock.

The moment the first stroke falls upon the ears of the assemblage a clasping of hands takes place, all glasses are raised, and mutual good wishes and toasts are rapidly passed, succeeded very often by a willing but not always musically skilled singing by all present of "Auld Lang Syne."

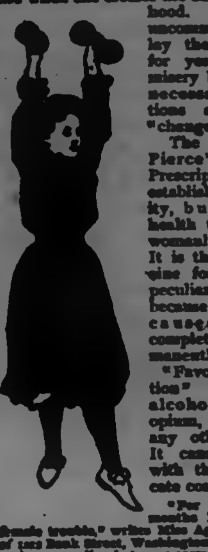
New Year's Decoration in Japan.

Simple and characteristic outdoor decorations make a Japanese city or village beautiful at the New Year season. One of the most common is the straw rope. A rope with many wisps of straw and strips of white paper hanging therefrom, and other objects, such as seaweeds, ferns, a lemon (orange?), a red lobster shell, dried persimmons, charcoal and dried sardines attached thereto, will be stretched either between the pine trees or above the doorway. Each of the articles just mentioned represents an idea—pine, bamboo, seaweeds and ferns, being evergreens, are emblems of constancy; the straw fringes, according to a legend often related, are supposed to exclude evil agencies; "the lobster by its bent form is indicative of old age or long life;" the lem[illegible] (orange?) is called daidai, which [illegible] may also mean "generation [illegible] generation;" the dried persimmons are "sweets long and well preserved;" the sardines, from their always swimming in a swarm, denote "the wish for a large family," and the charcoal is "an imperishable substance."—Chicago Tribune.

TOO MUCH

Exercise is as bad as too little for the growing girl. It is very easy for her to overdo, and this is especially dangerous at that critical period of a young girl's life when she crosses the line of womanhood.



It is not an uncommon thing to lay the foundation for years of after misery by neglect of necessary precautions at the first "change of life."

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only establishes regularity, but it gives health to the entire womanly organism. It is the best medicine for diseases peculiar to women because it cures the causes of disease completely and permanently.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine nor any other narcotic. It cannot disagree with the most delicate constitution.

"For a number of months I suffered with female trouble," writes Miss Agnes McGowne, of 1223 Bank Street, Washington, D.C. "I tried various remedies, but none seemed to do me any permanent good. The doctors said it was the worst case of internal trouble they ever had. I decided to write to you for help. I received a very encouraging reply and commenced treatment at once. I had not used your 'Favorite Prescription' a week before I began to feel better, and, as I continued, my health gradually improved, and is improving every day."

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent Cure in All Cases,

Sent ABSOLUTELY FREE on receipt of postal. Write your name and address plainly.

CHAINED FOR TEN YEARS
HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
EVERY BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER
Rabbi of the Cong. Bnai Israel.
NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:

Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

AVON SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows of 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,

O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

BY-LAW No.____

A By-Law to authorize the purchase of the Peterborough Waterworks and the issue of Debentures to the amount of Two Hundred and Thirty Thousand Dollars therefor.

Passed the day of 1902

WHEREAS it is in the interest of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough and of the Citizens and Ratepayers of the said Town to purchase and acquire from the Peterborough Water Company the Waterworks owned by them and to carry the same on under the provisions of the Municipal Waterworks Act.

AND WHEREAS an Agreement has been made for the purchase by the Corporation from the said Company of the said waterworks and appurtenances at the price or sum of two hundred and thirty thousand dollars payable on or before the Thirty-first day of January, Nineteen hundred and two, with interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from the first day of January, 1902, the Corporation to receive as against such interest the revenues of the said Waterworks from the same date less the cost of operating, maintaining and renewing the said works as therein more fully set out, which purchase is subject to ratification by the ratepayers of the said Town.

AND WHEREAS for the purpose of carrying out such purchase it will be necessary to borrow the sum of two hundred and thirty thousand dollars by the issue of Debentures of the said Corporation for the said sum as hereinafter provided, which sum of two hundred and thirty thousand dollars is the amount of the Debt hereby intended to be created.

AND WHEREAS the total amount required to be raised annually by special rate for paying the said debt and interest is the sum of Thirteen thousand four hundred and fifty nine 43-100 Dollars.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole ratable property of the Municipality according to the last revised Assessment Roll, being the Roll revised and confirmed on or about the fifth day of December, Nineteen hundred and one, is the sum of Four millions three hundred and eighty-eight thousand four hundred and forty-five dollars.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing Debenture Debt of the Municipality is, exclusive of Local Improvement debts secured by special acts rates or assessments, is the sum of Two hundred and seventy-one thousand one hundred and twenty 90-100 Dollars, and there is no part of the principal or interest in arrear.

The Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by the Council thereof therefore enacts as follows:—

1. This By-law shall take effect on the day of the final passing thereof.

2. The purchase by the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough from the Peterborough Water Company of the said Waterworks and appurtenances at the price aforesaid is hereby authorized and confirmed.

3. For the purpose aforesaid the sum of two hundred and thirty thousand dollars is hereby authorized to be borrowed by the said Corporation and Debentures of the said Corporation for the said sum of two hundred and thirty thousand dollars are hereby authorized to be issued, to be sealed with the Corporate Seal and signed by the Mayor and Treasurer and countersigned by the Secretary of the Commissioners of the Peterborough Town Trust.

4. Such Debentures shall be made payable within thirty years from the date thereof and shall bear interest at the rate of three and three-quarters per cent. per annum, and shall have coupons attached thereto for the payment of the interest, and shall be payable as to principal and interest at the office of the Secretary of the Commissioners of the Peterborough Town Trust, or at such other place whether in Canada or elsewhere as the Council may by By-law to be passed without the assent of the ratepayers fix and determine as to all or any of such Debentures, and such payment shall be made on presentation of such Debentures or coupons as the case may be.

5. The said waterworks and the lands acquired for the purpose thereof shall be specially charged with the repayment of the said sum of two hundred and thirty thousand dollars to be borrowed as aforesaid by the Corporation for the purpose of such purchase and for the Debentures to be issued therefor, and the holders of such debentures shall have a preferential charge on the said lands, waterworks and the property appertaining thereto and on all the revenues arising therefrom after providing for the expenses attendant upon the operation and maintenance of the waterworks, for securing the payment of the said Debentures and the interest thereon, and the said debentures and interest shall also be charged upon the whole ratable property in the Municipality.

6. Subject to the provisions of subsection 2 of this section, for the period of Thirty years commencing with the year Nineteen hundred and two, during the currency of the Debentures there shall be raised annually by special rate on all the ratable property in the Municipality for the payment of interest the sum of Eight thousand six hundred and twenty five Dollars, and for the payment of the debt the sum of Four thousand eight hundred and thirty four 43-100 Dollars, making together the annual sum of Thirteen thousand four hundred and fifty nine 43-100 Dollars.

(2) Provided however that the revenues arising from the said waterworks as aforesaid shall first be applied towards payment of such Debentures and interest, and after so applying the moneys arising from such revenues, less the expenses of operation and maintenance, the Council shall only be required to raise in each year by special rate on all the ratable property in the Municipality a sum sufficient with the moneys arising from such revenues to make up the said annual sum of Thirteen thousand four hundred and fifty nine 43-100 Dollars, required for payment of the principal and interest of such Debentures.

7. The said moneys so borrowed shall be used and applied in payment of the purchase money of said waterworks and for no other purpose.

8. The said waterworks when purchased shall be managed by a Board of Commissioners of whom the head of the Council shall ex-officio be one, and the remainder of whom shall be elected or appointed in accordance with provisions of the Municipal water works Act and amendments thereof, the number of such Commissioners to be three, provided always that the Council may by By-law which it shall not be necessary to submit to the ratepayers at any time increase or alter the number of Commissioners, but so that the same shall not be less than three nor more than five in number, and such Board of Commissioners shall exercise and enjoy the powers, rights authorities and immunities conferred by the Municipal Waterworks Act upon the Municipal Corporation.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of [illegible] shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about [illegible] miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one portion from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is a 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 67 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.50 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a [illegible] bbl. white oil gusher) Hortensia White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 67 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page [illegible]).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in [illegible], and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from [illegible] to [illegible] feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders [illegible], and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 60 to 67 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $[illegible] to $4.50 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 60 to 67 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. [illegible] acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 60 and 67 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 67 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reserve that the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a [illegible] barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—In answer to the last pleadings of Robert Louis Stevenson for the rescue of the Southern islanders from their pitiable condition the work of sending missionary help to these wild lands in the southern Pacific ocean has been launched. A bill has already been prepared, asking congress for an appropriation to carry on the work of mercy.

Miss Alice R. Palmer, an around-the-world missionary, Mrs. Mary C. Brehm, president of the Illinois branch of the national Woman's Christian Temperance union, and Miss Fanny Rastall, prominent in several large missionary organizations, made the appeal to the ministers and were assured that everything the various denominations could do to carry out the project planned years ago by the famous novelist would be done gladly.

The three women visited the weekly meetings of the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and Congregational ministers and met with great favor at each. They hope that the bill may pass congress and that something active may be started at a not far distant date for the rescue of the savages of the South sea islands.

MAKES HORRORS PUBLIC.

After Robert Louis Stevenson took up his residence in Samoa he made some considerable study of the conditions of the natives of the Samoan islands, the Friendly islands, the Tonga islands and the Hawaiian islands. He discovered that most of these natives were in a pitiable condition. They were savages, in many instances cannibals. They did not know the first laws of life. They lived in squalor and horrifying conditions.

These facts, with many others, were published in letters written by Stevenson to the New York Herald. The German government, which had control of most of the islands, especially of those most strongly condemned as being in a helpless condition, became so wroth over the criticism of Stevenson that they threatened to drive the author out of Samoa and much controversy was had over the matter at the time.

It was said at that time by many friends of the novelist, who was taken to task by Germany for publishing the deplorable condition of the natives, that the German government was to blame for much of the misery suffered by the savage inhabitants of the South sea islands. It was asserted that the German army and navy could stop certain abuses if it chose.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S., in a paper he read before the Ohio [illegible] Medical Society, May 1896, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of this treatment, in a plain, sealed wrapper.

Just Like a Woman.

A busy man, with a package, bustled up to the stamp window in the Post Office the other morning. "How much postage on this?" he asked. The young lady took the package and weighed it. "Thirty-four cents," she announced. "What!" exclaimed the busy man. "That's right," said the lady. "It goes at letter rates. You see the strings are sealed with sealing wax." "Just like a woman," growled the busy man. "My wife asked me to mail this for her. It's a Christmas present to one of her relatives and I happen to know that the contents cost her exactly a quarter. Now it costs me 34 cents in postage. Here, gimme the stamps. I suppose I might take it home and make her wrap it properly, but I've wasted too much time over the blessed thing already!" And the busy man bustled away to the mailing department with his package.

DISMISSED THE CHARGES

Against Three Merchants Charged With Breaking Early Closing By-law

The early closing by-law is still in force, and as a result three George St. merchants were up before Magistrate Dumble yesterday, to answer for keeping their places of business open after hours. The defense in one case was that they were ignorant of the time, in another case it was held that no evidence was given that any customer was served after the hour. In the third case the accused, acknowledged that he had sold goods after seven o'clock, but had closed immediately when notified.

The Magistrate dismissed the three cases, saying, he did not propose to decide the question as to the validity of the by-law. He said it was a pity, in his opinion, that the by-law did not provide for stores to be open for more than one night before Christmas and New Years. One night was enough before other holidays but at this season an exception should be made. He thought the merchants should ask the council to make a change in the by-law, but as it was their own making they should abide by it. Under the act the interpretation of the word "closed" would mean no serving of customers.

He held that in two cases no evidence had been given to show that customers had entered the store after hours and in the third, a young man had got a pair of shoe laces. Taking the view he did of the two cases, he did not propose to deal differently with the third who had pleaded guilty, and, therefore, dismissed all the cases as a [illegible]

Letters from the People on Interesting and Timely Topics.

Opposed to Prohibition.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I noticed a sermon by Rev. Mr. Locke, of Orillia, formerly pastor of the George Street Methodist Church, Peterborough, which deals with the liquor question. In order that the people of Peterborough and surrounding districts may know Mr. Locke's position on the liquor question, I ask you to print the following, taken from an Orillia paper. Mr. Locke says: if prohibition was properly enforced, it would be a blessing, and none would rejoice more than I. But if it is no better than when the Scott Act was in force, I for one would say we are better under a license law. I will give my reasons. When the Scott Act was supposed to be in force there were about ten houses selling for the one there is now, or was before the Scott Act was passed. And then when these people were informed on and some of their customers subpoenaed, what was the result? When the question was put to one of those who got the liquor, "Did you get whisky at such a place?" the answer would be, "I asked for lemon sour or some other soft drink, and I supposed I got it." That was the way the majority did who got the vile stuff. If not perjuring their souls to shield those men who sold it, what was it? And then, if the distillers were stopped, in every secret place there would be private whisky making going on. There would need to be an army of excise men to watch or the country would be flooded with it. And the last state would be worse than the first. Do not think I have said what I have because the traffic is pleasing to me, for it is not, but because I think the license law as it is provides a remedy for everyone who wishes to prohibit any person from drinking. Nothing is hidden the same as if total prohibition was passed.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

CIVIC AFFAIRS

With the approach of the elections, it is very necessary that every elector should be thoroughly alive to the interest he has in the welfare of the town. We believe that the apathetic state of municipal affairs, which existed for some years prior to last election, gave place then to an improved condition, and that a still greater interest is being taken in our public business. Though this is very satisfactory, we cannot say that there has been the corresponding improvement, in the transaction of the public business that it was natural to expect would have occurred. However, it is not a time for regret but for renewed effort. And here we would read a homily to the citizens generally. In the past it has too frequently been the case that those who have been the most adapted to serve in a public capacity have been the most disinclined to do so. This has caused the entrance into municipal life of otherwise worthy citizens enough—who did not possess the qualifications requisite for the positions which they filled. It is, of course, generally speaking, unreasonable to suppose or expect that a candidate for municipal honors should see himself as others see him. He undoubtedly is deeply imbued with his fitness to become a municipal representative. And this is where the difficulty ensues. For if the thoroughly qualified citizen refuses to offer himself for election, then the electors have to choose between less qualified candidates, and it becomes a question in that case of the selection of the lesser of two evils. What then is the solution or remedy? Is it not in the initiative action which should be taken by the citizens themselves, as we contended last year, in the selection of candidates? Should not the candidates be sought and brought out; and should not these candidates be heard before the election takes place? And with regard to the latter, we must emphasise the remark that altogether too much reticence has been shown by the candidates of the past to discuss at public meetings the matters of moment to be dealt with by the incoming council. At this time last year there was a move made in the direction of holding public meetings with beneficial results. Let it be renewed this year. Let public meetings be called, and give the people an opportunity of hearing the views of candidates on the municipal questions of the hour.

Fairyland

The local stores are now looking their prettiest, which befits the holiday season.

As the one presenting the greatest variety, in its own legitimate lines, China Hall stands pre-eminently first.

For twenty years this store has invited the public to view its Christmas display, and has received a generous share of patronage. The assortment of 1901 is more comprehensive than any of its forerunners, the stock including graceful ornaments, handsome dinner-sets, with their accompanying glasses, dainty china tea-sets, lamps, flower-pots, celery trays, salad bowls, pudding dishes, bread and butter plates, fancy cups and saucers in endless variety. In fact each article in this vast stock is suitable for a present, and a gift of china never offends, but always pleases its recipient.

China Hall in its present festive attire resembles a fairyland through which all are invited to wander, as the store will be kept open every evening until after Christmas.

THE KING, THE QUEEN and THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.

A Remarkable Offer.

Here is the best offer ever made in this community. By a very excellent arrangement made with the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal we are enabled to offer the PETERBORO WEEKLY TIMES and that great Family Paper, the Family Herald and Weekly Star, for one year for the small sum of $1.50 and include to each subscriber three beautiful premium pictures, of which the following is a brief description:

KING EDWARD VII.—True to life, a beautiful portrait, size 18x24 inches, on beautiful heavy white satin finished paper for framing. This portrait has been taken since his accession to the throne, and is the very latest and best obtainable. It cannot be had except through the FAMILY HERALD AND WEEKLY STAR, each picture bears the King's autograph. This picture has the great merit of being the first taken after the King's accession, and has therefore an historical value that no other picture can possess.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.—An exquisitely beautiful picture of the remarkably beautiful and good Queen Alexandra, also taken since the King's accession to the throne. It is the same size as that of the King, the two forming a handsome pair of pictures that alone would sell for many times the subscription price of paper and pictures.

No portraits of the King and Consort taken at the second or succeeding sittings can have one fraction of the value of the first. These go down to history.

THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.—The Renowned Gainsborough Picture. Sold at auction sale in London twenty-five years ago for $10,000 stolen by clever thieves, hidden for over twenty-four years and delivered to its owner on payment of $25,000 reward and since sold to Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan for $75,000.

This, in brief, is the history of one of the premium pictures, which, by a clever stroke of enterprise, the publishers of the Family Herald have secured for their subscribers. The picture is 22 x 28 in ten colours, and is reproduced [illegible] line, colour for colour with the original. Copies of the reproduction are now sold in New York City, Montreal and Toronto for $12 each, and this is the picture Family Herald subscribers are going to get absolutely free together with the pictures of the King and Queen.

Is that not big value? Call at THE TIMES Office and see samples of these beautiful pictures.

You want THE TIMES for the local news, and you want that great paper the Family Herald for its 24 pages of general news and family reading. Its agricultural pages alone are worth many times the subscription price.

THE PHILIPPINE WAR REEKING WITH CRIME

Yankee Soldiers Charged With Wholesale Murder and Arson

Inhuman Methods of the Troops, Under Orders From Officers

Natives, Whether Rebel or Not, Forced Into Concentration Camps

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 30.—Reconcentration, Weyler's methods in their extremity and desolation spread by American officers and soldiers acting under specific orders, are some of the charges made by Josiah Obi, the Constitution's special correspondent in the Philippine islands. In an article written from Cuba and just received he says in part:

"The highly civilized and altogether humane methods that characterized the rule of the gentle Weyler in Cuba are being resorted to by the American army in its efforts to subject the Visayans of this island of Cebu, of Bohol, and would be put into effect in Samar if the conditions were favorable. Whole villages have been burned by the orders of the general commanding this district and the reconcentrado policy of which we heard so much in Cuba is about to be put into operation here—if, indeed, it cannot be said to have already been instituted.

PROUD TO BE CALLED WEYLER.

General Hughes believes that 'war is hell,' as Sherman said, and he is giving the people of Cebu a taste of the brimstone. Only a few nights ago an American officer boasted that he is known as the Weyler of the district where he is in command. He also said—though it may seem incredible—that he was proud of being so called.

"The people of the United States have no conception of the conditions prevailing down here. If they had a howl would go up from one end of the country to the other. Army officers tell of these things in confidence, but nothing is said with the idea that it shall get to the outside world. I have no doubt that when this appears in the Constitution, there will be a chorus of denials, and yet I am writing only that which I get from the very best authority.

ORDERS TO SLAY AND BURN.

"General orders have been issued that whosoever shall in any way give aid and comfort to the enemy shall be visited with dire punishment; that his house shall be burned over his head, and that he himself shall be dealt with as severely as is possible.

"The officer commanding the battalion over on Bohol has been given instructions to kill off everybody suspected of connection with the insurgents. He has been told that these orders give him the widest latitude; that he is not to be very particular whether the suspect is bearing arms or has been; if he is a suspect he is to be treated as an outlaw and shot down. The people are to be brought in from the country and cooped up in the towns. Those who refuse to come are to be hunted down."

MANY VILLAGES DESTROYED.

Mr. Obi proceeds to give accounts of many villages burned and innocent lives taken and refers in scathing language to wholesale attacks upon native women by American soldiers. He then quotes Colonel Crane, adjutant general to General Hughes, as saying:

"The best thing to do with them (the Philippine islands) would be to kill off the people and then put a bomb under each island and blow it from the face of the earth. I would never leave here, however, so long as there was one of these fellows left to stick his fingers to his nose at us when we were passing."

Mr. Obi declares that many other officers feel similarly, although those well informed recognize in the Filipinos a race of promising ability and prospects.

SCORE OF FILIPINOS SLAIN.

Washington, Dec. 30.—The war department to-day is advised by General Chaffee, at Manila, that Company F, Twenty-first infantry, had a desperate hand-to-hand encounter in a gorge six miles south of San Jose, Batangas, Dec. 23. Twenty-two of the enemy were killed. Patrick A. Connelly received an ugly bolo wound in the left cheek. Private Carney received six bolo cuts in the neck and shoulders.

Manila, Dec. 28.—It was announced today that the monetary ratio for the first quarter of 1902 will be $2.10 Mexican silver to one American gold dollar. General Wright, acting civilian governor, says that, though unsatisfactory this is the only solution of the matter the Philippine commission thought possible. He hopes for early action by congress on this subject.

General Wright has the greatest confidence in General Chaffee's ability to end the insurrection in the islands, and says perfect harmony prevails between the civil and military authorities.

When the Baby Cries at Night

there is a cause for it. Perhaps it is gas on the stomach, may be cramps or diarrhoea. Don't lose sleep, anticipate such contingencies by always keeping handy a bottle of Polson's Nerviline. Just a few drops in water, sweetened inwardly, then rub the little one's stomach with a small quantity of Nerviline, and perfect rest is assured for the night for both mother and baby. You may not need Nerviline often, but when you do need it you need it badly. Get a 25 cent bottle to-day.

THE EMPEROR WILL RULE

FOREIGNERS IN PEKIN HAVE FAITH IN RECENT REPORTS

Empress Dowager's Retirement is Again Talked Of—Chinese Have No Faith in Her Promises.

Pekin, Dec. 30.—The continued reports of the Empress Dowager's intention to relinquish control of the government have recently gained considerable credence among the foreigners here, although the Chinese, who for some time have been much concerned regarding the attitude of the Ministers and who are desirous of a solution of all unsettled questions, do not believe that she would voluntarily surrender her power. They do not think that any such surrender would be sincere.

Great preparations are being made at Pao-ting-fu for the reception of the court. The fact that the Empress Dowager will stop over at Pao-ting-fu supports the confident assertion that the Emperor will return to Pekin first.

Sir Robert Hart, whose influence with the Chinese is increasing, says that the present negotiations with Russia regarding Manchuria are more satisfactory than the former conferences. He believes that Russia will modify her original demands, thus making it possible for an agreement to be reached. He has received an intimation from the court that a good, but not a quick settlement is wanted. He favors consideration of Russia's three points concerning prior rights to mining and railway privileges, railway defence, and military supremacy. He appreciates the necessity for China being at permanent peace with her neighbor. It is, however, considered impossible to avoid creating a basis for encroachment by other nations by arriving at any agreement with Russia concerning Manchuria.

KILLED AT THE BANK'S VAULT

Cashier Put to Death by Electricity in a Peculiar Way at Akron, Ohio

Akron, Ohio, Dec. 30.—David P. Wheeler, a banker and capitalist of this city, was killed by electricity this afternoon. He had been at the Citizens' National Bank, of which he was cashier, with Jacob Koch, a director, examining some correspondence. Mr. Koch left after they had concluded their business, and Mr. Wheeler went to the vault to lock it up. In one hand he held an electric light bulb on a long wire, and with the other grasped the handle of the vault door. The coating on the wire had been rubbed off, and owing to the crossed wire the light was heavily charged.

A circuit being formed with the steel vault, the shock was sufficient to produce instant death. Mr. Wheeler, not returning to dinner, his son Willard set out to find him. Entering the bank, he found his father standing upright, leaning against the vault. His right hand grasped the knob of the door, but three fingers of his right hand had been burned off. Mr. Wheeler was 64 years old, and leaves a wife, and son and one daughter.

MAILED A BABY BOY

Indianapolis, Dec. 30.—The Post Office employees at the Union station sub-station found a strange package among the Christmas packages when they came to assort them at midnight last night for the waiting train in the station. All the offices were crowded yesterday and many packages were posted at the substation. When the employees came to assort them they found a basket on which there was no address and no stamp, and none of the men could remember taking it in. Examination showed that it was covered over with linen. When turned to one side a small bottle of milk fell out. This led to the opening of the basket, and a boy baby, probably a week old, was found neatly wrapped up in flannels and sleeping soundly. Another bottle of milk was found in the basket.

The police was called and took charge of the infant, but the Post Office employees are at a loss to know how it got into the office. It is supposed, though, that the mother put it through the window or quietly entered the room while the men were busy and deposited the basket with the packages, which were piled in a heap on the floor. The station police say they saw a woman near the sub-station just before the basket was found, but nothing about her attracted particular attention.

The King and Queen

The Princess of Wales, now Queen Alexandra, was so fond of the French play "Fernande," that she went six times to see it, and at last persuaded the Prince to accompany her. The opening scenes must have appeared dull to him, for he lingered long in the reception room, smoking his after dinner cigar. As what was called "the great scene" in the third act, between Mrs. Herman Vezin and Mrs. John Wood, was about to begin, the Princess sent for me and said,—

"Please to ask His Royal Highness to come to the box at once. Say I wish him to see the end of this act."

At the door of the reception room I knocked discreetly, and then pushed aside the portiere. The Prince was describing to his suite how he had killed a stag in Scotland. It was an extraordinary large and wild stag, and had to be hunted long and warily. But at last it was brought to bay and stood like a bronze figure against the brown moors. The Prince, still cautious, still anxious to make sure of his first shot, crept slowly towards it. Up went the stag's proud head and simultaneously the Prince raised his gun—and saw me standing standing in the doorway.

In reply to his mute enquiry I repeated the message of the Princess.

"I will come with you," said the Prince, throwing away his cigar, taking up his hat, and leading the way to the royal box, leaving his story unfinished, the stag unhurt, and the suite to follow as best they could.

Any one who tried to shoot a stag or tell a story knows what superb self-abnegation was shown in this prompt compliance with the request of the Princess.

EXPLORATION OF GLACIERS

D. W. Freshfield and Party on Himalaya Mountain for 7 Weeks

TRAVELLED 14 MILES UP

Twenty Days Without Seeing Trees—Twenty-four Days Without Seeing Inhabitants

London Eng., Dec. 29.—At the meeting of the Royal Geographical Society Douglas W. Freshfield delivered an address on "The Glaciers of Kangchenjunga," giving some of the results of his successful exploration of that part of the Himalayas in the autumn of 1899. If there were mountains in the world which combined as many beauties as the Sikkim Himalaya, no traveller has as yet discovered and described them. Kangchenjunga was a mountain, 28,156 feet in height, the third highest measured mountain on the face of the globe. It is situated some 400 miles nearly due north of Calcutta, and some 40 miles north of the well known hill station Darjeeling.

Mr. Freshfield's object was to make the tour—the high level tour—of Kangchenjunga, passing as near the great mountain as might prove to be possible. This had never been accomplished by Europeans. In the map attached to Sir Joseph Hooker's travels in Nepal and Sikkim, published fifty years ago, a broad gap was left to the Northwest of Kangchenjunga. Across this blank space in his map was printed the following stimulating sentence,—"This country is said to present a very elevated rugged tract of lofty mountains, sparingly snowed, uninhabitable by man or domestic animals." Having described the previous journey of Rinzing, a native explorer, who accompanied his expedition and gave valuable aid, Mr. Freshfield spoke at length and in great detail of the nature of the country, summarizing his discoveries of the glaciers as follows: "I am now in a position to give a fairly complete estimate of the glaciers of Kangchenjunga. Four glaciers radiate from the peak, pointing roughly to the northeast, southeast, southwest, and northwest. These are the Zemu glacier, 16 miles long, and the Talung glacier, draining to the Teesta; the Kangchen glacier, 15 miles long, and Yalung glacier, draining to the Arun and the Kosi. The notable peculiarities of the ice in these (Himalayan glaciers, differing widely from that of the Alps, were described. He saw and heard few avalanches, and never had occasion for a rope. The features of these glaciers were due to local climatic conditions, for instance cold followed on great sun heat.

The journey of the explorer and party occupied in all seven weeks, during which they ascended and descended some 75,000 feet, or 14 miles up and 14 miles down. They were 24 days between Lachen and Khunza without meeting inhabitants, 20 days without seeing trees, and they were wholly dependent on the provisions they carried, except for a few contributions from their sportsmen.

KITCHENER'S PLAN IS WORKING WELL

A Full Account of the Blockhouse System.

STREETS 700 MILES LONG

Reaching Across a Continent, and Half a Mile Apart.

London, Dec. 30.—Distance is without significance to the railway traveller in South Africa; time does not count. You reckon progress by meals eaten and meals due. You do this from the very start. Thus two hours travelling means 44 miles accomplished, which equals supper; 100 miles brings early morning coffee, 196 miles and breakfast, 280 miles and lunch, 340 miles is afternoon tea, 420 is dinner, 500 is De Aar and midnight coffee. We are twelve hours late however, and last night's coffee is to-day's lunch.

Once more it is "right away," and De Aar, sweltering and a-quiver in the heated air, lies behind us, as, turning sharp to the left, the train passes the first house in Blockhouse street. As a corner house it should by every right bear the sign "The Blockhouse Arms" or the "Bandolier Inn." But it does not. It is a private house, pure and simple. A very respectable house, too. Evidently a sort of bachelors bungalow, for four or five nice quiet-looking young men are standing at the front gate. One of them has a gun in his hand—probably a sportsman of sorts. The little house, painted a sober buff, stands in its own neat grounds. There are no flowers, and the fence which encircles the plot is of barbed wire, and would be, I should say, a considerable danger to the strange wayfarer, for it seems almost impossible to approach the house, without falling over or entangling oneself with not only the four-foot fence, but a confused tangle of wire, which has been carelessly left by the builders, and which almost entirely encircles the house.

HOUSE AFTER HOUSE.

The squat, hexagonal bungalow is evidently a well-ventilated building, for all round it and at the height of a man's eye there are little oblong slits, in all about sixteen. This is the first of the houses, and at first you think it is standing in a very lonely position entirely apart from all structural fellows. Even as the thought strikes you, you observe yet another building of a similar color a little further down the line.

In a minute or so the train brings you to it, and you see that it is exactly like that which you have passed. Barbed fence, buff building, loopholes, and water tank exactly the same. Also there are the same six young men—or six remarkably like those you have left behind at the last house. Also one of them has got a gun. You wave a passing salute, and chuck out a few papers which the quiet young men scramble for, and throw your eye ahead to see if there are any more of these desirable residences in sight. Yes there is another, perched this time on a little kopje, the base of which the line skirts. A thousand yards and you are abreast of it. Same house, same fence, same grave young men waving their hands solemnly, same quickening to life as a handful of papers sprawls earthward.

Then you realize that you are in a street—a street of houses, each 1,000 yards distant from its neighbour, and each monotonously alike one to the other, each with the same number of inmates. I do not notice till I have passed the third house that there is generally one grave young man attending intently to something boiling on a fire. He is a greasy, grimy individual, and lifts off a lid gingerly, and peers anxiously into the steaming contents. This is the cook of the house, and his kitchen is a hole in the ground. Nor did I notice till I had passed some distance down the street that between each house ran a fence of barbed wire, ten strands deep. Nor did I notice that at regular intervals along this fence were placed ingenious contrivances which looked from the saloon window remarkably like spring guns. These were connected with divers trip wires, and were evidently fixed with the idea of giving intruders who strayed across the railway line a very bad time.

Some of the little houses had names. Not, be it known, such fanciful and meaningless things as "Fairlawn," or "The Elms," or "Linda Vista," but such suggestive titles as "Terror of the Night," and "Lonely Lodge" and "Bulldog Bungalow." And they are not black-lettered on the modest brass plates are these names, but picked out on the blood-red veldt with stones as big as your fist. For seventy miles we pass along this street, from De Aar to Naauwpoort.

Beyond that, northward to Pretoria, another street runs for 700 miles, eastward to Port Elizabeth for 270 miles, north-eastwards to Queenstown for 300 miles, from Stormberg Junction to Springfontein 100 miles, and each with its blockhouse every thousand yards and its barbed wire fence between. From De Aar northward to Kimberley runs another street, from Elandsfontein to Klerksdorp runs another, from Pretoria to Komati Poort another, from Elandsfontein to [illegible] another, from Bloemfontein to Ladysmith yet another.

The street we pass down now owes its origin to Dewet's Cape invasion. It is the base of a square, the left side of which runs from De Aar to Orange River station, the top side consisting of a chain of blockhouses running from Orange River station to Norval's-pont—it really runs on to the Basutoland border—the right side from Naauwpoort to Norval's-pont. To return to our street. Here is the typical string that keeps in check the wandering commando, here is the thin electric thread on which are strung the dull squat beads, each of itself deadly to the unsuspecting hand touching. Blockhouse and fence, fence and blockhouse.

Blockhouses sitting tightly on rocky spurs, blockhouses squinting over rocky ramparts. Some crouching in hollow dongas in a web of wire, like monstrous spiders, waiting patiently for burgher flies. Some open and unashamed in the full glare of the pitiless sun by day, or silhouetted against the stars by night. Some cunningly placed on kopje sides, so that you cannot tell from a distance which is kopje and which is blockhouse. Some hanging over the edge of the everlastingly dry river, some within handshake distance of the iron, red bridges that span it.

And before each, the man with the gun. The man who brings his rifle to the shoulder as the train spins past, and smiles like an angel when you throw him a paper.

To-night a commando may attempt to rush the little post. To-night rockets may rush skyward from a dozen blockhouses as a commando changes its direction, and the man with the gun and his friends who are catching flies inside may be fighting for their very lives. Perhaps not to-night—to-morrow—or the next night—or never! That is the horror of it all, the constant watching for the enemy who will not come. Everlastingly on the alert for events that will not happen. Waiting, waiting, waiting, with a white-hot bowl of a sky overhead, and a sizzling shimmering, dancing, blistering desert around.

Blockhouse street is a street to remember in your prayers, a deadly soul-destroying, damnably dull street of galvanized iron prisons, in each of which are six prisoners waiting for execution.

NEW IRISH LAND LAW

London, Dec. 30.—The Daily News says it is stated by well-informed politicians in Dublin that the Government is preparing an Irish land bill providing an equivalent to compulsory purchase, the tenant buying at seventeen years' payments and the landlord selling at twenty years', the State providing the three years' difference.

The prosecution of members of the United Irish League is regarded as a sure harbinger of remedial legislation, which the recent agitation has rendered a question of necessity to the Government.

BOERS DEFEATED BY UNEXPECTED ATTACK

Major Chapman Drives the Boers Out of One of Their Strongholds

BRITISH FORCE FOUGHT NIGHTLY FOR WATER

For a Week the Garrison Withstood Boers, and Finally Drove Them off—Several Minor Successes

London, Dec. 28.—Despatches from South Africa state that General Bruce Hamilton has captured the laager of Commandant Pretorius, killing one and capturing fifteen Boers. Colonel Dumoulin has captured Field Cornet Jacobus Duteit and 23 men. All these actions took place in the Orange River Colony.

A despatch from Durban says Major Chapman, the hero of the Fort Itala fight, left with his whole force for Zululand a short time ago. On his second night's march he took up a commanding position and drove the Boers out of Babango, a natural stronghold. Although the Boers were fully aware of the presence of the British, they did not anticipate that such a swift attack would be made, and after a very slight resistance, they fled in all directions.

FOUGHT FOR WATER.

The latest advices show that the defence of Tontelboschkolk, in the Calvinia District of Cape Colony, was gallantly sustained, despite scarcity of water, for a week, the Boers eventually drawing off, with a loss, it is said, of 30 killed and wounded. The British casualties were 18. According to a Reuter's special telegram from Carnarvon, the garrison had to fight for water every night.

The two commandants captured by Colonels Colenbrander and Dawkins in the Waterberg are Badenhorst and Harmie. Colenbrander and Dawkins have been following up their recent successes very energetically. Along with Badenhorst were captured four adjutants, including De Vos, who was mainly instrumental in supplying Botha's commandoes with remounts from Piet Retief when the Boer headquarters were there. Ten burghers were taken prisoners on the same occasion.

AN AMBUSCADE.

General Spens reports that he moved from the blockhouses on the Ermelo road with a party of the 18th Hussars and a pom-pom, under Colonel Sampson, and 80 of his own men, to round up the district to the north. He came in contact with a party of Boers, and captured fifteen of them, several horses and mules, some cattle, and wagons and carts. The remainder fled north under Engelbrecht.

Details given here to-day from South Africa of the ambuscading, near Begindery, Orange River Colony, December 21, of 200 mounted infantry by 800 Boers and 40 armed natives, led by Commandant Britz, show the British losses to have been 10 men killed and 18 wounded. The losses of the Boers are not known.

CANADA READY TO CONCEDE

Willing to Offer Concessions on Alaska Line for Sake of Trade.

Buffalo, N. Y. Dec. 30.—An officer of the Canadian Government, who is friendly to, and in the confidence of the Laurier administration, while passing through Buffalo last evening, said the Canadian Government would demand the reconvening of the joint high commission of the United States and Canada in February. It was hoped the sitting would be had in Ottawa, where the Canadian Parliament would be in session.

The purpose of the Canadian government is to secure consideration of trade relations and of the Alaskan boundary dispute. In Canada the opinion has been expressed that Laurier's administration would be willing to make concessions in the boundary dispute if by so doing there could be secured from the United States concessions in matters of trade of importance to the growing industries of the dominion.

BRITAINS FELLOWSHIP

How England Showed Her Friendship for Uncle Sam.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—The Ledger says: With or without British sympathy we would have defeated Spain, but the war was shortened and the enemy disheartened at the outset by the knowledge that no Spanish cruiser could buy a ton of coal in any British port. The moral was clear—ostensibly the British were neutral, really they meant to see the Americans win and such a lesson was not lost on Europe, Asia or the islands of the sea. As our first president said, no nation should look for disinterested favors from another; but the whole world saw that in many points, and points of importance, the interests of the two great English speaking nations were one.

FRENCH GOLD IN ABUNDANCE

London, Eng., Dec. 28.—Despite the recent national deficit, evidences of French wealth and prosperity are so manifest that one is constrained to ask whence they come. The public fortune of France is estimated at the immense total of [illegible]. The riches of England are easily explained by her commerce, but France has no such pretentions, yet in thirty years the French nation paid off the enormous German indemnity, supported the terrible Panama drain, conquered Madagascar and Tonkin, organized them as colonies, floated successive Russian loans, lent gold to England, and is ready for another Russian loan—the last was subscribed seven times—so soon as the thrifty M. de Witte thinks Russian finances need a stimulus of French gold. Moreover, France is apparently equally ready to guarantee a large part of the Chinese indemnity. French gold is seeking investment in every direction; there is plenty of it everywhere, so much, in fact, that many foreign eyes are turned upon it with interest, while the secret of its accumulation is a mystery to many.

As a rule foreigners in seeking the principal sources of French wealth fail to look in the right direction. The fortune of the country is the unknown France, the "France of the Francais" (not in the Nationalist party's sense), in that France where a foreigner rarely penetrates—the France jealously closed to the outsider; the France which contains the bone and the sinew of the nation as well as its gold—where wealth is slowly accumulated, carefully hoarded, and safely invested, when not kept in the woollen stocking, that faithful banker so popular with simple-minded French people. Handed down from generation to generation, the golden ball has kept rolling, increasing as the years glide by. Quite unsuspected, the modest apartment of the bourgeois is the abode of wealth.

WHISKEY CAUSES A MIX-UP

London, Dec. 28.—A German paper tells the story of a German officer who, in command of some Boers, managed to surprise a British train at some small wayside station. There was some excellent whiskey on board and the Boers soon sampled it, with the result that the good British spirit did its duty by laying them out fast asleep on the platform. Here they were found and captured by some English troops, who, in their turn, took a little from a half-empty cask, with the result that acting on halfstarved men the whiskey sent them to sleep in their turn. When the boers woke up they recaptured their capturers, and thus in a few hours there was one British victory and two boer victories added to the record.

Death of Mrs. Sanderson

Mrs. Edward Sanderson of Smith, who has been confined to the Nicholls Hospital for some time, passed away at that place yesterday morning.

The many friends of Mr. Sanderson will sympathize with him in his trouble.

Horrors in Pennsylvania

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 27.—An explosion in the barrel mill of the Moosic Powder Company, at its Jermyn works today, blew the mill and some adjoining buildings to pieces and broke windows for miles around. The shock was plainly felt in this city, a distance of fourteen miles. Jacob Hiller, who was in the engine-room in an adjoining building, was burned beyond recognition, and cannot survive. John Gibbs, Geo. Gebbhardt, and George Perkel, who were entering the mill-yard, were caught by flying debris and badly injured. Glass blown from a window in Albert Carey's house struck his daughter and cut a deep gash in her neck. It is feared she is fatally injured. Scarcely a store or residence in Jermyn escaped with a whole pane of glass.

A Delaware and Hudson passenger train which passed about a quarter of a mile from the scene of the explosion at the time of the accident was swayed by the force of the explosion, and the passengers screamed with terror as the train gave a sudden lurch. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

An explosion at the old Sharpsville furnace, about eleven o'clock this morning, wrecked the furnace plant and killed three men. Another workman was probably fatally injured. They were working at the top of the [illegible] when the explosion occurred.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 30, 1901

GREETING TO THE NEW YEAR.

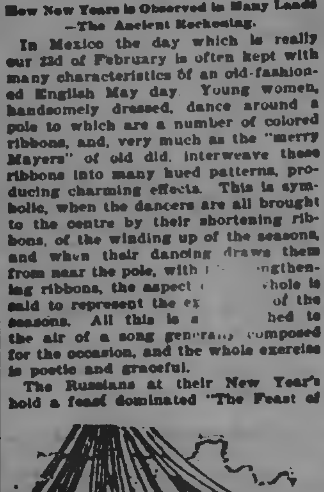
Your hand, New Year, since we must comrades be
Through the strange circles of the seasons four:
Plodding lonely paths 'mid drifting snow.
When days are dark and whirling tempests roar,
Will your strong guiding arm be round me pressed?
And when the ice bars melt and warm blue streams
Laugh in the sun and leap toward the sea.
Will you then share my happy springtime dreams—
The waking songs that birds and poets know?
And when red roses burn on bended sprays,
And lovers roam through shadowy woodland ways,
Will you keep kindly pace. And last, when brown
Lie the sweet fields, and faded leaves come down,
And we are tired both and fain to rest.
Will you be friends with me, still true and near?
Then take my hand and heart, dear comrade year.

IN OTHER CLIMES.

How New Years is Observed in Many Lands —The Ancient Reckoning.

In Mexico the day which is really our 22d of February is often kept with many characteristics of an old-fashioned English May day. Young women, handsomely dressed, dance around a pole to which are a number of colored ribbons, and, very much as the "merry Mayers" of old did, interweave these ribbons into many hued patterns, producing charming effects. This is symbolic, when the dancers are all brought to the centre by their shortening ribbons, of the winding up of the seasons, and when their dancing draws them from near the pole, with lengthening ribbons, the aspect of the whole is said to represent the ex[illegible] of the seasons. All this is a[illegible]hed to the air of a song generally composed for the occasion, and the whole exercise is poetic and graceful.

The Russians at their New Year's hold a feast dominated "The Feast of the Dead," or in the Russian language, "Raditzli Sabol." On this day people visit the graves of their departed friends and place food upon them. The priests also attend and celebrate mass, taking the food left upon the graves.



The Persian New Year corresponds to our June, the Abyssinians' to our 29th of August, the Greeks make it September 1, the Chinese date it our first moon in March, the Turks and Arabs from the 16th of July, and our own red men reckon from the new moon of the vernal equinox.

In England the "historic year" has always commenced on the first day of January, because William the Conqueror was crowned on that day. Historians have always commenced the year with the first of January, though in all civil affairs the ancient manner of reckoning from the 25th of March was retained until the year 1752, when by a statute passed under George II. it was enacted "that from and after the last day of December, 1751, the new year should commence on the first day of January."

The celebration of the day is in some respects similar in England to its observance in Scotland. It is customary to hold festive gatherings on the last day of the year for the purpose of "seeing the new year in." Balls, parties and family gatherings are the usual forms of grouping persons in the same social scale, while dinner parties among persons with old-fashioned ideas are not unusual. The amusements of the assembled guests continue in the usual manner until the approach of the midnight hour, a few minutes before which all festivity is suspended, and an awful attention begotten by listening for the first iron clanging of the clocks.

The moment the first stroke falls upon the ears of the assemblage a clasping of hands takes place, all glasses are raised, and mutual good wishes and toasts are rapidly passed, succeeded very often by a willing but not always musically skilled singing by all present of "Auld Lang Syne."

Has a new moon,
Pleasures come quick,

When the New Year

Pleasures come slowly,
And doings are dull.

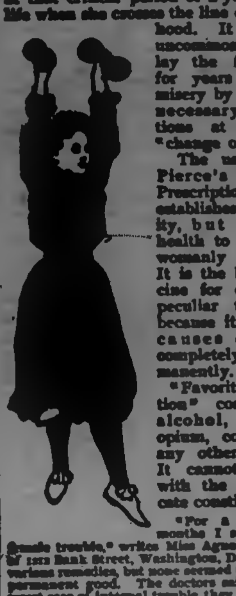
New Year's Decoration in Japan.

Simple and characteristic outdoor decorations make a Japanese city or village beautiful at the New Year season. One of the most common is the straw rope. A rope with many wisps of straw and strips of white paper hanging therefrom, and other objects, such as seaweeds, ferns, a lemon (orange?), a red lobster shell, dried persimmons, charcoal and dried sardines attached thereto, will be stretched either between the pine trees or above the doorway. Each of the articles just mentioned represents an idea —pine, bamboo, seaweeds and ferns, being evergreens, are emblems of constancy; the straw fringes, according to a legend often related, are supposed to exclude evil agencies; "the lobster by its bent form is indicative of old age or long life;" the lemon (or orange?) is called daidai, which word may also mean "generation (after) generation;" the dried persimmons are "sweets long and well preserved;" the sardines, from their always swimming in a swarm, denote "the wish for a large family," and the charcoal is "an imperishable substance."—Chicago Tribune.

TOO MUCH



Exercise is as bad as too little for the growing girl. It is very easy for her to overdo, and this is especially dangerous at that critical period of a young girl's life when she crosses the line of womanhood. It is not an uncommon thing to lay the foundation for years of after misery by neglect of necessary precautions at the first "change of life."

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only establishes regularity, but it gives health to the entire womanly organism. It is the best medicine for diseases peculiar to women because it cures the causes of disease completely and permanently.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine nor any other narcotic. It cannot disagree with the most delicate constitution.

"For a number of months I suffered with female trouble," writes Miss Agnes McGowne, of 1212 Bank Street, Washington, D. C. "I tried various remedies, but none seemed to do me any permanent good. The doctors said it was the worst case of internal trouble they ever had. I decided to write to you for help. I received a very encouraging reply and commenced treatment at once. I had not used your 'Favorite Prescription' a week before I began to feel better, and, as I continued, my health gradually improved, and is improving every day."

CHAINED FOR TEN YEARS
HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
EVERY BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.
DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:
Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.
After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,
REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

AVON SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901.
DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows of 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.

Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.
F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The Incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of [illegible] shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no Stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about [illegible] miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is c 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for [illegible] per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a [illegible] bbl. white oil gusher) Mortensia White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page [illegible]).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in [illegible], and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from [illegible] to [illegible] feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders [illegible], and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as [illegible] to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day [illegible] to [illegible] per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. [illegible] acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reservation the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a [illegible] barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—In answer to the last pleadings of Robert Louis Stevenson for the rescue of the Southern islanders from their pitiable condition the work of sending missionary help to these wild lands in the southern Pacific ocean has been launched. A bill has already been prepared, asking congress for an appropriation to carry on the work of mercy.

Miss Alice B. Palmer, an around-the-world missionary, Miss Mary C. Brehm, president of the Illinois branch of the national Woman's Christian Temperance union, and Miss Fanny Rastall, prominent in several large missionary organizations, made the appeal to the ministers and were assured that everything the various denominations could do to carry out the project planned years ago by the famous novelist would be done gladly.

The three women visited the weekly meetings of the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and Congregational ministers and met with great favor at each. They hope that the bill may pass congress and that something active may be started at a not far distant date for the rescue of the savages of the South sea islands.

MAKES HORRORS PUBLIC.

After Robert Louis Stevenson took up his residence in Samoa he made some considerable study of the conditions of the natives of the Samoan islands, the Friendly islands, the Tonga islands and the Hawaiian islands. He discovered that most of these natives were in a pitiable condition. They were savages, in many instances cannibals. They did not know the first laws of life. They lived in squalor and horrifying conditions.

These facts, with many others, were published in letters written by Stevenson to the New York Herald. The German government, which had control of most of the islands, especially of those most strongly condemned as being in a helpless condition, became so wroth over the criticism of Stevenson that they threatened to drive the author out of Samoa and much controversy was had over the matter at the time.

It was said at that time by many friends of the novelist, who was taken to task by Germany for publishing the deplorable condition of the natives, that the German government was to blame for much of the misery suffered by the savage inhabitants of the South sea islands. It was asserted that the German army and navy could stop certain abuses if it chose.

HAWAIIAN NOT AFFECTED

The Hawaiian islands were not included in the controversy to any extent and they have since come into the hands of the United States.

FOR MUNICIPAL CANDIDATES

This is Worth Remembering by Those Who Are Seeking Municipal Honors

As mentioned in a previous issue, Mayor Morris, of Ottawa, was recently fined and disqualified for two years from voting in any municipal contest, because while entertaining some distinguished visitors, he happened to "stand treat" in the Russell house bar a few minutes after 11 o'clock p.m.

Section 71, chapter 245, page 2886 Liquor License Act, Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1897, says: "If any member of any municipal council is convicted of having knowingly committed an offence under this act, he shall, in addition to any other penalty to which he may be liable under this act, thereby forfeit and vacate his seat and shall be ineligible to be elected to or sit or vote in any municipal council for two years thereafter; and if any such person, after the forfeiture aforesaid sits or votes in any municipal council he shall incure a penalty of $40 for every day he so sits or votes.'

The conviction has aroused a great deal of sympathy for the Mayor, there being a strong suspicion that the incident would never have been heard of but for the fact that the Chief of Police had been censured by His Worship for neglect of duty Six thousand names have been signed to a petition to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council asking for the removal of the disqualification, and if the decision is favorable Mr. Morris will again run for Mayor. The lesson should not be lost on our local aspirants for municipal honors.

A CORRECTION

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Under the heading "Opposed to Prohibition, a letter signed "Reader" appeared in Saturday's Times in which the writer shows considerable anxiety to inform "the people of Peterborough and surrounding districts," what the position of Rev. Mr. Locke is on the liquor question adding that Mr. Locke was formerly pastor of Geo. St Methodist Church. Now, sir, I think it is only fair to Rev. J. H. Locke to correct "Reader's" statement and to say that he is at present pastor in Belleville and not Orillia, and did not preach the sermon in question at all. I am at a loss to understand how such a sermon could have been preached by any Methodist Minister—but I think I know Mr. Locke's position on the liquor question well enough to say confidently that he would never declare himself in any such fashion. He is a man who weighs his words too well to put forth such absurd and contradictory arguments on this the most serious and vital question that is before our Dominion to-day. Thanking you Mr. Editor, I remain,

ONE WHO KNOWS.

THE WATER WORKS PURCHASE

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As one interested in the carrying of the by-law for acquiring our own waterworks, I would suggest that those in authority should remove all doubts as to their honesty of propose in securing its passage. We cannot shut our ears to mutterings of the excessive sum proposed for their purchase, and of fancied rake-offs and other crookedness incident al thereto. I have heard it further stated that the Water Works Company is in favor of the deal and that it is an indication that the sum is excessive, especially in view of the fact that owing to the bad quality of the water for drinking purposes, it will be necessary for us to get our supply from another source, and in view of the further fact that the pipes, being of an inferior quality, will have to be replaced by ones of better material. If these rumors can be successfully controverted it should be done on Monday at the nomination of Mayor and Aldermen, when those seeking re-election will strengthen their candidature. If, on the other hand, a full and exhaustive statement is not forthcoming as to how the amount is arrived at, and showing that there is no self-interest at work, then I say vote out the old Council and vote in a new one.

Yours &c.,

VOTER.

Bits of News

The Duke of Norfolk takes pleasure in telling many stories about himself. Here is one of them: A large party of Americans arrived one day at Arundel, with an order to go over the Castle. As the butler was away, the Duke, fond of a joke, acted his part, and conducted them personally through the various stately rooms. They plied him hard with questions, such as, "What sort of man is the Duke?" "Is he good-looking?" "Couldn't we have a peep at him somewhere?" "Is he a good master?" "And how long have you been in his service?" etc. The Duke preserved a perfectly rigid demeanor through all this personal cannonade, replying respectfully to all their queries, and when the party left was rewarded with a handsome tip of half a crown.

Green, the English historian, one day asked a friend which of all the inventions of their day had done the most for the people as a whole. His friend guessed this and that, but the answer was: "Beyond doubt, sixpenny photographs." A reply involving quite as great an absurdity as that was made by Cecil Rhodes in answer to a lady who, seeking to draw him out, suggested that he owed his phenomenal rise to the impetus of noble sentiments. "Madam," returned Mr. Rhodes, "I owe my fortune simply and solely to cold mutton." "Cold mutton!" gasped the lady. "O Mr. Rhodes, what do you mean?" "When I was young," continued the South African millionaire "I was so dosed with cold mutton, and I hated it so cordially, that I resolved to grow rich in order to put it on one side for the rest of my life. Yes, madam, cold mutton was at the root of my success; noble sentiments had nothing to do with it."

A Pious Parrot.

"If Coco meant the half of what he said, and was even a quarter as wise as he looked, he was a wonderful bird," says a writer in "Forest and Stream." "I met him in Paris, where he lived with an old English lady, who spent her life in her own apartments between her maid and her parrot. Coco was thus her almost constant companion, her guide, counsellor and friend. He had an easy flow of conversation, and said many funny and apt things that I have forgotten, but no one who saw and heard him at his devotions of a Sunday morning is likely to forget it. His mistress, being unable to attend the English chapel, read the service in her own room aloud, with Coco for congregation, for none ever exceeded the unction of his long-drawn 'Amens,' nor the contrite quaver of his 'Good Lord, deliver us' in the litany, and when it came to 'miserable sinners,' he rolled up his eyes and nodded his old head in dismal approval.

"It would have been unkind to smile during the performance, for Coco's feelings were sensitive, and, moreover, the old lady found comfort in the thought that he, perhaps, dimly understood. She told the following story in proof of his sagacity: A friend came to visit her one day who also owned a parrot. The talk turned upon the rival birds, and the visitor instanced, in proof of her pet's powers, an intricate sentence that he had been taught to say. She repeated the sentence several times, mimicking a parrot's nasal voice. Coco, meanwhile, showed evidence of great excitement. He sidled hand over hand across the back of the sofa on which the visitor sat, puffing out his chest and holding his breath till all of his feathers stood on end. Something was on his mind, and he was straining to get it off. As the visitor rose to go, his efforts culminated, and as she passed out of the door he screamed the sentence after her, exactly as he had heard his rival quoted."

THREATENED BY ROBBERS

Trenton, N. J. Dec. 29.— Many people in the vicinity of Hopewell, this county, believe Larrison Holcombe, a wealthy farmer and money lender, is the victim of a conspiracy to compel him to pay 400 blackmail or suffer the destruction of his valuable property. It is not regarded as a hoax, because neighbors of Holcombe have consented to watch his property on account of the numerous depredations committed in that locality.

Holcombe, a week ago, received in a large envelope, postmarked Jersey City, a threat that unless he placed $400 under a stone a mile from his home his property would be burned and "dynamited." This communication was signed "Anarchists." Holcombe was advised by his neighbors not to take any notice of the letter, but the point named was watched and nothing was discovered.

There has been reign of terror in that vicinity for about a year. Robberies, hold-ups and incendiary fires, all attributed to a band of desperadoes who live in the wilds of Sourland Mountains, followed in quick succession. This refuge is not only the hiding place of native criminals, but of fugitives from New York and Pennsylvania.

SULTAN GIVES WAY

Constantinople, Dec. 28.—W. W. Peet, Treasurer of the Missionary Society in Constantinople, and M. Gargiulo, Dragoman of the United States Legation, who left here December 17 to meet the brigands who hold Miss Stone captive, have started from Salonica for the interior. No news of their movements is to be expected for some days. The Government, on representations made by the Legation, has sent instructions to the Provincial authorities to render the United States negotiators for the release of Miss Stone every assistance in their power. Spencer Eddy, United States Charge D'Affaires, attended a selamlik Thursday. He was cordially received by the Sultan.

A Remarkable Offer.

Here is the best offer ever made in this community. By a very excellent arrangement made with the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal we are enabled to offer the PETERBORO WEEKLY TIMES and that great Family Paper, the Family Herald and Weekly Star, for one year for the small sum of $1.50 and include to each subscriber three beautiful premium pictures, of which the following is a brief description:

KING EDWARD VII.—True to life, a beautiful portrait, size 18x24 inches, on beautiful heavy white satin finished paper for framing. This portrait has been taken since his accession to the throne, and is the very latest and best obtainable. It cannot be had except through the FAMILY HERALD AND WEEKLY STAR, each picture bears the King's autograph. This picture has the great merit of being the first taken after the King's accession, and has therefore an historical value that no other picture can possess.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.—An exquisitely beautiful picture of the remarkably beautiful and good Queen Alexandra, also taken since the King's accession to the throne. It is the same size as that of the King, the two forming a handsome pair of pictures that alone would sell for many times the subscription price of paper and pictures.

No portrait of the King and Consort taken at the second or succeeding sittings can have one fraction of the value of the first. These go down to history.

THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.—The Renowned Gainsborough Picture. Sold at auction sale in London twenty-five years ago for $10,500, stolen by clever thieves, hidden for over twenty four years and delivered to its owner on payment of $25,000 reward and since sold to Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan for $75,000.

This, in brief, is the history of one of the premium pictures, which, by a clever stroke of enterprise, the publishers of the Family Herald have secured for their subscribers. The picture is 22 x 28 in ten colours, and is reproduced line for line, colour for colour with the original. Copies of the reproduction are now sold in New York City, Montreal and Toronto for $12 each, and this is the picture Family Herald subscribers are going to get absolutely free together with the pictures of the King and Queen.

Is that not big value? Call at THE TIMES Office and see samples of these beautiful pictures.

You want THE TIMES for the local news, and you want that great paper the Family Herald for its 24 pages of general news and family reading. Its agricultural pages alone are worth many times the subscription price.

CHINA MAKES READY FOR ANOTHER STRUGGLE

Vast Quantities of Small Arms and Ammunition Passing Into the Country

THE ARMY IS BEING THOROUGHLY ORGANIZED

Superintendent Gammon of the American Bible Society, Predicts a Great War Within Ten Years

New York, Dec. 30.—Charles F Gammon, Superintendent of Colporteurs for the American Bible Society in Northern China, writes to the society concerning the present situation in the Chinese Empire, as follows:

"While at Shanghai I observed that the Chinese Government was openly violating the provisions of the protocol. The great Empire would shake off European domination. Thousands of boat loads of small arms and ammunition were passing weekly up the Yang Tse Kiang and the arsenals were being charged and worked day and night. Cargoes of explosives were being received and the Dowager Empress had issued instructions to all officials to recruit the army, and also to inform her as to the fighting strength of each division and the time required to concentrate the forces at a given point. There were and are many other unpromising features which weighed heavily upon the minds of those interested. I must believe that the end is not yet, and that within ten years, and possibly within five, a war will ensue, the like of which the world has never known. For centuries China has been making repeated attempts to expel the foreigner, each time profiting by past experience, each time with more power and success, each time better equipped and better planned. She is now prepared as never before, buying vast quantities of superior weapons and re-organizing her armies on a correct basis. Therefore, the next attempt will be gigantic in force, and terrible in execution. It will result in a universal upheaval and the final dismemberment of this Empire at a terrible cost."

A BIG DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE NATIONS

How Uncle Sam and John Bull Run their Respective Wars

BRITAIN'S MANLY POLICY SHOWN

While the United States Keeps all Information Back Britain takes the Opposite Course.

New York, Dec. 31.—The Post prints the following:

The English protestants against the course of Great Britain in South Africa are in one respect in a much better situation than the Americans who are unalterably opposed to the Government's Philippine policy. Whether Parliament is in session or not, the English public is able to get more cold facts about the happenings in South Africa than the Americans obtain about the Philippines. The administration of the concentration camps, for instance, was greatly changed, because of the publication, month after month, by the Government, of the official mortality statistics. So high did the death rate become that the English people declined to permit matters to go on unaltered. Similarly, the English War Office publishes every month the total casualties since the beginning of the war, and includes not only those who have died at sea, but those whose deaths took place after their return home because of wounds or illness contracted in South Africa. The American War Department publishes just what it pleases, being subject to no such cross-questioning as an English Under Secretary meets in St. Stephen's. It has grown so niggardly that it will not allow General Chaffee even to cable the deaths in his command, while complete tables of American losses are never given out. As for the facts about military methods, and where the reconcentration is in force, and how many are the victims that it claims, the American citizen is simply referred to the daily press—that is, to the two correspondents of the great press associations in Manila. If they choose to suppress or overlook important news why the War Department is certainly not to blame!

WEDDING BELLS

A charming home wedding was celebrated at "Maple Grove," the home of Mr. E. C. Howson, Otonabee, on Wednesday, Dec. 25th, when his third daughter, Anna J., was united in marriage to Mr. George Buck, of Coldwater, formerly of Norwood.

The ceremony was performed at 11 o'clock, a.m., by the Rev. Mr. Seccombe, of Keene, in the presence of about eighty relatives and friends. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ella Howson, and by her two small sisters, Ella and Lela as maids of honor, while Mr. Stewart, of Hastings, supported the groom. Miss Helen Laing, of Keene, played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bridal party entered the room, the bride leaning on the arm of her father. The bride wore a gown of white silk, with the usual bridal veil, and a crown of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of lillies of the valley. The bridesmaid, and maids of honor, were attired in white organdie, trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and also carried bouquets of lillies of the valley. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner.

The popularity of the bride and groom was attested by the abundance of beautiful gifts, among which was a handsome silver tray, presented by the bride's Sunday School class; a beautiful gold watch and chain from her mother, and a pretty teaset from the groomsman.

A notable event was the presence of Mr. and Mrs Howson, grandparents of the bride, who came to the home where the wedding took place, as bride and groom, 65 years ago, and who have resided at the same place ever since.

After receiving the congratulations of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Buck left on the 6.40 train for Coldwater.

SAVED SIX FROM THE ICY WATERS

Clung to Each Other and Were Rescued at the End of a Pole

WHILE ONE CHILD DROWNED

They Broke Through the Ice While Skating on a Pond in Merritton—Flossie McDonald Drowned

St. Catharines, Dec. 30.—About six o'clock Saturday night seven small children, ranging in ages from 8 to 15, while skating on a pond near the Grand Trunk freight sheds in Merritton, broke through the ice. Six of them were rescued, but one little girl named Flossie McDonald went under the ice. William Darling heard the screams of the children, seized a pole, and jumped into the icy water. Six of the little ones clung to each other. One succeeded in getting hold of the pole Mr Darling held, and had strength enough to hold on and bring his comrades with him out of the water. The other little girl by this time had sunk from view and drowned.

Dr. Vanderburg and others after an hour's work restored to life the six children. Five of them, it was feared, could not be brought to, but after some minutes showed signs of life, and at 7 o'clock were said to be out of danger. The names of the children rescued were four Ramseys, one McDonald, and one Leamey. Flossie McDonald was nine years old, and the daughter of a prominent family of Merritton.

THE WORLD AND THE WAR

ENGLAND, EUROPE AND AMERICA IN BOER WAR

A British View of the Situation—Britain Trying to Win the Boers over, and Make Them Good and Loyal Subjects.

London, Dec. 31.—We are not in the least anxious as to intervention by the continent. It could not take place without America taking a leading part, and that part America will not play. But though this is so we do not wonder that American statesmen are made anxious by the situation. When one sees a friend in a desperate struggle and an ugly crowd around him it is impossible not to give vent to an anxious 'For heaven's sake finish that job as soon as you can!'

This anxiety, coupled with a very natural inability to grasp the nature of the Boer and his peculiar attitude in regard to the war, has also caused Americans, and those most friendly to England first of all, to ask how it is that we do not come to terms with the Boers and make a reasonable compromise. We are quite sure that if the Philippine struggle loomed as large as does that in South Africa we should ask exactly the same question here in regard to the Filipinos. All members of the Anglo-Saxon race have a profound belief in compromise, and find it almost impossible not to believe that a dispute can be sooner or later settled on terms. This instinctive feeling is strengthened by the natural impatience, which, strange as it seems, is always felt more keenly by the onlookers than by the combatants. During the last six months of the Civil war the impatience here for an end of the struggle was very great, and was by no means always felt by those who considered themselves on the side of the South. Many persons who sincerely believed themselves Northern in sympathy held that the North must make peace on reasonable terms, and declared that if not either the North would bleed to death or else there would be a European coalition to end the struggle.

Though many Americans cannot see the impossibility of any compromise with the Boers—though they see the impossibility in the case of the Filipinos—it is, we fear, most unlikely that the Boers will be willing to accept voluntarily any terms we can offer them. Mr. Kruger and the ousted Boer Government here, and Mr. Steyn in South Africa, will not agree to anything but independence. Why should they when anything less means to them political annihilation? President Davis and his Government showed exactly the same spirit. They had no sort of notion of yielding when Lee gave way, but would have fought on for another two years if they could, in the hope of something turning up. But Lee and the other commanders and their soldiers at last finished the war by a simple surrender, and on no political terms. So it will be here. The Boer governments, such as they are, will never make terms. But some day the soldiers still in the field will come in, and the war will be over.

There is no solution possible now, as far as we can see, except a military one, and therefore, all we can do is to fight on steadily and actively and not allow ourselves to be alarmed by scares of intervention or deluded by impossible ideas of compromise and negotiation. We have just got to "stick it out." "Fight and don't fuss," is the conclusion of the whole matter. Meantime there is one thing which we can and ought to remember to do. That is, to make surrender on the part of the Boer combatants in the field as easy as possible. Let us, as far as we can, "save the face" of the Boer officers and men and make the transition from enemies to fellow-subjects as easily as we possibly can. We want when the war is over to have as large a number of Boers as possible, proud to say: "They fought us without mercy while the war lasted, but when the end came they treated us like gentlemen." Never "spoil the face" of those with whom you must some day keep house—is a good rule.

DIVIDING THE BOERS WILL END THE WAR

What Britain has Been Striving for so Earnestly

HAS NOW BEEN SECURED

The National Boer Scouts has taken the heart out of the Fighting Burghers

The Loyal Boers are Increasing—Irreconcilables are Regarded as Enemies to their Country.

London, Dec. 31.—At last the British authorities have succeeded in dividing the hitherto steadfast and unimpressionable Boers. The burgher corps of National Scouts represent the Boers who are willing to accede to the British terms. They are opposed to the irreconcilables who are controlled by such men as Gen. De Wet and the commander-in-chief of the Boer army, Botha. The work of the first corps organized and put in the field by Gen. Kitchener has been highly gratifying to the British. This corps has captured 36 Boers and a quantity of stock in a week besides spreading discontent among the Veldt burghers.

The idea that the irreconcilables are proving themselves to be enemies of the country is spreading quite rapidly now that communication can be had with burghers at their homes. It is shown to them that foreign nations are anxious to keep the war in progress for ulterior designs against Great Britain, and those who think more of their country than they do of revenge upon the British troops are determined to make an effort to put a stop to the more shedding of blood and the destruction of property.

The burghers in camp are offering themselves for service in the field against the irreconcilables, and it is reported in the dispatches that nine burghers have left Brigspruit to take the oath of allegiance to Great Britain. The surrendered burghers are joining a new corps of National Scouts to be commanded by prominent Boer leaders elected by the Boers who are willing to fight for peace. Many are influenced by the burghers who have been operating under Celliers and and Cronje's command acting with General Bruce Hamilton.

The British have, therefore, put a wedge between those who wish to make peace on the best terms possible and the burghers who will not be satisfied with anything short of independence of Great Britain. The same old tactics which have prevailed in British colonial wars the world over, of dividing the natives to conquer them, is now being put in practice in South Africa, and it has suddenly grown to be a movement of importance.

Britain and the United States

Ottawa, Dec. 27.—The Citizen says: The United States proposes to return to China $18,000,000 overpaid on the indemnity exacted for damage done to property of American subjects. What is the matter with the United States returning the balance due to Great Britain on the Alabama claims? At a conservative computation the United States still has in its possession about $14,000,000 of the amount paid over by Great Britain for the famous "Alabama claims" which has never been claimed.

The Alabama claims arose out of the damage done by a Confederate privateer of that name which was built in the Mersey in 1862 for the Confederate government. The United States lodged a protest against the vessel being handed over and the British government telegraphed to prevent her leaving the harbor; but on the next day the vessel slipped away, was armed out in the ocean and during two years following she inflicted heavy loss on the Federal merchant marine. On June 19, 1864, she accepted the challenge of the Federal cruiser Kearsage and went out to meet her off Cherbourg, France. One of the first shells from the Alabama lodged in the stern part of the Kearsage and, if it had burst, would have disabled that vessel and left her at the mercy of the Confederate, but the fortune of war was against the plucky Confederate, and the Kearsage, which was armored with iron cable chains, succeeded in destroying the Alabama.

After the war the United States made an enormous claim for damages against Great Britain for the depredations committed by the Alabama on its merchant marine—about $45,000,000. In September, 1871, a commission met to adjudicate upon the claims. It consisted of representatives of Italy, Switzerland, Brazil, United States and England. In 1872 this commission awarded the United States £3,229,166, which Great Britain paid over in September, 1873. By December, 1876 the United States had liquidated all claims put forward, and there still remained a balance on hand of some $6,000,000. In March, 1886, this amounted, with interest, to $9,500,000, and will now amount to over $15,000,000 at 4 per cent.

The Chinese claims and the Alabama claims appear to afford parallel cases. While the United States is in a generous mood it might as well pay back both amounts.

A BELATED POEM.

Dedicated to the Great Family Journal by Our Junior Reporter.

Oh, Santa Claus; oh, Santa Claus,
As you drive by I wish you'd pause
And listen to my tale of woe—
My woeful, doleful tale of woe.

Don't bring me any napkin rings,
Nor handkerchiefs; don't be so rash;
I'm well supplied with all these things;
I need the cash, I need the cash.

Don't bring me any briar pipes,
Nor fountain pens that will not run,
Nor neckties with the yellow stripes;
I need the mun, I need the mun

Just keep that phonograph a year;
Don't put it in my little sack.
The way I'm fixed, I'd rather hear
The money talk, the money talk.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL

Same Old Membership but a New Man in the Chair

Ashburnham is original in municipal affairs. It was an original idea to have the nominations in the evening instead of at the time-honored noon hour; and it is decidedly original for the retiring Reeve, after several years' successful occupancy of the chair, to quietly and voluntarily step down and take a seat at the Council Board.

The Village Council Chamber was crowded last night at 8.30, when Mr. Wood, the Clerk, announced that the following nominations had been made:

For Reeve.

Wm. J. Johnston, by R. Pollock and George Beavis.

J. H. Smith, by F. Adams and R. B. Rogers.

F. Adams, by R. B. Rogers and W. Garvin.

For Councillors.

Robt. Sheridan, by Frank Adams and W. Beattie.

Robt. Pollock, by Frank Adams and A. Nesbitt.

Wm. Maniece, by Frank Adams and W. G. Gibbs.

Frank Adams, by W. J. Gibbs and J. W. Garvin.

W. J. Johnston, by Robt. Sheridan and Charles Crowe.

For Trustees.

Henry Morgan, by Wm. Scott and J. H. Smith.

E. A. Peck, by Frank Adams and R. B. Rogers.

J. W. Garvin, by R. B. Rogers and F. Adams.

The Trustees were declared elected by acclamation. All the nominations for Reeve and Councillors were withdrawn except those of the old board, Mr. Adams being in nomination for both Reeve and Councillor.

Reeve Adams was called upon to address the meeting. He said that one year ago, after being elected by acclamation, he announced that he would not again accept the honor even if the people were willing to press it upon him, and he adhered to that determination. The question of the waterworks and other important matters, more important than have hitherto been before the council, will have to be handled in the coming year. He had been urged to remain in the council. Mr. Smith, the other nominee for Reeve, would not oppose his re-election. But he believed the honor of the Reeveship should go round. He therefore resigned the Reeveship and accepted the nomination for the council.

This left the old council re-elected by acclamation, with Mr. J. H. Smith as Reeve and Messrs. Frank Adams, Robt. Sheridan, Robt. Pollock and W. J. Johnston Councillors.

Reeve-elect Smith addressed the meeting, returning thanks for the honor. It was the ninth time he had asked the people for their suffrages; he had sat six terms at the board and been defeated at the polls twice. He proposed to let the street lighting by contract, if supported by the council. He believed it was time to introduce granolithic walks. Referring to the proposed purchase of the waterworks by the town, he said that he believed the town would be harder to deal with than the company. He complimented the retiring Reeve and predicted a prosperous future for the village.

Messrs. Sheridan, Pollock and Johnston each briefly gave thanks for their re-election and wished the company the compliments of the season.

Messrs. Garvin and Peck were next called upon, and spoke briefly. Mr. Garvin thought it was time the village and town were united. Mr. Peck disagreed with him. He believed Ashburnham would soon be a town of 5000 or 6000 and would have a Mayor and Council of its own and its affairs would be better managed as a separate municipality. Mr. Rogers also spoke a few words and Mr. Allan McCarthy was called to the floor and his humorous address caused much hilarity.

BAD CHRISTMAS WEEK

The Boers Have Played Havoc With The British Troops

COL. FIRMIAN'S FORCE ROUTED

The Christmas Season One of Britains Unlucky Periods in South Africa.

London, Dec. 31.—Further details regarding the British reverse shows that the force of Col. Firmian fought against overwhelming odds until ammunition was exhausted. Three companies of Imperial Yeomanry were killed and captured, while two guns were lost.

The Boers, as soon as the fight was over, retired, taking their dead and wounded with them. They were hotly pursued by two regiments of Light Horse.

Christmas has been a sad holiday for the British during the last three years of the troubles with the Boers. This year's bad news for them has had its counterpart every year since 1899.

It was on Christmas Day, 1899, that a meeting of five thousand Outlanders was held in Johannesburg to protest against various acts of Boer officials. The war may really be said to have begun on Christmas Day, for from the time of the meeting preparations for hostilities went on constantly on both sides.

The Christmas season of 1899 was one of the saddest in the history of London.

First occurred General Gatacre's reverse at Stromberg on Sunday, Dec. 10, which was succeeded by Lord Methuen's crushing defeat at Magersfontein on the following day, and this was followed by General Buller's repulse at Colenso, on the Tugela river, on Dec. 15. News of these events did not reach London until nearly a week after they occurred, and then ensued several days of distressing suspense.

Last year again there was bad Christmas news for the Britons. The first report of the rebellion in Cape Colony was published on Dec. 23.

On the same day an Associated Press despatch reported that Kimberly, only a few months before released from siege, was again threatened, and on the 24th it was announced that the Boers had cut the railroad south of De Aar shutting of Cape Town from communication with Pretoria and Kimberley.

A GOOD MOVE

The Invitation by the Y.M.C.A. to the Young Men of the Town

The Young Men's Christian Association are making a good move for New Year's day, and it is a pleasure to record it. They keep open house for all young men of the town, and a reasonable measure of hospitable entertainment. It is to be hoped that since no limitation is placed upon the sort of young men expected, that all, without distinction, will be welcome. We shall do all we can to make this known in the haunts of the young men of the town, who no doubt will find it a pleasant change from alcoholic and similar amusements. The line usually drawn is for this day withdrawn, evidently, and the press paragraph announcing the fact ought to meet with due recognition.

There are at least one thousand young men in Peterborough who rarely go to church, and we hope to find that the effort made by the Y.M.C.A. to provide refreshment without further addition than a pleasant welcome, upon New Year's day, will be fully taken advantage of.

BOERS MAKE A BIG SWOOP ON WEDNESDAY

Report of Zeefontein Fight Tells of a Very Bloody Christmas Morning

A REVIVAL OF PEACE RUMORS WITH BOERS

Negotiations Leading to Peace Said to be Proceeding Between Kitchener and the Boer Leaders

London, Dec. 30.—Lord Kitchener's official despatch in regard to the fight at Zeefontein, fought on Christmas morning, indicates that the British suffered a severe defeat. The first casualty list issued shows six officers and fifty men killed, eight officers wounded, and four officers missing. The number of prisoners taken is not yet known. The Boer victory was due to De Wet's daring plan of attack, and his superior force. The British troops fought with magnificent heroism. In Lord Kitchener's first despatch in reference to the disaster, he spoke of the capture of two guns. In this detailed account, he mentions only one gun, which became jammed.

DETAILED REPORT.

Lord Kitchener says,—"The column was encamped on a solitary kopje, whose southern side was almost precipitous. The outposts on the northern side were well pushed out. The position, which was naturally a strong one, had also been entrenched. The night was moonlit but cloudy. Details have not been received, but it is stated that the Boers climbed the precipitous southern side and collected near the top.

"At 2 o'clock in the morning the Boers suddenly attacked the pickets on the summit in superior numbers. Before the men in the camp were able to get clear of the tents the Boers rushed through, shooting them as they were coming out. The officers, including Major Williams, were shot while trying to stem the tide. Lieut. Harwich, who worked the pom-pom, was shot through the heart. Lieut. Watney was killed while leading a charge. There was no panic among our men. All did their best, but once the picket was overwhelmed the superior force of the Boers had all the advantage.

"Including the casualties, half the column is now at Elands River Bridge. The remainder are prisoners.

"A 15-pounder, after two rounds, became jammed. The men composing the detachment stood by the gun and were shot down around it.

"Lieut. Scarlett, who was wounded, was overlooked by the Boers and left behind. He saw two wagon loads of dead and wounded Boers carried off. They were mostly hit during the first attack on the picket.

"The Boers, who apparently numbered about twelve hundred, under General De Wet, behaved well, leaving men to look after the wounded.

"The Imperial Light Horse were fourteen miles distant. They heard of the fight at half-past four, and arrived at the scene at half-past six. After breathing their horses they galloped after the Boers, who succeeded in reaching the broken country, where the Light Horse were useless against superior numbers."

PROSPECTS OF PEACE.

London, Dec. 30.—There has been a revival of peace rumors during the past week, in spite of the Zeefontein disaster. It is said that informal negotiations are actually proceeding between Lord Kitchener and the Boer leaders. General Louis Botha is said to have received assurances that the farms devastated during the war will be reconstructed by the British and that the banished Boer leaders will be allowed to return to their homes. Practically the only question of importance still at issue is the form and extent of local self-government which shall be allowed the burghers of the Transvaal and Orange River Colonies. Even that, according to present information, does not present insuperable obstacles.

SCHEEPER'S TRIAL.

Graaf Reniet, Cape Colony.—Commandant Scheepers, on trial for his life before a military tribunal here, for murder and treason, made a vigorous defense, denying six of the seven murders with which he is charged. He declared that in the other case, the man shot was a native spy. He admitted whipping natives.

WEDDED AT CARLETON PLACE

Nuptials of Mr. Wm. Renwick and Miss Martha Lewis

A quiet wedding took place at Carleton Place on December 24th, when Mr. Wm. Renwick, of Deloraine, N. W. T. formerly of Peterborough was united in marriage to Miss Martha Lewis, of Carleton Place. The wedding took place in the English church, and was witnessed only by the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Renwick will spend a month visiting Mr. Renwick's mother, Dufferin street, Ashburnham, before leaving for their home in the North-west.

THE BOWLING CLUB BALL

Enjoyable Social Event in the Opera House Last Night

Following the gallant precedent of the Golf Club and the Rugby Club, the Lawn Bowling Club adopted as one of its institutions an annual ball. The first of what will no doubt be a series of these happy events took place in the opera house last night, and rivaled in all that goes to make a night of enjoyment the past successes under the auspices of the other athletic organizations. The elite and beauty of the town were there in force and from first to last there was nothing to mar their enjoyment. Supper was provided by a caterer, the ladies being relieved of all trouble on that account, Mr. McQuay was the provider and gave the fullest satisfaction. The hall was profusely and beautifully decorated by Messrs. Turner & Sons.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 31, 1901

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

A very happy New Year to you,
My friend, I wish you to-day.
Whether you're at your own fireside
Or, like some folks, inclined to stray.

A very happy New Year to you,
Whether you're young or old.
If you've every comfort this world gives
Don't forget those out in the cold.

A very happy New Year to you,
Whether you're rich or poor.
If rich, on this New Year's day don't turn
A poor one from your door.

A very happy New Year to you,
Whether you're happy or sad.
The dawning of a new fair year,
Ought to make sad hearts glad.

A very happy New Year to you,
And your Heavenly Father seek.
For if it is the first day of the year,
'Tis the first day of the week.
—Jean Sommerville.

NEW YEAR'S CALLS.

Present Customs More Sensible Than Those of Former Days.

'Tis nature's law of compensation that every excess causes a defect; every sweet hath its sour, and the regret over the decay of that gracious custom of New Year's calling may be balanced by a genuine feeling of relief.

A decade ago the 1st of January was a great social festival. From house to house of friends and acquaintances men traveled to pay their respects. The calling this season will be restricted to one's family, or few very intimate friends.

The custom was always questionable in its results. The temptations to weak and even strong men were great. Hot rooms, the sensuous fragrance of flowers, fair women and the conviviality that prevailed at the buffet proved rocks on which a whole armada of ships went to pieces. Men who could pass a bar without the slightest inclination to indulge lost all self-control on this day and evening, when the muscles of their morals were softened by the genial glow spread over everything.

There were sisters, wives and mothers who for this reason dreaded the social christening of the new year. They knew by long experience the mortification that would result for them later in the evening. Either to be tormented by anxiety every time a new group of callers was announced, or to sit at home and tremblingly await his return.

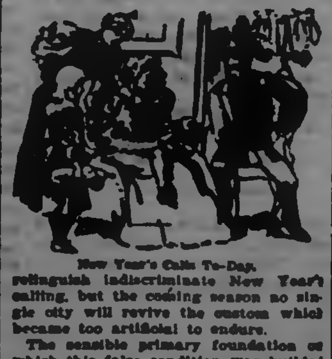
Then there came another questionable side to the day's pleasure.

In large cities the number of visits to be paid became a bore. Exchanging greetings with one's friends was well enough, but the finality of the custom demanded a few minutes spent at each house that chose to throw open its doors. It was useless to plead mere acquaintanceship or even cordial dislike, for shirk a visit; the social dictum remained unaltered; call one must on everybody who cared to receive.

The condition assumed a tiresome phase that it is feared will follow the present unwise gift-giving at Christmastide.

Exchanging presents is a beautiful Christmas custom when rightfully employed, but the idea which seemingly prevails that people for whom you care nothing shall receive of your scanty or plentiful bounty is a strained sense of generosity. Women appear to regard the day as one in which every moneyed artery should be squeezed dry to provide as handsome presents as her friends are giving, instead of being willing to send only as many as her purse will allow.

The Southern States were the last to relinquish indiscriminate New Year's calling, but the coming season no single city will revive the custom which became too artificial to endure.



New Year's Calls To-Day.

The sensible primary foundation on which this false condition was builded will be returned to in the opening of 1902.

The dear old mother will receive all her family, and the day will belong to those near and dear to each other. Each branch of the tree, no matter how remote, will wish a cordial "good year" to the head of the house. And the picture will be prettier, if not so bewildering, as in former years.

The white-capped dame, holding the memories of many new years, good and ill, in her face, being greeted by all her posterity, which she has helped to launch on the voyage of life; the children with no thought of the gulf she may have to cross before time counts another bead off his rosary of years, cling about her knees; the grown up children, watching anxiously the placid face to see if it looks wearier, is far and away more satisfying than a scene of crowded rooms, gleaming shoulders, laden tables and buffets sparkling with wines, where 100 laughing mouths are proposing toasts with uplifted glasses and clever jest.

The Scottish Hogmanay.

A satisfactory explanation of the term "hogmanay," used by the Scots to designate the last day of the old year has never yet been given, but there are two suppositions which are quite plausible. One is that the term "hogmanay" is derived from "hugenot" or "hogg night," the Scandinavian name for the night preceding the feast of yule, when animals were sacrificed, the word "hogg" meaning to kill. The other derivation is from the French, "au gui menez," "to the mistletoe go," referring to the Druids' custom on New Year's eve of collecting the mistletoe from the oaks, and, after consecrating it, distributing it among the people of the Gauls, by whom it was prized because of the many virtues ascribed to it.

A Happy New Year.

A "Happy New Year" you can make it my dear,
By smiling and doing your best;
Be cherry and true the twelvemonth through,
So shall the New Year be blest.
—Youth's Companion.

GLUTTONY

is more common than we may think, if we define gluttony as eating beyond the body's need of sustenance and beyond the stomach's capacity for digestion and assimilation of food. That is a fair definition, and it fastens the name glutton on many a person who would resent the term as an insult. The fact of this gluttony is marked by its consequences. The overloaded stomach becomes diseased. The popular term for the condition is "weak" stomach. The "weak" stomach fails in furnishing adequate nutrition for the body, and soon the "weakness" spreads from the stomach to other organs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect assimilation of food, by which alone the health and strength of the body is maintained.

"Your medicine helped me so much that I cannot praise it too highly," writes Mrs. C. L. Brooks, of Poland, Androscoggin Co., Me. "The first dose I took helped me. I cannot forget how I felt when I took it; I was suffering everything with indigestion, and my stomach was so bloated that it seemed as though it must burst. My husband said he was going for the doctor, but I said if he would get me a bottle of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I would try that. I had not taken it long when I felt relieved, and have not had a touch of indigestion or stomach trouble since. I had been sick for four years, and less than four bottles cured me. Some people that knew me before I began to take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' tell me that they never saw such a change in any one, and they also say they don't see how I can do such large washings as I do now, when I had not done a washing for so long."

CHAINED FOR TEN YEARS
HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
EVERY BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER
Rabbi of the Cong. Bnai Israel.
NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:

Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,
REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

AVON SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901.
DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

THE NEW YEAR BRIDE.

Those New Year bells, those New Year bells,
Their clangor echoes far and wide;
Through snow-laid dells
Their triumph swells,
They ring my love a happy bride,
Joy bears each note,
As far they float,
And all the air is filled with pride.

Those New Year bells, those New Year bells,
How softly mellow rings their tone!
Their joy it wells
In rythmic swells,
And dies far on the azure zone;
And seraphs fair
Muse high in air
That winter's day so fair has grown.

Those New Year bells, those New Year bells,
They echo by the mountain side,
Through frozen fells,
They weave their spells,
That ring my love a happy bride.
O'er vale and hill
The tremors thrill,
And earth and air is filled with pride.

NEW YEAR
on
PRIMROSE HILL

HARRIETT and Hannah Primrose were very much surprised to see Lawyer Kittredge turn in from the old Stockbridge road and come up Primrose Hill toward their little house one fine morning the day before New Years.

Mr. Kittredge had an office in Pittsfield, about two miles away, and, although these twin sisters knew him by reputation and sight, they had yet to speak with him; therefore, their surprise when they saw him advancing upon their castle. What in the world could he want with them? They were alone in the world, and had been for over thirty years. They lived in the little oak ribbed house in which they were born a half century before and were unmarried. They were quiet, refined, gentle little bodies, but as courageous as lions. Their friends had many years before given up trying to prevail upon them to move nearer "town," as Pittsfield is proudly called by its inhabitants in a way that constant practice has made casual. In Primrose Hall, on Primrose Hill, Harriett and Hannah Primrose were born, and there they intended to die. Their father, Adam Primrose, had left the house and $10,000 to them just before he blessed them and slipped away. There was another child, a son, who had disappeared and died in China, a year or so before his father died in the old home. So everything had gone to the sisters.

Many ambitious young men had come to woo the sisters in other days, but Harriett and Hannah were not to be wooed. They loved each other too dearly to ever allow any man to come between that love. In all the years they had never spoken to each other except in tones of affection. People used to say that the love existing between the Primrose sisters was the most beautiful thing in the Berkshire Hills. Everybody knew their history, and how Jasper Hardlines had lost their little all in a speculation he had urged them to embark upon. Hardlines was the meanest man in Massachusetts. He lived about half a mile nearer Pittsfield than the Primroses, in a ramshackle house, with his half-starved wife. It was said that he had millions of money, but that is generally said of mean old men. Nobody would ever suspect that he had a dollar from his appearance; and Mrs. Hardlines looked shabbier than he. She was in mortal terror of him, too, and had been for over thirty years.

In answer to Lawyer Kittredge's knock, the door was softly opened by Hannah Primrose, and he was requested to enter. It was as good as a tonic to look at and listen to the big voiced, big framed Frank Kittredge. His laugh was as hearty and genuine as one of the sons of Bobby Burns.

"Good morning, ladies. Allow me to introduce to you an ornament of the Boston bar, who has been all over the world, and who came to Pittsfield six weeks ago to settle down—in other words, allow me to present to you Lawyer Francis Kittredge." Then he went off into a perfect hurricane of inextinguishable laughter. The Primrose sisters, in spite of all they could do, were compelled to smile in sympathy. Lawyer Kittredge had such a sunny face, and such magnificent teeth, and wide, honest blue eyes.

"Now, ladies, I want you to understand that I am your friend. I know all about you, and how that old rascal, Hardlines, did you out of your inheritance. No, I don't know all, but I want to know. How much was it?"

"It was $10,000," replied Hannah.

"All you possessed?"

"All we possessed," answered Harriett. Then she went on: "That is, in money. We own this little property, and Mr. Hardlines pays us the interest on the money, which is very good of him, as he needn't do it."

"How much interest, pray?"

"Two and a half per cent. Some years only 2 per cent.——"

"And there were six years when he only paid one and a half," drearily put in Hannah.

"The old villain!" muttered Kittredge. "But how do you live?" he [illegible]

"Not extravagantly," smiled Hannah. "We put up preserves and sell them, and our wants are few."

"Didn't you have a brother? The people in the village say you had."

"Oh, poor Sidney," Harriett said. "He had a fight with a boy, and imagining that he had killed him, fled. He died in China many years ago." And then these two lovely souls surreptitiously wiped their sweet, patient eyes. Lawyer Kittredge watched them with a lump in his throat for a few minutes, and then, in an altered tone, said:

"Harriett and Hannah Primrose, you may trust me. I am nearly fifty years of age, and I have two sisters just like you—just as sweet and patient and good as you are. May the dear Lord deal by them as I do by you. I want you to invite Jasper Hardlines and his poor wife here to dinner to-morrow!"

Had an earthquake happened along at that moment the sisters might have been a trifle more astonished. Invite Hardlines and his wife to their scanty board! No, no. Would he come? Oh, yes! he would go anywhere to get something for nothing.

"Then invite him, have a good dinner for five, for I shall be one of the party, and I promise you, on the honor of a—Kittredge, that you shall never regret having done as I ask you to do," and with that Lawyer Kittredge kissed the hands of each sister and withdrew. They watched his fine figure swing down Primrose Hill and up the Stockbridge road toward Pittsfield, and then they sat and gazed at each other speechlessly.

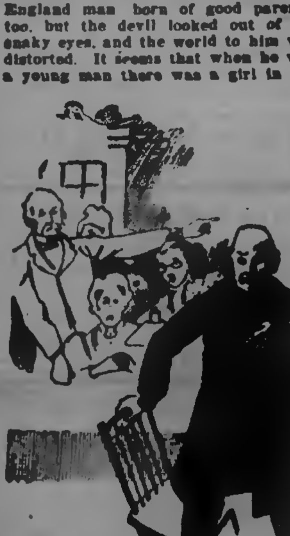
The next day over the nuts and raisins, Mr. Kittredge suddenly said to Jasper Hardlines:

"Mr. Hardlines, you have a pretty good appetite, while Mrs. Hardlines seems to scarcely eat anything."

"Pretty good, pretty good," cackled the old miser. "Oh, she!" throwing a wicked glance at his scared looking wife, "she eats me out of house and home! She has a terrible appetite—a ter-ri-ble appetite—haven't you, baggage?" suddenly, like the snarl of a wolf.

"Yes! Oh, yes, Jasper. I do eat a lot, thank you!" and the poor thing actually quailed under her husband's baleful look.

"Do you know, Hardlines," measuredly continued Kittredge, "that you remind me of a man—named—Pettingill—I defended once in New Orleans—for murder? What's the matter, Hardlines? Dinner disagree with you? Never mind him, ladies, he is all right now. Oh, but this Pettingill was a slick, psalm singing rascal! but such a cold blooded wretch. Well, he was hanged. He used to tell me so many stories. One I shall always remember. It seems that he was a New England man born of good parents, too, but the devil looked out of his snaky eyes, and the world to him was distorted. It seems that when he was a young man there was a girl in the village loved by two young fellows. One of these young men was named Marbury. He was poor. The other was named—Smith. He was the meanest of mortals—a miserly young man. But he was generous enough one day, when he gave Pettingill $1,000. That was a few days after Marbury's body was found frozen in the ice of the Housatonic, under the bridge, up yonder. He had been thrown over the bridge the night before, after Pettingill had crushed in his skull. Smith married the girl, and ill-treated her from that day to ——. But, I say, Hardlines, you're not eating? Now, Mr. Hardlines, you are to go right back to your house and return here in half an hour, with ten thousand dollars in money, not checks, for Harriett and Hannah Primrose, my two dear sisters!" and before the sisters had time to faint their brother had them crushed to his big, deep chest.



"Go right back to your house."

Jasper was back in the specified time with the money. He laid it carefully on the table, looked at Sidney Primrose with horrible eyes, and then staggered out of the house. His poor wife was in such an agony of fear, that they kept her there all night, and forever after, for Hardlines was found dead in his hut next morning, and to this day nobody knows what he did with the money he was supposed to have had.—John Ernest McCann.

THE NEW YEAR'S WELCOME.

'Tis winter waits
At Time's wide gates,
To welcome the new-born Year,
With a robe of snow,
And a lullaby low,
That none but he may hear.

Bright Spring is coy and bides her time;
Fair Autumn's step is slow;
Sweet Summer delays in a southern clime;
While the New Year wakes below.

Yet Spring will have smiles for the youthful Year;
And summer, love, in his prime;
Autumn will lavish wealth and cheer,
On the Year, in his later time.

But his Winter will weave him his shroud of snow,
When the Old Year dies, at last,
And will watch by his side, as life ebbs low,
Till the last hour is past.

Oh! the glad New Year

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen. Mgr., Los Angeles, California.
Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.
F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

This company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of [illegible] shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is a 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.00 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a [illegible] bbl. white oil gusher) Hermosa White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page [illegible]).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in [illegible], and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from [illegible] to [illegible] feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $[illegible], and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $[illegible] to $4.00 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. [illegible] acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reservation that the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a [illegible] barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with the Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

FRENCH GOLD IN ABUNDANCE

London, Eng., Dec. 28.—Despite the recent national deficit, evidences of French wealth and prosperity are so manifest that one is constrained to ask whence they come. The public fortune of France is estimated at the immense total of $[illegible]. The riches of England are easily explained by her commerce, but France has no such pretentions, yet in thirty years the French nation paid off the enormous German indemnity, supported the terrible Panama drain, conquered Madagascar and Tonkin, organized them as colonies, float successive Russian loans, lent gold to England, and is ready for another Russian loan—the last was oversubscribed seven times—as soon as the thrifty M. de Witte thinks Russian finances need a stimulus of French gold. Moreover, France is apparently equally ready to guarantee a large part of the Chinese indemnity. French gold is seeking investment in every direction; there is plenty of it everywhere, so much, in fact, that many foreign eyes are turned upon it with interest, while the secret of its accumulation is a mystery to many.

As a rule foreigners in seeking the principal sources of French wealth fail to look in the right direction. The fortune of the country is in the unknown France, the "France of the Francais" (not in the Nationalist party's sense), in that France where a foreigner rarely penetrates—the France jealously closed to the outsider; the France which contains the bone and the sinew of the nation as well as its gold—where wealth is slowly accumulated, carefully hoarded, and safely invested, when not kept in the woollen stocking, that faithful banker so popular with simple-minded French people. Handed down from generation to generation, the golden ball has kept rolling, increasing as the years glide by. Quite unsuggested, the modest apartment of the bourgeois is the abode of wealth.

WHISKEY CAUSES A MIX-UP

London, Dec. 25.—A German paper tells the story of a German officer who, in command of some Boers, managed to surprise a British train at some small wayside station. There was some excellent whiskey on board and the Boers soon sampled it, with the result that the good British spirit did its duty by laying them out flat asleep on the platform. Here they were found and captured by some English troops, who, in their turn, took a little from a half-empty cask, with the result that acting on halfstarved men the whiskey sent them to sleep in their turn. When the Boers woke up they recaptured their capturers, and thus in a few hours there was one British victory and two Boer victories added to the record.

What an appetite you'll get. How quickly the color will return to your cheeks, how buoyant you will feel! Work! of course you'll work, for you will enjoy it. That is, if you will use Ferrozone. THE TIMES LETTER-BOX

Letters from the People on Interesting and Timely Topics.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Having had the pleasure of receiving orders from several of the leading grocers of Peterborough for their Xmas stock of Grenoble walnuts, and the quality of same showing very inferior for the grade of nuts, the impression has been formed that the goods we supplied were old stock, and were sold at a sacrifice in order to be retailed cheaply.

Such is not the case, as, when placing our orders, we placed them for the highest grade obtainable, which was the grade sent to Peterborough; and the reason for the poor quality this year is accounted for by a very backward season; and the nuts being picked before they were fully matured accounts for their lack of uniformity in quality. Nuts were sold very cheaply this year in Peterborough by the grocers, but the quality would have been as poor if the price charged were twice as much.

Thanking you for the space, I remain,

Your obedient servant.

Two Women Severely Punished for Selling Liquor Without a License and Keeping a House of Ill Fame

Yesterday afternoon the case of May Macdonald, who was charged with selling liquor without a license, and also with keeping a house of ill-fame, was disposed of at the Police Court. The woman lived at 231 Stewart street, where she was arrested on Friday last, about eleven o'clock in the morning. She was released on depositing $100, as was also an inmate named Lizzie Patterson, who also put up the cash for freedom.

To the charge of selling liquor and also of keeping a house of ill-fame Macdonald pleaded guilty. She was fined $100 and costs 4.20, for the first offence, and $50 for the second.

The Patterson woman was charged with being an inmate, to which she pleaded guilty, and was fined $50.

The fines were promptly paid. There were several cases of ale found on the premises, which were confiscated by the Police and taken to the station and destroyed.

A PITIABLE CASE

Bertha Freeborn at the Mercy of the Public Was Confined in Gaol Nearly Two Years

About two years ago Bertha Freeborn, a girl of about 25 years who is subject to epileptic fits was committed to gaol by Magistrate Dumble as a vagrant. It was intended that she would be sent to the Mercer Reformatory but such was not the case, the girl had committed no crime and as there was no House of Refuge she had to be sent to the gaol. Recently Mr. Nesbitt gave out the information that her time would soon be up and, she had no place to go. Application was made to the Y.W.C.A. but they did not feel inclined to take her in. After some difficulty the girl was got a place in Children's Shelter, and she was taken there on Saturday after being released from gaol. Yesterday morning she was taken before the Police Magistrate and sent back to gaol for another month in order to give some one an opportunity to provide a place for her.

It is a pity that in a town like this, with so many charitable institutions that some place cannot be got in which the unfortunate girl can be treated as a woman, and not as a criminal.

MUNICIPAL NOMINATIONS

T. H. G. DENNE RETURNED TO OFFICE BY ACCLAMATION

Nineteen Men Were Nominated for Aldermen—School Trustees—Township Nominations

Yesterday was nomination day and that fact attracted a large number of ratepayers to the Council Chamber. Mr. T. H. G. Denne was nominated for Mayor by Mr. H. C. Winch and seconded by Mr. T. F. Matthews. As there was no opposition offered Mr. Denne was declared elected to the office of Mayor for a second term.

Mr. Harry Winch, in addressing the ratepayers present, said, that last year when he had nominated Mr. Denne, many objections had been raised to his election, but he thought all would bear him out in saying Mayor Denne had shown that he possessed the brains to run the town's affairs. He had during the year been the friend of the working man and had taken a stand regarding municipal affairs, which meant a great deal to the municipality. Mr. Matthews who seconded Mr. Denne's nomination said he was much gratified to see Mayor Denne elected by acclamation. He had seconded Mr. Denne's nomination last year and felt at the time that the best man in the council had been chosen for Mayor. While it was impossible to satisfy every one he was sure that Mayor Denne had done everything to the satisfaction of the ratepayers.

The Mayor then addressed the ratepayers present and said;

Gentlemen,—I desire to thank my proposer and seconder for their kindness in nominating me for the office of Mayor of my native town for another year, and also to thank, most heartily, the ratepayers of Peterborough for this marked expression of their renewed confidence by electing me by acclamation to the highest office in their gift.

Following this the Mayor gave a summary of the work of the council during the year almost closed. He complimented the Aldermen for the prompt manner in which the business was transacted. Everyone seemed to be animated by one desire—that of advancing the interests of the town when any project was brought before the council. He said the year had been a very busy one and although much time had been taken to attend to business of the town it had been a year of pleasant associations.

Foremost amongst the matters of importance is the large building operations being carried on. First the American Cereal Company had commenced to construct large mills and elevator which would employ a large number of men and the large amount of grain required would be a great market for the farmers. The Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company, the largest of its kind in Canada had in course of erection a factory which one would have to see to realize the large amount of work they could turn out. During the year electric power has been developed from the great waterpower afforded by the Otonabee river and in a short time the town would be able to offer inducements such as cheap power supplied to manufacturers wishing to locate here.

During the year watchmen had been placed at the railway crossings on Simcoe and Charlotte streets and the council were endeavoring to have the same precautions taken at the crossing on George street.

The question of the purchase of the waterworks was very important and should be well looked into before finally decided on.

During the year a boom of prosperity had reached the town and he hoped that Peterborough would benefit further by it.

The Mayor said that at the present time he was in communication with large manufacturers which he hoped would be induced to locate here. In closing Mayor Denne said: "I wish you and all the ratepayers of the town of Peterborough, a happy New Year."

The nominations for Aldermen brought out a large batch of names. Altogether nineteen names were registered with the Town Clerk. Of these some will undoubtedly withdraw. Next year the Council will consist of eleven Aldermen and Mayor, an increase of two Aldermen over the number of the past year.

Below is a list of those nominated:

Jas. Batten, by J. J. Turner and Jos. Sucee.
H. Rush, by W. Menzies and W. H. Hill.
E. H. D. Hall, by J. D. Collins and Robert Fair.
M. A. Morrison, by J. Best and J. D. Hughes.
Wm. Menzies, by Robert Fair and J. D. Collins.
G. M. Roger, by John Kincaid and W. Stenton.
J. J. Turner sr., by Jos. Sucee and Jos Batten.
Jas. Edgecumbe, by W. H. Hill and Robt. Fair.
Wm. H. White, by A. Moore, and John Montgomery.
Robert Climkennie, by J. Sucee and J. J. Turner.
J. J. Hartley, by J. Kincaid and J. D. Hughes.
John Carbery, by Jos. Sucee and J. J. Hartley.
Henry Best, by J. Stevenson and John Kincaid.
Benj. Shortly, by J. J. Hartley and Jos. Batten.
Robt. Scott, by M. Connor and A. Moore.
R. McGregor, by M. A. McNamara and J. J. Hartley.
Adam Dawson, by F. D. McKay and H. Evans.
John Sawers, by A Moore and G. H. Duncan.
John Adium, by Jas. Bogue and J. Gibson.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall has retired from the field as has John Adium leaving seventeen still in the field.

The nomination for School Trustees was very quiet. In three wards the Trustees were elected by acclamation. In No. 4 ward two men are in the field.

Below is a list of those nominated:

No. 1 Ward—W. B. Ramford (elected by acclamation.)
No. 2 Ward—W. H. Hill, by J. D. Collins and Alex. Gibson (elected by acclamation.)
No. 3 Ward—James Stevenson (elected by acclamation.)
No. 4 Ward—J. J. Hartley, by W. H. Hill and Jas. Sucee.
W. W. Daly, by J. Robson and J. J. Hartley.

SMITH

The nominations for Smith took place in the Town Hall, Bridgenorth, and were largely attended. The Council were elected by acclamation as follows:

Reeve—Harry Garbutt, Esq.

Councillors—Messrs. James Fowler, Samuel Stinson, W. Bell and E. M. Elliott.

Mr. E. M. Elliott is a new man, all the others being last year's Councillors.

Mr. Harry Garbutt, after the time was up for receiving nominations, was called on, and gave a good account of himself. He referred to the progress that had been made by the township in many ways, and the bright outlook that the future bore.

The new Councillors followed, and discussed the affairs of the municipality in a way that left no doubt in the minds of those present that the affairs of the township is in safe hands.

The Times congratulates Mr. Garbutt on his re-election, and also on the fact that he is surrounded by his old associates, with one exception, who are all men of sound judgment and well qualified for the work before them.

DOURO

The nominations were conducted as usual in the Town Hall, and were fairly well attended.

Mr. J. H. Campbell, in a well-chosen speech, suggested that the members of the old Council be re-elected by acclamation. This was done, the Council for 1902 being as follows:

Reeve—Dennis Maloney, Esq.

Councillors—Messrs. James Condon, Charles Curtis, M. L. Sullivan and Jno. R. Allen.

The Times extends its congratulations to the members of the Council on their re-election. It is a well-merited honor, for more faithful servants of the people it would be difficult to find. Mr. Maloney, the Reeve, has become familiar with the work, and is very popular with the people. When the Reeves go back to the County Council, as they will do soon, Mr. Maloney will have more scope for his ability, and will make a worthy representative in the County Parliament.

THE KING, THE QUEEN and THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.

A Remarkable Offer.

Here is the best offer ever made in this community. By a very excellent arrangement made with the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal we are enabled to offer the PETERBORO WEEKLY TIMES and that great Family Paper, the Family Herald and Weekly Star, for one year for the small sum of $1.50 and include to each subscriber three beautiful premium pictures, of which the following is a brief description:

KING EDWARD VII.—True to life, a beautiful portrait, size 19x21 inches, on beautiful heavy white satin finished paper for framing. This portrait has been taken since his accession to the throne, and is the very latest and best obtainable. It cannot be had except through the FAMILY HERALD AND WEEKLY STAR, each picture bears the King's autograph. This picture has the great merit of being the first taken after the King's accession, and has therefore an historical value that no other picture can possess.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.—An exquisitely beautiful picture of the remarkably beautiful and good Queen Alexandra, also taken since the King's accession to the throne. It is the same size as that of the King, the two forming a handsome pair of pictures that alone would sell for many times the subscription price of paper and pictures.

No portrait of the King and Consort taken at the second or succeeding sittings can have one fraction of the value of the first. These go down to history.

THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.—The Renowned Gainsborough Picture. Sold at auction sale in London twenty-five years ago for $50,000, stolen by clever thieves, hidden for over twenty-four years and delivered to its owner on payment of $25,000 reward and since sold to Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan for $75,000.

This, in brief, is the history of one of the premium pictures, which, by a clever stroke of enterprise, the publishers of the Family Herald have secured for their subscribers. The picture is 22 x 28 in ten colours, and is reproduced line for line, colour for colour with the original. Copies of the reproduction are now sold in New York City, Montreal and Toronto for $12 each, and this is the picture Family Herald subscribers are going to get absolutely free together with the pictures of the King and Queen.

Is that not big value? Call at THE TIMES Office and see samples of these beautiful pictures.

You want THE TIMES for the local news, and you want that great paper the Family Herald for its 24 pages of general news and family reading. Its agricultural pages alone are worth many times the subscription price.

Bishop Potter's Words in Dealing With the Liquor Question

BIG FRAUD AND HYPOCRISY

How a Race of Hypocrites is Being Educated

New York, Dec. 31.—During a discussion on the subject of the opening of Sunday saloons before the Church Club Bishop Potter said that inasmuch as the "powers that be" had decided against any change in the existing excise laws of New York State, the subject was academic. Bishop Potter then went on to describe the law as it exists at present it recognised drunkenness as a mitigation of crime, and that this attitude of the law was false and vicious.

"That was the first blunder that was made," said Bishop Potter. "The next was in the matter of vicious sentiment. John B. Gough always pictured the drunkard as a victim who was not a criminal in getting drunk because he was practically a martyr. That is just as false a sentiment as the other is a false lie, and the whole theory of Mr. Gough's teaching was false and wrong."

Bishop Potter said concerning prohibition:

"Wherever it has triumphed it has educated a race of frauds and hypocrites. In Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont to-day by actual statistics the consumption of certain preparations is larger than anywhere else in the country. One of those is a sarsaparilla, which has 17 per cent. of alcohol, another is a compound with 27 per cent. of alcohol, another is a bitters with 61 per cent. of alcohol, a good claret has 10 per cent. of alcohol, and great multitudes of people who are sworn prohibitionists are the consumers of these things. We are going to persist in this policy to screw up all the front doors on Sunday and open the back doors, we are going to nurse a race of hypocrites, to furnish an opportunity to the police to exact a bribe and to close the door to the manly and christian method of dealing with intemperance.

"Prohibition is an impudent fraud and an impudent failure."

A True Brain Food

must replace the feeling of lassitude and mental tiredness by clearness and strength of mind. Not that it goes directly to the brain, that were foolish. The true brain food must be carried by rich, red blood. If mental fatigue worries and alarms you, look not to the brain, but the stomach and assimilative organs. No remedy yet discovered, possesses the marvellous brain strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Ferrozone does not stimulate the brain into a fitful glow, but by improving digestion, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating assimilation, giving new strength to the heart, it sends a stream of red, vitalizing blood to the brain. Thus it is a true brain food. Ferrozone is sold by Ormond & Walsh.

FOR THE OYSTERS

Rifle Match Between Well Known Local Marksmen.

For some time past a sort of rivalry has existed between the Gold Lake Hunt Club and the Eagle Lake Hunt Club. Capt. George Fitzgerald, of the latter Club, has long been of the opinion that his Club could perforate the target every time, while the members of the rival Club could not hit a side of a barn.

Yesterday Capt. Tom Hutchinson, of the Gold Lake Club, who claims to be something of a shot himself, met Capt. Fitzgerald, and some hot shot was exchanged. It was finally agreed to have a match between the two Clubs—five members on each side. Mr. J. M. Brooks was appointed referee, and the match will take place some day next week, on Riverside park. Each man is to fire seven rounds.

It is understood that the referee will procure for himself a coat of bullet-proof armour, and no one will be allowed to come within a half a mile of the target on either side, while the match is on. The losers will pay for the oysters for the entire party at the Palace restaurant.

Why Catarrh is Fatal.

Because it pours a flood of poisons into the circulation that saps strength and digestion so materially as to render the body incapable of resisting disease, and consumption is the result. Catarrh is quickly cured by Catarrhozone, a fragrant germ destroying vapor that goes to the root of the disease. It touches and heals the inflamed mucous surfaces, clears the head and throat, and positively never fails to cure Bronchitis, Asthma or Catarrh. Nothing is so good for diseases of the respiratory organs as Catarrhozone. Large outfit, $1, small size 25c. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Indian River.

Mr. Jas. Hall has bought the stone house at Indian River Station for the sum of $2,050.

Mr. Jas. Welsh was down Xmas eve at Mr. Keefe's in Asphodel.

Mr. Jas Leahy and Mr. Michael Welsh visited Ashburnham on the same evening.

THE MEMORIES OF MAJUBA RECALLED

By the Annihilation of Colonel Firman's Force

HEAVY LOSS FOR DE WET

Fifty Boers Killed in an Attack on Firman —Lord Kitchener Reports the Capture and Surrender of More Boers

London, Dec. 31.—It is now possible to sum up the full extent of the blow which De Wet inflicted at Tweefontein on Christmas morning. The corrected lists of casualties show 61 killed, 84 wounded, and 240 prisoners. This means that Col. Firman's column was annihilated, as the four companies of Yeomanry of which it was composed would not in any event have comprised more than 400 men, and the probability is that each company was slightly below full strength. Newspapers are calling Tweefontein another Majuba, and certainly its results bring back very vividly the disaster to Sir George Colley's force in February, 1881. At Tweefontein, as at Majuba, the British were encamped upon a hill with one precipitous side, the other being a gentle slope, and in each case the Boer succeeded in climbing the side that was supposed to be impregnable.

At Majuba, however, there was panic but at Tweefontein our soldiers displayed deeds of gallantry, and the battle itself was little more than an incident in the long drawn-out campaign. De Wet's tactics are likewise compared with Wolfe's at Quebec, and the conclusion is arrived at that a position apparently of great natural strength may also be in itself a cause of disaster.

HEAVY LOSS FOR DE WET.

London, Dec. 31.—Lord Kitchener, under date of Johannesburg, Dec. 30, sends a weekly budget, showing that since Dec. 22, 35 Boers have been killed, 6 wounded 237 taken prisoners and 51 have surrendered. These, says the commander-in chief, do not include De Wet's losses in his attacks on Dartnell and Firman, when, it is reliably estimated, fifty were killed and fifty wounded. De Wet is still i nthe vicinity of Langberg.

Col. Spence and Col. Plummer came in contact Dec. 28 with Britz's commando and took 27 prisoners. General Bruce Hamilton came in touch with Grobelaar's commando near Marydale, Dec. 23. He killed four Boers and captured 27.

Speaker's Sore Throat.

Public singers and speakers know how useless and sickening are cough mixtures, sprays, lozenges, &c., for irritable or sore throat, and state that the most satisfactory remedy is Catarrhozone, the advantage of which is that it acts quickly and is convenient to use in public places. Catarrhozone relieves congestion, allays inflammation, and is a protection to the membrane. As a safe guard against colds and Catarrh it has no equal. Rev. Mr. McKay, Goderich, says "Catarrhozone is an excellent remedy for throat irritation arising from throat irritation." Physicians, ministers and singers recommend Catarrhozone, druggists sell it for $1. Small size, 25c. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

BITTER FEELING AMONG POWERS

Jealously and Distrust Animate Continental Peoples

TO BE NO ANTI-BRITISH LEAGUE

Danger, Says Vienna Correspondent of London Times is More Remote Than Ever

London, Dec. 30.—The Vienna correspondent of the Times says there are signs that people in the Austrian capital are coming round to a more reasonable view of the South African War. At the present moment, he says, there are scarcely two Continental peoples that love one another more than they love the British. At no time during the past quarter of a century has there been more jealousy and distrust among the European powers.

A peep behind the scenes, says the correspondent, would show Englishmen who fear an anti-British Continental League that such a danger is more remote than ever. Some powers would esteem themselves fortunate if they could induce Great Britain to be their ally.

Germany to Attack

London, Dec. 30.—The correspondent of the Central News at Berlin says he has been officially informed that Dr. Baltazzi, the German Charge d'Affaires, has not left Caracas; pourparlers are still proceeding. It is believed in Berlin that an ultimatum to Venezuela will be issued within the next three days. If a satisfactory reply is not received an attack by the Germans will follow immediately.

A despatch to the Times from Caracas dated yesterday, says Venezuela has asked the German Government to discharge Herr Knoop, manager of the German Krupp Railway, on the ground that he is persona non grata.

St. James' Gazette Hopes That the U.S. Will Not Allow South American States to Benefit

London, Dec. 31.—Lord Kitchener, under date of Johannesburg, Dec. 30, sends a weekly budget showing that since Dec. 23, thirty-five Boers have been killed, five wounded, 237 taken prisoners and 51 have surrendered. These, says the Commander-in-Chief do not include De Wet's losses in his attacks on Dartnell and Firman when, it is reliably estimated fifty were killed and fifty wounded.

De Wet is still in the vicinity of Langberg. Colonel Spence and Colonel Plummer came in contact, December 28, with Britz's commando, and took 27 prisoners. General Bruce Hamilton came in touch with Grobelaar's commando near Marydale, Dec. 23. He killed four Boers and captured twenty-seven.

TELESCOPIC SIGHTS FOR RIFLES.

London, Dec. 31. —In view of the great importance of shooting at long ranges, the Council of the National Rifle Association have decided to institute a competition for army rifles with telescopic sights at the next Bisley meeting. The conditions describe the weapon as "the 303 Service rifle, from which the existing aperture and dial long-range sights may be removed if desired; the fittings remaining upon the rifle when the telescope is removed must be simple, and such as not to interfere with the individual or the rifle." The attachment must be arranged primarily for firing in the prone position; must avoid interference with the free working of the breech action; and must be strong, compact and not easily liable to damage; at the same time admitting of the telescope being easily and rapidly attached and detached. In respect to the sight, 9 in. must be the extreme length of the telescope, the weight (including all elevating gear), not more than one pound, and the minimum field of view six degrees. The arrangement for obtaining elevation must be simple, and provide for all distances up to 2,000 yards (to be taken as equivalent to eleven degrees elevation); and the sight must be conveniently carried when detached from the rifle. An arrangement for obtaining lateral adjustment may be provided, but must be simple; and artificial rests provided at the firing point may be used. The target will be of dull color, having on it figures or objects not clearly distinguishable by the naked eye. Every proposed telescope sight and the rifle with which it is to be used, must be submitted for approval.

London, Dec. 31.— The question of Methodist re-union, which was referred to on several occasions at the recent Ecumenical Conference in most hopeful terms, continues to engage considerable attention. At a recent meeting in Manchester the subject of "Organic Methodist Union" was discussed by a number of ministers representing various branches of Methodism. A feeling is current that a first step would be the fusion of the parent Church —Wesleyan Methodists—with the Methodist New Connexion and the Bible Christians, making one Church, while the Primitive Methodists and the Free Methodists would come together as a "United Church" on a more democratic basis. By the time the next Ecumenical Conference meets in 1911 the whole question will doubtless be ripe for settlement.

SAMOS A NEW MONTE CARLO?

London, Dec. 30.—A letter from Constantinople to the Times says a Belgian syndicate, in view of the impending suppression of the Belgian gambling houses, has made a tempting offer to the Chamber of Samos, on condition that it be allowed to establish a gambling house on the island.

The majority of the members of the Chamber have been won over, but, says the correspondent, it remains to be seen whether the Sultan consents.

STARVED TO DEATH.

London, Dec. 30.—The "Evening News this afternoon prints the following despatch from Belfast: "A well-known Scottish artist, John Dalrymple, died of starvation here on Christmas night. His body was found in miserably squalid surroundings. Dalrymple exhibited at the Royal Academy, and took three first prizes for designs at the Paris Exhibition.

WANT JAPAN TO DEFY RUSSIA.

London, Dec. 30.—A despatch from Tokio to the Times says the National Unionists, at a meeting, unanimously adopted a manifesto declaring that Russia's continued occupation of Manchuria was incompatible with the re-establishment of tranquility in the Orient, and announcing the conviction that the time was ripe for insisting on Russia's complete evacuation.

This policy, the meeting declared would be supported by the Japanese nation.

CONDITIONS IN PRETORIA.

Cape Town, Jan. 1.—As an indication of the more normal conditions prevailing in Pretoria, it is officially announced that all restrictions on transactions in stocks and shares, heretofore prohibited, will be removed to-day. The money order business has also been resumed.

NO MORE FREE RIDES.

New York, Jan. 1.—The new anti-pass agreement of the railroads will go into effect to-day and much interest is manifested in its workings. The parties to the agreement including practically all of the important systems of the country, have bound themselves not to exchange passes among the railroad officials, a custom which has been in vogue almost since the beginning of railroads. According to rumor the movement is to extend even further, and will affect the politicians to whom the roads have heretofore been in the habit of extending the favor of free transportation in order to prevent hostile legislation. A variety of opinion exists as to the degree of success with which the new rule will meet.

BELL COMPANY RAISES RATES.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 1.—The Bell Telephone Company to-day increased its rates throughout Michigan. In some towns the advance amounts to 50 per cent. The increase has aroused much dissatisfaction, and talk of the organization of opposition lines is heard.

SETH LOW ASSUMES OFFICE.

New York, Jan. 1.—Seth Low and the other new officials of Greater New York chosen at the November election assume office to-day. Throughout the day the new Mayor will be kept busy receiving the congratulations of friends and admirers.

ADVANCE IN WAGES.

Moncton, N. B., Jan. 1.—The advance in the wages of mechanics and other workmen employed on the intercolonial Railway here and along the line goes into effect to-day. The increase amounts to $30,000 and affects 1,000 men.

ENTERTAINS FOUR MOTHERS-IN LAW.

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 1.—Frank Ferguson, fifty years old, and a well known farmer living east of the city, will to-day enjoy the unique and remarkable experience of entertaining four mothers-in-law. Mr. Ferguson's first and second wives died, his third wife was divorced, and he is now living happily with his fourth wife. He is on friendly terms with the mothers of all his wives, and decided to invite all of them to his New Year's dinner.

A Present of $125,000

Sir William Macdonald, the Montreal capitalist, has placed $125,000 at the disposal of the Ontario Government to be used in the erection of buildings on the grounds of the Agricultural College in Guelph. The buildings are to be used in giving instruction to teachers in the elements of plant life and agriculture, and in the establishment of a course domestic science for women, especially as related to agricultural pursuits. The gift for buildings of this class from Sir William Macdonald opportunely follows the handsome gift for a library and museum made a little over a year ago by the late W. E. H. Massey.

CANADIANS DID GOOD WORK, CAPTAIN SLAIN

Patrol Routs Boer Commando, Killing Six and Capturing Fifty of the Enemy

BRILLIANT FIGHTING IN TWO ENGAGEMENTS

British Repeatedly Charge Through Enemy, Inflicting Loss—The Boer Heavy Losses

Stratford, Dec. 31.—Mr. George Rennie, of the Inland Revenue here, received an official telegram announcing the death in South Africa, December 20, of Capt. H. Elliot. Capt. Elliot with a patrol attacked a Boer commando at Gatberg Nek, driving them in disorder. Six Boers were killed and fifty captured. The telegram says,—

"I deeply regret to report that Capt. Elliot, who led the attack, was killed."

The young officer was a son of Mr. Henry Elliot, formerly of Windsor, Ont., and well known throughout Western Ontario, and a nephew of Mrs. George Rennie, of this city.

Pretoria, Dec. 31.—Although the recent severe fighting has resulted in considerable losses to the British, the heaviest being the capture of Col. Firman's forces at Zeefontein, reliable information shows that the Boers lost approximately 250 killed and wounded, principally in the fights with Gen. Dartnell and Col. Damant. In the Spence fight the mounted infantry charged through the Boers. The entire Boers charged through them, and, eventually a greater number of the British again went through the burghers and effected their escape. Here the Boers lost about seventy men killed. The details of Gen. Dartnell's fight show able conduct on the part of the leader, and fine fighting qualities on the part of his men. General Dartnell had moved from Bethlehem while Gen. De Wet was retreating before Gen. Elliott's combinations moving east. Gen. Dartnell failed to locate the Boers, and was returning to Bethlehem after three days' march without transport when he received information that Gen. De Wet had concentrated his force at Langberg. Gen. Dartnell moved with a strengthened advance guard, and with his scouts widely spread out in front. These came in touch with the Boers and retired in a gallop, but the advance guard of the Second Imperial Light Horse lay down and waited. Then Gen. De Wet's force, who charged out from ambush at a signal from a gun, were met with a withering fire from Gen. Dartnell's men, and were repulsed with heavy loss. It was a case of a clever counter ambush. General De Wet then tried the rear guard, but was again repulsed by the First Imperial Light Horse coming up. The Boers then retired to Langberg. Gen. Dartnell, being without food, proceeded to Bethlehem. This fight showed the advantage of having no transport. Although attacked by superior numbers, the Imperial Light Horse Brigade beat the Boers off and effected the British retirement to their base. It is known that the Boers lost a hundred killed and wounded in this action. Had Gen. Campbell's and Gen. Dartnell's columns been strong enough they would have attacked Gen. De Wet's laager at Langberg. Subsequent to this fight, Gen. De Wet made a sudden sweep of fifty miles and came down on Col. Firman's force, which was protecting the head of the blockhouse line being constructed from Harrismith to Bethlehem. This time he was successful. With a superior force he rushed Col. Firman's camp, which fell into his hands.

London, Dec. 30.—A despatch to the War Office from Lord Kitchener, says the prisoners who were taken at Zeefontein, and afterward released by General De Wet, numbered six officers and 240 men.

Ottawa, Dec. 30.— An excellent appointment to the position of paymaster in the Canadian Mounted Rifles is that of Mr. R. H. Mour, of the Department of Customs, who was out with Strathcona's Horse as orderly room clerk for Col. Steele.

The enemy is now between the columns of Col. Festing and Major Heneker. The enemy's losses were severe. The British casualties were slight.

Fifty Men From Lumber Camps Where the Disease Prevails at Large.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 30.—The State Board of Health was to-day advised that some of the fifty men who were employed in Hote and St. Anne's lumber camps, Menominee county, where small-pox prevailed, were turned loose by the breaking up of the camps early last week, and are scattered all over the Upper Peninsula. Secretary Baker has advised local health officers throughout the section of the situation. Next Monday the board will send circulars and literature bearing on the treating and restriction of the disease to each of the 1,200 lumber camps in the state.

Religious Riot

London, Dec. 30.—The Island of Lewis (northernmost and largest island of the outer Hebrides)has been the scene of serious religious riots, arising from the union of the Free and United Churches of Scotland. The islanders refused to countenance the alliance, and when the minister at Ness joined the United Church they locked him out of his church. A strong force of police was sent over from the mainland to open the doors, whereupon the islanders congregated, and throwing volleys of stones at the constables, drove them inside the building and bombarded them with rocks until they capitulated and agreed to leave the island. Every member of the police force was more or less seriously wounded.

YET ANOTHER

One would have thought that there were societies enough and to spare in this society-ridden town, but it seems otherwise. The case of the unfortunate girl in the Police Court on Monday, which developed the fact that her own sex refused to look after her and allowed her to go to gaol, is a sad one. It seems that the poor and destitute are intended by God to eat cold victuals and wear old clothes, and if they happen to be afflicted with epilepsy, as this girl is, so much the worse for them in the eyes of their good sisters. Fortunately, the Children's Shelter—that refuge for the Protestant destitute of all ages and kinds—responded to the appeal of the Chief of Police, and took her in for a few days, otherwise she would have had the cell-benches for a bed, and iron bars for her protectors. The police did all they could do. The gaoler also notified the public that her term as a vagrant was expiring. The Y. W.C.A. were told of it (but it was not their business to take her in, even for an hour), and the net result is that she is in gaol again for one month, to let the King's Daughters try their hand. We have play-schools, and lecture rooms and tea rooms and Bible classes, etc., etc., but still the cry of the forlorn and destitute remains unheard. Such as they must forego fresh air, the blue skies and freedom, if they would not starve to death, for lack of bread. How long is this abomination of desolation to last? Christ said that "the poor you have always with you," but he evidently was not addressing the organizations which refuse to have them and yet call themselves Christian.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

OTTAWA Citizen:—W. F. Maclean, M. P. in his address to the electors of Toronto:

I believe in public ownership of great public franchises; and, having stated my position [illegible] on that principle, I believe that an endorsement of it by an intelligent community like Toronto will do more to make public men and political parties respect it than anything else.

Municipal ownership of public franchises is attracting much attention, not only in Great Britain, where the [illegible] is being actively pushed, [illegible] throughout Canada and [illegible] pronouncement by the people in a city like Toronto will be a lesson to political [illegible] as it shows the ratepayers who [illegible] upon the question of municipal ownership of a telephone system, and there is no reason to doubt that the pronouncement will be overwhelmingly in the affirmative.

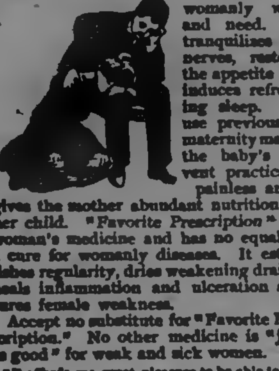
As an indication of the general attention which is being directed to the question of municipal ownership the Stratford Herald prints the facts brought out in a debate on the subject which was held recently in Woodstock indicating the success which has attended the establishment of electric lighting plants in a number of places in the western States. The following prices are for arc lights in municipalities that have their own plants: Galesburg, Ill., [illegible]; Galena, Ill., [illegible]; Austin, Minn., [illegible]; Fremont, Neb., [illegible]; [illegible], [illegible]; Mount Pleasant, [illegible]. These places got light from private companies at the following prices: Waukegan, [illegible]; Jefferson City, [illegible]; Chicopee, [illegible]. Pipestone, Minn., pays [illegible] for a moonlight schedule, and the mayor of the town says: "Never let the franchise for lighting your city. Better bond the city and let the city own the plant. This is in my opinion the only satisfactory way."

MUNICIPAL INSURANCE

BOBCAYGEON Independent,—Well, This great journal once again comes forward as the advocate of socialism. And this is the reason:—the two most notable places in Canada, Ottawa and Bobcaygeon have both within the last few days been devastated with fire. One fourth of the frontage of the main street of the village is now a blackened mass of ruins, with half burned beams and timber projecting from the mass. The fire in Ottawa covered a greater surface, more people were rendered homeless, and a larger amount of property was destroyed, but the intensity of the evil was experienced equally in both places by those who suffered. The proportionate amount of insurance in both places was small, and we come to the socialism alluded to by this journal. The leaving of insurance to individual action where no other means than insurance in companies is possible, produce very poor results. The companies have to employ canvassers, and agents, and a heavy staff of officers, and the shareholders are satisfied only with a big dividend on the money they have expended. The consequence is that fire insurance is unnecessarily expensive and but little used. In the Ottawa fire not more than one-tenth of the property destroyed was insured. A very slight study of these facts leads to but one conclusion, viz. that insurance against fire should be a part of the duty of the municipality. It would be very easy, very safe, and very cheap. Should a ratepayer's residence be destroyed by fire the municipality would have the loss enquired into and the value of the property destroyed ascertained, and would pay the owner of the property two thirds of its value,—the payment to be made out of the municipal treasury. This would be all that is required in separate small fires, but in such a case as that of Ottawa the payment should be partly made out of the provincial treasury. By this plan every house would be insured; every person present at a fire would exert themselves to the utmost for they would be the insurers; and every ratepayer would be a detective in regard to arson or incendiarism. The moral effect would be excellent; the cost of insuring would be reduced to the lowest possible point; and every bit of property in the province would be insured. What possible objection can be raised to the principle of municipal fire insurance? and that is the part of socialism which this journal advocates.

Sympathy

Is a good thing for the young husband to give the young wife. But sympathy will not abate one jot of her nervousness or lift her to that plane of sound health where alone the wife and mother can find happiness.



Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription meets every womanly want and need. It tranquilizes the nerves, restores the appetite and induces refreshing sleep. Its use previous to maternity makes the baby's advent practically painless and gives the mother abundant nutrition for her child. "Favorite Prescription" is a woman's medicine and has no equal as a cure for womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Accept no substitute for "Favorite Prescription." No other medicine is "just as good" for weak and sick women.

"It affords me great pleasure to be able to say a few words in regard to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mrs. Flora Arn, of Dallas, Jackson Co., Mo. "I was tempted to try these medicines after seeing the effect upon my mother. At an early age of married life I was greatly bothered with painful periods, also a troublesome drain which rendered me weak and unfit for work of any kind. I became so thin there was nothing left of me but skin and bone. My husband became alarmed and got me a bottle of 'Favorite Prescription.' After he saw the wonderful effects of that one he got two more, and after I used those up there was no more pain, and I began to gain in flesh very rapidly."

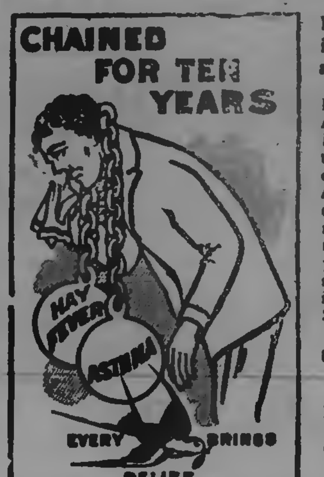
Asthma Cure Free

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent Cure in All Cases,

Sent ABSOLUTELY FREE on receipt of postal. Write your name and address plainly.



There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER
Rabbi of the Cong. Bnai Israel.
NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:

Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

AVON SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows of 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,

O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

NEW YEAR'S SONG.

Come, new year,
And strew pale roses for thy sister's bier!
Loves are turned cold that at her birth leaped high.
When thou art old, thou, too, forget, shall lie,
With all thy golden glories faded, sere.
Come, new year!

Sleep, dead year!
For dear delights are flown, and days are drear,
For oh, for oh, bleak lie the fields and bare;
Woe is me—woe—winter is everywhere;
With eyes that see not, ears that never hear.
Sleep, dead year!

Come, new year!
But silent! Let fall no foolish tear
For cankering care, or grief, or joy gone by,
Since all must yield to age and change, and die,
With past joys cherished, perished, days once dear,
Sleep, dead year!

Sleep, dead year!
Soon on spring's breast your violets shall peer,
Burst from earth's casket for thy pleasuring,
Purple and gold, her tender treasuring.
Hark! the first robin, singing loud and clear!
Come, new year!

THE RED FIFER.

"HEY, there, little fifer, what are you doing?" called out Sergt. La Ramee who was on his way to the neighboring town in quest of a port fricasse for the Colonel's New Year's supper.

"I will tell you how it is, Monsieur Sergeant," replied the little fifer; "his Majesty the King being in pressing need of money, and wishing to present a new chateau as a New Year's gift to a relative, it has been decided by the court that the regiment, musicians, and soldiers shall not be paid this month. So, as my grandmother is poor and I haven't a cent in my pocket to buy her a New Year's turkey, I have come out here by the wall to break the ice in the trenches and see if I can't fish out a few frogs."

"Don't count on that," said La Ramee; "frogs sleep in winter."

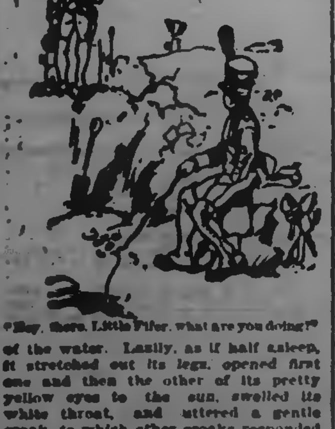
"I know that, but the sky is so blue and warm I thought perhaps they might wake up."

The sergeant went on his way, and the little fifer courageously hacked away at the ice.

This fifer, who loved his grandmother so much, was indeed as pretty a fellow as one would wish to see. Not much higher than a man's knee, and dressed in red, as were all of his regiment, he played his fife so gracefully as he marked the time for the whiskered halberdiers behind him that, on their entry into towns, the ladies at the windows forgot to look at the drum major.

The fifer understood frog fishing as well as he did piping war tunes. When the ice was cut out and a little round pool of clear water appeared, he soon improvised a line and rod of a piece of string he had with him and a reed which he cut near by. But bait was lacking. Ordinarily this would not have disturbed our fisherman, as he would have used a wild poppy for the purpose; frogs are so greedy that anything red attracts them. But poppies do not flourish under the snow, and, hunt as he might, nothing red could be found.

He was about to give up in despair and go away when, just at that moment, a great frog poked its head out of the water. Lazily, as if half asleep, it stretched out its legs, opened first one and then the other of its pretty yellow eyes to the sun, swelled its white throat, and uttered a gentle croak, to which other croaks responded from all along the sides of the ditch.



"Hey, there, Little Fifer, what are you doing?"

"That must be the mother of the other frogs," thought the little fifer, who had never before seen such a large one. "What a chance, and what a pity to let it escape!"

All at once a sudden idea struck him.

"What if I were to take one of my suspender straps! It is the regulation scarlet, and the frogs will surely bite at it."

No sooner said than done. The red strap danced merrily on the clear, shining water, just in front of the frog's nose. It seized it, the fisherman jerked, the line broke, and the frog darted under the water, carrying the cloth with it.

The frog reappeared, bit again, the line broke, and the second half went to join the first.

"Bah!" said the fisherman. "What harm would there be in cutting a little piece out of my waistband? No one will ever want to look under my jacket."

Taking his knife, he cut out a little piece, which the frog, alas! carried away as before, and then another one, and another one.

Sergt. La Ramee, who was on his way back with his provisions, found the unlucky little fifer sitting down and crying bitterly.

"What! A soldier crying? And why?"

For answer the little fifer stood up.

"This is a bad business," said La Ramee, after looking for a long time at the cut trousers. "Injury to clothing or equipments furnished by the Government is a matter to be tried by a court-martial."

Saying this, he went away, twisting his long mustache.

The little fifer wept all the more bitterly. He already saw himself arrested, and then taken between two gendarmes before his judges. In vain he tried to move them, saying: "It was not for myself; it was to get a dish of frogs for grandmother, who is old and poor, and who had nothing for her New Year's dinner." The military code was inflexible. He was disgraced, his fife and little sword were broken, and they led him out on a plain where, two months before, he had marched at the head of his regiment past a rhot sonscript.

Then, thinking of his grandmother, out of her mind with cold and sorrow, he decided it would be better to die right away, so he let himself slip down on the frozen snow toward the black hole in which the stars were already shining.

But in what a wonderful place the little fifer suddenly found himself. As far as he could see there were great shining arches, through which the soft light filtered, and long plants, covered with sparkling crystals, rising from below like delicate columns. These, mingling with the silvery mosses on the shores, resembled the most magnificent architecture.

On the right, on the left, in these little grottos, and in the crevices made by roots and loose earth, slept frogs of every species and in numberless quantities. He filled immense baskets with them to take to his grandmother. The court-martial no longer frightened him. He only vaguely remembered the damage done to his breeches. Only one thing astonished him—that was that he was so warm in the water under the ice. Then he felt very happy, and understood that he was going to sleep among the frogs.

He slept on and on for a long time. At last a voice wakened him; it was his grandmother's.

"Sh!" said she, "he is opening his eyes. Oh! the bad boy, to make so much trouble."

The little fifer was again seized with fear when he saw at the foot of his bed the shaggy eyebrows and long mustache of La Ramee.

"The trousers! The court-martial! Don't let them carry me off!" and he clung in despair to his grandmother's jacket.

But she measured him; the good sergeant had taken him out of the water, half frozen and trembling with fever; then he had told the Colonel of the affair, and he had sent a man on horseback with a New Year's supper for his grandmother and a pair of new trousers.

The supper was sputtering on the stove, and the trousers were hanging on the wall. — Translated from the French of Paul Arene by H. Tultchell.

NEW YEAR MASQUERADES.

Like Many Other Customs They are Reminders of Paganism.

The custom of masquerading at New Year dates back to pagan times, long before the commencement of the Christian era. The practice embraced two principles, homage and indulgence, and also included the making of friendly calls and the presentation of gifts, and in spite of all opposition this form of celebrating New Year has, with some modifications, continued to the present day.

In the fifth century the church began an energetic crusade against this "pagan practice." St. Maximus, of Turin, raised his voice against "the superstitious folly on the 1st of January, when Christians put on habits of intemperance and seek to forestall their friends with early calls in the morning, bringing them pretty presents as New Year gifts, in the hope of receiving something in return more valuable." St. Peter Chrysologus, Bishop of Ravenna, also denounced the custom, and to the excuse offered that it was only sport, not sacrilegious, replied: "No one can with safety play with the serpent. Who can amuse himself with impiety or joke with sacrilege? Men dress themselves up like women, and they put on their robes. They transform themselves into beasts and monsters. A man employs in this disguise all his ambition, as if he were sorry he were a man."

In the year 566, during the reign of King Caribert, of Paris, the Council of Tours recommended the abolition of all pagan superstitions in the land and among the practices so denounced was "that of men disguising themselves as deer and other animals, and running about the country in various grotesque and committing all sorts of follies." But in spite of all the anathemas hurled against the custom, the Christians could not turn away from the ancient extravagances that marked the calends of January.—Philadelphia Times.

New Year Superstitions.

The following superstitions in connection with New Year's are still firmly believed in various parts of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales:

On New Year's morning go to a well or fountain and leave an apple and a nosegay, and the water will keep fresh and be more wholesome all the year.

It is bad luck to lend money on New Year's Day.

Put money away on New Year's Day
And all the year you will have money to pay.

Before locking the door for the night on New Year's eve place a gold coin near it, and let it remain there until the church bells ring the next morning, and you will have plenty of money all that year.

If you wash clothes on New Year's Day one of the family will be washed out of existence before the year is out.

If a dark complexioned man crosses your threshold first on New Year's Day you will be prosperous; if a blond, unlucky, and if a red-headed man, dire disaster will surely follow.

So strong is the belief in this last adage in some places that dark complexioned men are paid a small gratuity to call early and walk the first floor of the house, entering by the back door and leaving by the front.

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY
OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.
Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.
F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

The Company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of [illegible] shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offered for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is of 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.50 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 400 bbl. white oil gusher) Hermosa White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page 252).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in 1876, and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from 300 to 700 feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders $12,000,000, and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North American and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing. These light grades of oil are worth to-day $1.25 to $4.50 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. 2000 acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North American and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reserve, the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a 500 barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Ottawa, Dec. 27.—The Citizen says: The United States proposes to return to China $18,000,000 overpaid on the indemnity exacted for damage done to property of American subjects. What is the matter with the United States returning the balance due to Great Britain on the Alabama claims? At a conservative computation the United States still has in its possession about $15,000,000 of the amount paid over by Great Britain for the famous "Alabama claims" which has never been claimed.

The Alabama claims arose out of the damage done by a Confederate privateer of that name which was built in the Mersey in 1862 for the Confederate government. The United States lodged a protest against the vessel being handed over and the British government telegraphed to prevent her leaving the harbor; but on the next day the vessel slipped away, was armed out in the ocean and during two years following she inflicted heavy loss on the Federal merchant marine. On June 19, 1864, she accepted the challenge of the Federal cruiser Kearsage and went out to meet her off Cherbourg, France. One of the first shells from the Alabama lodged in the stern part of the Kearsage and, if it had burst, would have disabled that vessel and left her at the mercy of the Confederate, but the fortune of war was against the plucky Confederate, and the Kearsage, which was armored with iron cable chains, succeeded in destroying the Alabama.

After the war the United States made an enormous claim for damages against Great Britain for the depredations committed by the Alabama on its merchant marine—about $45,000,000. In September, 1871, a commission met to adjudicate upon the claims. It consisted of representatives of Italy, Switzerland, Brazil, United States and England. In 1872 this commission awarded the United States £3,229,166, which Great Britain paid over in September, 1873. By December, 1876 the United States had liquidated all claims put forward, and there still remained a balance on hand of some $8,000,000. In March, 1885, this amounted, with interest, to $9,500,000, and will now amount to over $15,000,000 at 4 per cent.

The Chinese claims and the Alabama claims appear to afford parallel cases. While the United States is in a generous mood it might as well pay back both amounts.

PROSPECTS OF PEACE.

London, Dec. 28.—There has been a revival of peace rumors during the past week, in spite of the Zeefontein disaster. It is said that informal negotiations are actually proceeding between Lord Kitchener and the Boer leaders, General Louis Botha, is said to have received assurances that the farms devastated during the war will be reconstructed by the British and that the banished Boer leaders will be allowed to return to their homes. Practically the only question of importance still at issue is the [illegible] extent of local self-government which shall be allowed the [illegible] Transvaal and Orange [illegible]. Even that, [illegible] motion, does not [illegible] obstacles.

Permane[illegible] of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggrivated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds, Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

A LETTER FROM HALIFAX.

From a Peterborough Boy who says all the Boys are well and eager to Sail.

A gentleman in town received a letter yesterday from one of the Peterborough boys now in Halifax in which the writer states that the boys are all well and in excellent spirits. The weather in Halifax is very different from what they are accustomed to in this province, being very broken. Heavy falls of snow will disappear in a few hours, and as the soil is of a peculiar mixture of sand and clay loam the mud is terrible. The writer says they have to walk through mud and water half way to their knees, which is very unpleasant. The boys are drilling hard and are practising rifle shooting, but are enjoying it just the same. The officers from the Colonel down to the junior officer in the regiment are a fine lot of men and are well liked by those under them. Discipline is very strict but not overbearing as in some cases two years ago.

The many friends of the boys in town will be pleased to know that the boys are all well and are eagerly waiting for the day to sail.

Congratulations, Mayor Denne

The Times extends its congratulations to Mayor Denne on his re-election for a second term, to the office of Chief Magistrate of Peterborough. There is a sort of unwritten rule that a second term should be given a man who performs the duties of the office faithfully and well. That Mayor Denne has done this, there is no doubt, for his re-election by acclamation on Monday proves it. While there are many evils existing that The Times would like to see removed, it must be remembered that the Mayor is simply chairman of the Council, and as such, has probably less to do with the real work of that body than any member of it.

A PRESENTATION.

Mr. George Fitzgerald, of Town Remembered by his Employees.

The employees of Mr. George Fitzgerald's carriage factory, yesterday presented him with a beautiful easy chair together with an address, as a slight recognition of the high esteem and regard in which he is held by them. The address was read by Mr. Thos. Lang, and the presentation was made by Mr. John Gibbs, sr. The address was as follows:

Dear Mr. Fitzgerald;

We, your employees, feel that we cannot let this opportunity pass without showing our appreciation of your many kindnesses to us. We would ask you to accept this small gift from us, combined with our best wishes towards you, including a happy and prosperous New Year.

JOHN GIBBS, Sr., G. R. McCREA, THOS. LANG, ROBT. MEIN, JOHN GIBBS, Jr., P. HEFFERNAN, GEO. DETCHER, ALEX. GIBBS, HERBERT FALLIS.

Mr. Fitzgerald was completely taken by surprise, and, in a few appropriate words, thanked his employees for their beautiful present, which he would ever cherish as a memento of the pleasant relationship existing between himself and his staff.

CARD TO THE ELECTORS

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I have received the honour of a nomination as a candidate for alderman for the good town of Peterborough. In accepting this candidature, I would respectfully solicit your votes and influence to secure my return. If elected to so responsible a position, I promise to give faithful service, and to honestly, and with due regard to economy so discharge my duties as to advance the material interests and general wellbeing of the best town in Canada. All my material and personal interests are in the town of Peterborough, and as a representative on its council board it will be my duty as well as pleasure to take such a course as will promote its growth and importance, for in so doing I shall benefit both myself and my esteemed fellow citizens. I do not approve of personal canvassing; if my merits as a candidate do not command themselves to the electors, no undue efforts on my part shall influence their good judgment. Therefore I content myself with again respectfully soliciting by this means your votes and influence. I have the honour to remain,

Very respectfully yours,
J. J. TURNER, Sr.

THE TIMES LETTER-BOX

Letters from the People on Interesting and Timely Topics.

A Little Receipt for Getting Rich.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As everybody reads The Times and in order to do the greatest good to the greatest number, I give your readers the following receipt, which if they follow, will make them millionaires in one month:

"Put by a cent on New Year's Day, and double it for one month."

On the First of February you will have over $8,000,000.

MUNDY.

Municipal Crookedness.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I am sorry The Times did not this year (as it did in years gone by) wake up the electors to a sense of their duty in regard to municipal matters. I am fairly disgusted with the condition of things in the street department.

As an instance, I may explain that for two years previous to 1901 the broken stone used by the town cost the ratepayers about $2.50 per cord. The stone crusher was worked by the corporation, by day labor, under the supervision of the Town Engineer.

In addition to this I am told there was extras allowed, in the way of alleged repairs to the crusher, amounting to several hundreds of dollars.

Last spring, Ald. Best, who had become disgusted with the business, gave instructions that the stone-breaking should be done by contract hereafter. The result was that the cost was reduced from $2.50 to $1.50 a cord.

Even this price might have been lowered, had the Engineer asked for tenders for the work. This he did not do, but let the job privately.

I am also informed that there were no breakages in 1901. What can the ratepayers think of such work? Is it any wonder that our taxes are high?

Let us put men into the Council who will abolish the office of Town Engineer, and substitute therefor a practical roadmaker, who will put an end to this frightful waste.

AN ELECTOR.

Central Charity Board.

The regular monthly meeting of the Central Charity Board was held in the Town Clerk's office on Monday night. Those present were: Rev. Father Casey and Messrs. Innes, McBain, Fowler, Yelland, Aldridge, Rush, Bullen, Miller and Kemp.

A statement was read by Mr. McBain, showing the amount of wood that had been purchased—125 cords at $3 per cord—to be piled in the town yard.

The following accounts were passed and ordered to be paid:

Pain in the Back.

makes life miserable. Can it be cured? Yes, in one night. Polson's Nerviline gives a complete knockout to pain in the back, for it penetrates through the tissues, takes out the soreness and pain, invigorates tired muscles, and makes you feel like a new man. Nerviline cures quickly because it is stronger, more penetrating, more highly pain-subduing than any other remedy. Don't suffer another minute, get Nerviline quick, and rub it in, for sure as you were born it will cure you. 25c.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL

The Great Family Journal Keeps Tab on Events.

Few of us realise what a varied lot is ours during a full year of unceasing activity until, perchance, we take care to keep track and sum up at some convenient time. The result is always interesting, often amazing, and now and then a subject of regret. Like the totals of the small coins in the cash drawer, the array surprises us.

The uninterrupted joys of being responsible for over 200 readable and instructive issues per annum of the g. f. j., is a picture not easily copied or transferred. Scattered through the 365 pages of the diary we glean the following interesting summaries:

A Remarkable Offer.

Here is the best offer ever made in this community. By a very excellent arrangement made with the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal we are enabled to offer the PETERBORO WEEKLY TIMES and that great Family Paper, the Family Herald and Weekly Star, for one year for the small sum of $1.80 and include to each subscriber three beautiful premium pictures, of which the following is a brief description:

KING EDWARD VII.—True to life, a beautiful portrait, size 18x24 inches, on beautiful heavy white satin finished paper for framing. This portrait has been taken since his accession to the throne, and is the very latest and best obtainable. It cannot be had except through the FAMILY HERALD AND WEEKLY STAR, each picture bears the King's autograph. This picture has the great merit of being the first taken after the King's accession, and has therefore an historical value that no other picture can possess.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.—An exquisitely beautiful picture of the remarkably beautiful and good Queen Alexandra, also taken since the King's accession to the throne. It is the same size as that of the King, the two forming a handsome pair of pictures that alone would sell for many times the subscription price of paper and pictures.

No portrait of the King and Consort taken at the second or succeeding sittings can have one fraction of the value of the first. These go down to history.

THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.—The Renowned Gainsborough Picture. Sold at auction sale in London twenty-five years ago for $50,000, stolen by clever thieves, hidden for over twenty-four years and delivered to its owner on payment of $25,000 reward and since sold to Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan for $75,000.

This, in brief, is the history of one of the premium pictures, which, by a clever stroke of enterprise, the publishers of the Family Herald have secured for their subscribers. The picture is 22 x 28 in ten colours, and is reproduced line for line, colour for colour with the original. Copies of the reproduction are now sold in New York City, Montreal and Toronto for $12 each, and this is the picture Family Herald subscribers are going to get absolutely free together with the pictures of the King and Queen.

Is that not big value? Call at THE TIMES Office and see samples of these beautiful pictures.

You want THE TIMES for the local news, and you want that great paper the Family Herald for its 24 pages of general news and family reading. Its agricultural pages alone are worth many times the subscription price.

PEACE DELEGATES ARE MURDERED BY BOERS

British Officers Sent by Request to Arrange Surrender Shot Dead

THE NEW YEAR SITUATION

Country Around Pretoria Resuming Business Prosperity

Pretoria, Jan. 2.—Information has been received here to the effect that two officers of the British Intelligence Department, who were sent to a point near Warm Baths to parley with a party of the enemy who desired to surrender, were instantly shot dead by the Boers. It was evidently a premeditated act of treachery, for the Boers were concealed in the bush veldt.

IMPROVED SITUATION

Pretoria, Jan. 2.—In spite of recent reverses, the New Year finds the situation much brighter from a British point of view than it was a year ago. Last year about this time the Boers were maintaining a vigorous bombardment of Kaalfontein, in the vicinity of Pretoria. Now the whole district is quiet and business has been resumed. Large property sales are of daily occurrence, and land seven miles from Johannesburg is selling at £40 an acre.

BOERS IN SWAZILAND.

London, Jan. 2.—Despatches to the London Standard say that a detachment of 200 Boers recently crossed the Swaziland border, and attacked Ikanina, the residence of the Queen of the Swazis. The natives, it is said, made a very half-hearted resistance, and many of them were killed and wounded in the fighting.

BOER LOSSES LAST YEAR.

London, Jan. 2.—The aggregate losses among the Boers during the past year, as indicated by official despatches, is 21,000. Undoubtedly the Boer ranks have been reinforced by large bodies of rebels from Cape Colony, as well as by drafts of European soldiers of fortune who have reached the country in some mysterious way.

CAPE COLONY PROTECTED.

Norval's Pont, Cape Colony, Jan. 2.—The British troops have now completed the new line of blockhouses from Beaufort West DeArr Junction. The houses are situated less than a mile apart. They are in telephone communication with each other and connected by barb wire fences. The East Surrey Regiment is garrisoning the line.

WHY GERMANY HESITATES

HOW WOULD AMERICANS LOOK ON WAR WITH VENEZUELA?

Prolonged Resistance Might Stir Up Feeling in This Country—Risk of a Loss of Prestige—If Castro Doesn't Yield Germany Will Seize Venezuelan Ports.

London, Jan. 3.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily News says that if President Castro does not give way at the eleventh hour an ultimatum will be sent to him and this will be followed by the blockade and perhaps the occupation of La Guayra and Porto Cabello. The correspondent describes the German Government's anxiety to avoid a conflict, and its especial care to secure at least the conditional consent of the Washington Government to its proposed course.

Its anxiety is ascribed to the possibility of prolonged resistance by Venezuela, which might act on public opinion in the United States, causing it to consider Germany's action an encroachment on the Monroe Doctrine. This would place Germany in an awkward position and involve the risk of loss of prestige, as she would have to give in on appeal for the mediation of the United States, thus stirring up the Chauvinist at home.

A despatch from Berlin to the Standard says it is reported that Germany intends to sequestrate several of the most important harbors of Venezuela. A blockade, however, seems to be out of the question, because that is not a suitable means of securing the money due from Venezuela. According to the latest information, the situation has deteriorated during the last few days and there is no symptom of an early improvement.

The possible deposition and expulsion of President Castro has been taken into account in Berlin, for the commander of the German squadron holds, not an ultimatum, but an official note, enumerating the German claims, to be handed to the authorities if there is a change in the government. The reports of the strengthening of the Venezuelan fortifications and ports are not taken seriously in Berlin.

CARNEGIE GIVES $40,000,000

Steel Magnate Surpasses All Records in Gifts for one Year.

New York, Jan. 2.—Andrew Carnegie has given away $40,000,000 in 1901. This has been the first year that Mr. Carnegie has been able to devote undivided attention to giving away his money in line with his declared intention not to die rich.

When Mr. Carnegie wrote his famous saying, "To die rich is to die disgraced," the public was incredulous. That was seven years ago, and nearly two years ago, when the quotation from his own pen was shown to him with the query:

"How is it to be accomplished?" Mr. Carnegie said:

"Watch and see."

In 1900 Mr. Carnegie gave away $5,000,000. On New Year's Day 1901, his gifts aggregated $20,000,000. In 1901, as Mr. Carnegie has had nothing else to do, he has multiplied the amount of all his former gifts by two. Up to the present year, Mr. Carnegie had not given away more than his income, estimated at $15,000,000 a year. Now that he has broken into his principle the income has, of course, been reduced as well as this will continue to grow smaller until Mr. Carnegie is an ordinary millionaire.

The exact amount of Mr. Carnegie's wealth has never been made public, but the estimate of $250,000,000 made at the time he sold out his steel properties to the United States Steel Corporation late last winter, is accepted as conservative by Wall street men and financiers.

Mr. Carnegie's gifts in 1901 have been as follows:

For Carnegie companies' employes, pensions, etc.	$ 4,000,000
For National University at Washington	10,000,000
To Scotland's Universities ...	10,000,000
To Technical Institute at Pittsburg	7,000,000
For public library branches in New York	5,250,000
To Braddock homestead and Duquesne libraries	1,000,000
For St. Louis public library...	1,000,000
Other public libraries	2,000,000
Total for the year	$40,250,000

ROSEBERY WANTS SOME SPADE WORK

A POLITICAL ENTRENCHMENT

Without This the Wave of Popular Adhesion to His Policy Will be Lost in Space.

London, Jan. 1.—Lord Rosebery has issued "an authorized edition" of his recent speech at Chesterfield. In a prefatory note he says regarding the policy he intimated:—"That policy appears to have received a large meed of general approval, but political opinion, to be effective, must be organized into political energy, and must work and entrench. I want some of this spade work in behalf of this policy, else the wave of popular adhesion will be lost in space."

The views editorially expressed on Lord Rosebery's preface vary, but the most important newspapers welcome it as an indication that Lord Rosebery does not intend to maintain his attitude of a detached critic.

The Times interprets it as a pledge that he intends to do his utmost to act upon and win support for his policy. It adds that his words have the ring of a leader who summons his adherents for accomplishing a great work at which he is resolved to labor with all his mind and strength. It should finally extinguish any faint hopes that he would consent to divide authority with Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman.

Some papers hesitate to attach definite meaning to the declaration or appear still to doubt Lord Rosebery's intention to lead.

Canada's Wealth Surprises Great Britain

London, Jan. 2.—Canada is congratulated on the progress which she has exhibited during the past year. The fact that public deposits in Canadian banks amounted to four hundred million dollars is considered remarkable, and the Morning Post looks to the time when the fertile acres of the Dominion will solve the whole question of British food supply, which is the nightmare of so many zealous politicians in England.

Here, surely, says the Post, is room for British capital and energy to solve a problem not merely of the greatest importance to the internal development of the Dominion, but also in the welfare of the Empire as a whole. Its solution would be facilitated by the conspicuous loyalty of Canada, whereof so many examples have recently been afforded.

SOUTH AMERICA AND UNCLE SAM

Will the United States Fight for the Monroe Doctrine

THE QUESTION OF THE DAY

Germany Will Hit the United States in a Sore Spot When She Attacks Venezuela

Washington, Jan. 2.—The threatened seizure of the port of La Guayra to force the payment by Venezuela of the overdue interest on the German debt, amounting to more than $2,000,000, is creating some solicitude in this country, inasmuch as a prolonged occupancy of Venezuelan territory by Germany would menace the Monroe Doctrine. The right to collect the German debt by the customary process of seizing temporarily a port of the debtor nation is recognized by the United States. The possibility that the occupancy of Venezuelan territory in the background. The "good offices" of the United States were effective in settling the troubles between Great Britain and Venezuela over the boundary question. The German-Venezuelan question may not yield so readily to such intervention, if, indeed, it has been seriously attempted.

There are certain considerations that lead many to read between the lines when it is proclaimed that Germany has no desire to secure a permanent acquisition in the Western Hemisphere. Germany has the colonizing spirit. A colonial population of about 15,000,000, brought under the allegiance since 1884, shows her strong disposition to acquire dependencies. The flood of German immigration pouring into Brazil points, to the Germanization eventually of some of the best portions of that empire. The ulterior purpose of the German Government with respect to Germans may become indefinite and practically permanent, and that it may become expedient for the United States to protest against this species of covert colonization in the Western Hemisphere in the name of the Monroe Doctrine, invests the situation in Venezuelan waters where the warships of many countries are assembling, with great interest. As long as Germany holds La Guayra there will be more or less anxious suspense lest the United States and Germany may pass into "strained relations" with a warlike collision. German colonization in Brazil is not transparently clear and assuring to the upholders of the Monroe Doctrine. It has provoked speculative discussion.

German immigrants, wherever they go, invariably form an exceedingly [illegible] population. They have powerfully assisted American progress in every direction. They would, if present in large millions, [illegible] similarly to the [illegible] South American republics. The settlement, which is something different from the colonization of American countries by Germany, is destined to continue increasingly, for Germany has a large surplus population, seeking fresh fields and pastures new. The spontaneous migration of Germans as individuals to South American countries is not a movement against which the Monroe Doctrine is directed. The extension of European systems of Government to the Western Hemisphere, and the colonization of American countries under the auspices and direction of European Governments, in order to further such extension of the European systems, are inhibited by the doctrine.

The Agrarian influence dominates in Germany. It is anti-American in its tendencies. It regards the United States as a formidable rival in agriculture, a dangerous competitor, whose power should be checked. Count von Kanitz, the Agrarian leader, said in the Reichstag this month that American predominance is a "danger to Europe."

With respect to the recognition of the binding force of the Monroe Doctrine the popular German position seems to be uncertain. It is stated that the great majority of representative Germans are not inclined to respect the doctrine. One of the representative German newspapers somewhat cynically labels the doctrine as an "ambitious and extensive programme," more "pompous" than a Napoleonic proclamation.

The German Government, however, has given no readable sign that it holds the Monroe Doctrine in disrespect or contempt. Before the present German-Venezuelan crisis became acute, the German Ambassador, Herr von Holleben, in a declaration proclaimed to be official, and probably having special application to Venezuela, said that Germany is not trying to find a foothold in South America or in the West Indies, even for coaling stations. The diplomatic part of the situation seems to be at this time assuring but an impetuous, untactful commander in the fleets in Venezuelan waters might make immediate trouble.

FIVE MEN KILLED IN AN EXPLOSION

Disaster in Locomotive Shops of the Georgia Railway

TWELVE OTHERS WERE INJURED

Three of These Will Probably Die—Negro Blown 100 Yards—Windows Broken Five Blocks Away

Macon, Ga., Jan. 2.—The boiler of a locomotive of the Central of Georgia Railway, exploded at the shops in this city today, killing five men outright and injuring 12 others, three of whom will probably die.

The explosion wrecked the house in which the engine was standing. A negro was painting the top of the round house. He was blown 100 yards, his body being reduced to an unrecognizable mass of human flesh. Alderman L. Willis was passing at the time and was severely injured. The concussion broke every window in a building at the corner of Poplar and Fifth streets, five blocks from where the explosion occurred.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Glasgow, Jan. 2.—The British Admiralty has invited the Clyde shipyards to tender bids for the construction of two battleships, each of 14,500 tons; five armored first-class cruisers and two protected cruisers. The officials ask for promptitude. Work on twenty warships now in course of construction may be expedited. The new battleships will have greater gun power than any vessel now in the navy.

MAY OBJECT TO KING'S PORTRAIT

London, Jan. 2.—It has been suggested that the introduction of a new coinage bearing a different effigy from that to which every British subject has become habituated and attached may have the curious and unforeseen result of bringing discredit on British money in out-of-the-way places in our dominions across the seas. It is feared that native traders who for years have been accustomed to accept the image of the late Queen Victoria on a coin as the incontrovertible evidence of genuineness may refuse to attach a like value to the effigy of King Edward. Sir Alfred Jones, the well-known merchant and shipowner, says the steps taken to counteract the difficulty will be to keep a stock of the old coinage, bearing the well-known features of Queen Victoria, and give it in exchange for the new to any trader who rejects the latter. At the same time when payment is being made in the new currency, explanations will be given to the natives for the supersession of the late Queen's effigy, and in course of time King Edward's features will be as good a guarantee as the late Queen's

EXECUTED JACK THE RIPPER!

Bolton, England, Jan 2.—James Billington, the hangman, whose death took place a few days ago, declared that he never hanged anybody with greater satisfaction than he did Dr. Neily Cream, whom he believed to his dying day to have been "Jack the Ripper." Dr. Cream did all he could to delay the execution, and Billington, becoming impatient, suddenly pulled the fatal bolt. As he did so, he distinctly heard Cream say, "I am Jack——" and believed that in another second he would have confessed he was "Jack the Ripper." Certainly, as Billington puts it, we never heard of the "Ripper" afterwards.

KING OF ITALY TO BLAME.

Rome, Jan 2.—The amazing indiscretions said to be revealed in the memoirs left by the late Signor Crispi are causing a prodigious sensations. In the shape of letters from the late King Humbert and other documents, Signor Crisp has left proofs that he distinctly desired to recall General Baratieri, the commander in Abyssinia, to Italy, and it was King Humbert who used his royal prerogative, and retained General Baratier in his command. By so doing he caused the disaster at Adua in Erythrea, when 5,000 soldiers were killed. The memo rathus places the responsibility upon King Humbert instead of Signor Crispi.

LABOR LEAGUE OF CATHOLICS.

London, Jan. 2.—The Pope and Cardinal Vaughan have warmly approved of the establishment of a Labor League for the Roman Catholics in Great Britain. A conference of prominent Roman Catholic interested in social questions is being arranged, so that the wishes of his Holiness to see a development of social work may shortly be carried into effect.

HOW TO PROVIDE SEAMEN.

London, Jan. 2.—In order to supply trained seamen for the mercantile marine and the Naval Reserve, Lord Brassey advocated at Newcastle the establishment of 100 school ships at the principal ports, each capable of receiving 200 boys, and half the cost to be borne by the State. After being trained the apprentices would enter the Reserve.

MANY FIREMEN WERE OVERCOME

Twenty-Two Men Overpowered By Smoke in a New York Fire

THE HOTEL GUESTS ESCAPED

A Hundred of Them Had to Make a Hasty Exit in Early Morning—Loss Estimated at $30,000

New York, Jan. 2.—The Morton House and Keith's Theatre, at Union Square and Fourteenth street, were threatened with destruction by fire early this morning. One hundred frightened patrons of the hotel were forced by the smoke to make hasty exits from their rooms, and a great deal of excitement was caused in the neighborhood by the fear that the fire would spread. Twenty-two firemen were overcome by smoke and the fire department worked three hours before the flames were under control. The loss was estimated at $30,000. The fire was discovered by the night engineer of the Morton House. An alarm was turned in by him without waiting to warn the guests of the hotel, who, when they were awakened, found the hallways full of smoke. None of them waited to dress but gathered up their valuables and hurried to the ground floor, where they found a refuge in the restaurant, which was free from smoke.

The hotel and theatre are in the same building. The fire was confined to the lower part of the hotel. The theatre was not damaged.

A GRAND SUCCESS

The Reception Given by Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mrs. Stratton and Brilliant Affair

A most brilliant and pleasant social function was the reception in the Opera House on New Year's night, held by Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mrs. Stratton, when over four hundred guests paid their respects to the Provincial Secretary and Mrs. Stratton, and enjoyed an evening amid the most delightful surroundings. Nothing that could be suggested or that good taste or hospitality could provide to add to the beauty of the scene or the success of the occasion or the pleasure of the guests had been ommitted. The interior of the hall was beautifully decorated and was transformed out of all semblance to its usual self and presented a most charming picture of brilliant light and most tasteful decorations. The arches were outlined with colored lights and clusters of the same ornamented the walls and boxes, adding greatly to the magnificance of the effect.

Above the stage the electrician had with great skill arranged a great number of incandescent lights in the form of a large S. the brilliance of which served to illumine the more a large motto extending the congratulations of the season.

Flags and bunting were artistically arranged throughout the hall. The disposition of the passage beneath the galleries and the boxes and other appropriate proprieties of the hall were handsomely ordered, the profusion of electric lights serving to produce an effect of general brilliancy. On a dais at the south end of the hall which was tastefully decorated with flowers and lights the host and hostess received their guests. Mrs. Stratton was most becomingly attired in a gown of pale blue satin, with cream applique and pearl trimmings, and wore ornaments of diamonds.

The reception was held from eight to nine o'clock, and was followed by dancing. The music was one of the many things which added to the pleasure of the guests. The 57th Regt Band occupied the stage and alternated the Misses Hurley in supplying the music, and nothing was left to be desired in this regard.

Mr. J. C. Winburn, a leading baritone of Toronto, was present and sang several solos during the evening. He was accompanied by Mr. E. C. Myers also of Toronto.

Mr. H. Long, catered to the wants of the guests in his usual pleasing manner. Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons are to be congratulated on the artistic manner their decorating was done as are Messrs Grant & Ross, electricians who had charge of the electric decorating.

The evening was one that will long be remembered as being one of the most delightful and successful social functions ever attended.

FIND SMALLPOX RUNS WILD

State Health Officers Go to Fix Quarantine in Madison, Where Mayor is Lax.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 3.—Dr. J. O. Sullivan, of Cairo, a member of the State Board of Health, and Dr. Baker, inspector of the Board, have gone to Madison, to investigate the smallpox situation there. Dr. Egan, secretary of the Board, said to-night that if the representations made to the Board were true the sheriff of Madison county would be called upon to aid in establishing and maintaining a quarantine against the town.

Some time ago the health board was notified that smallpox existed at Madison. The attention of Mayor Coyne of Madison, was called to the matter and he said he would look after it. Afterward the Board received a formal complaint from Mayor Rosenberg, of Granite City to the effect that smallpox was raging in Madison and that the authorities at that place were not taking precautions against it.

Dr. Egan wrote to Mayor Coyne and received an answer which was unsatisfactory. He immediately telegraphed to Drs. Sullivan and Baker to go to Madison.

"It is evident," said Dr. Egan, "that the authorities at Madison are doing nothing. If the Mayor refuses to quarantine, the state board will take measures on its own account. The sheriff will be asked to assist in preventing smallpox patients from going about."

ATTEMPT TO WRECK PALACE OF GRAND DUKE CONSTANTINE

BOMB EXPLODED UNDER PALACE—NIHILSTS ARE SUSPECTED

Paris, Jan. 2.—A despatch to the Patrie from Kiev, European Russia, under today's date, says a bomb was exploded last night under the balcony of the palace of the Grand Duke Constantine. The explosion occurred at a moment when the salons were thronged with guests. A great panic followed, but nobody was injured, though the damage done was considerable. All the windows near the scene of the explosion were shattered. Nihilist students are suspected of committing the outrage. Fifteen students have been arrested.

The Grand Duke Constantine is a son of the late Grand Duke Constantine, brother of Emperor Alexander II., grandfather of the present Czar. One of the present Grand Duke Constantine's sisters is the Queen of Greece. The Grand Duke is President of the Imperial Academy Sciences, Aide-de-camp General and Chief of the military schools of Russia.

BRITISH VESSELS HELP THE REVOLUTIONISTS

British Steamer Ban Righ Alleged to Have Load of War Material

LARGE REWARD OFFERED FOR HER CAPTURE

President Castro Offers £10,000 for the Seizure—Left London for Antwerp, Thence to West Indies

Fort De France, Island of Martinique, Jan. 2.—The British steamer Ban Righ, recently re-named the Libertador, which arrived here December 24 from Antwerp, having on board as alleged, a cargo of munitions of war intended for the adherents of Senor Manuel A. Maloz, the reputed leader of the revolution in Venezuela, against President Castro, has left this port for the Venezuelan coast. She carries among her passengers Senor Maloz, who is now referred to as General Maloz and several Generals and other important personages of Venezuela, who joined General Maloz here. Besides the leaders of the expedition the Libertador has on board three hundred volunteers, and it is understood that she will embark a number of other volunteers while on her way to the coast of Venezuela.

The behaviour of Gen. Maloz and his adherents while they were at this port was most correct, and when they left here they had the sympathy of the whole population. Gen. Maloz is well known at Fort De France, where he has many friends. The local newspapers have published articles expressing hopes for the prompt success of the expedition and the downfall of President Castro, whose attitude, the papers add, has earned for him the enmity of the whole world.

Previous to his departure from Fort De France, Gen. Maloz issued a manifesto calling on all his fellow countrymen to take up arms. While the Libertador was at this port her sides were strengthened by light armor and her gun positions were protected. Her armament is of the modern type.

The Libertador was at Fort De France December 24, on which date she left that port. Her destination was unknown to the people ashore.

The Official Gazette of Caracas, Dec. 31, published a decree, signed by President Castro, by which the Ban Righ (Libertador) was declared to be a pirate. The Government of Venezuela also offered a reward of $10,000 and the cargo the Libertador carries to the Venezuelan or foreign ship which shall seize the Maloz ship, the Government taking the ground that she is being used in the interests of the revolution against President Castro.

The Ban Righ was built in 1870 at Glasgow, by John Eldem & Company. She is 241 feet long, has 29.1 feet beam, and is 16.6 feet deep. Officially the Ban Righ belongs to the Aberdeen Steam Navigation Company (Limited), of Aberdeen. She left London, November 21, for Antwerp, whence she sailed for the West Indies. For some time previous to her leaving London, the Ban Righ was detained by the Custom House officials there, it having been reported that her cargo of war munitions was intended for the Boers. She was released November 22, at which time it was reported that her cargo was intended for the Columbian revolutionists. Her cargo, it is said, included 10,000 mauser rifles, five million cartridges, and a number of cannon.

REDMOND WANTS TO START FIRE IN IRELAND

Remnants of Landlordism the Fuel--A King Hunt in Cork City

London, Jan. 2.—A telegram from Dublin to the Times says John T. Redmond, M.P., speaking at a Nationalist demonstration in County Sligo, said that if the Government postponed the Irish land legislation until 1903 he would not be sorry, because the interval would be used to raise such a flame in Ireland that all remnants of landlordism would be burned to ashes.

A telegram from Cork to the Times says that in speaking at a meeting of the local branch of the United Irish League, Sir Eugene Crean, M.P., referred to King Edward's expected visit to Ireland, and said if the King came to Cork they would hunt him through the streets as they did before.

PERU AND ARGENTINA,

The Two Powers Are Now Alleged to be Allied.

Valparaiso, Chili, via Galveston, Jan. 1.—It is reported that the Chilian Government has knowledge of a secret offensive alliance between Argentina and Peru.

This rumor has neither been confirmed nor contradicted in official circles.

Peru has long been the enemy of Chili, and the Tacna-Arica question has kept open the wound which the Chilians inflicted upon the Peruvians in their late war.

The provinces of Tacna and Arica were taken from Peru when the treaty of peace was signed, with an understanding that the residents of the provinces should decide by a plebiscite whether they preferred Chilian or Peruvian sovereignty.

This vote has never been taken, though the time set for it passed several years ago. Peru has urged that the question be settled by arbitration, but Chili has steadily opposed this attitude.

Max Nordau on British Affairs

Vienna, Jan. 2.—Max Nordau, writing in Neue Freie Presse, says Continental prophets of evil greatly exaggerate the prejudice which Great Britain has suffered in her interests as a world power by the South African war. He declares the concession to the United States in regard to the canal treaty was not due to events in South Africa, but was rather the result of Great Britain's non-political doctrine of conciliating her mighty cousin across the Atlantic by every available means, and of excluding from the domain of political possibilities an hostile encounter with him. Nordau concludes with an allusion to the devotedness of the British colonies to the motherland.

A True Brain Food.

must replace the feeling of lassitude and mental tiredness by clearness and strength of mind. Not that it goes directly to the brain, that were foolish. The true brain food must be carried by rich, red blood. If mental fatigue worries and alarms you, look not to the brain, but the stomach and assimilative organs. No remedy yet discovered possesses the marvellous brain strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Ferrozone does not stimulate the brain into a fitful glow, but by improving digestion, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating assimilation, giving new strength to the heart, it sends a stream of red, vitalizing blood to the brain. Thus it is a true brain food. Ferrozone is sold by Ormond & Walsh [illegible]

SOME HOT SHOT

Exchange by the Apsley Hunt Club Annual Meeting.

During the holiday season the members of the Apsley Hunting Club were all home, and the president called a meeting to be held in Beaver Castle (their lodge) at Wolf Lake to settle up all the little affairs of the Club before the end of the year, and make any changes that might be required for the next hunt. All the members were on hand.

President Jesse Eastland took the chair (an empty nail keg).

Secretary Spike Fred called the roll, and all having answered to their names the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Jesse Eastland.
Vice-President—Curly Loan.
Secretary—Spike Fred.
Treasurer—Leeny [illegible].
Cook—M—d [illegible].
Master of hounds—Benny Jones.

The treasurer presented his report, showing a balance on hand of twenty-two cents, after all expenses had been paid.

On motion report was received and put in the oven, and the 22 cents paid over to Benny to purchase a new dog collar. General business was then taken up.

M—d said he was tired of his old 38-44, and thinks of buying a Savage rifle, as he got nothing but small deer last fall. Spike told him not to go to that expense, as the 38 was good enough to hunt around school houses with, and he makes a good trustee.

Spike said he felt rather blue, when M—d told him how it is that deer were going to be scarce next fall. Still, he has great faith in M—d and Jesse, as he told them he would leave his cows, horse, cat, etc., in their charge while he would be away at the lumber camps. But Spike was ever of a trusting nature.

Jesse got a chance to give his views, and said he intended to cut a pretty wide swath among the deer next fall, as he was also getting a new rifle with lie-man sights.

Curly spoke in favor of moving the camp next fall to Silver Lake or the Lime Kiln, as the deer are much better and not so wild on the limestone hills, but the idea was vetoed and Curly was promptly fined $197.30.

Leeny, upon being wakened up, said he did not care what they did as long as he had charge of that milk can, and it now being in the house, would keep it propped up, and fix the new ivory sights on it which he had purchased.

Benny, who had been out separating the dogs that had been fighting, now came in and said: "By gosh, you fellows, I am on the track of [illegible] good dogs, and if I can get [illegible] two good men to [illegible] in every deer in the [illegible] fall, and don't [illegible]

Just at this time the [illegible]

APSLEY.

—The Methodists of this community have made Xmas week one of lively interest in the village. On Christmas night a large crowd partook of the fowl supper served by the members and friends of the congregation, after which a good programme of music and recitations were rendered by our local talent. The proceeds, amounting to $40.00, were applied to the building of the new church.

—On Friday evening at the Epworth League service, Miss Eastland read a very excellent paper on the topic, after which refreshments were served. This was followed by a short musical programme provided by Misses N. and E. Coon, and Messrs. P. and Garfield Coon. A very pleasant evening was spent by all of the many who were present.

—On Sunday evening the regular church service was changed into a service of song. The choir very ably rendered suitable anthems between the divisions of the subject. A large and attentive audience filled the hall.

—Many of the boys returned to the lumber camps this week.

—A party of young people drove out to Mr. Wm. Holes' one evening last week. They report a very pleasant time, until at the last, it is said, (I hope it is not true), a slight contention arose among the ladies as to whom the "cheer for the prettiest girl" was intended.

—This community is to be congratulated upon securing the services of so efficient school teacher as Mr. E. J. Howson. We heartily welcome Ezra here again.

—Owing to the failure of a Montreal cheese buyer to deposit the value of a consignment of cheese, this section suffers a loss of over seven hundred dollars. It checks the onward march of business, but an industrious people in a prosperous country are not easily overcome. As the loss is no fault of the factory, it is not likely to hinder the work next year. Mr. Patterson, as maker, has given full satisfaction in every respect during the past season.

—Weights and measures are not valid unless they bear the stamp of imperial sen. Apsley can boast of an imperial "Gallon."

Tale of The Press Censor.

MR. A. G. HALES, the war correspondent, tells a funny story about a press censor in the second number of the "Week-End." We had some fun, he says, with some of those haughty gentlemen of the press gag. I was working part of the time with a correspondent who had two faults: firstly, he wrote a hand that no one but a telegraph clerk or a compositor could decipher; secondly, he stuttered when he talked, so that no one but an archangel could understand him when excited. We struck a most imperious censor, who was so well informed that I doubt if he could read cold print without assistance. My friend took up his "copy." It was an awful hand. If he had written it with the butt-end of a Blucher boot I don't think it could have been worse. The censor looked at it and handed it back. "Can't send messages in cypher," he said. "That ain't cyp-p-p-p-pher, it's pla-a-a-ain English," retorted the correspondent. "Well, then, if that is plain English, just you read it out for me, for I'm blanked if I can read it," said the censor.

So the correspondent commenced to read. He stuttered and stammered through half of it; then the censor stopped him. "Halt," he cried; "you write as if you were an india-rubber idol, but you talk ten times worse than you write. Give it to me; I'll sign it. No operator on earth can read it." But the operator could and did, and my friend got off the smartest bit of news that had left the front for many a day. However, when the censor found out what he had been induced to sign he evened matters up by sending the correspondent after his "cable" as far as Cape Town, where he is to this day. It is good fun to get him to talk about that censor; he gets so wild and stutters so much that he has to finish his story in deaf and dumb language on his fingers.

Working Himself Out of a Job.

A collector of bad accounts received a lesson from a delinquent debtor a few days ago that has started him to thinking a bit. The collector had been chasing this delinquent for about six months and had become tired of "Call to-morrow," "I haven't it just now," and other excuses of a similar dilatory nature, and thought it was time to become "sassy."

"See here," he said, the last time he called, "are you ever going to pay this bill?"

"Why, yes," replied the delinquent, "I suppose I will pay it some day or other. But look here yourself, young man; I think I can show you a thing or two. How many bills have you in that bundle?"

"About forty, I guess."

"How long does it take you to visit these people?"

"Generally, I can get over my route in a day."

"Suppose every one of them should pay up?"

"That would be fine!"

"Oh, it would, would it? What would you do for a living if everybody paid promptly?"

The collector turned the thought over in his mind for a moment or two, and looked blank.

"Gracious!" he said, "I'd be out of a job!"

"That's exactly my point. Don't, therefore, be so infernally anxious to collect every cent due to your people at one time. A few collections a day are enough. As for my account, come around some day next week, and I may help you out of business by paying it. Good-day."

GLUTTONY

is more common than we may think, if we define gluttony as eating beyond the body's need of sustenance and beyond the stomach's capacity for digestion and assimilation of food. That is a fair definition, and it fastens the name glutton on many a person who would resent the term as an insult. The fact of this gluttony is marked by its consequences. The overloaded stomach becomes diseased. The popular term for the condition is "weak" stomach. The "weak" stomach fails in furnishing adequate nutrition for the body, and soon the "weakness" spreads from the stomach to other organs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect assimilation of food, by which alone the health and strength of the body is maintained.

"Your medicine helped me so much that I cannot praise it too highly," writes Mrs. C. L. Brooks, of Poland, Androscoggin Co., Me. "The first dose I took helped me. I cannot forget how I felt when I took it; I was suffering everything with indigestion, and my stomach was so bloated that it seemed as though it must burst. My husband said he was going for the doctor, but I said if he would get me a bottle of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I would try that. I had not taken it long when I felt relieved, and have not had a touch of indigestion or stomach trouble since. I had been sick for four years, and less than four bottles cured me. Some people that knew me before I began to take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' tell me that they never saw such a change in any one, and they also say they don't see how I can do such large washings as I do now, when I had not done a washing for so long."

CHAINED FOR TEN YEARS
HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
EVERY BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER
Rabbi of the Cong. Bnai Israel.
NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:

Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,
REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

AVON SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,
O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

A NOVEL

CHAPTER I.

"Hi!" a moment's pause, then, in a louder and more determined tone, "Hi! please!"

The girl, walking briskly along the country lane in all the glory of a July evening, came to a premature stop and looked around; a young man was running fleetly after her—such a bright, handsome-faced boy of about twenty-two or three, with a stalwart, well-built frame.

"I really do beg your pardon," he panted, as he came up to her. "You must think me awfully rude shouting after you in this way, but I am quite out in my calculations, and was getting almost hopeless when I caught sight of you in the distance, and thought you might help me."

He had removed his hat from his closely-cropped brown curls during this hurried speech, given in a frank, easy way, that at once stamped him as a gentleman and a patrician.

Katharine Brereton smiled involuntarily.

"I shall be very glad to help you in any way I can," she answered, in her soft, musical voice. "What is the matter?"

"Am I going right for Ledstone? I passed a mile-stone just now that mentioned something about it, but the do—— I mean the confounded thing was so decrepid that I couldn't make out whether I was going to, or walking away from my destination."

"You are in a direct line for Ledstone. Walk straight ahead, and you will come to the old city gates and walls almost before you know it."

"Thanks, awfully!" The young man hesitated a moment, then, with a glance at the graceful figure in its simple pink cotton gown, at the pale, sweet, beautiful face, set like a picture in the broad-brimmed cotton hat, he colored up almost shyly, and said, half-diffidently, half-eagerly: "You are going the same way, are you not? Will—will you allow me to relieve you of that basket? It looks far too much for you."

"It is not really heavy, I assure you," Katharine answered, "and I am quite accustomed to carry it; besides, I am afraid I shall walk too slowly to please you."

The color mounted still higher to his face, and an expression of disappointment came over it. She spoke very courteously and gently, but he was quick to take the hint, nevertheless.

"Then there is nothing left for me to do but to thank you once more, and to say good-night."

Katharine gave him a second smile as she returned his greeting, and the next moment his long legs were speeding down the country lane at an incredibly quick pace.

"A handsome boy, and a good one, too, I should think," was Katharine's mental comment as she watched his figure disappear in the distance, then she shifted the basket from her right arm to her left, with a tiny sigh of fatigue, for despite her assertion to the contrary, it was moderately heavy, and then proceeded on her homeward walk in a more leisurely fashion. Her dark gray eyes went round her every now and then, drinking in the pastoral beauty of the scene; once as she came to a gate she put down her basket, and leaning her arms on the stout wood, she gave herself up to the pleasure of a short rest. "How my darling would have reveled in a night like this," she mused, a sorrowful shade falling on her exquisite face; "what sketches he would have made, what pictures he would have imagined! Dear, dear father, my sole comfort; do you ever know, I wonder, how your little Kettie longs for you?"

A tear gathered in each eye and rolled down the fair, pale cheeks—cheeks whose pallor did not arise from ill health, but was part of the delicate coloring which went far to make Katharine Brereton's beauty so rare a thing to behold.

"What dreams of future wealth and greatness would have come," she mused on, as she dashed the tears away. "Ah, well! I do not wish him back again only to find his dreams a hollow sham, and fame an empty mockery. No, no, dearest; I do not wish you back again!"

She rested a few moments longer; then, as the sound of a church clock chiming the hour reached her ear, she started.

"I must make haste," she said, picking up her basket once more; "Cousin Lucy will be nervous if she does not see me returning now." And drawing a short breath that was almost like a sigh, Katharine walked onward at a good rate, till she had soon left the lanes behind, and was close to the old broken wall which the inhabitants of Ledstone so proudly valued as being one of the few remaining monuments of Roman labor, and as having conferred upon the small, poor, manufacturing town at some remote date, the dignity and high-sounding name of city.

Once this moss-grown, somewhat dilapidated pile of masonry was passed, all trace of country suddenly vanished, and the stranger found himself in a perfect forest of tiny, artisans' cottages and huts all surrounding the huge, ungainly buildings and factories wherein the entire population of Ledstone, with but few exceptions, found daily employment.

Katharine Brereton had grown used to her hideous surroundings during the two years that had elapsed since she arrived at Ledstone to make her home with her father's widowed cousin, Mrs. Smythe, the only relation she possessed to her knowledge, in the whole wide world.

There was, indeed, a wide difference between the roving existence she had led with her indolent, artistic, beloved father, and the narrow, commonplace proceedings that made up the sum of life under her cousin's roof in Ledstone; and had it not been her dying father's express wish that she should accept the home Lucy Smythe offered her, Katharine would not have remained in Ledstone one single day. But a promise to the dead is sacred—to the beloved dead it was doubly so—and so the beautiful Katharine Brereton, whose face was already immortalized by more than one modern painter in some form or other—for a child she had grown up in the [illegible] world—took up the new life [illegible] outward cheerfulness she could assume.

It was not long before she grew to love her delicate, sorrowful-eyed cousin, and Lucy Smythe in return simply clung to the girl with a warmth of trust and affection that was wonderful to behold, and which she had lavished hitherto only on her pride and joy, her son Gordon.

Gordon Smythe was articled to a solicitor in London, a position which had cost Mrs. Smythe a great deal of money, but which was nevertheless a source of great satisfaction to her. Gordon would thoroughly master the intricacies of his profession, and then would return to Ledstone, step into his dead father's shoes, and become, as his father had been before him, Ledstone's most honored and respected legal adviser.

To Katharine's artistic temperament such a future held absolutely no charms whatever, but she was careful not to let Mrs. Smythe guess for a single instant what little interest the law and all its surroundings possessed for her; and, indeed, it is probable that the simple minded lady would have been considerably shocked at what must have seemed to her such extraordinary and heretical opinions for a girl to hold.

Katharine had been in Ledstone nearly eighteen months before her cousin Gordon made his appearance under his mother's roof, and it must be confessed that she was predisposed to regard him favorably; and though the extreme beauty of his face was not to be gainsaid, Katharine conceived a sudden and uncontrollable dislike to the young man, strengthened moreover by a sensation of doubt and mistrust, which was altogether unreasonable and immovable. Indeed, so strong was this feeling that she heaved a sigh of decided relief when Gordon announced that his brief visit of three days must be reduced to one, and that he must return to town without delay, and despite his mother's lamentations. Since then he had been to Ledstone many times, and although Miss Brereton had tried her utmost to crush down what she herself called "her unjust doubt and dislike of him," and to bestow some warmer and kinder thought on him, for his mother's sake, she failed utterly to do so.

As she hurried through the close streets full of factory hands, chatting and enjoying themselves when the day's work was done, the girl's thoughts had gone to this troubled subject of her cousin and they had disturbed her, as any remembrance of him always did.

"I must begin to think of the future," she mused. "My dearest one would never have wished me to live anywhere where I am not comfortable, and life with Cousin Lucy will be impossible when Gordon returns for good. I could not—I would not remain under the same roof with him for more than a few days together for all the wealth of the world!"

A tinge of red had crept into her cheeks, and her heart beat unconsciously quicker.

"It is wrong, it is wicked," she mentally declared, "but—but I dread—I fear that man more and more each time I see him. Poor Cousin Lucy! how sad and angry she would be if she knew the truth; but she must never know it. She has been so good, so sweet to me, I must never let her guess how little liking I have for her beloved—her idol!"

She was passing up a street more well-to-do than the others at this moment, and came to a standstill before a neat gate which, with a close-clipped hedge, bordered the pretty old-fashioned garden that stretched before Mrs. Smythe's cottage. A man's voice reached her ear as she lifted the latch.

"Oh, but I think you have made a mistake. I heard Mr. Gordon Smythe himself say at the commencement of this week that he would be in Ledstone to-day. I don't understand."

Katharine recognized the voice in a second although the tones were touched with vexation, and did not ring so frankly as when she had heard them first.

She opened the gate, and was passing up the path just as the young man turned away impatiently from the door where old Sarah, the tyrant of the kitchen, had been interviewing him. He started, and then smiled with pleasure, as he beheld the girl standing immediately before him in the pale, summer moonlight.

"Can I help you again?" Katharine asked, returning his smile. "Are you wanting Mr. Smythe? He is not here, I assure you, nor is he expected, at least not to my knowledge."

"Oh, it doesn't matter!" the young fellow stammered, forgetting his annoyance in the mingled pleasure and admiration that the sight of Katharine's beauty awakened in his breast. "I suppose I must have made a mistake," Then with a half shy laugh, "I—I hope that basket hasn't tired you very much."

"I can rid myself of it altogether," and Katharine suited the action to the word by putting it on the ground; then she said involuntarily, "And I can do nothing further? I am sorry my cousin is not here. Are you a stranger in Ledstone? Then, if you have not already made other arrangements, let me advise you to go to the Boar's Head. Mrs. Burton will make you most comfortable; she is such a good old soul."

"Many th—thanks, but I have made other arrangements. It is awfully good of you to take so much trouble; I am awfully obliged, really. But I am keeping you standing. Er—good-night again. I didn't think," with another little laugh that had a touch of weariness in it, "I should have the pleasure of meeting you again so soon. I——"

"The world is very small. We may meet yet again; who knows?" Katharine said pleasantly.

It was very strange, but she felt her heart go out to this young man in as determined a fashion as the dislike and mistrust had come for Gordon Smythe the first time she had seen him. She felt sorry for him, too; he looked tired, and so anxious, and there was an indefinable and indescribable charm about him altogether.

Involuntarily she turned and walked back to the gate with him, and, as he passed out, his handsome, fair young head uncovered in her honor, held out her hand suddenly, treating him as though he had been an old and valued friend.

"Good night!" she said again, and almost unconsciously to herself, the old blessing her father used to give

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.

Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.

General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.

Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.

F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of these gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

The Company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to oil enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of [illegible] shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offers for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about [illegible] miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Tempe district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.00 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the [illegible] Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. C. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a [illegible] bbl. white oil gusher) [illegible] White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page [illegible]).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in [illegible], and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some [illegible] miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from [illegible] to [illegible] feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania," to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders [illegible], and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day $1.75 to $4.50 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns 2000 acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid revenues. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. 2000 acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.
10th. Entire land a mass of oil sand and shale.
11th. Organized under the laws of Wyoming, no indebtedness; no assessment; no stockholders' liabilities; stock full paid and non-assessable.
12th. Over one-third of stock in treasury.
13th. Management well known and conservative.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout this district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a great deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reservation the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a 100 barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Registration.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

A Present of $125,000

Sir William Macdonald, the Montreal capitalist, has placed $125,000 at the disposal of the Ontario Government to be used in the erection of buildings on the grounds of the Agricultural College in Guelph. The buildings are to be used in giving instruction to teachers in the elements of plant life and agriculture, and in the establishment of a course domestic science for women, especially as related to agricultural pursuits. The gift for building of this class from Sir William Macdonald opportunely follows the handsome gift for a library and museum made a little over a year ago by the late W. E. H. Massey.

NO MORE FREE RIDES.

New York, Jan. 1.—The new anti-pass agreement of the railroads will go into effect to-day and much interest is manifested in its workings. The parties to the agreement including practically all of the important systems of the country, have bound themselves not to exchange passes among the railroad officials, a custom which has been in vogue almost since the beginning of railroads. According to rumor the movement is to extend even farther, and will affect the politicians to whom the roads have heretofore been in the habit of extending the favor of free transportation in order to prevent hostile legislation. A variety of opinion exists as to the [illegible] with which the new rule will meet.

London, Dec. 31.—The Vienna correspondent of the Times says there are signs that people in the Austrian capital are coming round to a more reasonable view of the South African War. At the present moment, he says, there are scarcely two Continental peoples that love one another more than they love the British. At no time during the past quarter of a century has there been more jealousy and distrust among the European powers.

A peep behind the scenes, says the correspondent, would show Englishmen [illegible] anti-British Continental League [illegible]

London, Dec. 31.—The correspondent of the Central News at Berlin says he has been officially informed that Dr. Baltazzi, the German Charge d'Affaires, has not left Caracas; pourparlers are still proceeding. It is believed in Berlin that an ultimatum to Venezuela will be lodged within the next three days. If a satisfactory reply is not received an attack by the Germans will follow immediately.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here an There by the Times.

NOTE.—The Times requests its readers to contribute items of news to its columns. Anything that is phoned or sent in writing to the office, of a nature suitable for publication, will be received and published. Ed. Times.]

—There was no police court yesterday.

The sleighing is getting pretty bad again.

—New Year's was celebrated very quietly.

—A very successful turkey shoot was held at Riverside Park on New Year's Day.

—The New Year started in cold enough, the thermometer registered 6 below zero.

—The Times is in receipt of a very pretty little Reference Annual from the Dominion Brewery Company, Toronto. It is the most complete thing of the kind we have ever seen, and reflects much credit on the enterprising publishers. The Dominion Brewery Company is not satisfied with doing things like other people, but must keep ahead in the race.

DEATHS

MIMMS—IN Lindsay, Tuesday, Dec. 31 190[illegible]. Arthur Norman, second son of Thos. Mimms.

Charged with Seduction

A. Lotta, a young man who has been employed as a laborer in town was arrested on New Year's morning on a warrant from Exeter, York County on a charge of seduction. Chief Constable, John [illegible], came down from Exeter and took the prisoner away yesterday morning.

New story

With to-day's issue of The Times we commence a new serial story, "Husband and Foe," a novel of more than ordinary interest. The tale is one of the best which have appeared in our columns, and will not be wearisome from great length.

His Condition Improving

The case of Norman Hinds, who was badly injured about two weeks ago, is steadily improving. The boy is able to sit up and will be allowed to leave his bed in a few days. He is very cheerful and is quite a favor te in the hospital. The doctor attending him says, he expects Norman will be able to go to his home in a couple of weeks.

Peterborough Talent Abroad

At a concert given under the auspices of St. Andrew's Sunday school, Fenelon Falls, on New Year's night, Miss Mattie Robertson, of town, danced the Highland fling in costume. Her effort "brought down the house," and she was forced to answer a recall.

A very pleasing number was given by the Pixie Singers, being 12 young ladies in costume who entertained the large audience for an hour or more. Miss Fanny Brandon and Miss Irene McDougall, both well known in Peterborough, charmed the audience with their sweet singing.

Sore Throat and Hoarseness

with their attendant dangers may be speedily averted and remedied by the use of Polson's Nerviline. Excellent to gargle with—ten times better than a mustard plaster and more convenient for the outside. Nerviline penetrates the tissues instantly, soothes the pain, allays inflammation, and cures sore throat and hoarseness simply because that's what it is made for. The large 25 cent bottle of Nerviline is unexcelled as a household liniment. It cures everything.

"Keep your Stomach in good working order and your general health will take care of itself." This is the advice of an eminent specialist on stomach troubles, and he "clinched" the advice by prescribing Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets as a wonder worker in all phases of stomach disorders from the little "ferment" after eating to the chronic dyspepsia. 35 cents.—136 Sold by H. M. Ebbinson.

THE TIMES LETTER-BOX

A CORRECTION

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—My attention has been called to a letter of one of your correspondents which appeared in your issue of 28th inst., re a sermon preached on "the liquor question," by Rev. John Locke, of Orillia. Your correspondent states that the Mr. Locke who preached that sermon was "formerly pastor of George Street Methodist Church, Peterborough." This is incorrect. I am the Mr. Locke that was pastor of George Street Church, Peterborough, and did not preach that sermon. I am pastor of the Tabernacle Church, Belleville. Hoping you will do me the justice of publishing this note of correction,

I am,
Respectfully yours,
JOSEPH H. LOCKE.

Royal Yacht Ophir

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Would you kindly inform me through the columns of your paper to what class of vessels does the "Ophir," the vessel used by the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, belong. Is it a boat belonging to H. M. Navy, or a Royal Mail steamer?

READER.

Reply.—The "Ophir" belongs to the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship Co, and is a Royal Mail boat. It was refitted by the British Government at an enormous expense for the purpose. The boat was chartered for the voyage. These boats are credited with being the staunchest steamers on the ocean. This line of boats sail from London and Southampton to India, China and Australia.

The "Ophir" is now on her regular service, having been returned to that after the arrival of the Duke and Duchess in England.

Winter Race Meet

A meeting for those interested in the racing business was called for last night to be held at the Cluxton House, but owing to the inclemency of the weather, the attendance was not as large as it might otherwise have been.

There was a few present, and it was decided to make a canvass of the merchants and others, to see what encouragement the Race Committee would receive.

It is a strange thing that Peterborough cannot hold a race meet in winter as well as in summer. The advantages that can be offered here for a good course cannot be equalled and the weather can hardly interfere with the tracks. The Little Lake offers splendid scope for a good track on ice and should the weather turn soft the track at the Driving Park can be used, so that there is nothing in the way of weather can interfere except heavy storms and perhaps the racers can dodge them.

Those who are interested in the business are very anxious to see the thing come off and the public should patronise it largely.

We hope that the Committee will receive satisfactory assurances from the public and that the races will be held.

A HAPPY SURPRISE

Mr. G. H. Williamson, Secretary of Y.M.C.A, Remembered by His Friends

Mr. G. H. Williamson, the popular General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. has met with many surprises in his life but the one he received on New Year's morning was by no means the least.

Mr. Williamson had been invited to attend a business meeting at 11 o'clock on New Year's morning and when he took his place he became rather suspicious, when he saw surrounding him, representative of each or the various departments, all wearing a most happy smile. His suspicions were thoroughly aroused when Mr. Pringle stepped out and read a nicely worded address. A table bearing the several articles with which Mr. Williamson was to be presented, was brought into the room, and the Secretary gasped for breath.

The table was laden with good things which consisted of, a pair of Persian Lamb gauntlets, a cap and overcoat, gold watch and chain and a purse containing over $30.00.

Mr. Williamson was so over come by surprise, that the speech he made was a failure, as far as words went, but conveyed the right impression in the expression of his feelings.

Speeches were made bearing on the ability of Mr. Williamson, and the appreciation of his work in the Association, and all present joined in wishing him the most happy and prosperous New Year he had ever known.

WEDDING BELLS

The residence of Mr. Archibald Morton, Lindsay st, was the scene of a pretty wedding on New Year's Eve, when Mr. William F. Sedgewick, of Otonabee took for his bride Miss Annie M. Downer, also of Otonabee. Rev. D. O. Crossley tied the nuptial knot. The bride was gowned in a gray dress with trimmings of white silk and applique and carried a boquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Ella Morton was attired in gray. Mr. W. Hanbridge assisted the groom. The newly married couple will reside in Otonabee.

Solitt—Mattice

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Solitt, Downie St., was the scene of an interesting event on Tuesday evening, being the occasion of the marriage of their only daughter, Miss Lila, to Mr. George S. Mattice, of Cornwall. The wedding was very quiet only the immediate friends of the contracting parties being present. The bride looked charming in a travelling suit of grey with hat to match. Miss Bella Solitt, of Whitby, cousin of the bride was bridesmaid, while Mr. Edward Mattice, of Cornwall performed the duties of best man. The bride received many beautiful and costly presents as a mark of esteem from her friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Mattice left on the 11.40 train for their future home in Cornwall, followed by the best wishes of a host of friends.

Two weddings took place at the parsonage of the George St Church on Wednesday afternoon, when Rev. J. P. Wilson united in marriage Mr. John Sutton, of Manvers, to Miss M. Murphy, daughter of Mr. Emmerson Murphy, of Cavan, the other being Mr. Nathaniel E. Merriam, of Norwood to Miss Alice A. Osborne, daughter of Mr. Jas. Osborne, of Marmora.

Hooper—Fowler

Mark St. Methodist Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on New Year's afternoon, when Mr. Albert A. Fowler, Phm. B. took for his wife, Miss Maude Hooper, daughter of Mr. Thos. Hooper, of North Monaghan. The ceremony was preformed by Rev. C. L. Thompson.

The bride looked charming in a navy-blue going-away dress. She wore a picture hat and carried a boquet of white carnations. Her sister, Miss Kate Hooper, the bridesmaid, wore a blue dress and carried a large boquet of pink carnations.

Mr. J. E. Fowler fulfilled the duties of groomsman in becoming style. After the ceremony the guests drove to the residence of Mr. T. H. Hooper, brother of the bride where an elaborate wedding breakfast was served.

The newly married couple left on the C.P.R. 4.45 train for Toronto and other places.

The Times joins in the hearty congratulations.

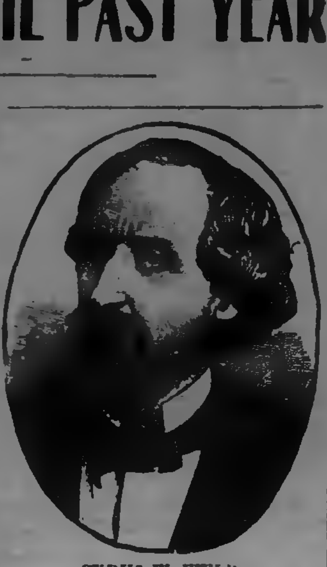
PROGRESS OF SCIENCE DURING THE PAST YEAR

Wonderful Strides Made in Electrical and Other Devices

But 1902 Bids Fair to Outrival Last Year

The Secret of Human Life Said to be on the Eve of Discovery



CYRUS W. FIELD,
Inventor of the Atlantic cable.

New York, Jan. 3.—Of the scientific advances effected within the last 12 months perhaps those in electricity are the most notable. Prominent among them are the perfecting of two storage batteries whose lightness especially adapts them to the operation of automobiles. Pupin's system of promoting long distance telephony and new applications of wireless telegraphy. Whatever may be thought of Marconi's attempt to establish communication between Europe and America, this much is certain; The reporting of incoming steamships several hours earlier than was practicable a year ago is alone an innovation of great practical value. Inasmuch as Pupin's invention has not been put into service, one cannot well estimate its utility with accuracy at present, But the handsome price paid for it by the Bell company is significant testimony, to say the least. Again, concerning Cooper Hewitt's vapor lamp and the outcome of the German experiments with an alternating current for traction, it is too soon to speak with confidence.

Koch's announcement of his belief that tuberculosis is not transmissable from cattle to mankind was the most momentous incident of the year in the realm of sanitation. The suggestion has not been very favorably received, but it has re-opened for further consideration an exceedingly important question. Gaylord's alleged discovery of the germ of cancer needs confirmation. So does Novy's invention of a new way to fight intestinal disease. But while the former involves merely the cause of a malady, the latter promises a cure, and hence should prove more serviceable. There has of late been an increased use of electricity for therapeutic purposes, and a growing faith in the responsibility of the mosquito for the dissemination of yellow fever and malaria. Both, however, date back of the year now closed.

The recent wonderful discovery of the Chicago professor, regarding human life, is now attracting attention. It is believed that the secret of life and death is about to be disclosed.

PHILIPPINE PROBLEM BOTHERING UNCLE SAM

It is Said That The Islands Will Never be Conquered.

Proposal to Hold the Sea Ports Only and Starve Them Out

Washington, Jan. 3.—The leading papers take a very doleful view of the situation in the Philippine Islands. An ultimatum must be reached sooner or later. Already the islands and their incidents have cost the country nearly $[illegible],000,000. How long the people will consent to pay out a half million of dollars every day to prolong this experiment in imperial colonialism is an unguessable conundrum. But that they will tire of it eventually is certain.

What are we doing in the islands, anyhow? Certainly we are not pacifying them with despatch and decorum. True, every once in a while the accommodating typewriter of the authorities over there announces that "the war is over," but before the typewritten assurance gets fairly afloat the cable brings news that the furtive and pugnacious Filipinos have bobbed up in a fresh locality and boloed a platoon of their pacificators. Forty thousand soldiers is the minimum force that so experienced and honest a fighter as General Chaffee considers adequate to maintain even the present guerilla campaigns in the islands. He does not venture to say how many would be needed to really hold the inhabitants in [illegible] and peace. The truth seems to be that we are to have war on our hands in the archipelago just as long as we seek to reduce it to subjection and to the processes of our policy of Americanization of the inhabitants.

Our experience is almost sure to be that of the Dutch in their conquest and possession of Java. At last we will have to abandon the government of the people to their own wills and methods, leave them to their own domestic customs, institutions, and pursuits, and ourselves hold only the seaports, whereby to profit by the trade and tribute that we can compel the natives to give to us alone. We can quarantine them against the world, and their only commerce must be with us. Beyond that we will always find it difficult, dangerous and disastrously expensive to go.

Thus far, if reliable reports have been made by our statesmen and soldiers who have been in the islands, we have made little progress in commending to the Filipinos our type of western civilization. We are slowly finding out for ourselves what the Spaniards, after three hundred years of effort, could have told us at first hand. A majority of those Malaysian tribes are undoubtedly as uncivilizable as the American Indians. The imposition upon them of the restraints and requirements of our civilization is the imposition of a bondage of death. It means the slower, perhaps, but equally sure extinction of the Filipinos as it did of the West Indian under Spain and the North American Indian under our own dominance. Instinctively the Filipinos resist the progress that they know will end in their destruction as a people. Turbulence, lawlessness and barbaric warfare must always attend our policy of [illegible] assimilation.

Nor are we entering upon a promising career of Christianization among them. The Roman Catholic friars, who are more adept in the art of converting the heathen to Christian formularies than we, have but a meager frontage to boast from their century long efforts with the Filipinos. Those of them who are professed Catholics are not eager candidates for our Protestant proselytism and those of them who adhere to the Mohammedan religion are likely to yield even less to our Western Christian cults than they have to the friars and the faith of Rome.

In the educational field we have begun with a system and an enthusiasm ridiculously in excess of the demands of the situation. Our plans are about on a par with those of an exuberant drummer trying to induce the tropical native into a suit of woolens. Waukenfast shoes an ulster, and a plug hat. Mr. Fred W. Atkinson, the American superintendent of education in the islands, makes a very futile report of his elaborate endeavours to set up the Massachusetts public school scheme in the archipelago. At the head of the Springfield High School, with ample means in control, with eager, intelligent, ambitious young Americans for material, Mr. Atkinson was conspicuous as an educational enterpriser. But in the Philippines he has run his nose against a hard proposition. A thousand American teachers, as inept in the environment to which they have been transplanted as polar bears would be in Florida, they are floundering about in discomforts and disgusts, yet fatuously trying to cram modern education into the Filipino kids according to the strict rules of Froebel, Pestalozzi and Horace Mann.

The civil governments which our academic commission are organizing appear to be fearfully and wonderfully devised to produce rather than reduce chaos. Their legislative features would give Solon a pain in the neck and cause Justinian a neuralgia under his bump of equity. The Filipino is a native of ingrained tribal traditions and practices, or else the truculent product of the Latin idea of absolutism in government. As a drilled and commendable citizen he is as imitative as a monkey and as repetitious as a parrot. Our effort to invest him with self-governing authority and a sense of democratic responsibility is a freakism that pales any proposition that ever blew off the prolific political prairies of Kansas. It is bound to end in abortions of government that will humiliate us in the eyes of the whole world.

What to do with this great brown elephant that we bought in at the Spanish bankrupt sale is a question that is now up to congress. The supreme court, as far as human apprehension can understand its deliverances, has said that congress, representing the legislative sovereignty of the nation, can adequately legislate the system that shall obtain in these island possessions. The question hangs yonder in the capitol, swaying between the magnetic poles of imperialism on one hand, and a probationary protectorate on the other hand. It challenges the American constitution and the American creed of liberty alike for a rational and just settlement. That settlement will affect our own system even as vitally as that of the Philippines, but what will it be? [illegible]

CASE OF BERTHA FREEBURN

Mrs. Miller Speaks of the Work of the Children's Aid

The following letter has been handed the Times by Mrs. F. W. Miller by request respecting the pitiable case of Bertha Freeburn, whose case appeals so strongly for charitable aid. Mr. and Mrs. Miller were in charge of the Children's Shelter, when the girl came to town and she was taken care of at that institution for a couple of weeks. They were surprised to hear a few days ago that the unfortunate girl was still confined in the gaol here, and not having been sent to an asylum or other institution where her case would have been properly attended to. A gentleman with considerable political influence had promised an officer of the Children's Aid that the girl would be removed to some institution and with that promise in view the Magistrate sentenced the girl to two years in a reformatory. The writer of the appended letter is one of the very few in town who are thoroughly conversant with the case, and knows what she is making public.

Sir,—While in the capacity of matron at the Children's Shelter it was my lot to witness some very sad sights at all hours of the night.

Its doors were opened to the unfortunate. Wives, turned on to the streets by husbands, found a shelter there, and, though it was only intended for a home for children, all were made welcome till other provision could be made for them. But the saddest case of all was that of Bertha Freeburn, who was brought in by the police late on Saturday night. Having no friends or no home she was taken in and made comfortable till other arrangements could be made for her. She remained there several weeks and during that time very few days passed without her having one or more fits, falling down sometimes on the stove and cutting herself. When she came to she was in a terrible condition, her face and hands being terribly burned by falling on a stove. She could not be left alone for any length of time. At times she would appear quite rational and considered herself of a great deal of importance. It would be impossible for any private person to have charge of her, as she was liable to take the fits at any time.

Truly, this is a case for Christian charity, as she has not a relative or friend in the world. We always understood she had been placed in an asylum, but were surprised a few weeks ago to find she was an inmate of the common gaol. I believe the Children's Aid Society are doing a nobler work than any other Christian organization, no one being turned from their doors. On one occasion two young women had walked from Bobcaygeon, and arrived penniless and hungry and, as no other organization would take them in, they were brought to the Shelter and provided for till they could obtain situations. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain,

MRS. F. MILLER.

DEMISE OF DAVID KNOX

After a Lingering Illness of Over a Year Mr. Knox Succumbs Yesterday

After an illness of a year or more Mr. David Knox, a prominent citizen of town passed away at his late residence on Queen St. yesterday morning. The deceased's ailment was a complication of diseases from which he was a great sufferer until his end came.

The late David Knox was born in the Township of Otonabee forty-eight years ago. About 15 years ago he went into business as manufacturer of soda water, in town, and by virtue of his thriving business ability he was most successful in that enterprise. While Mr. Knox did not identify himself in public work or took in any way to create a wide circle of friends, he was known throughout the district as an honest straight-forward business man, genial and kind, a devoted husband and parent.

There are left to mourn his death, a wife three daughters and a son, also a brother in Otonabee and one sister.

Mrs. Knox and the family will have the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their sad bereavement. The late Mr. Knox was a staunch Presbyterian and a member of St Paul's congregation.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 1.30 o'clock and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Irish Vote Still Powerful

Dublin, Jan. 3. — John E. Redmond, speaking at Sligo, denied that the power of the Irish in America was diminished. The Irish vote,"he said, was as powerful as ever. He declared it was calumnious to say that American sympathy for Ireland was based on the vote. Americans, asserted Mr. Redmond, were unanimously opposed to Great Britain's course in South Africa. The United States had not protested because it desired a diplomatic triumph regarding the Isthmian Canal.

A Scientific Voice Improver

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal chords, Catarrhozone cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes huskiness or hoarseness, thus insuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. Catarrhozone keeps the mucous surfaces in perfect condition, and its regular use absolutely prevents colds and throat irritation, thereby removing the singer's greatest source of anxiety, unfitness of voice. The most eminent speakers and Prima Donnas would not be without Catarrhozone and credit in no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone to its influence. The hard rubber inhaler fits conveniently into a purse or vest pocket, and may be used in the church, theatre, any place or time. Complete outfit, $1. Small size 25 cents. HUNDREDS SWEPT INTO SEA

Waterspout Bursts Over Town in Morocco Causing Big Disaster.

Tangier, Morocco, Jan. 3.—A waterspout has burst over the town of Saffe, Morocco. It inundated the lower part of the town for the space of twelve hours, sweeping everything into the sea. Two hundred persons are reported to have been drowned. There are no Europeans among the dead. The damage to Saffe is enormous.

Saffe is a fortified seaport town. It has a population of 12,000, including about 3,000 Jews. It is inclosed by massive walls, and has a palace and a small fort.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 3.—Twenty Japanese are missing from Steveston, and are supposed to have been killed or drowned in the destruction Thursday morning of a Japanese boarding-house between Steveston and Point Roberts. The house stood out on piles and not a vestige of the structure now remains. The house was two miles from Steveston, and it was impossible to reach it during the storm.

HOCKEY MATCH

First of the Season, Norwood vs. Peterboro—Victory for Norwood

The first hockey match of the season, took place in the Charlotte St. rink last night, when the Peterborough Colts and the Norwood team crossed sticks.

Both teams played good hockey and were loudly applauded by the spectators. No rough play was indulged in which made the game more pleasant for the players and all concerned.

The game was purely a practice match to bring out both teams. The teams lined up as follows.—

PETERBOROUGH

Cameron—Goal.
Hamilton—Point.
Lee—Cover Point.
Capt. Robinson, R. Armstrong, Parker, Kennedy—Forwards.

NORWOOD.

Fife—Goal.
C. Pearce—Capt.—Point.
Nicholl—Cover Point.
Pettigrew, Kemp, R. Pearce, Miller.—Forwards.

At half-time the score was 8-0 in favor of Norwood, and at the end of the game, 16-2 in favor of Norwood.

The Norwood team were a heavier team than the locals and their defeat last night should not be taken as a fore runner of defeat in their next match which comes off on Tuesday next with the Belleville Juniors.

In the second half the Colts seemed to waken things up and they threatened the goal many times.

We hope to see the score the other way when the match comes off next Tuesday.

FINE CONDITION OF INDIAN ARMY

Never Better Than To-Day, Says Commander-in-Chief

BOUNTIES TO THE SOLDIERS

Fourteen Thousand Have Already Accepted the Offer—Increasing the Efficiency of the Army

Simla, Jan. 2.—Sir Arthur, Commander-in-Chief of the forces in India, said not long ago that he had never, during all his years of Indian service, seen a finer army than that of to-day, and the truth of this estimate is confirmed by every officer of experience. The men have completely got over their liability to enteric fever and the other ailments which make such sad havoc amongst the ranks of the raw recruits. They are trained and hardened soldiers, who individually are worth a dozen immature striplings such as will, in course of time, be sent out to take their places. It would have been a thousand pities to lose such fine men from the army, and it is gratifying to see that steps have recently been taken to prevent this as far as possible. The Home and Indian Governments have jointly undertaken to offer bounties to the men whose time has expired, or nearly so, to serve on in order to complete twelve years with the Colors. The result of this offer has been most encouraging. Only men of approved character and physical fitness are allowed to accept the bounties, and of these some fourteen thousand have up to the present come forward. India will retain a large number of excellent soldiers, thoroughly seasoned to the climate, and the cost of the scheme in the end will be very trifling, as the expense of sending out recruits is very heavy, and they are of little use during their first two years in India.

EFFICIENCY OF ARMY

In other directions, also, much is being done for the greater efficiency of the army. The newly sanctioned transport scheme is rapidly being got into working order, promising arrangements for the encouragement of horse-breeding are being made, and the re-armament of the native army with the magazine rifle proceeds apace. Already the whole of the Field Army has been rearmed, and probably at least fifty thousand further magazine rifles will be distributed during the next six months. Meanwhile the needs of the artillery have not been overlooked. It is understood that, as a result of this, large orders for more modern artillery will be given next year. The mountain batteries are about to be re-armed with a much-needed breech-loading gun, and the equipment of the field batteries is to be brought more into line with modern requirements. All this, of course, will cost money—always a scanty commodity in India. But it will be possible to do a good deal with the savings resulting from the continued absence of a considerable proportion of the normal garrison in South Africa and elsewhere. The money will have to be found somehow; as, with the ever-present possibility of complications on or beyond the frontier, it will not do for India to lag behind in matters of modern equipment.

WEDDED IN CHATHAM

A Former Well Known Peterboro Boy Married in Chatham

The Chatham Banner, News publishes the following which is of local interest,—

"A pretty event took place at noon on Christmas day at the home of the bride's parents, Head street, when Hester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilmore, was united in marriage to George Y. Payne, of Detroit.

The Rev. T. T. George, pastor of the Victoria avenue Methodist church, was the officiating clergyman.

The bride looked charming in a dress of pale green albatross, with point lace trimmings. She was attended by her sister Sarah, who was prettily attired in pink silk organdy, trimmed with applique and baby ribbon.

The groom was assisted by his cousin, Robert Logie, of Northville, Mich.

The spacious drawing rooms were tastefully decorated with palms and other plants.

After the ceremony the guests to the number of about fifty sat down to a sumptuous repast. The presents were costly and numerous, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

The happy young couple left on the 4.23 G. T. R. for the west, amid the good wishes of their many friends. After the return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Payne will take up their residence in Detroit."

Mr. Israel Payne, Aylmer St. is father of the groom.

The many friends of the groom, in town and surrounding country, will extend their hearty congratulations and best wishes.

STRANGE ESCAPE FROM A WRECK

William Fitzgerald was Hurled 100 Feet Into a Snowdrift

RUSHED DOWN THE MOUNTAIN

Train Started at Terrific Speed—Saw Engine Topple Over Several Times

Middleton, N.Y., Jan. 3.—After having been hurled nearly one hundred feet from a railroad train into a field and escaping injury, William Fitzgerald thirteen years old, tells a remarkable story of the terrible wreck on the Scranton branch of the Ontario and Western Railroad in which four men were killed. It was believed that there was not a soul left to throw any light on the cause of the accident until this youth appeared.

Fitzgerald says he was on the tank of the engine stealing a ride when the train started at a terrific speed down the mountain grade. He saw Millard, the fireman, rush from the engine and assist Budd and Duffy, trainmen, in setting the brakes. They had been so engaged only a few moments when the tank in which he was riding seemed to be lifted up bodily, and he was hurled one hundred feet into an adjoining field, falling in a snow drift and escaping injury. Young Fitzgerald saw the tender of the engine leave the rails, topple over several times, followed by forty-four loaded gondolas of coal.

The lad's theory of the wreck, which the company believes to be correct, is that the high speed of the train on the down grade caused one of the flanges to burst after rounding a curve.

A LITTLE THING.

Changes the Home Feeling.

Coffee blots out the sunshine from many a home by making the mother, or some other member of the household dyspeptic, nervous and irritable. There are thousands of cases where the proof is absolutely undeniable. Here is one.

Mrs. C. K. Larzalere, Antigo, Wis., says, "I was taught to drink coffee at an early age, and also at an early age I became a victim to headaches, and as I grew to womanhood these headaches became a part of me, as I was scarcely ever free from one.

About five years ago a friend urged me to try Postum Food Coffee. I made the trial and the result was so satisfactory that we have used it ever since.

My husband and little daughter were subject to billious attacks, but they have both been entirely free from them since we began using Postum instead of coffee. I no longer have any headaches and my health is perfect.

If some of these nervous, tired, irritable women would only leave off coffee absolutely and try Postum Food Coffee, they would find a wonderful change in their life. It would then be filled with sunshine and happiness rather than weariness and discontent. And think what an effect it would have on the family, for the mood of the mother is largely responsible for the temper of the children."

GREAT BRITAIN SAID TO BE LOSING GROUND

This is What Some People Pretend and Also Profess to Believe

THE SUBJECT AS VIEWED BY AN AMERICAN

Who Says That Britain Will Soon Take Third Position in the World's Trade—Reforms are Urgently Needed

London, Jan. 3.—There is a large and ever increasing number of thoughtful and well informed people in Great Britain who express the serious belief that if radical changes do not come about in the near future the United Kingdom will be relegated to the third position in the ranks of the world's trade and commerce.

This statement is made by United States Consul Boyle, at Liverpool, in his annual report, extracts from which were made public to-day by the State Department. It is conceded, says Consul Boyle, that in manufactures Great Britain within the last few years has failed to meet the competition of the United States and Germany. Mr. Boyle says the optimistically inclined plead exceptional and marvellous natural advantages as far as the United States is concerned, while as to Germany's fierce competition, the unsatisfactory financial and commercial situation now prevailing in that Empire is cited as an instance of a country [illegible] itself too rapidly. The cry of "something must be done," says the Consul, is going up from commercial bodies, political speakers, economic writers and from the newspapers. There are fears expressed, says Mr. Boyle, that even in the carrying trade the supremacy of Great Britain is threatened. When the war in South Africa is over, he says, there is certain to be a popular demand for legislative action, and the indications are that the British Government will be compelled to give more earnest consideration to matters relating to trade and commerce.

ADVOCATES OF FAIR TRADE.

There is a strong sentiment among the masses of Great Britain, and one which appears to be gaining strength as time goes on, in favor of bringing about what has become popularly known as "fair trade," and which, says Mr. Boyle, is nothing but reciprocity. Protection per se, he says is not very much advocated, but it is significant that many of the most widely circulated papers of Great Britain now are boldly advocating a policy of "fair trade," or "do to others as they do to you." Against this sentiment, however, the Consul says, must be set the national dislike to change established institutions, of which free trade is one of the most fundamental.

In regard to educational reforms in the United Kingdom, Mr. Boyle says that the universally acknowledged inferiority of Great Britain to most of the leading nations, particularly the United States and Germany, is given frequently as one of the chief reasons why Great Britain is being outstripped in her manufactures. The subject of education, he says, is a very thorny one in England, owing principally to the fact that there are two systems of management—one the board school management (similar to the American public school system) and the denominational management. Efforts are now making by the respective authorities to secure uniformity of methods and results, while raising the standard at the same time.

ENGLISH WORKMEN SLOW.

A particularly interesting portion of Consul Boyle's report is that wherein he places the American and the British workmen side by side, in a comparison which places the American far to the fore. English manufacturers he says, find it almost impossible to get the same amount of product from machines as is obtained in America. There are two reasons for this, says Mr. Boyle. First, the average British workman is not as adaptable as the American, and does not so readily get command of new appliances, and, second, that it is not the custom of the country for an Englishman, whether mechanic, clerk or laborer, to work as hard as an American. Then, too, states Mr. Boyle, the English workman is inclined to split very fine hairs; he will often refuse to do anything outside a certain line rigidly laid down by the custom of his craft generally, and by his trade union in particular. As an example of this trait, Mr. Boyle cites a number of instances, where strikes have been brought on by such an apparently trivial dispute as to whether engineers or shipwrights should place an electric dynamo in position. Quite recently, in a seaside town, there was a strike of teamsters because their employer refused to discharge an enterprising driver who had whipped up his horse and made a journey to a neighboring town three hours quicker than they themselves had been accustomed to "do" the distance.

The small extent to which up-to-date labor saving machinery is used in Great Britain, as compared with America, and even Germany, Mr. Boyle says, is just now a fruitful topic of discussion. English manufacturers, he says, are handicapped by reason of their employment of antiquated plants. The rule in England, says the Consul, is for a plant or machine not to be replaced until it is absolutely worn out. The question is, he says, "Will it do?" not, "Can it be improved?"

"In the meantime," says Consul Boyle in closing his report, "now is the time for American manufacturers to get a stronger foothold in this country."

Plot by Russia and Turkey

London, Jan. 3.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says he has received from Dr. Ular, a well known authority on Chinese affairs, an important communication based on confidential documents. These give evidence that events in China during the last few years were not only foreseen, but even prepared, with a view to the execution of a great political scheme for the establishment of Russia's preponderance in the far East. The documents consist of a code telegram from the Taotai at Canton to his son, the chief manager of the telegraph office at [illegible], near the Russian frontier; a letter in Chinese from the same writer to the same address, and an inclosure in Russian, destined for a high Russian official of the Amur district. The documents clearly prove an agreement between China and Russia before the beginning of the Boxer outbreak. The agreement may not have been a formal treaty, but its effect was the same. The Times says: "Prince 'Wan' mentioned in the documents, [illegible] Prince [illegible], a Russian statesman, 'Bao' is presumably M. Vongret, formerly in the employ of the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs service, under Sir Robert Hart, and now holding a high position in the Russo-Chinese Bank. '[illegible]' is presumably [illegible], the Russian commander on the Mongolian border. The alleged bargain was that the Boxer movement was to be encouraged, that Russia would protect the Dowager Empress against the vengeance of powers, and in return Russia was to be allowed to occupy Manchuria and Mongolia."

Malt Breakfast Food

Take the whole range of cereal foods now on the market, from ordinary oatmeal to the more pretentious preparations with fancy names to recommend them, not one will be found that can furnish a really appetizing and delicious breakfast dish.

Malt Breakfast Food truly deserves the title of "the delicious breakfast food." The first spoonful so captivates the taste of young and old that it immediately becomes the chosen breakfast food of the family. Pure Malt gives to Malt Breakfast Food a snap and delicate flavor that is unknown to other foods. It also adds nutritious virtues that simple wheat preparations lack. One package of Malt Breakfast Food contains more solid nutriment than is found in ten packages of any other food. Your Grocer sells it.

Long Distance Transmission of Electric Energy.

MANY municipalities throughout Ontario have to import electric energy for street lighting and for other purposes. Orillia, which gets its power from Ragged Rapids, and Lindsay, are two examples of this. The following from Harper's Weekly tells of the operation of the world's greatest long-distance power transmission:—

White Coal.

The "farthest north" in big and bold electrical engineering has been touched in California, foreshadowing in a striking way the coming of an age when, all the black-coal fields exhausted, the world will have to live upon [illegible] resources of "white coal"—the latent energy of its foaming cascades and waterfalls. A glance at the map of California shows, far to the north-east of San Francisco bay, in the counties of [illegible] and Nevada, the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] power-houses [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] of the State. The [illegible] upon the roof of the [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible], [illegible] it has [illegible] the rivers [illegible] finally through the [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] is constituted to give up this energy to whirling water-wheels and dynamos which by means of transformation deliver currents to points two hundred miles apart. From the remarkable power-house at Colgate, on the North Yuba River, circuits run, not merely to Oakland, a distance of one hundred and forty-two miles, but further southward again to San Jose, forty-two miles more, making an actual transmission of power in bulk, over single wires, two hundred and eighty-four miles. Indeed, by the time this article appears, the lines swinging around the southern curve of the San Francisco peninsula to [illegible] and [illegible] will have been put in operation also, making a grand total of two hundred and fourteen miles from the humming generators contained in the gorge at the foot of the Sierras.

An Early Experiment.

When, as recently as 1896, the writer secured the use of the Western Union wires to New York to bring a homeopathic dose of current from Niagara to New York to energize a small model at the Electrical Exhibition in the Grand Central Palace, not a few well-informed people strove to dissuade him from the foolish purpose. The main high-tension circuits to-day of the Bay Counties system are over five hundred miles in length, and their lines, if all strung together, would reach from Seal Rocks to Coney Island, full three thousand miles.

The Colgate power plant stands on the north bank of the canyon of the North Yuba River, just where the famous old Missouri War trail crosses from bank to bank. The water is brought to the crest of the cliff above the power house by means of a timber flume seven and one-half miles long, drawing its supply from the impounded waters farther up the canyon. It can carry 32,000 cubic feet of water per minute. This flume is seven feet wide, six feet deep, and, with a descent of thirteen feet to the mile, winds tortuously around the gorge, following the contour of the mountains, until it reaches the big penstock of masonry, from which, at a right angle, five anchored iron and steel pipes, dipping downward, then convey the water headlong to the receivers and turbines at the foot of the steep incline, seven hundred feet below. To those who are accustomed to the lower "heads" of eastern water powers, this fall affords a big drop, Niagara giving a bare two hundred feet at its best point, but Colgate is by no means the most sensational of the Californian plants in the prospect.

The Colgate Power-house.

The power-house at Colgate is larger than it looks, for the five pipes are each thirty feet in diameter, as they come to the back door, and the structure is two hundred and seventy-five feet long by forty feet in width. It contains seven generating units of a total of 15,000 horse-power, the Risdon water-wheels being Californian make, while the three-phase alternating-current dynamos hail from the works of the Stanley Electric Manufacturing Co. in quiet Pittsfield, Mass. Three of the large dynamos are of 2,250 horse-power each, and are doubtless the largest for the purpose driven [illegible] connection to a water-wheel. The larger units in the plant make 286 revolutions per minute, and generate a current at 2,400 volts, which would be of little use in driving it to the destination so many leagues away. But auxiliary appliances known as transformers raise the pressure to 40,000 and 60,000 volts, or twice and three times as much as the highest transmission pressure used at Niagara.

The pole lines or circuits that carry the electric current are among the most interesting features of the whole installation, not only on account of the distance traversed and the nature of the country but the high potential that has been resorted to, so that small wires may be used. Colgate is nothing more nor less than a nerve centre, and the electric thrills that go tingling from the ganglion are already carrying impulses in some two score different directions, with such instantaneous control that when a stout lady gets on a trolley-car at Oakland the generating set in the Yuba Gorge, one hundred and fifty miles off, with immediate responsiveness, sends out just a little more current to give the car an ability equal to its increased burden. To be exact, no fewer than forty-one of these circuits radiate from the Colgate plant, which, to change the simile, might be compared by any one who looks down upon its transmitting network from the encircling hills to a spider at the heart of its glistening web of copper and aluminum filaments.

A Great Pole Line.

One pole line may be noted as an example, that which runs in duplicate, over hill and dale, to Oakland, the dormitory of San Francisco—a double aerial track of three wires on each pole for current-flashing at 40,000 and 60,000 volts, or, say, nearly 600 times the pressure in the incandescent lamps or fan motors in daily use at the consumption end. The poles are big Oregon cedar sticks, ranging up to sixty feet in height, and the wires are held on them widely wide apart in an equilateral triangle thirty-six inches on a side, on special porcelain insulators. These circuits are of copper, but aluminum is also used, and with great success.

These pole lines carry also telephone wires for the service of the plant, and represent the utmost reach of American skill in such construction, but they are again eclipsed by the unique and mighty span of circuit that leaps across the deep and swift waters of the famous Carquinez Strait. For various reasons it would have been unwise to lay submarine power cables here on the hard and triturating bed of the bay, so with genuine daring the engineers flung their wires across, high in air, in a gigantic curve that is no less than 4,446 feet between the supporting towers, while the actual distance between anchorages and the two banks of the strait is one and one-fifth miles. The circuit is carried more than 200 feet from the surface of the water.

Many other items of importance might be noted, but surely enough has been said to indicate that with the work of the Bay Counties Power Company in California begins another epoch in the great era of power transmission on the grand scale opened up a brief decade ago at Niagara.

The Neepawa Electric Light and Telephone Service.

The town of Neepawa, Manitoba, bought out the electric light plant and put in a telephone service in connection with it. After operating this municipal service for more than than a year, the following figures are given by the Neepawa Register, showing receipts and expenditures up to Nov. 30. There are 1,[illegible] incandescent lights installed, which, with the street lights, make a total of 1,[illegible], while the number of telephones in use is 120. The figures are:

RECEIPTS.
Incandescent lighting	$4,404.32
Street lighting	1,[illegible]
Telephones	2,[illegible]
Total	$7,[illegible]
EXPENSES
Wood	$2,000.00
Oils	175.57
Salaries	2,130.82
Insurance	100.30
Repairs, etc.	268.18
Incidentals	271.80
Interest	1,050.00
	$5,[illegible]
Leaving a profit of	$2,016.37

This will pay the interest due last year, $720; sinking fund last year, $[illegible]; and the same for this year. The Register says in the above figures the expenditures are included up to the end of the year, so that really the profits will be about $[illegible] larger than have shown. And Neepawa expects to do better next year.

The telephone rates in that town are $20 a year for business places and $12 for private houses. These municipalities are fortunate which can secure possession of such utilities and manage them for the public good.

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder has proved a blessing to many a "man before the public" in cases of hoarseness, bad throat, tonsilitis and catarrh. Some of the most recent evidence of its efficacy comes from a well-known actor, whose home is in New York City. He says: "I have never found anything to equal this remedy for quick relief." 50 cents.—127

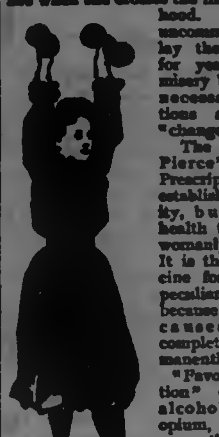
TOO MUCH

Exercise is as bad as too little for the growing girl. It is very easy for her to overdo, and this is especially dangerous at that critical period of a young girl's life when she crosses the line of womanhood.



It is not an uncommon thing to lay the foundation for years of after misery by neglect of necessary precautions at the first "change of life."

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only establishes regularity, but it gives health to the entire womanly organism. It is the best medicine for diseases peculiar to women because it cures the causes of disease completely and permanently.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine nor any other narcotic. It cannot disagree with the most delicate constitution.

"For a number of months I suffered with female trouble," writes Miss Agnes McGowne, of 1112 Bank Street, Washington, D. C. "I tried various remedies, but none seemed to do me any permanent good. The doctors said it was the worst case of internal trouble they ever had. I decided to write to you for help. I received a very encouraging reply and commenced treatment at once. I had not used your 'Favorite Prescription' a week before I began to feel better, and, as I continued, my health gradually improved, and is improving every day."

ASTHMA
EVERY [illegible] BRINGS RELIEF.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

DRS. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO.:

Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which combine with asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows at 130th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully,

O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit.

"Good night!" The young man took her hand eagerly, yet, as it were, reverently. "I'm jolly glad the world is small, for then, perhaps, I may meet you again, and—thank you so much for your kindness. Good-night!"

With a hurried gesture he released her hand, and the next moment he had walked quickly down the street, and was out of sight.

"I'm glad she didn't know what my other arrangements were," he thought, with a mixture of pride and bitter disappointment, as he went. "Would she despise me for having to sleep out in the fields all night? Not she!"—with a resolute shake of the head—"she is as beautiful as a princess; and she is proud, too; but she has a heart with all that, and, unless I'm very much mistaken, she'd be jolly sorry for any fellow in such a hole as I am in now. What does Smythe mean by lying to me like this? Is he playing me false? Is he going to do me a second time? Well"—with a grim look creeping over the frank face—"I'm desperate now, and I shan't stand any more nonsense, as he will find. He'll come down here sure to-morrow, and if he doesn't, well, I must get back to town somehow and search till I find him, as find him I will. Fancy that lovely creature being in the same house with such a scoundrel as Gordon Smythe! It sounds awful, positively awful; and she thought of my comfort, and gave me her hand, her small, pretty hand. Thank Heaven, I have no sin or dishonor on my conscience. If I had done anything to have been ashamed of, I could not have put my hand in hers, no, not for all the gold that could be offered me, and that's saying a good deal just now."

He paused as he passed a small inn, and looked rather wistfully in at the clean, sanded floor, and bright bar, then, with a resolute shake of the shoulders, passed on.

"I can do without anything," he muttered; "and a night in the fields won't hurt me. It will be like old times, when Paddy and I used to lie in the heather for hours at a time, with the guns, in the good old days. Ah, me! the good old days, will they ever come again, I wonder?"

Katharine stood at the gate, watching the young man vanish in the summer twilight, with a new and altogether inexplicable interest rousing in her heart. Then letting the latch click she walked back up the path, stooped for her basket and approached the door, still in the same thoughtful way.

"He looked very troubled, and seemed so tired, I wish I had asked him in to rest; Cousin Lucy would have gladly welcomed him, since he is an acquaintance of Gordon's."

Sarah was waiting just inside the door.

"Have you met the mistress, Miss Katharine?" she asked, in a somewhat flustered and semi-cross manner. Katharine looked surprised.

"Is Mrs. Smythe out, Sarah? I did not know it; perhaps she has gone to Dr. Westerley's. I will go and meet her."

"Better come and talk to me," broke in a man's voice from the small sitting-room. It was a quiet, slow, almost musical voice, but Katharine derived no pleasure from hearing it.

She stood in the hall, and let her eyes rest on her cousin's form, lounging luxuriously in the most comfortable chair, an expensive cigar between his white teeth, and a brandy-and-soda on the table at his side.

"Gordon—then you are here!" was all she could say, surprised, bewildered and distressed, though why or how she could not properly have told, except that the distress seemed vaguely mingled with the interest for the young man just gone.

"Yes, I am here, Cousin Katharine. Have you no welcome for me?"

Mr. Smythe lifted himself out of his chair and came toward her as he spoke, a look of bold admiration expressed on his dark, handsome face, as he calmly surveyed the girl's delicate beauty.

"I am always glad to see you here, Gordon," she answered, coldly, "for your mother's sake." Then moving to the window to escape his very steadfast gaze, "Does she know you are come?"

A fierce gleam of passionate anger flashed across Gordon Smythe's face. Katharine's indifference and dislike were simply maddening to a nature so vain and self-glorious as his. With a reckless gesture he flung his cigar into the empty grate, and drank off the remains of the brandy-and-soda; then he followed the girl to the open window that overlooked the garden that stretched at the back.

"I really don't know, Kattie," he said, putting one arm on the window-ledge and staring down at her face, that seen without her hat was even more lovely than before; "and I was going to say I don't care, but I suppose you will be very shocked at that; eh, my cousin?"

"You know as well as I do whether it is right to say such things," Katharine returned very boldly.

Then, as the hall door closed and Mrs. Smythe was heard entering, a sigh of relief broke from her lips, and moving away quickly, she let the mother run in to welcome her son, but not before she had caught a glimpse of the scowl which had come to Gordon's face, and noticed how angry his eyes had grown with a curious, vindictive anger.

She was half way up the narrow, old-fashioned staircase to her own room, when an impulse seemed to strike her, and she went down slowly again.

"Sarah," she said, standing in the tiny, spotless kitchen, "Sarah, what made you tell that gentleman an untruth just now?"

Sarah's hard, honest face flushed.

"And, indeed, Miss Katharine, it weren't my fault, no how! Master Gordon was that firm, he quite frightened me, like; and when I came and told him that the young gentleman as he warned me about had been, miss, why, he up and swore most dreadful like; and glad I was his mother didn't hear him. There!—I can't abide bad [illegible] Miss Katharine.

"Evil ways!"

Katharine shivered unconsciously, and a curious nervousness fell on her as she went upstairs again—a nervousness born of the sensation that evil was close at hand!

CHAPTER II.

Pretty, faded Mrs. Smythe was in a perfect ecstasy of joy over her darling's delightful and unexpected appearance. She became perfectly radiant, and ran about hither and thither to gratify the slightest wish Gordon expressed.

Katharine, from the very first, had shown the young man her undisguised dislike and contempt for the calm way in which he accepted his mother's devotion, and permitted her to slave and tire herself out as she did perpetually. The girl always contrasted him with the memory of her father, gentle, chivalrous, manly, tender-hearted Robert Brereton, who would as soon have cut off his right hand as permit any woman, young or old, to be treated with any but the deepest respect and reverence. Had her father been brought in contact with Gordon Smythe, Katharine determined, with a thrill of pride and loyalty, the young fellow would have been given one lesson, at least, in manners, if not by words, then by other means less pleasant and more forcible.

Many and many a time Katharine had started to her feet to save the mother a journey upstairs or somewhere to fetch something that Gordon had languidly forgotten, and was pleased to require, and the disgust of her gray eyes, as she fulfilled her self-imposed mission, brought an angry flush to the man's handsome face.

On this evening she felt an unconquerable aversion to being in Gordon's company, even for a few moments; so, when Mrs. Smythe sent up word that supper was ready, she returned an affectionate message to the effect that her head ached, she was very tired, and had gone to bed.

The scowl deepened on Gordon's face as he heard this; he knew only too well what had sent the girl upstairs; but Mrs. Smythe was quite anxious.

"Katharine would go to Ralston's farm for the eggs and butter. I besought her not to. The heat has been tremendous to-day, and the dear child has been looking so pale lately," she murmured.

"Perhaps the dear child wants employment," Gordon said, with a sneer. "You treat your penniless protegee too well, mother."

Mrs. Smythe looked distressed. She never quite understood her son in this mood.

"Oh! Katharine is the best and dearest girl in the world, and as you know, my darling, she is not quite penniless. Robert left her that fifty pounds a year." Mrs. Smythe paused a little, and then said, timidly, "I am sorry, dear one, that you do not like Katharine; but you must not be jealous of her, Gordon; you know much as I care for her, she can never—never take your place!"

"Oh, I know all about that nonsense!" was Gordon's rough and curt reply.

He turned his attention to his supper, but his thoughts were all on Katharine. Accustomed as he was to conquest and flattery, her contempt and disgust for him were as inexplicable as they were disagreeable; it was wonderful how it haunted him. Even when he was miles away, in the roar and bustle of London, this girl's lovely face was always before him, stirring his passion into being—love, as love is understood, being altogether absent from such a nature as Gordon's—and waking the worst of his bad feelings into active and revengeful anger.

It had been with a great shock that Katharine realized the admiration her beauty had awakened in Gordon's breast, and if he had been odious to her before, he was doubly so now that she felt the fierce passion of his eyes rest on her. Young as she was, she was woman enough to define how poor a thing was the feeling that he would designate as love, and loathing him as she did, she would sooner have slain herself than have permitted herself to listen to his addresses.

"It will go to my heart to leave Cousin Lucy," she said to herself as she paced to and fro in her little room, "but go I must. Ledstone is too small a place to hold Gordon and me. How ungrateful, how unkind it seems to hate the son of the woman who has given me such deep, true love! There is nothing on earth I would not do for Lucy Smythe, but he"—she shuddered and her cheeks colored vividly—"his very presence seems an insult to me. How different to my dear father, how different to that bright, frank-faced other one." Katharine paused at the open window. "Strange," she mused dreamily, "I have only spoken a few words to him. I may perhaps never see him again, yet I feel I could trust and honor that man as much as I honored my father—and I told him an untruth," a shade fell over her face, "and perhaps added to his difficulties, for that he is in trouble I am quite certain. Well, I spoke what I imagined was true. I had no thought of Gordon coming to-night. I wish"—Katharine's sweet red lips were compressed a little—"I wish," she said to herself very slowly, "he had not come for Gordon; it distresses me. I feel as if a dark shadow were hanging over us—a shadow that will not be lifted."

Then with a broken sigh and a half-impatient gesture, as though at her own folly for thinking this, Katharine left the window, and having knelt down and said her prayers, rested her beautiful head on her pillow, and was soon asleep and in dreamland.

But in all her dreams none came to warn her of the dark shadow that was even then creeping, slowly but surely over her life.

* * *

The factory bells ringing out shrilly at five o'clock woke Katharine from her slumber; that was one of the Ledstone customs to which she had never got habituated. The morning was so lovely that she determined to dress and go out, urged by the fact that the old, uncomfortable, troubled thoughts of the night before had come back, and that the fresh air might help to dispel them, better than a vain attempt to woo more sleep.

She stole very slowly down the stairs into the garden, which—having picked a bunch of roses—she soon left, and with a pat and a smile of consent to Carlo, the old fox terrier, to join her in her walk, turned down the street toward the old walls and country lanes. A busy hum of machinery greeted her ear as she went, and every now and then she met a factory hand who dropped a respectful curtsey to her gentle morning greeting. There was not a soul in Ledstone who did not like and admire Katharine Brereton.

OF

THE NORTH AMERICAN OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Incorporated under the laws of Wyoming.

Location of Property, Acton, California.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent.
General Office, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Branch Offices, Los Angeles, California, and 150 Nassau St., New York City.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

E. A. Sunderlin, President, Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Joseph H. Parker, Vice President and Gen Mgr., Los Angeles, California.
Geo. A. Cockburn, Secretary and Treasurer Colorado Springs, Colorado.
Frank S. Livingston, Los Angeles, California.
F. L. Sherwin, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

INTRODUCTION

The North American Oil & Refining Company invites the public to investigate its proposition and for the purpose of explaining its plans and describing its property this prospectus is issued.

The petroleum industry of California is becoming so vast and so well known that it is not deemed necessary to give any statistics in this pamphlet concerning the industry in general. If any person desires to obtain such information they may call at our offices or address us by mail, and we will gladly furnish any data or reading matter of a general nature that may be desired.

As to Organization

The exceptionally favorable and hearty reception given the announcement of the organization of the North American Oil & Refining Co. has been a source of extreme gratification to the management of this company, and is but another evidence of what a combination of business integrity, capacity, experience, capital, and unvarying success, such as has followed the business career of those gentlemen whose names appear as Officers and Directors of this new Corporation, can easily accomplish in the direction of commanding the confidence and endorsement of successful, shrewd, and experienced men, representing the most important financial and commercial interests.

The phenomenal sale of this Company's stock from the moment it was placed on the market, readily determined the absolute confidence of its friends and the general public in the property owned, its promising profit paying productive power, and its progressive, economical, and thoroughly business like and successful management, by men of experience in oil development.

Incorporation

The Company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares, par value one cent per share, the incorporation having been effected under the laws of Wyoming, and the stock being all common issue (no preferred stock), absolutely full paid and forever non-assessable. The incorporation laws of Wyoming are peculiarly favorable to all enterprises, and the par value of the stock has been fixed at one cent per share in order to avoid the excessive revenue tax paid on stocks of a high par value.

It has placed upon the market a block of [illegible] shares of Treasury stock, which is offered at the nominal price of Ten cents per share, fully paid. As soon as this block is disposed of, the next offering for sale will be advanced to such price as existing conditions then warrant.

Liabilities.

The Company has no debts; all stock is fully paid and non-assessable. There are no stockholder's liabilities. The land is owned by the Company and it is PAID FOR. We have no royalties to pay for any purposes.

Acton White Oil Field.

The Acton White Oil Field lies about [illegible] miles north of Los Angeles, running parallel with the Southern Pacific Ry. The Newhall Oil Field is divided into several smaller fields or sections, each bearing different names, so as to distinguish one section from the other. To begin with, there is the upper Newhall field and the lower Newhall field. In the lower field is Rice Canon district, Wiley Canon district, Pico Canon district, Towsley and Temple district. The grade of oil found in the lower Newhall district is of 40 degrees gravity. In the upper Newhall field is the famous Placerites Canon district and the Acton district.

The grade of oil found in the upper Newhall field is of 47 degrees gravity. It sells for $4.00 per barrel, and is as clear as water when it comes from the wells. It can be used for illuminating or in gasoline engines, the same as refined distillate. In this part of the field, are the only white oil wells in the known world.

In this field The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land. West of the North American Oil & Refining Co.'s property is the Iola Oil Co., Pioneer White Oil Co., C. O. O. P. Co., the famous New Century Oil Co., (having struck a 600 bbl. white oil gusher) Hermosa White Oil Co., Overman & Parks, Placerita White Oil Co., besides numerous smaller companies and individual wells. All of the above named are producers of 47 degrees gravity oil. All other wells in the field are in the lower Newhall and produce 40 degrees gravity oil.

This field has been distinguished by the State Mineralogist as the oldest and the best known oil fields on the Pacific Coast. (X-Report Page [illegible]).

The first well was bored in the Newhall field in [illegible], and has been a constant producer to the present day. The wells of the entire field extending for some 8 miles east and west, and four miles north and south have proven of remarkable longevity, and the first well is probably the longest lived of any in the world. The permanency of these wells can well be understood when it is considered that the oil strata varies from [illegible] to [illegible] feet in thickness. The great secret of success in the oil industry is the securing of permanent wells. The average life of oil wells in Pennsylvania in its palmy days, is stated by Wm. Wright, in "Oil Regions of Pennsylvania" to have been eighteen months. California wells have been vastly better, but none have equalled those of the Newhall locality in stability and permanency.

This district has been producing oil for over a quarter of a century. The Pacific Coast Oil Company, operating in this district, has paid its stockholders [illegible], and has recently sold its property to the Standard Oil Co. for several million dollars.

Market.

The entire Newhall field produces oil given by the State Mineralogist as 40 to 47 degrees gravity. This oil is now refined at San Francisco. This being high refining oil it practically has the world for a market, and will never be subject to the fluctuations that affect fuel oil. There is a vast new market for refined oils, that will be controlled by California, consisting of the Pacific Coast of North America and South America, Asia, and Australia. Oils are now shipped in large quantities to these places, and the demand is constantly increasing.

These light grades of oil are worth to-day [illegible] to $4.00 per barrel on the field, nearly 10 times the price of fuel oil. When the difference in the price and stability of the market are considered it will be readily seen that our proposition possesses merits far beyond the ordinary propositions that are now being handled in Southern California. The North American Oil & Refining Co. intends when conditions warrant to erect a refinery to handle the product of the Newhall-Acton-Placerites Field, as well as to develop the holdings of the company.

Our Lands.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. owns [illegible] acres of white oil land in the upper Newhall district, known as the Acton White Oil Field. The land has been carefully selected by the Company's engineer, Joseph H. Parker, in conjunction with four of the best oil experts in California, whose reputations as oil experts are well known throughout the State.

The geological formation is perfect, the Anticlinal passing through the entire property, and being unbroken by granite formations.

The North American Oil & Refining Co.'s lands are in a line with and on the same strike as properties already developed and yielding splendid returns. This section is underlaid by a subterranean reservoir of natural petroleum of 40 to 47 degrees gravity, as is proven by the wells on the adjoining property.

Maps and Reports.

The Company has on file, in its office, full and complete reports with maps and field notes of all its lands, made by its engineer, J. H. Parker. Details of these are too lengthy to embody in this prospectus, but can be seen any time at the Company's office.

The Directors call special attention to the map which will be sent on application. It has been drawn from actual surveys and personal inspection of the land and is accurate. The Company's lands are distinctly shown as well as their relation to other oil lands and the location of oil wells, oil seepages and oil springs. A careful inspection of the map will aid prospective investors to judge of the probability of oil under the Company's lands.

Refining and Storage.

The North American Oil & Refining Co. proposes to engage in the business of refining oil, and in connection with a refinery intends to construct storage tanks for the purpose of storing oil for individuals and corporations, charging therefor the customary rate per barrel. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of suitable land in Los Angeles upon which it is intended in the future an up-to-date refinery and storage tanks will be constructed and operated. The profits accruing from both enterprises will be considerable.

Shipping Facilities.

The Company's lands lay from one-half to two miles from the railroad, and a pipe line can be laid from any part of the field to the railway, which will eliminate the cost of and inconvenience in using tanks and wagons.

Facts Not to be Overlooked.

1st. [illegible] acres of land in the "Oldest and best known oil field in the State."
2nd. Land owned by Company and paid for.
3rd. Stability and permanency of wells.
4th. Refining oil, 40 and 47 degrees gravity.
5th. Pacific Coast Of North America and South America, Asia and Australia for a market.
6th. 47 degrees gravity, white oil well within short distance of our land.
7th. One-half to two miles from railroad station.
8th. Pipe line to railroad.
9th. Wood and water on land.

General Conclusions.

The Company's manager, Mr. J. H. Parker, is regarded throughout the district as one of the most reliable oil experts in this country. He has spent a good deal of his time upon the Company's property, and is familiar by personal investigation with all the best oil fields of California. He states without reservation the showing of this property is better than any oil fields he has visited.

Stock Offering.

The Company now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of erecting a [illegible] barrel refinery, and sinking of wells. Active work has been started, and it is practically certain that oil in great quantity and exceptionally high quality will be found.

Stock is registered with The Colorado Title and Trust Company of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Canada's Wealth Surprises Great Britain

London, Jan. 1.—Canada is congratulated on the progress which she has exhibited during the past year. The fact that public deposits in Canadian banks amounted to four hundred million dollars is considered remarkable, and the Morning Post looks to the time when the fertile acres of the Dominion will solve the whole question of British food supply, which is the nightmare of so many unwise politicians in England.

Here, surely, says the Post, is room for British capital and energy to solve a problem [illegible] of the greatest importance to the internal development of the Dominion, but also in the welfare of the Empire as a whole. Its solution would be facilitated by the conspicuous loyalty of Canada, whereof so many examples have recently been afforded.

The Dominion Trading Stamp Co have closed their store on George St. for the present as a result of the by-law passed by the Town Council some months ago. The company have a test case in the Court of Appeal to decide whether the act respecting Trading Stamps etc. is valid, and they feel certain that the judgement will be in their favour.

A notice in their window states they have closed as a result of the by-law and are waiting the judgement of the court.

Benefit of Harry Lindley

Harry Lindley, Canada's popular comedian, who dates back to the period of the old Music Hall on the market, and who has since then intermittently provided food for laughter, up to the present day, has of late, been meeting with some set backs in his chequered career, and a large number of his Peterborough friends have offered him a benefit on Monday evening next.

No fewer than thirty of our own local favorite have kindly tendered their assistance. "Little Mystic" daughter of Mr. Lindley will appear here for the first time in the "Burglars; and also give some cake walk absurdities. Belle Nate will also dance. The prices will be put at the lowest limit, 10 and 15 cents, and the result will doubtless be a crowded house.

H. LE BRUN & CO'S GREAT RED LETTER MOVING SALE

Messrs. H. LeBrun & Co's Clothing Store was closed all day yesterday The reason for the closing was to afford an opportunity for marking the stock down for the firm's great Red-Letter Moving Sale, which starts this morning. The salesmen were busy all day labelling the stock with red tickets having the reduced prices marked in plain figures. This is LeBrun & Co's first great Clothing Sale of a similar importance in the history of their business, and what they do, they intend to do well, and to carry out everything they promise. It has been known for a some time that the building which the firm now occupy, has been sold, and that the purchasers require the premises for themselves. This means that LeBrun & Co. are forced to move, and this sale is the first step preparatory to moving. The present stock is a heavy one, amounting to $20,000, principally winter clothing, tailoring cloths, underwear and gents' furnishings. The character of LeBrun & Co's stock is well known to be high class, dependable, and good; and as the firm has enjoyed a large trade, the annual turn-over has been so heavy that there has been little chance for an accumulating of undesirable goods. Everything in the store has been reduced, some lines, the winter goods, especially, more than others. With such general bona fide reductions of high-class winter-clothing, etc., right in the severest part of the season, the public may depend upon securing most unusual chances.

Farewell Presentation

Miss Annie M. Smith, who has been a very active worker in connection with Mark street church was, on Thursday evening presented with a purse by her many friends in the different departments of the church work, who assembled for the purpose in large numbers at Miss Smith's home.

After some time had been spent in social intercourse, games, etc, the S.S. superintendent, Mr. M. W. Matchett, called the gathering to order, and read an address to Miss Smith, and at the proper time, Mrs. Wand, president of the W.M.S., presented her with a purse.

Short addresses were made by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Thompson, Mr. S. Taylor, Mr. M. Carton, Mr. R. S. Watson, Mrs. Wand, Mr. F. Whatley, Mr. C. Fisher, and others, all expressing regret at Miss Smith's departure.

Afterwards cake and coffee was served by the ladies, and the gathering broke up, after wishing Miss Smith a safe journey to her new home in Detroit.

The address was as follows:

Ashburnham, Jan. 2nd, 1902.

To Miss Annie M. Smith:

Dear Miss Smith,—A short time ago we learned with deep regret that you were soon to sever your connection with us at Mark street, and we felt that we could not let you depart without expressing our appreciation of the excellent services you have rendered in all the departments of our church work—in the church, the choir, the Sabbath School, the Epworth League and the W. M. Society.

We know that He for Whom the work was done will reward you, and we trust you will still be found laboring in another part of His vineyard.

We ask you to accept this purse as a slight token of our regard for you.

In conclusion, we wish you God's blessing, and a most happy and prosperous New Year. Signed:

Arthur Norman Mimms

Lindsay Post: After an illness of ten days Arthur Norman Mimms, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Mimms, Wellington street, passed away at the early age of 18 years and 11 months. The cause of death was muscular and inflammatory rheumatism, followed by an attack upon the heart and brain, which hastened death. The deceased was a bright young fellow and was a faithful employe of Robinson & Ewart. The flowers covering the casket were beautiful and comprised an anchor of roses, smilax and hyacinths from Robinson & Ewart, wreaths from the Baptist Y.P.S. C.E. and S. S., Miss Croly, Peterborough, Miss Galley, Toronto, and his three comrades. Mr. Rupert Donell, of Peterborough sent an anchor. The parents and brother and sister have the sincere sympathy of all in their sudden bereavement.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Effects a Cure After Failures of Physicians, Patent Medicines and Medicinal Springs

The Wonderful Victory Over a Terrible Disease Vouched for by One of Our Prominent Druggists.

If you are a sufferer from rheumatism in any of its terrible forms—muscular, inflammatory or sciatic, be assured of the glorious truth that Paine's Celery Compound will work for you a permanent and happy cure. The thousands of letters received from people who have thrown off their burdens and agonies prove conclusively that Paine's Celery Compound is the one great specific for this awful disease. The following letter from Mr. J. Leverington, of Virden, Man., and indorsed by Mr. J. W. Higginbotham, Druggist, of the same town, should convince all sufferers that the immediate use of Paine's Celery Compound is their only hope. Mr. Leverington says.

"For more than a year I was suffering from the agonizing pains of sciatica, and after trying all that medical skill could devise, and using many remedies, patent and otherwise, I concluded to try the Hot Springs at Banff, under the superintendence of a medical man. I took the treatment thoroughly and carefully for six weeks, and came home at the end of that time racked with pain and weighing 43 pounds less. At this juncture, when hope had almost fled, I heard of Paine's Celery Compound. It seemed suited to my case, and I sent to my druggist, Mr. J. W. Higginbotham, of this place, and asked about it. He recommended it to me, and I took a bottle, I soon began to feel better, and after taking the second bottle I was a cured man and threw away my crutches. I have always been a farmer, and am as able to do hard work now as ever I was."

LORD ROBERTS AND GEN. BULLER HANDLED WITHOUT GLOVES

A Little Inside History of S. A. Campaign

WHY BULLER RETIRED

An Estimate by the Only British Correspondent who Accompanied the Boer Forces

London, Jan. 6.—Douglas Story, the British war correspondent, who was with the Boer forces in the field, delivers a severe criticism of the war. In his remarks he says that the retirement of Gen. Buller is not due to jealousy on the part of Lord Roberts, as will be shown below.

At the beginning of the South African war, Great Britain possessed three great military schools—the old Egyptian, the Indian and the modern Egyptian. These may be roughly differentiated as the school of strategy, presided over by Lord Wolseley, the commander in chief; the school of tactics, headed by Lord Roberts; and the school of organization, dominated by Lord Kitchener. Between those various schools, and especially between the old Egyptian and the Indian there existed keen jealousies, bitter rivalries.

When it was realized that the troops in South Africa were altogether inadequate to withstand the Boer advance, the commander in chief, Lord Wolseley selected General Sir Redvers Buller, V.C., his chief of staff in the 1885 Sudan campaign for the supreme command, providing him with ample forces, and leaving him free in his choice of strategy. General Buller sailed from England with the intention of leaving the defence of Natal to Sir George White's division, he himself planning to lead the main army northward through Cape Colony, and the Orange Free State upon the vital centres of the enemy's organization—Bloemfontein and Pretoria.

Personally, I have never received any satisfactory explanation of General Buller's abandonment of this plan of campaign. It is said he, on arrival in Cape Town, was so impressed with the political necessity of speedily relieving Ladysmith; the necessity, if a rising of the whole Dutch race in Cape Colony and Natal were to be obviated, off stopping the Boer advance southward in Natal, that he decided to divert his main attack from the Free State upon the Boers around Ladysmith.

GENERAL BULLER'S ERROR IN STRATEGY.

Politically, he may have been justified. Strategically, he was not justified.

If it be granted that military science is merely the application to a specific purpose of common sense, it will be readily understood that with an army of strictly limited numbers—fifty two thousand in all, with never more than thirty-five thousand men on service at one time—the Boers would have been forced to withdraw from the seige of Ladysmith in order to withstand the British advance through the Orange Free State. Had the Boers succeeded in first capturing Ladysmith and in taking General White and his eleven thousand soldiers prisoners, they would have been seriously embarrassed by the necessity of detaching a sufficient force to guard them and setting apart a sufficient supply of food to maintain them. The Boers could spare neither men nor provisions, and the presence in the midst of so large a body of prisoners would have caused them more real trouble than the passive existence of a beleaguered city ever did.

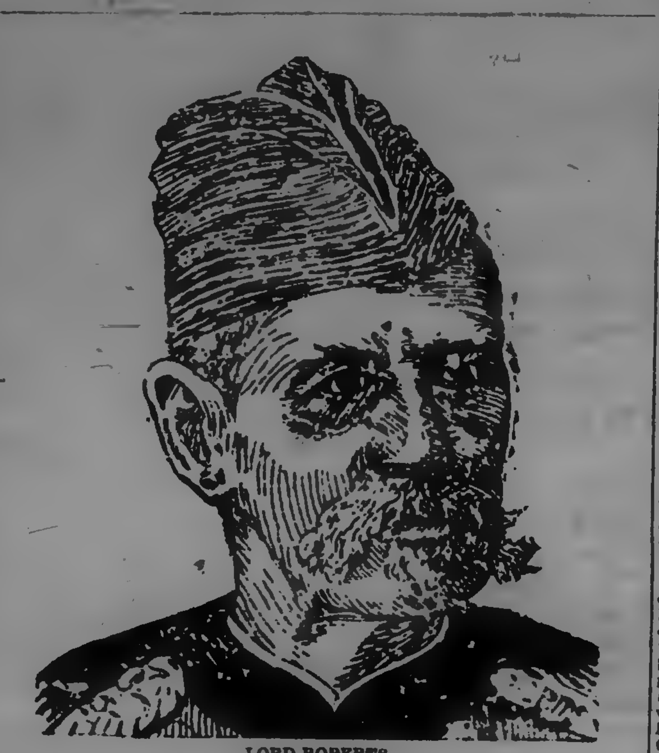
Meanwhile in a sense ever more intelligible to Sir George White and his garrison, the Boers would have been materially weakened in their investment of Ladysmith. They possessed but few seige guns, and had been obliged to dismantle the forts at Pretoria in order to provide the necessary heavy artillery for the attack upon Ladysmith. These guns, the Long Toms of the war, would have had to be removed from the positions commanding Ladysmith to positions in the Free State where they could oppose the heavy artillery of the British advance.

Besieged in such easy circumstances, Sir George White would have been relieved of the supreme horror of his position, or would have been left free to develop measures for his own release.

Time and again the foreign attaches who accompanied the Boer forces in the field have assured me that the isolated cities beset by the Boers were not matters for the attention of a British commander in chief in South Africa. They were mere incidents of the campaign. The attacking commander in chief was not the leader of a relief force, but the general commanding an army sent to end the war, to insure victory. To fulfil his instructions properly he must paralyse the vital centre of his enemy's organization, and thus gain control of its members. Had Sir Redvers Buller followed his original plan he would have [illegible] the relief of Kimberley before [illegible] 15, the relief of Ladysmith [illegible] February 28, and the relief of [illegible] before May 16, 1900.

[illegible] he led his forces against the Boers strongly posted on the hills commanding the Tugela River, in an attempt to force its passage; and on December 15, 1899, near Colenso, suffered defeat, with the loss of more than a thousand men and eleven guns.

This reverse, coming as it did in a week that chronicled heavy casualties under General Gatacre at Stormberg and under General Lord Methuen at Magersfontein, startled the British people. They demanded a new leader and on Dec. 23, 1899, Field Marshal Lord Roberts was ordered to South Africa, as commander in chief, with Lord Kitchener as chief of staff and with large reinforcements.



LORD ROBERTS.

LORD ROBERTS ASSUMES CONTROL

The Indian and the modern Egyptian schools had superseded the old Egyptian combination. Unfortunately, Lord Wolseley could not bring himself to face the complete suppression of his own nominee. The War Office order was worded in such a way that General Sir Redvers Buller was permitted to remain with a practically independent command in Natal. And so Lord Roberts was supreme in Cape Colony and to the northward with only the Secretary for War in authority over him. Sir Redvers Buller was supreme in Natal, with the War Office in warm alliance with him. However, Sir Redvers had to submit his despatches to his senior officer, and the field marshall's comments on his Spion Kop reports are historical.

There were now in South Africa representatives of the three great military schools of Great Britain; two of them, Lord Roberts and Sir Redvers Buller, were candidates for the succession to the commandership in chief of the army. Lord Kitchener was a loyal and devoted chief of staff to Lord Roberts, working hard at the organization of the transport, the commissariat, and the general efficiency of the army, leaving to Lord Roberts most of the strategical development of war.

Much gossip has been circulated with respect to a fancied estrangement between these two. When Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener were ordered to South Africa, it was assumed that the younger man would dictate the policy of the campaign. Lord Roberts contenting himself with signing headquarters orders. The field marshall, however, realized that with him lay the responsibility for the conduct of the war, and throughout he was careful to leave no doubt in the minds of the onlookers that he was conducting it. To the very proper state of affairs Lord Kitchener lent his cordial and unwavering support. Sir Redvers Buller remained alone, and in a sense, independent, in Natal.

THE SPION KOP BLUNDER.

Meanwhile Buller had permitted Sir Charles Warren, one of his generals of division, to make an attack upon Spion Kop, the bastion hill in the angle of two ranges guarding Ladysmith from attack from the South. That hill was known to be two thousand feet from base to summit, to be inaccessible to artillery approaching from the South, to be commanded and enfiladed by heavy Boer batteries occupying the two ranges to east and west. The idea was that from Spion Kop it would be possible to enfilade the ranges to right and left. It did not occur to the council of war that these ranges already covered Spion Kop with a fire capable of tremendous concentration.

Despite these ascertained factors of the situation, Sir Redvers Buller entered no definite protest in the council of war that decided upon an attempt to take and to hold this untenable position. In the night of January 23, five thousand men were moved upward under General Woodgate, to the summit. In the darkness these five thousand men took position on a narrow plateau, five acres in extent. Trained upon them were one Boer ninety-four pounder, four Krupp twelve pounders, and a number of Maxim-Nordenfelt one pounders. As though to assist in the creation of a shambles, General Woodgate committed the same mistake in tactics that General Sir George Colley made at Majuba Hill. He occupied the geographical crest of the hill, leaving the military crest some distance beneath him, to act as a rampart for the Boer marksmen.

The result was defeat, terrible, bloody. General Woodgate being mortally wounded, Colonel Thorneycroft withdrew the shattered remnants of his force, a force that had been exposed without shelter for twenty-four hours to a shell fire of seven shots a minute, itself possessing not one gun with which to make reply.

THE WEARY SUCCESSION OF REVERSES.

While Sir Redvers Buller was thus busy throwing force after force of men against these stern rocky barriers, guarded by invisible Boer marksmen supplied with smokeless powder, Lord Roberts was preparing for his advance northward through the Free State.

On February 12, 1900, his advance began; on February 15 General French his general in command of cavalry, relieved Kimberley; on February 22 he had corralled Cronje; on February 27 Cronje capitulated with forty-six hundred men and six guns.

These successes had their immediate effect upon the Boers in Natal. Mr. Smuts, the State attorney of the Transvaal and government advisory to the commandant general, wrote a long and confidential letter to General Louis Botha, counselling him to move all troops in Natal backward from Ladysmith to the smaller, more easily defended position of Biggarsberg and so to release a sufficiency of men to assist in the resistance of Lord Roberts' advance. That letter, in the original pencil, I had in my possession in Pretoria, and had in part translated for me by a Hollander gentleman now living in Montreal. Both letter and translation were stolen from me, with much of my baggage, on my way southward through De Wet's country to Cape Town.

THE TRUE SAVIOR OF LADYSMITH

Late in February, General Joubert moved his guns from the hills covering Ladysmith; and on February 28 Lord Dundonald entered Ladysmith. Gen. Louis Botha having fought a magnificent rear guard action against Gen. Buller at Pieter's Heights to cover the withdrawal of the guns from Ladysmith.

It is for this relief of Ladysmith that the British press, a year ago, hailed with acclamation the proposed elevation of Sir Redvers Buller to the peerage. As a matter of simple demonstration, the relief was performed by Lord Roberts, who drew over to the Free State the greater majority of the Boer forces previously besetting General White's garrison. Botha had less than five thousand men opposing the entire force of Buller's army at Pieter's Heights.

The contention, then, is that up to the relief of Ladysmith, Buller had done his duty as effectively as any British general, adopting his initial line of strategy, could have done. But its success depended solely on the power of Field Marshall Lord Roberts' supporting attack in the Free State.

THE JEALOUSIES OF THE SCHOOLS

It was when Ladysmith had been relieved, and Sir Redvers Buller's chief task in South Africa had been accomplished, that the jealousies of the opposing schools found vent. By May 1 Lord Roberts was prepared to begin his advance upon Johannesburg and Pretoria. As I understand his plan of campaign, he intended to move Buller to Laing's Neck, in the angle between the Transvaal and Natal, trusting to find it lightly held by the Boers. General Buller was then, with Laing's Neck as an elbow, to move his thirty thousand men along the Free State base of the mountains, bending them inwards and upwards, sweeping everything before him to the Vaal.

At the same time General Hunter was to perform a similar movement, using Fourteen streams, the point of the angle on the west side of the Free State as pivot, and to sweep the Free State clear to the Vaal. With General Lord Methuen on the left of his line of march, and General Ian Hamilton on the right, Lord Roberts would then have been enabled to advance with his main army, secure in the knowledge of cleared country to right and left and behind him.

Instead of that, Lord Roberts was forced to march with his wings abreast of his main advance, with no cleared country on either side, and with the enemy dashing about at pleasure in front, on either side, and behind him.

To account for that Sir Redvers Buller must make answer.

GENERAL BULLER DISAPPOINTS LORD ROBERTS.

As I understand it Lord Roberts three times in the month of May sent strenuous appeals to Sir Redvers Buller to advance. Each time Sir Redvers found excuse, pleading an enemy in overwhelming force before him, and represented that he was not in condition to move. In all this he was upheld by the War Office. Lord Roberts was powerless to enforce his will. He had to advance without the strong supporting force upon his right upon which he had counted so much, and had the terrible pain of seeing his entire plan of campaign made ineffective by the stubborn opposition of one man, supported by the jealous ill will of a competing school.

Because of the lack of co-operation Great Britain is still in the field to-day, and the Boers are still an effective fighting force.

On May 18, 1900, General Lukas Meyer, the general in command of the Four Natal force, came back to Pretoria, and I saw him. He said: "I have returned to report to General Botha that my men will no longer stand, should General Buller advance against them. If General Botha has the same tale to tell of his men at the Vaal, I shall, as its chairman, immediately call the Kooksraad together and propose measures of surrender."

At that time General Buller was consistently reporting his inability to attack the large force of Boers opposing him. That force of Boers was twelve hundred men under Commandant Christian Botha, who succeeded General Lukas Meyer in supreme command. They guarded the whole border of Portuguese East Africa, Swaziland, Zululand, and Natal, from Komati Poort to Van Reenen's Pass—twelve hundred men in charge of four hundred miles of frontier—and General Buller with thirty thousand troops could not force a passage!

It is told that a Scottish officer of Highlanders rode through Muller's Pass in full uniform into the Free State round the Free State face of the mountains, and back to Natal through Van Reenen's Pass. He reported the passes totally unoccupied by Boers—and General Buller put him under arrest for undertaking such an adventure without specific authorization!

On May 15 General Buller entered and occupied Dundee with only the opposition of a picket. On May 30 Lord Roberts entered Johannesburg; on June 6 the Union Jack floated over the Pretoria Raadzaal. General Buller still tarried in Natal. Roberts had performed his duty, but his supporting columns to right and left were wanting. The enemy were all around him, and the Field Marshall in Pretoria was as far from ending the war as when he arrived at Cape Town.

NINE AMERICANS PROVE TRAITORS

Write a Letter Trying to Persuade Others to Aid Filipinos

THEY RECALL WASHINGTON.

Say They Were Led by Conscience to Fight for Filipinos, and Have Received Good Treatment

Washington, Jan. 4.—The War Department has received from the Philippine copies of a proclamation, signed with the names of nine Americans, seven of these stated as being in the United States military service, inviting American soldiers to desert and join the ranks of the Filipino soldiery. The text of the document is as follows:

"To whom it may concern:

"Dear fellow countrymen — After many months among the Filipino people, studying their customs and characters, we, the undersigned, have come to the conclusion that the time has arrived for us to break the silence and let you know the real truth, so that you will see the folly of continuing fighting these people who are defending their country against the cruel American invasion in the same manner in which our forefathers did against England in those glorious days of our grand and noble liberator, Gen. George Washington.

"Since the days we were led by our conscience and presented ourselves to the Filipino authorities, we have received the best of treatment, and we are enjoying a life of luxury without having to put our lives in dangers as do you who still remain in the American ranks fighting for an unjust cause which sooner or later must surely prove disastrous, as it did to the Spanish."

Before we close, let us tell you that in nearly every town there are always stationed forces of Filipino troops, to whom, should you so desire, you can present yourselves with or without your rifles, and to avoid danger it is best to hide it in a secure place, and after you have presented yourself inform the Filipino officers or chief of the guerillas, and they will recover it and pay you some money in return.

CITY CANNOT HELP BOERS

Effort to Take $100 from Joliet Treasury is a Failure.

Joliet, Ill. Jan. 4.—An effort on the part of certain members of the Joliet city council to-night to donate $100 from the city treasury for the relief of the Boers in the South African campaign failed.

The motion was offered by Alderman Braun, a German representative of the third ward, the money to be sent to Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, under Governor Yates's recent proclamation. The right of a city to make any such donation was questioned, and it was finally decided to refer the matter for investigation.

Investigation of Buller's Dismissal

London, Jan. 4.— When King Edward opens Parliament January 16, which will be an occasion of even greater pomp and ceremony than was his last appearance in the House of Lords, one of the most interesting sessions of recent years will be commenced. Before its conclusion the whole status of the Liberal party is likely to be altered and Lord Rosebery's future determined. Present indications point to a split which no middle-road pronouncements can heal, and in which Sir Edward Grey, H. H. Asquith, Sir H. H. Fowler, R. W. Perks, R. B. Haldane and other Imperialists, together (with a few Unionists, will flock to Lord Rosebery's standard and initiate an organization with the hope of securing control of all the Liberal elements prior to the next general election. Temporarily this diversion of the Opposition will greatly facilitate the Government's program, the chief item of which is a sweeping reform of Parliamentary procedure. The delay and confusion which [illegible] characterizes all legislative efforts at Westminister have reached a point where Parliament has become ridiculous in the eyes of the country. In the drastic re-casting of the procedure many methods employed by the United States Congress will either be adopted, or given a trial in modified form.

Among other important features of the session will be a thorough investigation of Gen. Buller's dismissal from the army. This, doubtless will once more involve the nation in a whirlpool of bitter controversy.

Education and finance are two routine matters which will carry more than usual interest.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, will doubtless get all the additional war supplies he requires, though special measures will be necessary to raise them, and this will give Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's section of the Opposition a full opportunity for criticising the Government's policy in South Africa.

Some sanguine prophets also believe the war will be sufficiently near its end to enable the Government to put before the nation, during the session, detailed plans for the settlement of South Africa. This belief, however, does not appear to be shared by the War Office.

Rheumatism is a Constitutional Disease.

The pain and localized conditions are mere results of constitutional conditions. Poisoned blood sends its evil influence to various parts of the body, and to cure permanently you must treat it constitutionally. Nothing so completely dispels these poisons from the system as Ferrozone. It makes new blood. It improves vital and vigor, enabling the system to throw off the poisons that engender rheumatism. Ferrozone fortifies the system against the weakening effects of rheumatism and cures, not simply relieves, as most medicines do. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

TRAINED SCOUTS FOR SOUTH AFRICAN WAR

Kitchener Cables from Johannesburg to Ottawa For Canadians

NURSES ARE LIMITED TO FIVE IN NUMBER

The Recruiting of the Field Hospital Company Begins Next Wednesday, Jan. 8th

Ottawa, Jan. 4.

Lord Kitchener telegraphs to the Governor-General direct from Johannesburg, under date December 27th, as follows: "When next contingent comes can you arrange to send some trained trackers?" The decision, therefore, to constitute a body of scouts from one squadron of Mounted Rifles, under the command of Lieut. Casey Callaghan of Toronto, has anticipated the wishes of the commander of the forces. It is not unlikely, however, that some additional men of scouting experience will be secured in the West to go under Lord Kitchener's orders.

A cablegram from the War Office received to-day, states that pay and conditions of service for the field hospital company will be the same as for the respective ranks of the Mounted Rifles.

It is further intimated in the cable that the offer of five nurses for general service has been gratefully accepted.

The despatch of five nurses is contingent upon cabin accommodation being available upon the transports. If this is forthcoming the choice will be made from the sisters of the nursing Service of the Army Medical Staff. They are ten in number, viz., the Misses Pope, Forbes, Affleck, Russell, Harcombe, Horne, Macdonald, Richardson, Fortescue and Birmingham. All except the two latter have had experience in South Africa. Miss Affleck is at present in British Columbia, Miss Horne recently became a wife, and Miss Richardson is still in South Africa. The choice will, therefore be between the others named.

VENEZUELA IS WITHOUT MONEY

Government Said to Be Buying War Supplies in New York

THE FLEET IS WITHOUT COAL

Cannot Put to Sea and Search for the Libertador, Which May Have Landed Troops Near Barcelona.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Jan. 4.— The armed revolutionary steamer Libertador, formerly the British steamer Ban Righ, which left Port De France, Island of Martinique, Dec. 21, for the Venezuelan coast, having on board a cargo of munitions of war, General Manuel A. Matos, leader of the new revolution, and three hundred volunteers, has, it is believed here, presumably landed the expedition near Barcelona, Venezuela, in the state of Bermudez, on the Caribbean Sea. Advices received here from Caracas show that the Venezuelan Government is without news of the movements of the Libertador.

The vessels composing the Venezuelan fleet are without coal. Besides this, the engines of these warships are out of order, and therefore President Castro's ships could not put to sea and search for the Libertador. The Venezuelan Government, according to advices from Caracas, is without money, and is vainly trying to buy war supplies in New York. It is further asserted that the employes of the Government of Venezuela have been without pay for the last six months, and that they are only awaiting a favorable opportunity to take part in the revolt against President Castro.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

Town Council Has Decided for Compulsory Vaccination

In Ontario there are at present about 400 cases of smallpox, so that the presence of this dreaded disease may be regarded as an epidemic, and calls for the most rigid precautionary measures to prevent its spreading; and the Town Council and Board of Health are not behind hand or neglectful in their duty regarding the disease.

It has been generally known for some time past that a case of smallpox existed in town, the patient being a Miss Price, No. 174 Macdonald street. The attack was of so mild a type that it was hoped that with the precautions taken to isolate the patient and quarantine those who were in any way exposed that the outbreak would be confined to the one case. [illegible] Miss Price was traced to Ottawa [illegible] she will be able to go out in a day or so.

But through no fault of the authorities, or lack of vigilance, the trouble has spread from the first case and was communicated to Mr. William Joyce, who is at present at Mrs. Thrasher's house, No. 364 Aylmer street, and on Sunday, Dec. 29, he was taken to the hospital, which was exactly fourteen days after he had been exposed, the normal period of incubation, through some clothing handled by the first patient. Mr. Joyce is an employee of the C. G. E. works. At the hospital his case was pronounced smallpox, and the Board of Health were at once notified and took immediate steps to isolate the patient. A small-pox tent was procured and was erected in a secluded place in Jackson Park, and the patient removed there at once.

The tent is guarded by an orderly and every precaution is being taken to confine the disease to the one case.

Dr. Bingham is in attendance and will remain constantly with the patient until he is recovered. In the mean time Dr. Greer is performing the duties of Health Officer.

The Nicholls Hospital has been placed under strict quarantine for 14 days and no one will be allowed to leave or enter during that period.

Immediately on being notified of the case, Hon. J. R. Stratton, promptly despatched Dr. Hodgetts, who has had a large experience in smallpox cases in many parts of Ontario, to Peterborough and he at once proceeded to carry out the instructions of the Provincial Board of Health.

The public should guard against giving any alarming rumors regarding the trouble, and no report should be credited except on the authority of the Health officers, who will take every means to isolate any possible cases, and to make the place of its occurrence a marked, placarded, quarantined spot, these being the part of the precautions indicated at present.
